Defeat maintenance fund request

Voters approve school operational millage

Charlevoix School District voters approved one millage request and turned down another during the General School Election Monday night.

The voters also returned Ardeth Wieland to her position on the Charlevoix Board of Education and elected James J. Haggard as a new school board member.

With only 22 percent of the registered voters participating in the election, school district residents narrowly approved the request for a renewal of 2.75 mills for three years for operations.

The proposal inched into approval on a 15-vote margin with 498 people, or 50.4 percent of the total voting, supporting the request and 483 or 48.9 percent voting no.

The second millage request to renew 1 mill for one year for maintenance was defeated by 146 votes with 417 people or 42.2 percent casting yes ballots and 563 or 57.8 percent voting no.

The 1 mill was to be used to upgrade the heating system at the elementary school and to erect a fence on the playground.

It was also going to be used to repair roofs at the elementary, middle and high schools, to upgrade the middle school cafeteria, to continue the middle school reading program and to replace furniture at the high school.

Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren said the defeat of the 1 mill request meant there would have to be some changes in the maintenance program.

"We're going to have to tighten our belts as far as maintenance program is concerned and get by with that," Van Wieren said.

Incumbent Ardeth Wieland led the pack of six candidates vying for two four-year terms on the school board. Mrs. Wieland received 649 votes or 65.7 percent of the total votes cast.

James J. Haggard placed second with 329 votes or 33.3 percent of the tally.

William Kenifeck collected 302 votes or 30.5 percent while Dennis Kusina had 210 votes or 21.1 percent.

Larry Lenerand had 184 votes or 18.6 percent of the vote and Otis Elliott had 126 voters or 12.7 percent.

Mrs. Wieland said she was surprised at the tremendous show of support she received from the voters.

"When people show they have that kind of confidence in you all you can do is hope that you will be worthy of their confidence and support," she said.

The school board member said she was disappointed that the 1 mill request for maintenance was turned down by the voters.

"It's going to take some difficult rearranging of funds," she said. "You know, when you keep putting off buying or repairing something because it is the type of thing that would be included in a bonding issue like buying new furniture and you keep thinking the bonding issue will pass and it doesn't, you find yourself in a situation where everything falls apart at once."

LET'S TELL IT LIKE IT IS

Between 600 and 700 area people signed a petition requesting the Charlevoix County Road Commission not to abandon the Bells Bay to Inwood Creek Lake Shore Road.

The Road Commission ignored this petition.

This is the second time in the last few years the people have voiced their opinion on this road closing. If you are fed up with Bureaucrats ignoring your wishes on so many of your rights and privilegese, put your money where your mouths are – in a law suit action to stop this. Let's have some control over our public land. A Charlevoix County concerned citizen for Public Land.

EQUALIZATION IN BEST INTEREST

Those taxpayers that are knowledgeable of the equalization process know the majority of the board of commissioners, in voting for county equalization, acted in the best interest of the constituents. Also, any inequities between Emmet and Charlevoix County are the responsibdity of the state tax commission!

THANKS SHERIFF DEPARTMENT

No-one wants dogs to raise their leg on shrubs and flowers. Thank you, Sheriff's Dept., for a job well done. A pet confined to a house is one thing. A pet that's left to roam to make a nuisance of itself is another. I owned a lived for many years on a farm. I saw many deer being chased by a group of dogs. A few deer that stopped, left my place for the happy hunting grounds. The dogs were usually of the cur or mixed breed kind. One time I used my .22 caliber rifle, but over 100 yds. it doesn't work too good. But, I turned the 3 dogs back, while the two does and a fawn had a chance to escape. The snow was about 12 to 14" on the level. The young deer had it's tongue out and could not run anymore. A little more running and it would have been all over. Thanks again, Sheriff's Dept.

NEED SAFE PLACE TO BICYCLE

Dear disgusted taxpayer, I own a 10-speed bicycle and I don't like riding on the sidewalk. One day, I was riding downtown and someone pulled their car out in front of me, forcing me up on the curb. This ruined the back rim of my bike. Back rims on bikes don't run cheap. I am 15 years old and don't have the kind of money it takes to pay for back rims. I don't care if there is a law against riding bikes on the sidewalk, I will continue to ride on the sidewalk until I have a safe place to ride.

ANOTHER BIKER REPLIES

I would like to know where the person signed "A Disgusted Taxpayer" proposes bikers ride? Every summer the streets are so full of tourists, there is no place for bikes. I have been hit at least once every summer. Whenever I ride in the streets, someone tries to run me down or cut me off. Signed, A Biker.

City council to pursue purchase of Hiller property for park

A new park, docking facilities and downtown parking lot may be on the horizon for the City of Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Common Council voted Monday night to actively pursue the purchase of the Charlevoix Lumber Company property for the development of a park, dock and parking lot facility.

David Strawbridge, chairman of the Charlevoix Planning Commission, made the recommendation that the council consider purchasing the 2.12 acre lot with 322 feet of frontage on Round Lake.

The property, owned by James Hiller, is listed with Ski and Shore of Charlevoix at a price of $500,000.

"A few weeks ago a private individual suggested to the planning commission that this property might be desirable for the community to purchase," Strawbridge explained. "We went out and walked the property and we were very impressed with it.

"In my estimation, and in the estimation of the planning commission, this property is one that the city should consider purchasing. In value it ranks with the East Park property.

"We felt if anybody should have it, it should be the city."

Strawbridge also presented a proposed site plan for the property. In the site plan, the planning commission suggested that two parking lots be established on the property, one right behind the existing warehouse building next to The Lodge, for 20 spaces and another on the east side of the building for 63 parking spaces.

The land surrounding the main buildings would be turned into park and picnic areas and the lake frontage would be developed into municipal docks with space for 12 medium-sized boats.

The buildings could be used as offices for the Recreation Department and other city departments and as a place to park one fire engine so that the truck doesn't have to be moved across the bridge every time it is raised.

Alderman George Plumm asked Strawbridge who he thought would use the parking lots. The planning commission chairman proposed that the 63-space lot be used by merchants and downtown employees.

The 20-space lot would be saved for visitors and shoppers. Strawbridge felt the visibility of the lot from Bridge Street and Michigan Avenue would create more use than there currently is at the Clinton Street parking lot which is not visible from the street.

"And it would give people a place to park and walk across the bridge," Mayor Sam Supernaw said. "You know how people like to walk across the bridge."

George Richardson, head of the commercial development department for Ski and Shore, has been working with Strawbridge on the project and explained that funds for the purchase of the property may be available through the National Conservancy. Richardson said the conservancy is mostly concerned with the purchase of wetlands, but that representatives of the group had told him they would consider purchasing the Hiller property.

The conservancy helps municipalities fund the purchase of strategically located property and then acts as a holding operation until the city can raise the funds to purchase the land itself. Richardson said he had also come into contact with several private citizens who were willing to make contributions toward the purchase of the property.

Reaction to the purchase of the property was positive.

"I was disappointed when the city didn't acquire all of that property when it was available 20 years ago," Oscar Ward, Second Ward resident, said. "I think this could be a good move on the part of the city."

Dick Donaldson, adjoining property owner, was also very much in favor of the city purchasing the property.

Mayor Supernaw said public hearings on the use of the property will be held to get input from city residents on the best use of the land.

To get an impartial review and examination of Medusa Corporation's plans for a $50 million conversion and expansion is the goal of the newly founded committee for Protection of the Environment, Inc.

In a position paper issued this week by John Michael, attorney for the nonprofit corporation, the group said it was seeking a review of the plans by experts to determine how the new operation will affect the environment.

"We are unable to accept assurances from Medusa, as they, of course, are prejudiced," the group wrote in the position paper. "We therefore have been compelled to institute suit in the Charlevoix County Circuit Court for impartial review and examination by experts to be made through the court of Medusa's proposed expansion program.

Michael said the committee realized that cement manufacturing facilities created some pollution because of the nature of the industry. He said the group also realized that Charlevoix needs the jobs the company provides.

"However, our group does very strongly feel that because of the product that it manufactures, that Medusa does have an obligation of responsibility to the community in which it operates, which we feel that it has failed to recognize and meet. Therefore, we are very concerned about the future."

The group charged that in the past emissions from the plant have covered vehicles and house windows with dust. They also object to the odor coming from the stack at the plant and to the noise of the blasting and rock crushing and grinding equipment.

The group questioned whether increased production at the plant, which Medusa proposes under its expansion and conversion would aggravate existing problems.

A hearing on the suit requesting a halt in construction until an environmental impact study can be completed will be held July 13.

Elbert Kaiser, Medusa plant manager, was unavailable for comment on the suit and Thomas Pointner, local attorney for the company, had no comment to make on the issue.

School board discusses plans for lighthouse

Tentative plans for restoring the Beaver Head lighthouse on Beaver Island to its former condition and renovating it for use by school groups were discussed at a special meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education held Monday at the high school study hall.

The school district has applied for a grant to underwrite the cost of the work. At the present time, the hiring of a supervisor is being considered to oversee the work. Unemployed youth will be hired to do the work.

The proposal to accept a lot in the Vernida development south of Charlevoix off the Marion Center Road as partial payment for the building trades house in Hampton Village was tabled until a later meeting.

The resignation of Duane H. Bolduc from the teaching staff was accepted. The board wished him well in future endeavors. He has been a member of the teaching staff at the middle school for 11½ years.

Members of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers remained on strike at the Medusa Cement Plant in Charlevoix and at plants in six other states over the weekend.

Thomas Oleksy, president of the Charlevoix union local, said no date for renewed contract negotiations had been set. Oleksy said he had received no communication as to when negotiations might begin again, either.

Approximately 100 workers walked off the job at 7 a.m. Thursday at the Charlevoix plant after a vote to strike was approved by the workers at the seven Medusa plants. The contract expired May 1 and negotiations broke down completely last week.

Oleksy said working conditions and contract language were the main hang-ups in the negotiations between union and company officials.

Medusa management personnel from around the country are in Charlevoix operating the cement plant. None of the other Medusa plants are currently in operation.

Company officials were not available to discuss the strike, however, strikers estimated between 25 and 40 management people were running the Charlevoix plant.

For rail customers in Northern Michigan

Swing bridge link to future service

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

Charlevoix's railroad swing bridge across the entrance of Round Lake to Lake Charlevoix may be a deciding factor in the future of rail service through Charlevoix.

Michigan Northern Railroad is contemplating taking over the line from Traverse City to Bay View, which runs through Charlevoix, if and when the present owners of the line, The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad (C&O) is granted its petition to abandon the line.

However, as Beth Andrus, President of Michigan Northern explained in a phone interview, "It is estimated that repairs to the Charlevoix swing bridge will cost a couple hundred thousand dollars."

The railroad president continued saying that the difference between Michigan Northern's operating costs and income is subsidized by the State of Michigan. "Our concern is not to put the state in a position to have to subsidize us further."

Thus the question of whether or not Michigan Northern will take over the C&O service is still open.

"If people demand rail service and apply political pressure, the state might agree to bear the costs," Ms. Andrus said.

Michigan Northern conducted a study of rail users in the Charlevoix area in 1976, finding that only 62 railroad cars a year are either destined for or originate in Charlevoix.

Thus, Ms. Andrus said, unless people indicate more interest in using rail service in Charlevoix, it will probably be discontinued, if the C&O petition for abandonment is granted.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad filed a petition to abandon about 75 miles of track from Traverse City to Bay View with the Interstate Commerce Commission, in Washington, D.C., in 1975.

Hearings on the question were finished this April (1978) after the United States congress passed a bill setting time limits on the length of time the I.C.C. could hold railroad petitions for abandonment in abeyance. Although the C&O petition to abandon the Traverse City to Bay View track was not directly affected by the new law, the I.C.C. began to push for hearings on all outstanding petitions, an attorney in the state attorney general's office said.

The Michigan State Attorney General's office, which spoke against C&O abandonment, is now filing its brief.

According to a spokesperson in the attorney general's office, a decision on the C&O petition should come down from the hearing judge by the end of August or early September.

At that time Michigan Northern will make its decision based on numbers of rail service users and costs, including the costs of repairing the Charlevoix swing bridge.

Spokesmen for the C&O and Michigan Northern agree that the bridge is temporarily safe, but that major repairs are required soon.

Ms. Andrus said that rail users such as Medusa, Freedman's Art Craft, Kit Carson Lumber Company, and the Charlevoix Co-op will have to apply pressure if they wish to see rail service continued.

Glen Kenney, speaking for Kit Carson, said his firm would like to see rail service continued, but added, "The railroads will have to clean up their whole act. I'd use the railroad if I could, but last year they lost our first shipment and the second shipment was derailed."

Elbert Kaiser, speaking on behalf of Medusa Cement Company, said "If there was a movement to get Michigan Northern to take over the track, we'd support it."

Most Charlevoix users explained they receive more goods by rail than they ship, but they all agreed that the railroads have done little to encourage business.

As rail service has deteriorated, businesses like Freedmans Art Craft have turned to trucking, investing heavily in their own trucks.

Joe Powell, traffic manager at Freedmans observed that once a business has made the investment in trucks it is not likely they will return to railroads.

Thus, as the receivers and shippers all point out, there has been a vicious circle. The railroads have discouraged business, allowed the tracks to fall into a state of disrepair, and businesses have developed other methods of shipping, which has fueled the arguments of railroads, like the C&O, claiming lack of business justifies their petition for abandonment.

In sum, Beth Andrus reiterated, in a telephone interview, that if local rail users went rail service to continue they will have to apply political pressure so the state will consider it worth while to subsidize the operation of Michigan Northern.

A TRAIN SLOWLY eases its way across the railroad swing bridge across Lake Charlevoix. The bridge may be the determining factor in the continuance of rail service to Northern Michigan.

Flurry of activity as deadline for petitions draws to close

There was a flurry of activity in county, city and township clerk's offices as the deadline for submitting nominating petitions drew to a close at 4 p.m. June 6.

Only four petitions were filed for five offices in the City of Charlevoix. Mayor Sam Supernaw will be seeking re-election to his seat as are Ray Wood, First Ward alderman; and Ivan Whitley, Second Ward alderman.

Shirley Roloff has filed a petition nominating her for the Third Ward alderman's seat currently held by George Plumm.

Shirley Roloff has filed a petition nominating her for the Third Ward alderman's seat currently held by George Plumm.

All candidates are running unopposed. No one filed a nominating petition for the City Clerk's position.

On the county level, some races have developed in the City of Charlevoix, however. In District 14, which represents the Second Ward, Marianne Thomure has announced her intention to seek a seat on the commission. Mrs. Thomure will run on the Republican ticket.

All other area commissioners will run unopposed in the upcoming primary and general elections. I Lee Moeriand, District 15, which is the Third Ward in the City of Charlevoix; Don Meggison, District 13, which is the First Ward the City of Charlevoix; and John Haggard, District 3, Charlevoix and Hayes townships are all seeking re-election.

Other races developing at the county level include one in District 5, which is Eveline and Wilson townships. Incumbent Ralph Richardson and Chad B. McDonald are both seeking the Republican nomination for the commissioner's seat.

And in District 10, which is Boyne City, Incumbent Martin Paul is seeking the Democratic nomination to the seat and Casimir Toton is seeking the Republican nomination to the seat.

All other commissioners candidates are seeking re-election and are running unopposed. They are: Delbert Ingalls, District 1; Clyde Cunningham, District 2; Ira L. Davis, District 4; Larry D. Matthew, District 6; Ralph E. Harmon, District 7; Richard A. McKinnon, District 8; Keith R. Annear, District 9; Oral E. Sutliff, District 11; and John D. Kujawski, District 12.

Many contests also developed on the township level in this part of the county.

Both townships that make up Beaver Island will be the site of contests expecially in Peaine Township where there will be three. The incumbents, Joseph B. Martin, is being opposed by Mrs. Betty Welke for the office of clerk; trustee Edward Palmer will have opposition from Mary Ellen Welke and constable Donald Hogan from William Welke. Only the supervisor, Stanley Floyd, and the treasurer, Mrs. Rose Connaghan, are uncontested. Both are incumbents.

In St. James Township, the contest is for trustee with Ernest Martin and Timothy McDonough seeking the nomination for the post vacated by Herbert Fleischman. Richard L. Speck is a candidate for the second trustee office being vacated by Mrs. Vera Wojan. Other incumbents who are unopposed are John W. Gallagher, supervisor; Vivion Visscher, clerk; James L. Wojan, treasurer and Jerry LaFreniere, constable. These petitions were filed on the Democratic ballot.

There are two contests in Norwood Township, for supervisor and clerk. John G. Sevestian, incumbent supervisor is being opposed by Mrs. Evelyn Farrell and Mrs. Nancy L. Ritsema and Delmoore Swarthwout are candidates for the office of clerk being vacated by Mrs. Bertha Parsons. Nancy L. Lord is a candidate for trustee to succeed Milton Richardson who is not seeking re-election. Incumbent treasurer, Mrs. Ruth Ann Campbell, is unopposed.

The only contests in Marion and Charlevoix townships are for the offices of trustee. In Marion township Frank Novotny and Stephen Michael Bonar are opposing each other for the office. Other incumbents are without opposition. They are Robert Potter, supervisor; Tracy Curtis, clerk and Mrs. Doris Johnson, treasurer. Edwin Mann is the second trustee whose term is not up at this time.

Incumbents in Hayes Township who are unopposed are supervisor, Lee Sneathen, Jr.; clerk, Mrs. Sandra Somerville; treasurer, Mrs. Shirlene Trip and trustee, Lloyd Kuebler.

Two new names will appear on the ballot in Eveline Township. They are Mrs. Diana Thomas and Chester Nietupski, candidates to fill two vacancies for constable. Incumbents who are unopposed are Ivan G. Parsons, supervisor; Eric Bieshlag, clerk; Mrs. Linda F. Hildebrant, treasurer and Mrs. Zola Kemp and David Willson, trustees.

Medusa Corp. needs to review open approach to neighbors

A little more than nine months ago this column was filled with an editorial congratulating Medusa Corporation for its open approach to the community about its upcoming plans for expansion.

Medusa held a dinner for business and community leaders and explained what its plans for a $50 million conversion and expansion at the plant on the shores of Lake Michigan would mean to Charlevoix.

Company officials stressed that the expansion and conversion from the wet process to the dry process of making cement would help it double its production and improve the quality of the cement coming from the plant, while using less energy and at less expense.

The officials pledged to cut down on the dust, the odor and the noise by using a new process that was developed in Japan.

During that meeting, Scott Rogers, president of Medusa Corporation, said: "We have plants in 61 communities across the country that are all the size of Charlevoix or smaller. When you have that, you get to know how to live decently.

"We hope to bring all of that expertise to bear any problems that you might experience here."

Now some people in the area have become concerned about the effects of the new, and unproven, in this country at least, cement making process on Charlevoix. They are concerned because of some of the things that are happening to the area under the old, familiar process. And they want some answers.

Unfortunately, they have gone to the extreme and as the Committee for the Preservation of the Environment, they filed suit to find out some answers. While this may seem like a rather violent reaction to Medusa officials and other community members, the committee does have some legitimate complaints.

The odor and dust around the plant are very evident and dust can be seen as a grey cloud or sort of hanging haze around the plant even on windy days. The environmentalists also point out that many trees in the green belt area around Medusa property on Lake Shore Drive are dying due to pools of lime concentrated water and that other things are happening that shouldn't be.

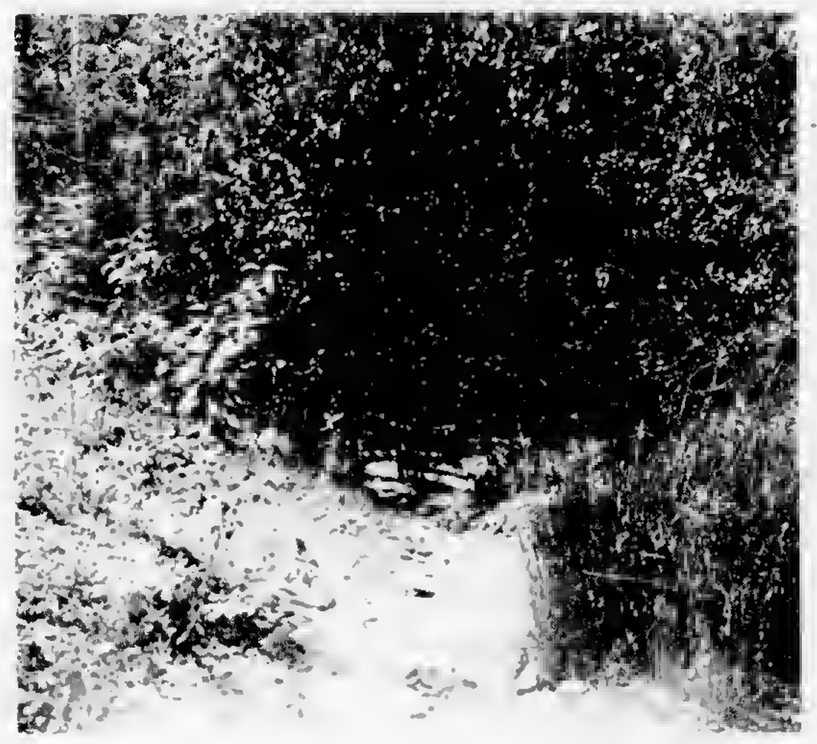
Their argument is, if Medusa doesn't care enough to protect the environment of Charlevoix now, what will happen in the future when a new and as yet unproven process enters the scene?

And this isn't the first time that citizens' groups have asked Medusa to be a better neighbor, there have been other complaints about dying trees and dust that were eventually answered.

Charlevoix cannot survive without its industries, but it cannot survive without its super environment, either. Both residents and industries should work together to come to a solution protecting both industry and environment.

Last fall, it appeared that Medusa had taken a step in that direction. This summer, the Charlevoix Courier is hopeful that the company is still concerned and will look at the recently filed suit not as an attack but as a request for a return to good neighbor status.

The Committee for Preservation of the Environment should also work with Medusa to get the answers it seeks and to bring a sense of harmony back to Charlevoix.



THIS STREAM OF WATER carrying a concentration of lime washed out of dirt on Medusa property runs into the woods along the shoreline of Lake Michigan. Many trees in the area are dying.

Paula Holmes...
...Speaking Her Mind

Each year around graduation time I get a little lump in my throat. I don't know what it is, but when those strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" are struck up by the band, that funny lump shows up.

This year graduation has a special meaning for me because my youngest brother, Jeff, will be among the thousands of high school seniors going through the ceremony.

While I am only eight years and nine months older than Jeff, sometimes that age barrier has seemed like a chasm separating us.

Like the time we moved into a new neighborhood and he was telling some of the kids about his family.

"I have one brother and one sister," he informed them. "And then there's this other girl who's sort of like another mother."

Or there was the time when he helped me celebrate my 24th birthday. My parents had given me a set of pans which I needed very badly and was overjoyed to receive. And as I was expressing the extent of my joy, Jeff queried, "Is that what happens when you turn 24? You get excited about pans?"

I expect as Jeff enters the world of the university and then ventures out on his own, that chasm between us will disappear and we will be more in tune with each other – at least he'll understand the importance of a set of pans.

While I'm glad I'm not going through high school graduation and all of the decisions that accompany it, in a way I sort of envy the Class of 1978.

The coming years have got to be one of the most exciting times in our history. The problems facing the country and the world are like none we have had before.

And they fall in every field – science, economics, political science, social science – you name it, there's a new frontier in each of the fields.

The challenges are great and the opportunities for meeting the problems are even greater. It's an exciting time to be thinking about a career and the effect one can have on the future.

And I guess that's the message I have for my brother and the Class of 1978 even though it sounds like the tired old commencement speech. It's a great time to be alive. The chances for making your mark on the world are plentiful.

You will face some barriers for sure, but it is your enthusiasm, your fresh look at things that will carry you through the bad times and onto new things.

Fight against becoming bitter and jaded when things don't go your way. It's a big world and there's plenty of room for all ideas.

Frankly, I expected something a little more discerning from exiled Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn when he addressed Harvard University graduates in Cambridge, Mass., last week.

Solzhenitsyn, as you'll recall, not only said that Americans have lost their courage but also noted a moral poverty abroad in the land that could prove fatal.

He predicted that the next war could well bury Western civilization forever and roundly condemned America's peace leaders during the Vietnam war.

He claims America "lost its nerve" in Vietnam.

"The most cruel mistake occurred with the failure to understand the Vietnam War," Solzhenitsyn said. "Some people sincerely wanted all wars to stop just as soon as possible...But members of the U.S. anti-war movement wound up being involved in the betrayal of Far Eastern nations, in a genocide and in the suffering today imposed on 30 million people there. Do those convinced pacifists hear the moans coming from there? Do they understand their responsibility today? Or do they prefer not to hear?"

Americans, of course, should land on their Russian guest with both feet for making such assinine statements, but he must be given some quarter because he did not live in the United States during those terrible years.

Perhaps he does not realize that if the war had continued another six months, the United States itself could well have been chalked up as another battlefield casualty.

Is Solzhenitsyn so blind that he cannot see that after a full generation of war – starting in 1941 and ending in 1975 – the American people were totally incapable of perpetrating such bloodshed another day?

As a learned man, he should know that third parties do not decide civil wars without subjugating the will of both the winners and loser alike?

Does he comprehend so little about human nature that he fails to realize the hopelessness of the American position in Vietnam or the idiocy of attempting to defend dictators in their conflicts with other dictators?

Fortunately, the Harvard graduates had the presence of mind to hiss and boo when Solzhenitsyn began his tirade against the peace movement which led to the eventual withdrawal of American troops. Talk about courage! Talk about nerve!

The leaders and participants of the peace movement displayed more courage and nerve than any Americans since the Revolution. The little old ladies in tennis shoes who picketed draft boards and counseled draft evaders – in total and utter defiance of the federal government – showed just as much courage as the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Their untiring efforts, eventually brought the country to its senses, although President Gerald Ford was still trying to wring more war funds from Congress as the last Yankee helicopters were leaving the rooftops of Saigon.

Of course, the world laments the carnage that is presently taking place in Cambodia under the sword of the communists. And we have deep sympathy for the African blacks who are striving to free themselves from the yoke of white tyranny.

But we also know from experience that these are battles which must be fought and won without outside interference or their victories will be meaningless.

Getting my head together

"The trouble is, I never searched for my identity. I never even tried to find out who I am," the husband said. He was explaining to his wife why he was the only loser at the table.

The scene was one of those award dinners at which professional journalists regularly kiss themselves. The husband and six other employees of the Detroit Free Press had been nominated in various writing categories and were competing against their peers for cash prizes.

The six other employees won. The husband was beaten by a TV editorial on double-bottom trucks. His acceptance speech would never be heard. He felt like Ted Baxter on the "Mary Tyler Moore Show."

"That prize was $300," his wife pointed out. "Why couldn't you write about trucks killing people? You had to write about some bum who plays pool at the Anchor Bar."

"A writer must write what he knows," the husband explained. But he couldn't deny that losing hurt. It wasn't the first time. He remembered the year he had been nominated in four different categories. He finished third in all four.

"I always said you were a third-class writer," said his friend Sherman, who won a first prize that year for an impassioned editorial against flea collars.

So the husband has often wondered if he chose the right career. And he wondered again on the evening he was run over by a double-bottom trucks. He decided he was an adult loser because of a big mistake he had made when he was young. He had never taken the time to find out who he was.

"I never even got my head together," he explained to his wife. "30 years ago, I didn't know my head was separated. I just thought I had loose ears."

That morning the husband had read a newspaper article about Amy Wallace, who has become a successful author at the age of 22. But first she had to float.

Amy is the daughter of Irving Wallace, who has made millions of dollars writing such books as "The Chapman Report." It was her father's fame that caused Amy to not know who she was.

"It's hard, when your father is that famous, to have a sense of your own identity," she said. So she had to search for herself.

"She was floating around, not quite sure of herself or of her direction or identity," the newspaper reported. This was after she graduated from prep school. She floated from Vermont to California and, after a year or so, she discovered herself.

From that point forward, Amy was a best-seller, a winner. If she lives 80 more years, she will never be run over by a double-bottom truck.

The husband has read about dozens of young people who shared Amy's problem. Because they were the children of famous parents, they didn't know who they were. They had to spend years sitting around saloons or walking on beaches or beating bongo drums until they found their identities.

The husband remembers that his father was famous. He bowled the first 300 game in his town, and he pitched a no-hit game at a Kiwanis picnic. But this famous father's son had never been allowed any time in which to find his identity.

When the husband was a boy, everytime he got out of school, if only for a weekend, he had to go to work. If he had ever suggested to his father that he couldn't work for a year because he had to float to California to find out who he was, his father would have provided a crushing preview of double-bottom trucks to come.

"It is no wonder I can't win $300 in a writing contest," the husband said to his wife. He was beginning to sound hysterical. "I don't know who I am. I may not be a writer at all. I may be a mailman or a movie actor. I never had a chance to find out. I never floated once."

"You've got to get your head together," the wife warned.

"You're right," he said. "Hand me that ear."

Letters to the editor

Oscar Ward criticizes coverage of Bells Bay issue

To the Editor:

"Public opinion is everything. With public sentiment nothing can fail;
Without it, nothing can succeed. Consequently, he who molds public opinion goes deeper than he who enacts statutes or pronounces decisions." – A. Lincoln

Again I must take exception to your recent editorial of May 17th issue regarding abandonment of Lake Shore Drive. (perhaps you did not write the opinion – but it did appear under your sponsorship)

Perhaps one shouldn't expect one of your tender age to attend all weekend events; however your absence was noticed at the public hearing on May 5th.

I think that you would agree that truth and accuracy are sometimes sacrificed when relying on information translated second and third hand.

Perhaps Sara Dammann was representing your office which might explain the unrealistic appraisal on her part as reporting public comment registering approximately 55 percent in favor of leaving the road open – one week later in your editorial the distortion gets an added twist by appearing as an equal number of proponents and opponents.

You mention that the DNR has too much money invested not to invest a half-million more by developing the area for commercialization. YOU seem to regard this as a private investment while the public has very definite views otherwise about just whose cash is actually involved here.

It has been evident for some time that many writers in the Schaller news combine regard themselves as an integral part of government putting you both at odds with your responsibilities to the public.

With the news media in league with the government, it brings into sharp focus the fact that you and the people are poles apart.

How convenient to this point that none of the scribes writing on the subject have regarded it pertinent to mention that petitions bearing roughly 700 signatures of people whose wishes were to leave the Lake Shore Road open deserved comment or the fact that the Charlevoix Township government and the City of Charlevoix were petitioned by residents of their respective units to place this issue on the ballot for the General Election in November of 1976. These petitions were totally Ignored.

Have you - as well as the local government decided that celebrating 200 years of government by the people in our Republic was fine, enjoyable, but adequate – that henceforth a better PLAN involving appointed members of government coupled with farcical public hearings – we no longer have need for one pillar of our nation; the ballot box?

To add insult to injury the written official minutes of the Charlevoix County Road Commission regarding the public hearing on May 5th and the meeting at Boyne City on May 8th when the commissioners voted to officially abandon the Lake Shore Road make no mention or reference to the petitions representing over 700 people that were submitted by the public for the inspection of the commission on the road issue, Nor was any reference made regarding the request for a public vote on the issue in the petitions submitted to the Charlevoix City Clerk and Charlevoix Township Clerk in 1976.

It is quite evident that YOU and local government have maneuvered yourselves into a "no win" situation as you have already lost the psychological battle for the hearts and minds of the people.

Sincerely
Oscar W. Ward

P.S. Please print as submitted or delete all.

EDITOR'S NOTE: If Mr. Ward would take the time to reread Mrs. Dammann's story on the public hearing, he would find that she mentioned not only one, but two petitions which were turned in to the Charlevoix County Road Commission members. The story was printed on the front page of the May 10 issue of the Charlevoix Courier. The Courier stands behind Mrs. Dammann and all of its reporters and their integrity.

This column is FOR CHILDREN ONLY.

In anticipation of your question, it will take about a minute and 15 seconds to read. There will be no quiz and no big words.

Remember how your mother sat through a pouring rain to watch you play baseball and a high fly went right through your fingers and she said, "It could happen to Pete Rose"?

Remember that when she serves a birthday cake that has to be propped up with bread crusts and the crack in the middle with icing and the layers reinforced with toothpicks.

Remember how you borrowed her camera for the picnic and you dropped it into the duck pond and she said, "It was old and we needed a new one anyway"?

Remember that when she returns your brand new T-shirt hopelessly shrunk, perma-wrinkled and with terminal lint.

Remember when you were in the school play and you had one line, "I hear soldiers outside," and you blew it and said, "Does anyone hear anything?" and she said, "You were the only one we could hear."

Remember when you were supposed to play "March of the Wee Folks" in the piano recital and all the others were girls and your mother said, "You look flushed. Maybe you have a fever and shouldn't go"?

Remember that when your mother is waiting for you in the car after scout meeting and the dog is clawing the seat and the baby is slobbering on the steering wheel and she is in a towaway zone and forgot to unplug the coffee pot.

Remember when you were selling peanut brittle for the band and your grandma was out of town and you didn't start selling until the night before you were to make your quota for the gang to go to Washington and your mother was on a diet and bought two dozen boxes for the freezer?

Remember that when they need volunteers to chaperone the fourth grade to a meat packing plant for class day and all the other mothers are allergic to children and your mother was due to deliver last week.

It's called "compassion" and I lied to you. Look it up!

Meet Charlevoix

...Patty Muma

By PEG OHLE

Patty Muma came to Charlevoix to live three years ago, and since then has made a name for herself as a worker in good causes, especially the American Cancer Crusade. This week the Courier talks with her about her activities, and about herself.

COURIER: We can tell from your accent that you're a southerner. Where did you come from, and why?

MUMA: I was a widow and came here to visit my sister, Shirley Roloff. My home was in Lenoir, North Carolina. While visiting, I met Jerry Muma. We were married a few months later, and I came here to live permanently.

COURIER: How did you become interested in the Cancer Crusade?

MUMA: My mother died of cancer, and I worked on the campaign before moving here.

COURIER: How long have you headed up the Charlevoix County Cancer Crusade?

MUMA: I'm finishing my third campaign. We've met our quota each year. In fact, Charlevoix County has met its quota for the last 11 years. Last night we were awarded another Victory Crusade Award for making our goal, as well as a gold key.

COURIER: What was your quota, and how did you meet it?

MUMA: Our goal was $15,000 and we raised the money in several different ways. We made a profit of $1,935 on the Gary Shope country music show; the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion auxiliaries turned over $537 from salad and casserole lunches; chances on the color TV yet netted $315; school collections were $123; VFW bingo games share was $60; our door-to-door collections were $3,390.50; local businesses contributed $1,019; and Barb's Hallmark gift of 10 percent of opening day sales was $100. Several such things.

COURIER: What does the Cancer Crusade money go for?

MUMA: Half of the money stays in Charlevoix County and goes for our educational program, our service program, in which we assist cancer patients who ask for it, our nursing scholarships, and similar services. Our educational program is especially important. Our speakers go around to organizations and show films and hand out literature. All of this is handled by our Charlevoix County Chapter of the American Cancer Society, made up of 12 local people. I'm one of the 12 people, and I'm also one of 14 serving on the Standing Committee for the Michigan Division of the American Cancer Society.

COURIER: Who were the city co-chairmen who helped in the Crusade?

MUMA: June Buchonon and Joyce Duke in Charlevoix, MaeQuella Potter and Mary Hause in the rural areas, Gen Varnum and Nancy Ookes in Boyne City, Jane Russell and Jean Zoulek in East Jordan, Freda Kulik in Boyne Falls, Chris Robinson in Walloon Lake, and Joy Green on Beaver Island. A lot of other people helped with the Crusade, though, especially with putting on the Gary Shope show. Even the high school Student Council raised money to pay for the gym. They ran the concession stand, took tickets, and acted as ushers. We gave them a plaque in appreciation, and Gary Shope presented it.

COURIER: What other organizations do you work with?

MUMA: The Charlevoix Hospital Guild, the Parent Teachers Council and the American Legion Auxiliary. I dressed up as a Christmas tree, and paraded around the hospital at Christmas time to give a little joy to the patients.

COURIER: How does it happen that you and your sister Shirley are so community-minded?

MUMA: Well, we come from a large family, and our parents were always doing for others. Our house was always filled with people – we never saw a stranger. We enjoy giving to others. I like to keep busy, and when I do something I put everything I've got into it.

COURIER: What kind of job did you have before you moved here?

MUMA: I was auditor-supervisor for Liberty Loan's 26 offices in North Carolina; I worked in the sales department of The Thomasville Furniture Company; and I ran a florist shop for two years.

Patty Muma

COURIER: Tell us about your hobbies.

MUMA: I taught flower arranging at the high school. I make straw flower arrangements and pictures. I do ceramics, cook, sew, and garden. I used to keep score for the NASCAR races.

COURIER: Do you like the Charlevoix area?

MUMA: I love it. I like the water because I was raised in the mountains where there were only creeks and ponds. Charlevoix is a hospitable town. I thought the south had southern hospitality, but it has moved north. Everyone is so friendly here they make me feel right at home.

MUMA: Yes, I'm looking forward to it, and Gary Shope will be back in November to put on another Cancer Crusade benefit show.

COURIER: Do you have a family?

MUMA: Our son Phillip is going into second grade. Gerry adopted him.

City smoothly switches to new charter

The new charter for the City of Charlevoix has been in effect for more than a week and things appear to be running smoothly.

There wasn't any confusion or chaos and city hall didn't turn into dust. In fact, the operation of the city changed very little when the carter took effect June 5.

"The new charter has created very little change," Mayor Sam Supernaw said. "Some of the positions have been retitled, but that doesn't actually take effect for another year because the people involved were elected to office and they have to serve out their terms.

"The way the city functions is the same."

Phyllis Loucks, secretary to the city administrator, said she had noticed very few changes in the operation of the city since the new charter took effect.

"Everything is functioning almost like it did before the new charter," she said.

"The changes have been very subtle changes and unless you actually work in it you're not even aware of it."

Under the new charter, Judy Przybylski's title has been changed to assistant treasurer and the search is on for a clerk of the council.

John Michael, Charlevoix Charter Commission member, said the commission had not expected very much to happen when the charter took effect.

"Nothing magical was supposed to happen," Michael said. "June 5 was just a commencement date. However, many changes will take place over the next year."

The only obvious change in city operations created by the new charter was the change in election dates. Candidates were required to file nominating petitions on June 6 instead of in February.

The annual city elections will now be held in November instead of April. That change was made to keep down election costs. Now the city will only have to hold one election a year instead of two.

People elected to office this November will be running for a special 21-month term which will begin in April 1979 and expire on Dec. 31, 1980.

People elected to office in Nov. 1979 will take office in April 1980 and will complete their terms in December 1981. At that time city officials will begin taking office Jun. 1 with terms expiring two years later on Dec. 31.

In addition, after the current treasurer's term expires in April 1979, the post will become appointive and the mayor and common council will have the opportunity to select a person to fill the seat.

Michael said the former charter commission has met with the mayor and common council to discuss things they thought the council should be considering as the new charter took effect.

In addition to hiring a city manager, the former charter commission members suggested council begin working on organizing and reviewing all city ordinances and work on making the electric utility a separate fund from the general fund.

Charlevoix history group to visit Beaver Island

Members and friends of the Charlevoix Historical Society will journey to Beaver Island on Wednesday, June 21, to visit the Island's Historical Museum and other places of interest.

William Cashman, director of the Beaver Island Historical Association, has issued an invitation to the group so they may see recent additions to the Museum and other restorations that are under way.

The group will travel by boat, leaving Charlevoix at 8:30 a.m. and returning at 5:30 p.m. Persons wishing to join the group for this historical outing may call Mrs. Mary Geiken, 547-6719, or the Beaver Island Boat Company office, 547-2311 between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

There are things you can do to control the cost of your phone bill.

We are constantly searching for ways to help you economize on your phone service, but here are just a few ideas on how you can help yourself:

Call when it's least expensive. For example, when you're calling long distance, dial direct and plan your calls for times when the rates are lowest.

Budget Service that's really low budget! Look into the availability of Budget Service if you don't make a lot of phone calls every month. It's the least expensive one-or-two party phone service we offer.

Plan to have all your service installed in one visit. For instance, if you move, plan carefully so the installer doesn't have to make extra trips, for which you may have to pay additional charges. And while you're planning for new service, make sure it's going to be the kind most suited to your needs.

Commission on Aging provides many services to county seniors

By PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging provides many services to the Senior Citizens of the area, either free of charge, or at a minimal cost.

The local commission is under the Office of Services to the Aging, which administers Older American Act Programs in Michigan. People age 60 and older are eligible for the services.

Art Soworski, director of the County Commission on Aging, reports that there are eight different categories of service available to Senior Citizens:

1. The Nutritional Meal Program: Meals are served at mid-day at four different places in the County as follows:

CHARLEVOIX: Cafeteria of the high school. Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays at 12 noon.

EAST JORDAN: Senior Citizen Center. Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays at 12:30 p.m.

BOYNE CITY: American Legion Hall. Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and thursdays at 12:30 p.m.

BOYNE FALLS: Cafeteria of the high school. Mondays at 12 noon.

There is no charge for these meals, although donations are accepted. Transportation to the meal places is available, upon request to the bus dispatcher in East Jordan, phone 536-7831.

2. Transportation:

Door to door bus service within Charlevoix County and to Petoskey is available to Senior Citizens by prior arrangement. One bus is equipped with a lift and is available to handicapped people under 60 years of age who are wheelchair-bound.

The bus with the lift provides Monday-through Friday service from East Jordan to the Bergmann Center in Charlevoix.

On Tuesdays and Thursdays, one bus is available for trips around Boyne City and Boyne Falls.

On Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays, one bus is available for trips around East Jordan, particularly to the Senior Citizen Center there.

Those wishing to take advantage of one or more of these trips should call in advance, 536-7831.

3. Health Screening Program:

Eight different screening tests are conducted by trained personnel of the Health Department. These tests are normally scheduled for the first week of each month. Interested people should call 536-7831 or 547-6282.

4. Vial-A-Life Program:

The purpose of this program is to provide persons giving emergency assistance with the necessary vital statistics of the person needing help. These statistics are contained in a vial located in the refrigerator and attached to the upper right hand shelf. Listed are such data as family doctor, next of kin, allergies, and special types of medicines or treatments needed. The refrigerator containing the information is marked with a red and white logo.

Information and Referral:

This program organizes a county-wide system which inventories those services and resources available to the elderly in Charlevoix County and makes this information available to the elderly. Referral is made to other agencies when an individual's need cannot be met by an existing program. Contact the Commission on Aging office, phone 547-6282.

8. Senior Citizen Center:

The Center is located in East Jordan at 110 Main Street, phone 536-7831. The center is a community facility in which older citizens may come together to fulfill many of their social, physical, and intellectual needs. It offers such services as counseling, recreation, nutrition education, and social activities.

7. Chore-Homemaker Service:

This service includes all non-health related assistance provided to a Senior Citizen within his or her home. The purpose is to enable the Senior Citizen who is unable to perform routine household maintenance functions to remain in his or her home. The service is non-continuous and the primary management of the home still rests with the Senior and his or her family. Contact the Commission on Aging Office, phone 547-6282.

8. Telephone Life Line:

This program is sponsored jointly by the Sheriff's Department and the Commission on Aging. Volunteers will make daily telephone calls to homebound and isolated elderly to insure their well-being. If there is no answer to a volunteer's call, the Sheriff's Department or the local Police Department will be contacted, and they will then check on the individual. Call 547-6282 for information.

A cumulative report on activities of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging since it started in November, 1974 shows that $216,162.17 has been received and spent on its activities. Most important, however, is the fact that $157,431.76 of this money has come from federal and state grants. The remainder has been in donations from participants and in-kind contributions of rent, utilities, and similar services.

The scope of activities is indicated by the fact that since November, 1974, 46,734 meals have been served, 2,320 of which were home delivered. Since the transportation program started in March, 1975, 24,483 rides have been provided.

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging is comprised of representatives from throughout the County. They are Mildred Bathke of East Jordan, Ruth Behrens of Boyne City, Edna Miller of Charlevoix, Thoru Kotowich of East Jordan, Martin Paul of Boyne City, Florence Stucker of East Jordan, Raymond Giffin of Charlevoix, Eleanore Squire of Boyne City, and Glen Pipenberg of Boyne City.

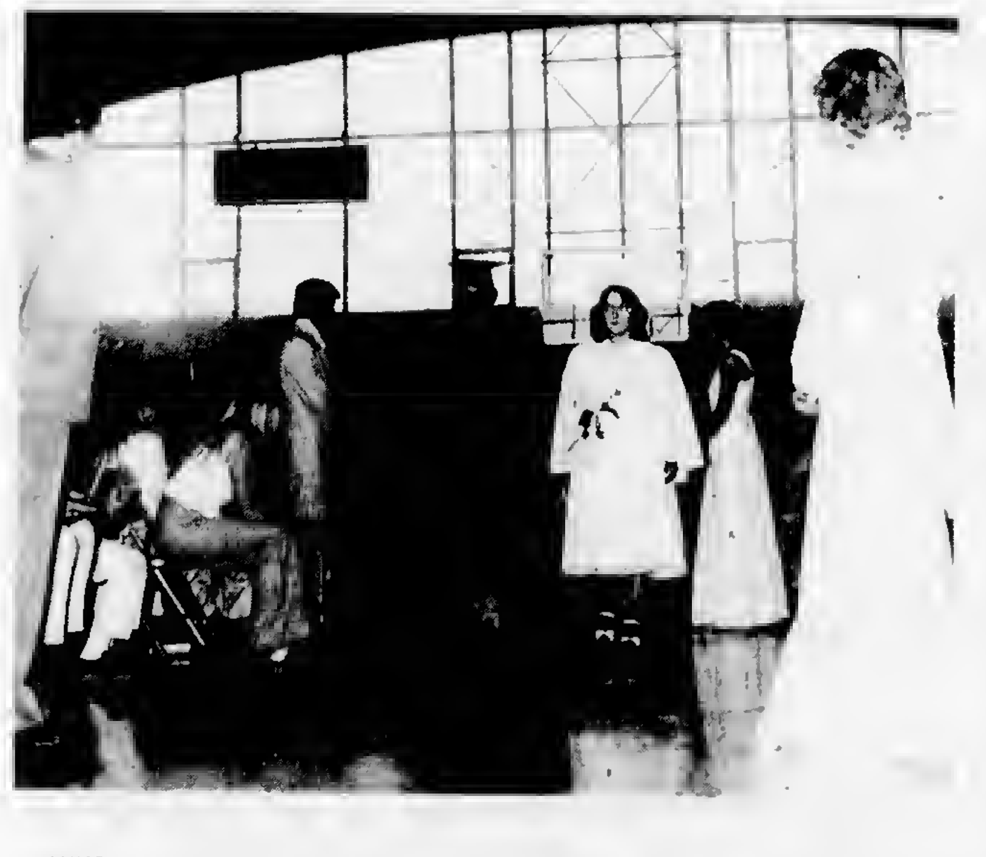
VALEDICTORIAN TAMARA WHITLEY receives her high school degree from School Board President Max Novak and Assistant Principal Roy Fortin. Mrs. Whitley also addressed her class in the valedictory speech.

Class of 1978 bids farewell



MIKE KITELEY and Rhonda Revoir led their class into the Charlevoix High School gym for the 90th annual commencement exercises Sunday. A total of 150 students received degrees as the Class of 1978.

Amidst airborne mortar boards and streamers, the Class of 1978 bid farewell to Charlevoix High School Sunday afternoon.

The ceremony reflected the Class of 1978 and its class motto, "Accept me as I am—only then will we discover each other," from beginning to end. The students were very much a part of their own ceremony, and two of their members, valedictorian Tamara Whitley and salutatorian Joan Cook, addressed the crowd.

The senior selections presented by the high school choir and symphony band reflected the popular music of the day and brought cheers and yells from the crowd.

There were cheers also for the commencement speaker, Charles Fairbanks, coach and general manager of the New England Patriots. Fairbanks was a member of the Charlevoix High School Class of 1951.

Fairbanks admonished the graduates to think of themselves as coaches of themselves as they go through life.

"You have a wonderful product in yourself," he told the class. "Your young, healthy and intelligent. You must prepare yourself for the opportunities that will be coming your way and you should make a plan for life, nothing happens by accident."

The pro football coach urged the students to take advantage of the great resource they had in themselves and to be honest, sincere and to work hard as they went through life.

He also told the students to work within the system to bring about change.

"You have a wonderful opportunity in a country full of opportunity," he said. "There are a lot of things about this country that could be improved, but it's still a wonderful country to live in. And don't forget that.

"Don't break the law, work within it for change. Don't fight the system work with it."

Fairbanks, who has been coach of the Patriots since 1973, also told the students to remember the values of winning and losing they had learned while at Charlevoix High School.

CHARLES FAIRBANKS, coach and general manager of the New England Patriots was the commencement speaker for the Charlevoix High School Class of 1978. Fairbanks was a member of the Class of 1951.

Miss Curtis weds Steve LaFortune

Wedding vows were spoken by Mary Ann Curtis and Steven T. LaFortune Saturday afternoon at Bethany Lutheran Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John Curtis of Charlevoix and Patricia LaFortune of San Mateo, Calif., and Robert LaFortune of Portland, Ore.

For her wedding, the bride chose a dress of dacron polyester organza fashioned with an empire bodice accented with silk Venise lace. The dress also featured a high lace neckline, long tapered sleeves with lace motif and an A-line skirt extending into a chapel train accented with lace.

A Juliet cap of lace held a fingertip imported illusion veil which was edged in lace. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, ivy and baby's breath.

Brenda Bond of East Jordan was the maid of honor. Mary Pabn, cousin of the bride from Saginaw, and Gail Elzinga and Joanne Green of Charlevoix were bridesmaids. Junior bridesmaid was Stacey Graham, cousin of the bride from Westland.

The girls wore identical sleeveless floor length dresses with pleated cape collars. The maid of honor's dress was mint green while the bridesmaids wore peach colored dresses. They carried bouquets of daisies and baby's breath. In their hair they wore combs with matching flowers.

The junior bridesmaid wore a long white sundress with flounce hem and peach trim. She carried a bouquet of yellow, white and peach daisies with baby's breath.

Serving as best man was Richard Forbis. John Curtis, brother of the bride, Dave Kelly, and Mike Cote of Holland served as groomsmen.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Curtis wore a long apple green gown and a corsage of roses. The groom's mother wore a long beige and orange floral gown and a corsage of roses.

Susan Dziedzic marries Robert Wilcox at St. Mary's

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dziedzic of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L.D. Wilcox of Flint.

The church was decorated with bouquets of spring flowers for the ceremony, and 100 guests witnessed the double ring rites performed by the Reverend R. Dale Magoon.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents, and the groom was escorted to the altar by his parents.

The bride wore a gown fashioned of candlelight slipper satin with an empire waistline. The full Bishop sleeves were of satin luster with a wide cuff of satin and tiny satin buttons. The bodice of the dress was overlaid with a silk scroll Venice lace. The softly gathered skirt had panels of the same silk scroll Venice lace extending to the hem line. Her tiny Juliet cap was fashioned of the same satin and silk scroll lace. She carried two yellow roses with baby's breath.

Mrs. Daniel Overhiser of South Haven, a sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Laura Dziedzic of Charlevoix, another sister of the bride, and Krsitine Hund of Utica, were bridesmaids.

The attendants' gowns were of lightweight woven polyester, light blue background with multicolor print. They were full length, sleeveless, with an empire waistline. The matron of honor and bridesmaids carried bouquets of roses and baby's breath.

John Bozicevich, a fraternity brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Phil Haggerman of Flint, another fraternity brother, was a groomsman, as was Neil Dziedzic of Charlevoix, brother of the bride.

The bride's parents hosted a dinner at the Grey Gables followed by an open house in their home. The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner in the home of the bride.

Summer, Michigan Am roll into Charlevoix

The Michigan Amateur Golf Tournament is synonymous with summer in Charlevoix. The tourney has been a part of the early days of summer for the last 67 years and has drawn golfers from across the state to the Charlevoix area for the last 48 summers.

And synonymous with the Michigan Amateur is Glenn Johnson. A five-time winner of the top amateur golf event in the state, Johnson is as much a tradition as the tourney itself. He has competed in the annual event for 31 years.

Johnson, along with three other former champions, Pete Green, Bud Stevens and Ben Smith, headed the field of 368 golfers as they teed off at the Belvedere Golf Club and the Harbor Point Golf Club Tuesday morning.

Last year's winner, Dan Pohl, has turned pro and will not be competing in the event, leaving the championship up for grabs.

"I'm not trying to break any records," Johnson said about his participation in the Michigan Am before he set off for a practice round at the Belvedere Golf Club Monday morning.

While the Birmingham resident may not have tried to set any records, his name is etched in the Michigan Am record books. He is one of two golfers ever to have won the amateur championship three years in a row.

From 1954 to 1957, Johnson won 23 straight matches and then lost in the semifinals in 1957 and his three-time crown.

Only one golfer, Chuck Kocsis has won more championships. Kocsis has six championships under his belt while Johnson can only claim the championships of 1954, 1955, 1956, 1958 and 1961. He was also a runner-up in 1963.

The president of Allied Underwriters Inc., a general insurance agency, began playing golf shortly after he graduated from Michigan State University in 1945. He attempted to qualify for the Michigan Am in 1947 and missed by one stroke. It was one stroke again that held him back in 1948, but he was well under the limit in 1949, when he played in his first Michigan Am.

And he has been back every year since then.

"You never get tired of playing interesting golf courses," the amateur said. "A dull golf course is dull the first time, but an interesting one is good forever."

"This course has a lot of well designed holes that require thought in playing," he said. "And the greens are small and hard to play."

Johnson said he thought the amateur championship was open to anyone this year.

"I don't think the young guys have more of an advantage in this tourney. I think we all have a good chance."

The finals will begin at 1 p.m. Saturday afternoon at the Belvedere Golf Course. Area people playing in the tourney are Charlevoix High School students, Mike Custer and Pat Paul, who also played in the tourney last year, and Kim Hocquard and Don Peck of Boyne City.

PARENT RESPONDS ON BIKING

I have a child and I refuse to let her ride in the street when going through town. She has to go from the north side to the south side. The streets are unsafe to ride a bike in because of the traffic and as a driver I hate to drive through town when there are bikes on the road, especially after the bridge has gone up. There are some kids that haven't any respect for people, but my daughter has been told that when she rides on the sidewalk to watch out for people who are walking, and walk her bike, if she has to. I don't think it's fair to say that bike riders can't ride on the sidewalk, just because of a few dumb kids who have parents who don't give a darn.

WHAT ABOUT CAR WASH?

I am just wondering what the deal is with the coin-operated carwash. It hasn't been in operation for some time and since it is the only one in Charlevoix, I would like to know when it is going back in operation so people can wash their cars.

THE BREEZES TALK ABOUT BIKES

In answer to the complaints that Charlevoix is not a safe place to ride your bike, I wish to respond. My wife and I ride our bikes through town quite often, and we avoid Bridge St. by going down State St., which is much safer to travel on. Whenever we must go on Bridge St. we take the time to walk our bikes through the heavy traffic. As for crossing the bridge, the restriction on walking the bike across is a safety feature for the biker's protection. My wife and I believe that the danger comes from bikers' themselves ignoring the need of certain laws and not abiding by them. I am for biking as a good health sport and we can avoid a lot of these problems by using good common sense. Al and Shirley Breeze.

MORE ON BIKES

In regards to riding bikes on the sidewalk, I feel it is less dangerous, as the main street is too crowded with cars and if the bridge has been up the drivers are very impatient and only look out for themselves, let alone bikes.

My child is only allowed to ride on sidewalks due to the traffic being dangerous, and myself, an adult, I am afraid to ride on Bridge Street in town.

When on the sidewalks we give the person on foot the right-of-way even if it means stopping or getting off our bikes. If more people would ride this way, and parents would instruct their children to ride and watch out for those on foot, I believe there would be no complaints.

We do not really like to ride on the sidewalk but with the traffic conditions, especially in the summer, the way they are it is extremely dangerous.

Why can't the City Police or Sheriff's Dept. have a class for bike riders of all ages to teach them courtesy while on their bikes, if the parents won't?

I am concerned about the safety of Charlevoix's bike riders versus the traffic. Thank you.

STILL RAISING H— ABOUT TAXES

Hallelujah! Now that Proposition 13 has passed in the state of California, let's hope it trickles into the state of Michigan. I am still raising h— about my taxes, and will continue to do so until someone hears me out. Amen.

NEED A CAR WASH

I would like to know when the people who own the car wash on Hurlbut are going to get the place going. This town could really use a place to spray wash a car.

WHERE'S IRONTON FERRY

I'm calling about the Ironton Ferry. It stopped service early last fall so they would be sure to have it in good condition this year, and it seems to me that it would have been wise to have checked to see when it would be available. Has someone been sitting on their hands? When are we going to have this ferry back?

IDEA ON ASSESSOR

This is a message for Mayor Supernaw. Mr. Mayor, please hire a full-time city assessor who lives in the city. Having a part-time farmer as a part-time city assessor is ridiculous. Especially, when the individual has been under Oscar Stroud's influence for several years.

Petition drive gains momentum

By TOM DAMMANN

Between 200 and 300 signatures have been collected on petitions urging an Environmental Impact Statement be prepared by the State of Michigan regarding Medusa Cement Company's proposed expansion and development and its proposed new cement manufacturing process.

Richard J. Aull, spokesperson for the Committee for Preservation of the Environment, which is handling the petitions, said the petitions had begun circulating throughout Charlevoix County at the end of last week. Since then, the drive has picked up momentum and Aull predicted many more signatures would be gathered.

The committee, which has filed suit in Charlevoix Circuit Court against Medusa under the State Environmental Protection Act, first handed out the petitions to more than 40 people attending an informal meeting at the Weathervane Inn Thursday evening.

The committee's suit claims construction at the cement plant will pollute the water, sand and air in the area and asks the court to enjoin Medusa from continuing the construction until the state has conducted a comprehensive impact study.

Though Medusa attorneys and officials refused to comment on the suit, they have asked Circuit Judge Martin Breighner to quash the suit on the grounds that the committee was not yet a legal entity at the time the suit was filed.

Breighner heard Medusa's motion for accelerated judgement Friday morning and gave Attorney John Michaels, representing the environmental group, one week to file briefs on the matter. Breighner will hand down his decision on the motion at that time.

Michaels said that if Medusa's motion was granted, the Committee for the Preservation of the Environment would refile its original suit.

Oscar Stroud, supervisor of Charlevoix Township, which was also named as a defendant in the environmental suit, was heard to comment as he left the courtroom: "Just because I drink their whiskey tonight doesn't mean I have to eat their dust tomorrow."

Aull said committee members met with Medusa officials over the weekend to explain their position, however, nothing came out of the meetings.

Aull said he took Medusa officials on a tour of their property and pointed out what he felt were threats to the environment. He said the officials seemed surprised and interested in what they saw.

At the Thursday meeting, Aull, a founding member of the committee, and attorneys Michael and Bernard Mindell, who filed the suit, explained that the prime purpose of the litigation was to obtain an impact statement from a "third party" and answers to questions about the effects of the expansion on the environment.

They emphasized that "we are not out to get Medusa, we just want to protect the beauty of Charlevoix, which is its principle asset."

They charged that both Medusa and the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) had refused to supply an environmental impact statement.

Michael also urged that Charlevoix citizens who have complaints about Medusa's blasting, smoke, dust or other pollution call and write both Charlevoix Township officials, and the DNR representative Ardon Toland in Cadillac. Michaels told the gathering to call Toland in Cadillac at 616-775-9227, supplying him with exact times and dates of each complaint.

Medusa has begun a $50 million construction project which will double the size of the Charlevoix plant and double its production.

A few weeks ago, Foster Sisson, an official of Kaiser Engineers, the expansion contractor, confirmed the expansion program includes a 304 foot steel tower for preheating purposes.

"It may well be the tallest structure between the Mackinac Bridge and Detroit," said Sisson, who is Kaiser Construction Manager of the Project.

A second meeting of the Committee for Preservation of the Environment will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Grist Mill Room at the Weathervane Inn. All interested people are invited to attend.

Ron Pair stands fast on expansion decision

Although Ron Pair, president of the company, could not be reached for comment, his spokesperson said there had been no change in plans and that there had been no talk of compromise.

In a strongly-worded statement issued last week, Pair announced he was abandoning proposed and future construction plans in the Charlevoix area. He blamed the scrapping of the plans on a recent decision by the Charlevoix County Building Department Board of Appeals to enforce the requirements of the Building Officials and Code Administration International (BOCA) building code.

Mayhew said he was surprised at Pair's reaction to the decision by the board of appeals and his office.

"He didn't have to go through that much to change the plans," the building code administrator said. "I did not require two outside exits as was reported earlier, I was just following the code, which requires two independent, approved stairways.

"I have pointed out to him that the supplemental or decorative stairway could be used as a fire escape or exit from the second floor if certain things were done to protect the stairway."

Mayhew said he made the recommendations to Pair in a letter mailed to the company president May 15.

The building administrator said there wasn't much room for compromise on the issue under the BOCA code.

"The board of appeals had to deny the request because the building code act says you cannot deviate from the code when it concerns the public health, safety and welfare.

Chris Henkel elected Boys State governor

Charlevoix can now count a governor among its residents – a governor of Wolverine Boys State that is.

Charlevoix High School junior Christopher Henkel has been elected governor of Boys State now in session at Michigan State University.

Boys State, which is conducted by the American Legion Department of Michigan, is a program designed to teach the principles of good government. Henkel and 14 other Charlevoix students are participating in the program with 1,200 boys from across the state.

Henkel is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Henkel of Charlevoix.

Other students attending the program are: Todd Williams, Steve Mielke, Geoff Nelson, Chip Greene, Jeff Cockfield, John Kantola, Mike Keller, Jeff Drenth, Jim Fowler, Doug Buday, Craig Boss, Brian Thompson, Wayne Hoffman and Jon Cebulski.

The Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 of the American Legion and other local organizations and area Legion posts assisted the young men financially so that they could attend Boys State.

This is the second time that a Charlevoix student has been elected governor of the group. In 1975, Jon Mays, who later moved to Gaylord with his family, was also elected governor.

Variety--spice of life for Charlevoix man

Variety is the spice of life.

Just ask Jim Evans. He knows a lot about variety. Since his retirement, he has become a jack of all trades, trying his hand at whatever interests him.

And his latest interest is being captain of a boat–not just any boat, mind you, but the motorship Beaver Islander.

"When I moved from Beaver Island to Charlevoix in 1974, I got a little bored," Evans explained. "I knew Lawrence McDonough (manager of the Beaver Island Boat Company) so I came down to the docks and asked if I could take somebody's place when they had a day off or work when they needed extra people.

"I got so I could take anybody's place but the captain's. I didn't want to leave one job out so I decided to get my captain's rating."

So last January, Evans started to crack the books, spending time studying the standard boating books including Chapman's, the bible of the boatmen.

He also attended the U.S. Coast Guard Auxillary small boating class in Crystal River, Fla., where he spends his winters.

"That class really helped when it came to taking my final exam," Evans said. "It also helped make me study through the winter."

The fact that he holds his pilot's license and had to know navigation for aviation also helped him manage the navigation section on his captain's license test.

Since he passed the test and received his captain's license in May, Evans has captained one of the ferries four times during trips between Charlevoix and Beaver Island. And when the summer runs get started, he will be even busier.

For the 61-year-old Charlevoix resident, the busier he is, the happier he is. And the same thing is true for his wife, Judy, who works at the boat company office.

"We both enjoy working here," Evans said smiling. "It's recreation for us."

The new captain said he had always planned to try a variety of careers even when he was a child.

"I always thought I would retire in my 40s when I was a kid. And then if I had to, I would go back to work when I turned 60," Evans explained. "It always seems to me that when people retired in their 60s and 70s, they were too old to enjoy themselves.

"You know, there's a lot of work in business when you're running it. One day I sat down and figured out I could have the same income working for someone else as I did working for myself and I could do the things I liked."

So, when Evans turned 45, he sold his resort, The Pines, on M-44 in Rockford, and began to live in his home on Beaver Island. And it was there that he started one of the many new careers he would take up in the next 18 years.

He began working as a pilot for Joe McPhillips, flying people back and forth between Charlevoix and the island.

"I got my pilot's license in the 1950's," Evans explained. "I enjoyed it and then went on to get my instrument rating, commercial license, seaplane and helicopter licenses as well as an air taxi permit.

"I did it mostly for my own interest and use."

But slowly he began trying some different things with his aviation knowledge and in addition to flying for McPhillips he also worked for John Clark of Greenville giving helicopter rides and putting on air shows at the county fairs across the state.

After he got out of the air shows, he began working for the Charlevoix Road Commission on Beaver Island running the trucks and then worked inspecting the roads for the road commission.

He also worked with Donald Cole in the commercial fishing business before moving back to Charlevoix.

He continued to fly some even after he had begun to work for the boat company.

"It used to really fool people," Evans said. "I'd see them off on the boat and then if they took the plane back I'd bring them back.

"Some people asked if I had a twin brother."

"Well, I've always wanted to be a train engineer," he said wistfully.

That's variety.

New prosecutor assumes duties for Charlevoix County residents

Scott Beatty has assumed his duties as County Prosecutor, succeeding Roy C. Hayes who resigned to enter the private practice of law.

Beatty comes to Charlevoix County from Berrien County, where he was an Assistant Prosecutor specializing in criminal trial work, including cases involving drugs, assaults, and murders.

He was selected for the position by a committee consisting of Judge Martin B. Breighner, Judge David W. Fershee, Chairman of the County Commission Clyde Cunningham, and Hayes.

As County Prosecutor, Beatty will represent the County in all criminal cases and work with the County Board of Commissioners on legal matters. In Michigan, the County Prosecutor is the chief law enforcement officer in the County.

A native of Mt. Pleasant, Beattty graduated from high school there in 1964 and later attended Michigan State University, from which he graduated with honors in anthropology. He also took graduate work in guidance and counseling at Western Michigan University and received his law degree from Wayne State University.

While in Berrien County, Beatty took a Career Prosecutor's course at the National College of District Attorney in Houston and was invited back as a faculty advisor.

The new Prosecutor heard about the job availability in Charlevoix County from his father, Jackson Beatty, who lives near Norwood and is employed by Twin Shores Properties.

Beatty has purchased the house built by the building trades class of Charlevoix High School in Hampton Village. His family will join him here as soon as they sell their home in Stevensville.

The Beatty family consists of Mrs. Beatty (Kathleen), Jesse, aged two-and-a-half, and Alison, aged four weeks.

"I am happy to be here and am looking forward to serving Charlevoix County," Beatty says of his job. "I thank Charlevoix County for the selection and appointment."

Charlevoix Cancer Society reaches $15,000 goal

The Charlevoix County Chapter of the American Cancer Society has met its $15,000 goal in the annual Cancer Crusade, according to Mrs. Patty Muma of Charlevoix, county chairman.

She said the unit is one of the first in the state to go over the top.

The announcement came on the heels of a furious burst of Cancer Crusade activities in April and May, including the appearance of country and western singer Gary Shope at Charlevoix High School in a benefit performance.

Among contributing units, Charlevoix led the list with total contributions of $8,219.67. Residents of Boyne City gave $2,188.09; East Jordan, $1,794.15; Walloon Lake, $913.67; Boyne Falls, $790.15; and Beaver Island, $521.25.

Another $575 came in the form of memorial contributions, Mrs. Muma said.

The money will be used to advance cancer research and to assist cancer patients locally.

FIGHTING BACK

The city and its residents and visitors can only benefit from the purchase of that valuable piece of property. And its uses will be limited only by the imagination of city officials and residents.

The Charlevoix Planning Commission has suggested that the 2.12 acres with 322 feet of lake frontage could be used for a picnic area, parking lot and docking facility. The planning commission estimates there is space for two lots, one for 20 cars and one for 63 cars. Also there is space to dock 12 medium sized boats.

The commission further recommended that the buildings be used for city offices for the Recreation Department and other similar departments and that the existing warehouse on the property could be used to house one of the city firetrucks so that it wouldn't have to be driven across the bridge every time a freighter comes through the channel.

It is generally agreed that the city needs both more parking and more docking space. Purchasing the Hiller property along with some planning and hard work by the city could help alleviate the parking, storage and docking problems.

Purchasing the property would also ensure that the city will be able to maintain more open space on one of its greatest natural resources, Round Lake.

Development is continuing at an ever increasing rate on Round Lake and on any lake front property in this area. Property is being snapped up at record rates. If the city doesn't purchase this property, it may not have another chance.

But, before the city jumps head long into this project, it should hold a public hearing about uses for the property.

Then, every avenue for funding the purchase of the lumber company land and for funding improvements for the property should be explored.

There's plenty of federal money out there and Charlevoix should be getting some of its tax dollars back to use on projects that would benefit everyone.

George Richardson and other city residents have already begun pursuing federal and private funds for the purchase of the land and their groundwork should be followed up. Charlevoix shouldn't miss out on buying this land because of a lack of funds.

The common council, the mayor, the planning commission and Richardson should all be complimented on their foresight. Generations of Charlevoixans will speak highly of them in the future.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

A friend from Beaver Island now living on the mainland complained the other night that the world in general makes too much of a fuss over the Irish, and I'm almost inclined to agree.

He says Germans, French, Norwegians and Italians all immigrated to the United States just like the Irish, but nobody pays any attention to them. They go about their business as average run-of-the-mill Americans and the world could care less where they came from.

But the same doesn't hold for the poor Irish, who for some obscure reason, have become the darlings of the immigrant classes. They are expected to speak the Queen's English with a pleasant lilt, to sing the sweetest songs, to tell the best stories, to dance the liveliest jigs and to consume vast quantities of alcohol without getting overly tipsy.

Furthermore, every year they offer to share their national holiday – St. Patricks Day – with the Germans, the French, the Norwegians and the Italians, if they'd like to tag along.

My friend says it is even rough being a Beaver Island Irishman, because the mainlanders never let you forget where you came from. Islanders who have lived in Charlevoix for a half century or more are are still Beaver Islanders to their friends and neighbors and they will wear the label to the grave.

Furthermore, according to my friend, some of them resent it. Sure, they'll admit to being Irish, but they don't want their Irishness, which in many cases is diluted and remote, to color all of their relationships 24 hours a day for the rest of their lives.

In short, not all Irishmen are stage Irishmen and they'd like someone to take them seriously for a change. And I don't blame them.

But I can't help wondering at the Irish charisma that certainly does seem to set natives of the Auld Sod apart from other nationality strains. After all, Ireland was a melting pot long before America was discovered. An Irishman today is likely to have blood lines going back to dusky invaders from the Mediterranean, Celts from northern Europe, Vikings from Norway and others who have established footholds on Irish soil over the centuries.

As a result, Irishmen today are about as scrambled genetically as the average American. On an individual basis they certainly are as different as Americans in the way they think and act and in what they believe, witness the long civil war in Northern Ireland.

Yet outsiders for some reason tend to stereotype them as one people, universally carefree, witty, urbane, well-spoken, intelligent, loyal, hospitable, and hopelessly beguiling.

Of course, the stereotype doesn't fit. Ireland also has its share of feisty, ignorant, bigotted, greedy, abrasive and ill-tempered citizens as do all nations.

Perhaps the problem lies with the Irish public relations men who have been active down through the years, writing about their native land with sympathy, compassion and humor: Jonathan Swift, Oliver Goldsmith, George Bernard Shaw, James Joyce, William Butler Yeats, Sean O'Casey.

As PR men, they don't come much better.

Paula Holmes... ...Speaking Her Mind

I've been most impressed with the two young Charlevoix residents who are crusading for a skateboard park or at least a closed off street for the city's many skateboard enthusiasts.

The middle school students Randy Skiver and Mike Baer first appeared in my office about a month ago wanting to talk about their problem. They wanted to get something going for the skateboarders, they informed me, and they needed all of the publicity they could get.

In addition to coming to the newspaper, they had also gone to the radio station and were planning to go to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' meeting.

I listened politely and then thought I would ask a few questions to shoot their plans full of holes and get them out of my hair and back on the sidewalks skateboarding.

Much to my surprise, the young men had solid, researched answers for every question I asked. Their idea wasn't just a whim of the moment, they were serious.

I was impressed. It's not too often that adults come into my office as well prepared as these kids were.

It was also refreshing to work with these kids. Refreshing because of their belief in the American system and the way it works. They weren't setting up a picket line or a protest march and they weren't moping around criticizing public officials for their lack of foresight in not constructing a skateboarding park.

Instead, they were working hard to rally support for their idea and to educate public officials about what they wanted. It takes a lot for an adult to come to a public meeting and express his or her opinion, imagine what it must be like for a kid.

But they have now been to three public meetings of two different bodies and they are still working. When they were asked to follow up with more information, they went right at it and brought the information back within a few weeks.

I hope that many adults in the area will look to these kids and the example they have set. They not only asked their public officials for help with a problem, but they were willing to work right along with them on a solution.

And that's great, that's the way this country was designed to operate. All too often we've been involved in a "gimme" society where people ask for more and more, never planning to give anything in return.

I also hope that the public officials involved in working with the skateboarders will treat them as they would treat any adult and give their request legitimate consideration. The way these boys are treated now by public officials will influence how they feel and talk about them for the rest of their lives.

Erma Bombeck

A couple of weeks ago, a housewife from Parma Heights, Ohio, who had never in her life had a "clean oven wish," for no apparent reason set to work and cleaned her oven.

She wrote, "I don't suppose Hallmark has a card for this occasion, but could you say something wonderful to me?"

She got me to thinking. There are so many wonderful special occasions for which there are no commercial cards to cover. Those wonderful, warm, meaningful times of your life when just the right words would have said it all for you. I visualize cards for "CONGRATULATIONS ON BALANCING YOUR CHECKBOOK" or "BON VOYAGE TO YOUR SON WITH THE DRUMS." And how about:

"BEST WISHES ON YOUR HAIRCUT," which I visualize as a sentimental card with a prodigal son trudging down a road flanked by blue cornflowers:

No more traumas, dirty looks,
You've returned to the state of grace,
No more nagging to "get rid of that fuzz"
Now would you please go wash your face?

Or how about a card "WELCOME HOME FOOTBALL FREAK" to be sent at the end of a season to your husband, what's-his-name.

D-A, D-A, D-A-double D-Y ...
G-O, G-O, G-double OO-D, BYE.
The chip dip's in the frig,
The clean socks in the drawer,
You got custody of the kids,
Now it's my quarter to score.

As for cleaning the oven, this verse might give it the status it so richly deserves:

O is for the odor – the high spot of the year,
V is for the vigor, as you chisel the veneer,
E is for the example ... you set for all mankind,
N is for the Notation: CLEAN AGAIN IN '89.

Golf's whiffing boy

In golf, a player can get shot for talking while his opponent is hitting the ball. Serious golfers are extremely sensitive about this rule of good sportsmanship, especially around the greens.

The theory is that any sort of noise will distrlct the golfer who is about to stroke the ball, causing him to hit in the wrong direction or to whiff it.

My friend Howard Bon Vivant whiffed twice in succession the other afternoon. The whiffs were immediately preceded by an incredible shot in which Howard bounced the ball off a tree, casuing the ball to fly 100 yards behind the spot where he had first hit it. If he had been a halfback, Howard would have been benched for running into the wrong end zone.

Howard took a 13 on the hole, and I won 25 cents. As his opponent, I would like to take credit for all of the misfortune that flattened Howard on that hole, but I can't. I didn't plant that tree. However, I do make an immodest claim to having caused the 2 whiffs.

When I heard Howard's ball hit the tree, I began to laugh loudly. When I noted that he had lost 100 yards on the play, and no flags had been thrown, I pounded my golf cart with my 2-iron in great glee. I feel confident that the sound of my glee caused Howard's first whiff.

My next move was to yell the news of the first whiff to all nearby golfers who hadn't been lucky enough to see it. I also hollered an explanation to some women sitting on the clubhouse porch. Certainly they wanted to know why it appeared that Howard was playing golf without a golf ball.

Really, there can be no doubt that my clever celebrating of the first whiff was a direct cause of the second whiff. In fact, Howard as good as admitted it when he suddenly refused to give me any more of the beer which he usually distributes indiscriminately from the refrigerator built into his putter.

I won't deny that the tree helped, but I still feel I earned most of that 25 cents by myself. It was one of the best holes of my golfing career.

If you are a serious golfer, you probably think there would be no profit in playing with some goof who talks during backswings. That's not necessarily true. George Steinberger talks more than I do while playing golf. And the 3 guys who played with George last Saturday all profited from the occasion.

Steinberger is a Birmingham insurance salesman who is head of ticket sales for the annual J.P. McCarthy PAL Invitational golf tournament, which will be held at Wabeek Country Club in Bloomfield Hills June 20. That is my serious reason for writing about such a silly game as golf. (Any game that requires a vow of silence is silly. How do guys hit baseballs while thousands of fans roar and throw beer?)

The PAL is the popular tourney where most of the touring pros show up play with amateurs who pay $500 each for the pleasure of feeling sick every time they see how a golf ball should really be hit.

The tourney will probably raise more than $100,000 for the Police Athletic League, which will spend it on needy children. It's a marvelous charity and I recommend you buy a ticket from Hudson's or Penney's or your life insurance agent. End of serious writing.

Some media types were invited to a PAL preview Saturday. I landed in a foursome with Steinberger; Vince Doyle, the WWJ sports broadcaster, and Jim Sherman, a publishing octopus from Oakland County who buys newspapers for a living. Someone helps him put the right coins in the right slots.

I knew Steinberger was my kind of golfer when he revealed his strategy for making his opponents miss putts:

"I suddenly stop talking. It really shakes them up."

At the end of the day, prizes were awarded. The toastmaster gave Doyle, Sherman and me 6 golf balls each "because they had to play with Steinberger.".

So golf does hold some rewards for good listeners. My friend Howard the Whiffer will be delighted to hear about it.

Dick Aull explains position on Medusa

To The Editor:

The recent article in the Charlevoix Courier regarding the suit filed against Medusa Cement Company has stirred considerable debate as to the motives and intent of the individuals involved, specifically Dick Aull. My purpose in writing is to dispel some rumors and untruths about this committee and myself.

First of all, our complaint is with one company and one company only – Medusa. I am not, and we are not, anti-industry, as some have insinuated. As a permanent Charlevoix resident and businessman, I value very much the industrial growth of Charlevoix and the need for industry with the important rule it plays in stabilizing the area economy. Thanks to the Lexalites, American Mold, Haskins, Midwest North, Will-Flow, Huffords, etc., we all enjoy a year around economy–not just a seasonal one. I also value very much the friendships that I have developed with each of the industries, and would do nothing to jeapardize those relationships.

Secondly, no one that I am aware of is out "to get" Medusa...but go out and see the raw garbage – the lime washing into the trees and water – and if you live here, you might be upset also. We are asking for an environmental impact statement on the new project to provide answers to many questions no one at this time knows. In other words, we are asking Medusa to stop violating the law now, clean up their act, and ensure us that the new facility will not increase the dust, odors and run-off, and end up looking like an Appalachian open pit mine with permanent scars on the land.

In closing, I believe in Charlevoix. I plan to live here and be involved in the community for the rest of my life. With the exception of Medusa, Charlevoix's industries have and continue to be clean, active members of the area, and I support them and always will. I hope this letter will clarify my position in this matter. If not, I will be happy to meet with you at anytime to explain it further. If I have offended anyone because of it, I am sorry; but as I have said I do believe in Charlevoix and what it stands for, and I would like to see it continue that way. Thanks for listening.

Sincerely,
Richard J. Aull

Support Tisch drive to lower property taxes

To the Editor:

All citizens of Michigan who are concerned about unreasonable property tax assessment increases each year may help to lower their property taxes.

The statewide Tisch Petition drive to put an amendment on the election ballot in November to CUT property taxes is endorsed by the "Coalition for Property Tax Reform in Michigan," a statewide, non-profit, non-partisan group, and is picking up steam across Michigan. Howard Jarvis, the successful leader of the California Property Tax Revolt, says that the Tisch Petition is the only proposition he supports for Michigan.

The Tisch petition will: (1) CUT PROPERTY TAX assessments IN HALF next year. (2) LIMIT tax value INCREASES to 2½ percent a YEAR. (3) State INCOME TAX INCREASES STOPPED AT 5.6 percent. (4) Local VOTER CONTROL and full state funding of state ordered programs.

All voters who would like to CUT state their property taxes NEXT YEAR should send a 15 cent stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Robert E. Tisch, Box 381, Laingsburg, 48848, for copies of the petition.

Many people are needed to sign and circulate petitions (partially filled petitions count) between now and July 1 to place this amendment on the ballot. YOU DO HAVE A CHOICE.

Help yourself. Write Bob Tisch today. Time is short.

... 'Odie' Odmark

C.A. "Odie" Odmark was chairman of the original committee to build a band shell in East Park, back in 1952. Today he is again on the committee to complete the job and make the band shell a "park stage". This week he tells the Courier about plans for the park stage and how they are progressing.

COURIER: Why wasn't the project finished back in the 1950's?

ODMARK: We ran out of money and stopped at that point, hoping we could get it finished some day.

COURIER: How is it progressing now?

ODMARK: We're making progress slowly. Hans Wiemer is making sketches and Alvin Ranger is doing the engineering work. We're trying to come up with sketches and cost estimates. Both Wiemer and Range are contributing their time and talents.

COURIER: When will you launch a money-raising campaign?

ODMARK: The Charlevoix Park Stage Committee has been formed as a non-profit corporation so contributions will be tax-exempt. When cost figures are available, we will launch a formal campaign. We will also try to get some grant money. We have had all kinds of cooperation. Jim Haggard has also volunteered his services as a designer, and the Lions Club and Kiwanians are firmly behind the project.

COURIER: Have you had any outside help?

ODMARK: Yes, we consulted an acoustician, Dr. Harold Geerdes from Calvin College, who suggested that the structure be enlarged so that it could be used not just as a band shell but as a park stage for Christmas displays, slide film showings, folk dancing, dramatic productions, and similar types of entertainment. He was loud in his praise of the location.

COURIER: When will the summer concerts start this year?

C.A. "Odie" Odmark

ODMARK: June 29, with Gary Stutzman conducting.

COURIER: What was your job with the Charlevoix Schools, and when did you retire?

ODMARK: I retired in 1975 as head of the Music Department and Band Director. My wife, Janet, who taught Home Economics in the High School, retired at the same time.

COURIER: How long were you with the schools?

ODMARK: For 29 years. I came here in 1946 and planned to stay two years.

COURIER: What did you do before coming to Charlevoix.

ODMARK: I was born in Muskegon and grew up in Spring Lake. I graduated from Grand Haven High School. Then I went to what is now Eastern Michigan University, graduated from there, and later took graduate work at the University of Michigan and Central Michigan University. I got a teaching job at Almont, in the Thumb area, was drafted into the Air Force, and after discharge taught for three semesters in Detroit. That was enough af the big city, so when I heard of the opening in Charlevoix, I took it.

COURIER: What did you do in the Air Force?

ODMARK: I played the clarinet in the band, although I'm not a clarinetist. I'm a violinist.

COURIER: How did it happen that you and Mrs. Odmark wound up teaching in the same school?

ODMARK: she was teaching Home Economics in Petoskey when we were married and came to Charlevoix later.

COURIER: What were some of the highlights of your teaching career?

ODMARK: For 10 years I was chairman of the Music Education and Work Shop Committee of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association. We put out a handbook for teachers of instrumental music that is still being used in colleges. I was named Band Director of the Year in 1965 by the Band Association and directed the Honors Band during Michigan Week. I directed the City Band for 20 years and the choir at the Congregational Church for the same period of time.

COURIER: Do you still do any teaching?

ODMARK: I have some private students on strings and woodwinds.

COURIER: What else do you do?

ODMARK: I'm trying to become a gardener, I do a lot of walking for my health, play golf, and do some fishing.

ONE OF THE FIRST THINGS the Brownie and Junior Scouts had to do when they came to day camp was to make a lash table to work on in their unit. Fun, friendship fill week at Girl Scout Day Camp

It was a week of fun and friendship for Charlevoix County Girl Scouts.

More than 150 girls attended the Charlevoix County Girl Scout Day Camp last week which was held on Crooked Tree Girl Scout Council property next to the Belvedere Golf Course on Marion Center Road.

The Brownie and Junior Scouts spent their days playing volleyball and other sports, cooking over a camp fire and preparing meals on tables they lashed together themselves as well as working on crafts and singing.

Thursday was a special day designed for parents and families of the girls. The families were invited to a special dinner at the camp on that day.

The Scouts, ranging in age from 6 to 12 years old, came from Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Vanderbilt and Elmira to participate in the week-long camp.

The girls worked under the direction of 27 adult volunteers who were headed up in their efforts by Kate Smith of Charlevoix, head of the camp and Jill Washburn of Charlevoix, her assistant. Many of the women have regular Girl Scout troops during the school year and others were simply volunteers for the camp session.

Last year the day camp was held in the Boyne City area. The camp rotates locations in the county.

June is DAIRY Month

"June" and "Dairy" go together like cheese and crackers, pork and beans, milk and cookies, ham and eggs, or anything else that really belong together.
June has become the accepted time to salute the nation's dairy industry and remind consumers of nutritious dairy foods and the hard working dairy farmers who produce milk, "nature's most nearly perfect food."
In this era of "natural being better," dairy foods are even more important to consumers. They fit today's lifestyle because they're convenient, nutritious and a good buy when all foods are expensive.

Look what's new in Charlevoix

New owner takes over Chelsea Clothe

A new owner has taken over the Chelsea Clothe Shop in downtown Charlevoix.

Lynn Osterbeck began operating the yard goods and notions shop on June 1. She purchased it from Elaine Tompkins.

This is Mrs. Osterbeck's first experience with the retail world and she is very excited about it.

"It's really fun," the new store owner said. "I really like people and working with them."

Mrs. Osterbeck, who with her husband, Gary, moved to Northern Michigan last July, has also been active as a real estate salesman and a math and art teacher.

"But sewing has always been my hobby," she explained. "And I enjoy quilting, too."

Mrs. Osterbeck said she was familiar with the Chelsea Clothe Shop and always bought her material there. One day she commented to Mrs. Tompkins about how much fun it must be to own a yard goods store and the next thing she knew, she was considering purchasing it.

"Elaine had a good reputation and I want to keep it up," Mrs. Osterbeck said smiling.

However, she is planning to expand some of the lines of material and she would also like to add more materials for quilting and other sewing crafts such as needlepoint, to the merchandise in the store.

She is also planning to eventually offer sewing and quilting lessons.

Working in the store with Mrs. Osterbeck will be Barb Hollow and Kay Hunt. All three women sew and Mrs. Hunt is also knowledgeable about quilting.

LYNN OSTERBECK is the new owner of the Chelsea Clothe Shop. She purchased it from Elaine Tompkins.

BROTHERS IVAN AND KEN Whitley have opened a new floor covering shop with everything for the builder to the do-it-yourselfer.

Brothers Ivan and Ken Whitley opened the new business two weeks ago in the former Wise Window Cleaning and Floor Care building.

"We're hoping to combine Ken's knowledge of purchasing with my knowledge of carpets to provide the best buys for the people of Charlevoix," Ivan said.

Ivan has 14 years of carpet installation experience under his belt. He worked for Pumco and Hess and as an independent contractor.

Ken worked for eight years as a purchasing agent for Freedman Art Craft and for Will-Flow Corp. and for five years as a builder.

The brothers have been planning their new business for the last three months.

"We both needed a new challenge," Ivan said.

"And it's been new and interesting every day," Ken added.

The men plan to serve the contractor, the homeowner and the do-it-yourselfer at their new store. In addition to stocking a wide variety of carpet styles and colors, the store will have hard surface floor coverings, ceramic tile and some wallpaper.

They will also carry carpet laying tools and adhesives for tile and wallpaper.

"We'll be glad to give any tips or advice we can to the do-it-yourselfer," Ken said.

Some of the lines the men will have in the store include: Congoleum and Armstrong vinyl, Morcrest, Magee, Dorsett, Galaxy and Bay View carpeting, braided rugs, Sisal porch rugs and indoor-outdoor carpets.

The store will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Duffy's opens restaurant in Bourke's former location

The luncheon, dinner, and cocktail restaurant is owned by Lois and Ted Griffin, Gary Zundel, and Jack Flannigan. The Giffins have owned and operated Duffy's on Pleasantview Road in Harbor Springs for six years, and before that, Duffy's in Union Lake.

Gary Zundel is managing the local operation.

According to Mrs. Giffin, the restaurant is named for her husband. "Duffy" is his nickname.

"We feature exceptionally good steaks and seafood," Mrs. Duffy says, "and for lunch we have half-pound ground round steak sandwiches on the menu. We also have a snack menu.

"Our vegetables are all fresh and we make our own soups and sauces. It is just good food."

Lifeguards on duty

Lifeguards will be on duty at Charlevoix's three major benches beginning Saturday, June 24, Dwight Boss, City Recreation director, has announced.

Lifeguards will be on duty daily from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m. beginning Saturday through September 4 at the Depot and Ferry Avenue beaches on Lake Charlevoix, and the Lake Michigan beach south of the pierheads at the foot of Grant st.

Swimming lessons begin July 5 at Ferry Avenue beach

The Charlevoix Recreation Department will again offer swimming lessons to anyone five years or older at the Ferry Avenue beach beginning July 5, Dwight Boss, City Recreation director, has announced.

Registration for classes, however, is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. Thursday, June 22, at the City Recreation office at the city hall. Those unable to sign up during the day on this date will have until Wednesday, June 28 to do so. All students must be registered and the fee paid in advance.

Swimming classes will be held at the Ferry Avenue beach with lessons from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. daily Monday through Thursday. Swimming instructors will be Kim Mahoney and Chris Davenport.

There will be a registration fee of $5 for each student or $10 for a family for city of Charlevoix residents. For non-residents, that is, people living outside the city limits, a fee of $8 per student or $16 a family will be required.

There will also be a class for children three and four years old who wish to take swimming lessons. There will be a fee of $3.00 for these classes which require a mother or baby sitter present during the lessons.

Mrs. William Farkas elected head of Legion auxiliary

Mrs. William Farkas was elected president of the Auxiliary of the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, at the annual election of officers held recently. She will succeed Mrs. Henry Borths in the office.

Other officers named at the same time are Mrs. Stanley Whitley, first vice president; Mrs. Ray V Wood, second vice president; Mrs. Lyda Johnson, secretary, Mr. Lester Smith, treasurer; Mrs. Harry Pearsall, chaplain; Mrs. Clarence Goldstick, historian; Mrs. Borths, Sergeant-at-arms and executive committee members, Mrs. Robert D. Miller, Mrs. Jack Curtis and Mrs. Gerald Muma.

The business session and election followed a potluck dinner attended by 15 members.

During the meeting the charter was draped in memory of the late Mrs. Anna Lawyer. A Mass card was sent to the family.

At the meeting, Mrs. Pearsall volunteered to attend the Department Convention in Grand Rapids July 13-16 as a delegate.

Also at the business session, Mrs. Lester Smith was delegated to shop for table service needs; 14 cards for absent members and shut-ins were signed; a decision made to enter a float in the annual Venetian Street parade in July and to serve a dinner for the Shriners of the Saladin Temple when they are here for a concert in October.

Mrs. George (Esther) Shearer, an ardent worker for the Auxiliary who has moved to Howard City to be near relatives, was recognized for her work in behalf of the group and arrangements made to present her with a gift.

Church of God to present film 7 p.m. Sunday

A new film, "In the Presence of Mine Enemies," the story of ex-prisoner of war, Captain Howard E. Rutledge, will be shown Sunday, June 25, at 7 p.m. at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix, according to the Reverend Walter G. Hastings, pastor.

Captain Rutledge, who became a prisoner of the North Vietnamese on November 27, 1965, when his fighter plane was downed by heavy anti-aircraft fire, was a "drop-out" Christian layman. He rediscovered the necessity of faith in Christ while suffering torture and deprivation in the "Honoi Hilton". He describes the terrible years of loneliness, of waiting, of hoping, and the miracle-by-miracle workings of God in the notorious prison camp, Pastor Hastings says.

Admission to the film is free of charge and everyone is welcome.

Bible School begins June 26 at camp ground

"Sing a New Song" is the theme of the Vacation Bible School for the Community Church of God in Charlevoix, to be held June 26-30. The Vacation Bible School is open to all children entering Kindergarten through eighth grade, according to the Reverend Walter G. Hastings, pastor.

The one week school will be held at the Church of God Campground on Loeb Road, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day. Transportation will provided at no charge from the church, located at 202 W. Hurlbut Street, to the camp. Cars will leave the church at 9:45 a.m. and return at 3:15 p.m.

Each day's schedule will feature a variety of activities, including Bible stories, crafts, recreation, and music. Children are asked to bring a sack lunch. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Britton are the directors of the Vacation Bible School, and interested persons may call them at 547-9559 for more information.

THE CHARLEVOIX AREA HOSPITAL Women's Guild Scholarship Committee awarded its annual scholarship this week. Making the presentation are Vicki Voisin, committee member, (left) and Cheri Hoffman, committee chairman, (right) to Susan Dixon, this year's scholarship recipient. Each year the scholarship is awarded to someone from the Charlevoix area who is going to pursue a career in a hospital-related field. Ms. Dixon plans to begin nursing school at North Central Michigan College in the fall. The $150 scholarship is awarded for three years. Theresa Russoll, Julie Denise and Laurie Burrie also received renewal scholarships last week. The funds come from the various money-raising projects the women's guild holds such as running the Showcase Gift Shop in the lobby of the hospital.

Openings still available for summer sports camp

Openings are still available in the special "All Sports Camp offered through the Youth Activities Program to Charlevoix area youth this summer.

Gary Hice, youth coordinator, said the camp will consist of seven separate week-long sessions each dealing with a different sport taught by the various coaches from the Charlevoix School District.

Students between the ages of 10 and 15 are eligible for the camp and may attend as many sessions as they like. A $15 fee will cover the T-shirt and instruction manual that will be given to each camper.

Hice said he got the idea for the program from a Congressional report on team sports.

"The report really knocked team sports," Hice said. "It claimed that studies show that students are not learning how to avoid injuries and they are not learning the fundamentals of sports through teams.

"It was my hope that these summer camps would remedy that problem by giving kids a chance to learn the basics and how to prevent injuries. Also it will give them something to do for the summer."

In addition to learning the basic skills needed for the various sports, the camps will also give the students a chance to learn the philosophies, style and techniques of their future coaches, Hice pointed out.

The first session of the camp will open June 12 with Mary Gengle running a volleyball clinic. The next clinic, beginning June 19, will feature Pete Spieles teaching baseball skills.

The week of June 26, Lenny Fuller will teach soccer skills and the week of July 10, Toni Felter will teach girls basketball skills.

Beginning July 24, Hal Evans will hold a clinic on football skills and beginning July 31, Norm Probert will hold a wrestling clinic.

For more information about the camp, contact Gary Hice at 547-4471 or 526-6388.

Yacht club to offer sailing lessons here

Two courses will be taught every two weeks throughout the summer by Janet Begrow. Each class is one to two hours long from 2-4 p.m. or 4-6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Class participants will learn small boat safety, sailing basics and sailboat racing techniques. Each student will spend 10 hours sailing one of the five 16-foot fiberglass Puffers owned by the yacht club.

Students will learn to crew and skipper their own boat in addition to classroom instruction on seamen knots and sailing theory.

At the end of the course all juniors who pass the skipper's certification test will be eligible for a Skipper's Card. All Skipper's Card holders will have unlimited use of the yacht club's puffers for the entire summer.

Registration forms for the classes are available at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. Class fees for Juniors age 12-17 are $25 for the two-week course. Adult fees are $60 for yacht club members and $75 for non-members.

Payment may be made at the first class.

Mayor, council appoint new city manager

A new city manager took office in city hall Tuesday morning following his appointment to the position by Mayor Sam Supernaw and the Charlevoix Common Council Monday night.

Normon M. Gaffney, 57, was appointed to fill a vacancy which has been open since last November. Gaffney will take the place of Allen Sandberg who was fired after one year in office.

Gaffney will receive a salary of $23,000.

"I'm very happy to accept the appointment of city manager for Charlevoix," Gaffney told the council and audience during Monday's meeting.

"I don't have to tell you, you have a beautiful city and I'm very much impressed with it.

"I think you have a lot of potentiol and there will be a lot of challenge here for me. Any success I have will have to come from the mayor and council and you citizens.

"I'm looking forward to this challenging experience. I will be in my office at 8 a.m. Tuesday and I will be real happy to have anyone come in at any time to see me."

Gaffney was selected for the position from a field of 77 candidates, which the council had narrowed down to a field of seven candidates for interviews, Mayor Supernaw said.

The new city manager is a native of Port Huron and most recently was city manager of Ionia. He held that job from 1973-78 until he resigned three months ago. Before that, he was city manager in Plymouth from 1969-73.

He has also held city manager positions in Lewiston, Pa., Northlake, Ill., and St. Clair County, Mich. Gaffney has spent about 28 years in city government including 16 years os a city manoger.

He was also a council member and a mayor pro tem for 10 years in Port Huron.

"I think that's why I became a city manager," Gaffney said. "I was spending too much time in city hall.

"I also like the challenge of government and the mission of trying to make a community a better place to live."

Prior to entering government service, Gaffney was the owner of Gaffney Appliance and Giftware and he also sold real estate.

One of Gaffney's strong points and the primary reason he was selected as the new city manager was because of his ability to get grants. He has worked in the area of recreation, waste water treatment, road improvements and public buildings getting grants for various projects.

One of the larger grants he was able to obtain was a $7.5 million for the construction of a waste water treatment plant in Ionia.

The new city manager and his wife, Jean, have four children. One daughter, Jeanie, 15, will be moving to Charlevoix with the family. The other three children have established homes of their own.

BILL KENIFECK'S "Cheap Shot" of Charlevoix has captured fourth place in the standings so far in the North American One Ton Championships being raced on Little Traverse Bay.

Two area racing sailboats stand high in accumulated points in the North American One Ton Championships being raced in Little Traverse Bay.

Bill Kenifeck's "Cheap Shot" of Charlevoix, is fourth with 51 points in a field of 22 boats from throughout the country. A second area boat, "Traveler," owned by Dave Irish of Harbor Springs, is third with 51.05 points.

Leading the pack at the end of two Olympic races and one distance race is "Scalawag" of California with 75.3 points followed by "Rogue's Roost" of Connecticut with 72.75 points.

Less than ideal conditions surrounded the 27-mile Olympic course race on Monday. A dense fog and fairly strong wind set in on the racers at about the first buoy and a majority of the boats dropped out of the race protesting that it be discounted as a part of the championship series.

Warren Todter of the "Shadow" out of Boyne City described racing conditions as very dangerous as he dropped out Monday night.

"Even if you were a perfect navigator, in this fog you can't see more than 150 feet," he said. "And we were all looking for a red plastic buoy two feet in diameter."

Todter said he was concerned that the boats would run into each other searching for the buoy and that was why he decided to drop out. Shadow is holding onto 13th place in the race.

However, leader Scalowag and third place Traveler were still in the race at the time Todter spoke Monday night. The race committee was expected to meet Tuesday morning to discuss discounting the race.

Bad conditions also surrounded the weekend's medium distance race (166.55 miles). The race was marked by hours of becalming conditions and a more than 12-hour delayed finish.

The race was good for Kenifeck's "Cheap Shot," however, and his only complaint when he returned to Horbor Springs at 2:30 a.m. Monday after having been on the sailboat since 11 a.m. Saturday was that the showers didn't work.

The long distance race was expected to start Tuesday to complete the series. However, Monday's rocc was still in dispute and may have to be run again.

Accomplishment of a goal at race finish line for Vicki Voisin

"It was one of the most exciting things and the most miserable things I have ever done in my life.

"I don't know how it could have been so exciting and so miserable at the same time," Vicki Voisin said her face glowing with accomplishment. "It was the hardest thing I have ever done."

Mrs. Voisin recently competed in the grueling 26-mile Glass City Marathon in Toledo, Ohio. It was the first marathon race the runner hod ever participated in and she was still aglow with the feeling that comes from accomplishing a goal.

"I didn't enter the race to win, I entered it to finish," the 32-year-old mother of two children explained. "And I did it."

Out of the 900 people who registered for the marathon, only 625 finished it. A total of 46 women out of the 61 who registered for the race completed it within the five-hour deadline.

Mrs. Voisin completed the course in 4 hours, 51 minutes and 27 seconds.

"You hod to run all the way around the track at the university before you could cross the finish line," she recalled the excitement building in her hazel-colored eyes. "I ran all the way around it and I felt I should be like Bruce Jenner, waving American flags. You know, like he did at the Olympics. I was so proud of myself.

"When I crossed the finish line, I just laid down. I never sat and rested during the race like many of the people did and I rarely walked."

The Charlevoix runner said the 90 degree temperature made the marathon more grueling than she had expected. She said the first 13 miles went fairly quickly and then from 13-18 miles she began getting warm and tired and from 20 to 26 miles she just endured to get to the finish.

"I think the hardest thing about the race was the heot and it was so humid," she recalled. "I wos almost disoriented at the end. I wasn't sure of onything except to keep running.

"Basically I went into the race not knowing what I was getting into, even though I had trained well for it."

Mrs. Voisin got bit by the running bug three years ago when she first began running during the summer months. This year she decided to run through the winter, too, and on New Years Eve she decided to go into competition.

"My New Years resolution was to run in a race, but I didn't know it was going to be this kind of a race," she explained.

A subscriber of "Runners World" and an avid reader of anything in print on running, Mrs. Voisin had seen many articles on marathon races.

"It sounded hard enough so thot not everyone could do it, but still you could do it if you put your mind to it," she said. "So I decided to do it."

So, on a snowy St. Patrick's Doy, three months before the big race, she began a training schedule that would eventually have her running 40-50 miles a week, with the shortest run at six miles, the middle distance run at 12 miles and the long runs at 15 to 18 miles.

"On the first day of training I ran six and one-half miles," she recalled. "I came in wiping the snow out of my foce and just beat. It was awful.

"I told Don (her husband) that I couldn't do it. There was no way I could do it."

But the next day she was out running again and there was never a day during the three-month training period that she missed her daily run.

"I had a lot of help. Everyone wanted me to do it. My friends would come over and babysit with Vincent and Wendy so that I could run," she said.

"And running helped me find my priorities. I found out that if the dishes don't get done, that's not such a bad thing."

"I found out that I'm important and that I should do the things that I want to do. You know there are a lot of things pulling at you for your time."

Mrs. Voisin said she never doubted that she would finish the race.

"I knew if I could get to the race and I didn't get injured thot I could finish. I had come too far not to finish.

"You know, I can run and I'm really lucky that I can. Someday I may not be able to run any more and I want to be able to say I did it when I could do it.

"But I hope to be running, forever."

Appointments reign

Monday was a night of appointments for the Charlevoix Common Council.

Mayor Sam Supernaw and the six council members spent a large part of their meeting appointing city residents to various positions in the city.

Leonard Dubey was appointed the new street commissioner to head up the city street department. Dubey had been working as the sexton for the city at Brookside Cemetery.

He is a former employee of the street department and has worked for the city for 18 years. He will replace Bill Brodin.

A new deputy mayor was also selected by the council members. Third Ward Alderman George Plumm, who had been serving as mayor pro tem, was reappointed to the position.

Three new members were also appointed to the Compensation Commission to fill vacancies in the unit. Oscar Ward was appointed to a term ending in 1981, Ralph McRae was appointed to a term ending in 1982 and former Mayor Edward Hansen was appointed to a term ending in 1983.

The three men join Conrad Klooster and Dave Juilleret on the board.

California tax cut felt in Charlevoix

The effects of Proposition 13, the property tax cut approved recently by California voters, are being felt across the country and in Charlevoix County as well.

Proposition 13, also known as the Jarvis-Gann amendment, will roll back California property taxes by 57 percent on the average and a cap will be placed on future property tax increases. In the coming fiscal year, California county and city governments will have $7 billion less to spend.

The passage of the California proposition has given more impetus to the Michigan drive for tax limitation, according to Bill Carey, Charlevoix resident heading up the petition drive in this area.

"The week after Proposition 13 passed in California a flood of petitions came in four hour drive throughout the state," Carey said. "We are now very close to our goal – the number of signatures needed to place the issue on the ballot."

The Michigan tax limitation proposition is much less stringent than the one adopted in California. The Michigan proposal seeks to put a limit on taxes where they are now, not to cut them back as happened in California.

"I'm not surprised at the passage of Proposition 13 and I think that the Michigan tax limitation bill will also probably be approved," Carey said. "Young or old, it doesn't matter who's involved, they're beginning to realize that the tax situation has gone too far.

"It's high time the legislature started reflecting the concerns of the people," he continued. "And there's no question that there have been many inconsiderate moves by individual legislators.

Carl Hewitt, regional director of the petition drive for the Michigan tax limitation, called the proposal a good sensible approach to property taxes.

"It's a good common sense approach," Hewitt explained. "What we're asking for is not a cut but a stabilization in government spending with this tax limitation proposal.

"What we want is to tie the ratio of earnings to the tax burden so that the government can not increase taxes beyond what incomes went up."

As far as local taxes are concerned, Lee Moerland, chairman of the Charlevoix County Ways and Means Commission, and a member of the Tax Allocation Board, said that the on the local level the people control the increase of taxes through their vote already.

"We have a fixed allocation which we levy and if any unit such as the schools or the townships, want more tax money then they put it before a vote of the people," Moerland said.

"We already control what we have on the polls."

Moerland said he believed that the tax limitation proposal for the state would be adopted this November.

"I think the tax limitation will carry and people will learn to live within it," he said. "However, everything we have today (in the way of taxes and expenditures) was created by the people's demands.

"Now they're finding out that they have to pay for it."

Moerland said he was concerned that people were just fighting the property tax increases.

"No one is screaming about their federal income taxes and as I see it, that is the biggest tax inequity there is," he said.

Moerland pointed out that people in Charlevoix County never see a return on the income tax money they pay to the federal and state governments.

"Many people don't even consider that the money a part of their salary, they never see it," he said.

Moerland estimated that for every $1 Charlevoix County residents receive from the federal government, they pay out $1.67 in income taxes. For every $1 county residents receive from the state government, they pay out $1.33.

"There needs to be some changes made there, too," he said. "It's not just property taxes that are creating the problem."

Interest in Medusa suit continues to run high

People supporting a petition drive seeking an environmental impact study on the Medusa Cement Company expansion were urged to contact as many people as possible during the next two weeks at a public meeting of the Committee for Preservation of the Environment Saturday.

More than 30 people attended the meeting during which Richard Aull, spokesperson for the committee, and John Michael and Bernard Mindell, attorneys for the group, described what progress had been made with the petition drive and the suit the committee filed against Medusa.

The committee filed suit in Charlevoix Circuit Court three weeks ago enjoining Medusa from continuing construction on its expansion until the impact statement is completed by the state. Circuit Judge Martin Breighner will hear the suit July 13.

Two weeks ago, Medusa filed a motion for accelerated judgment seeking a dismissal of the committee's suit on the grounds the committee was not yet a legal entity at the time the suit was filed.

Judge Breighner has heard briefs on the matter, but no decision has been issued.

Aull told the group between 300 and 400 signatures had been collected requesting the impact statement and that many more people had taken petitions out and begun circulating them throughout the area.

"We're very encouraged about what has been happening," Aull said. "More and more people continue to become involved and friends and neighbors are finding out they have the same concerns and they have begun to work together circulating petitions and talking with people."

The three men emphasized that the petitions were a key part of the case for the environmental impact statement.

"So often people wonder what they can do in situations like this to have their opinions heard," Michael said. "We all have it within our power to express our fears and concerns about the pollution at Medusa.

"Through signatures on a petition we can express our concerns. And that carries weight with the courts and with the DNR (Department of Natural Resources). It shows that there is support for the attorneys' actions, that the people are concerned.

"I can't emphasize enough the importance of getting as many signatures as possible on these petitions within the next two weeks."

Aull also urged people to call Medusa, Oscar Stroud, supervisor of Charlevoix Township, where Medusa is located, and to call the DNR.

"Whenever you see something, smell something or hear something from Medusa that bothers you or concerns you, make a note of the time and the date and then get on the phone and call these people," Aull said.

"Let them know that it bothers you. After all they are the ones that are supposed to be monitoring this stuff so let them know you think something is wrong."

Aull said DNR officials said they had not done and environmental impact study on the proposed Medusa expansion because they had received no objections to the expansion from people in Charlevoix.

"If you don't tell someone, no one will know that there are objections," Aull pointed out. "You've got to let them know."

Mindell emphasized that he didn't think there was anything unreasonable with the committee's request for an environmental impact study.

"It's our health and our environment that we are talking about," the attorney said. "We should know how it's going to be affected."

Mindell said the attorneys would be asking that studies be done on the amount of particles and the amount of gas that would be emitted

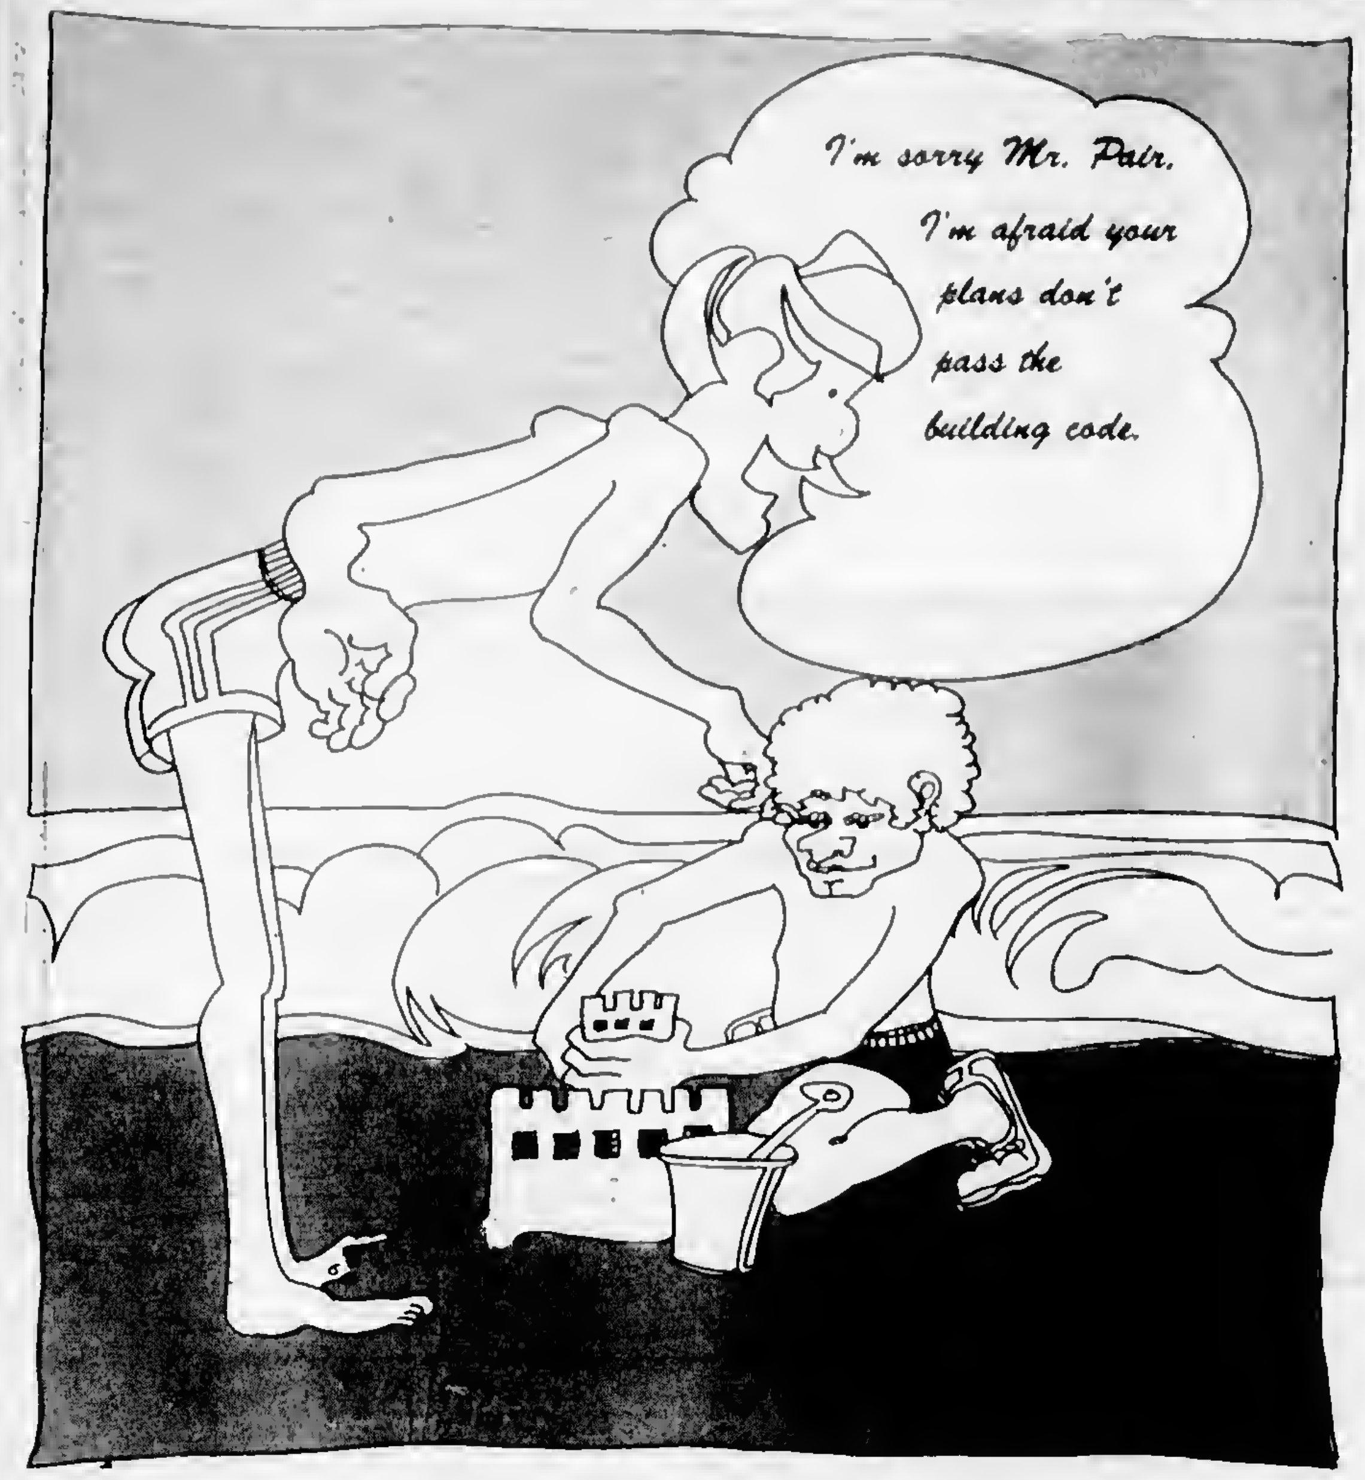
Editorials/Opinions



I'm sorry Mr. Pair. I'm afraid your plans don't pass the building code.

Charlevoix residents do care about keeping industry here

"Charlevoix doesn't like industry and never has," was the cry heard throughout the town last week after Ron Pair, president of Midwest Division of Ron Pair Enterprises, announced he was abandoning plans to expand his pollution control equipment industry in this town.

"Charlevoix residents could give a care about the industry here," the same critics bellowed. "They think they can get along without it and would be better off, too."

These statements represent an over reaction to an unrelated problem. They have no basis in fact. The summers have been fat and the winters lean for too long in Charlevoix for the residents not to know the importance of industry to this town.

Charlevoix residents are well aware of the need for industry here in addition to tourism. If the townspeople don't work for a specific industry, then they own or work in a service business of some type that depends on the factory workers and other employees of Charlevoix industries for their year 'round bread and butter. Industry also provides a tax base for the community.

And Charlevoix has a long history of helping industry move to the area. The Charlevoix Development Corporation has helped several industries move to the area by finding a building site for them, working with them to get the necessary utilities and even by loaning them money.

Charlevoix taxpayers have even agreed to carry a larger tax burden to give industries a break so that they could expand and develop in the area. Medusa Cement Company and Lexalite Corporation are two of the companies that have benefitted from such tax breaks.

In a strongly worded statement, Pair blamed his decision to abandon expansion plans and future development on a decision of the Charlevoix County Building Authority board of review and building code administrator Richard Mayhew's decision to enforce the requiremwents of the BOCA building code as it pertained to Pair's proposed plans.

Pair said: "Thanks to Mr. Mayhew's and the board of commissioner's limited intelligence and inability to 'see beyond the end of the barn,' the citizens of Charlevoix and the surrounding area could lose a desirable and profitable neighbor."

"Charlevoix County and especially Mr. Dick Mayhew's interpretatin of the local building codes could result not only in the scrapping of the immediate construction plans, but has indicated to the 'Midwest directors that future expansion of Midwest should not be made in the Charlevoix area."

Following Pair's blast, Mayhew responded that the company didn't have to change its proposed expansion plans very much to be in compliance with the building code requirements. Mayhew said he had even pointed out some alternatives to Pair in a letter sent to the company president May 15.

Mayhew, the county and city did not make up the building code. The code was written by building and safety experts to benefit the health, safety and welfare of everyone. The code has been adopted by the entire state, not just Charlevoix County.

So, no matter where Pair decides to move his company he is going to have to meet the same building code requirements. It isn't just Charlevoix County or the City of Charlevoix that has stringent rules.

It's too bad that Pair and the building code department couldn't reach a compromise. Perhaps they should have met and had a talk instead of sending letters back and forth and taking pot shots at each other through the local media. Perhaps then a compromise situation could have arisen and everyone would have been satisfied.

Instead, Charlevoix probably will lose a "desirable and profitable neighbor." Charlevoix needs and wants industry, but it needs and wants community-oriented and concerned industry, too.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

It's not yet the Fourth of July, but summer days have started exploding like a string of firecrackers.

Charlevoix was jammed for the Michigan Amateur Golf Tournament, which certainly sugurs well for the balance of the season. Some years the golfers come and go without causing a ripple in Bridge Street traffic. But this year the influx of visitors at tourney time has been something to behold.

THE WEATHERMAN also is at least partly responsible for the invasion of armyworms or tent caterpillars that have been confounding gardners in the area for the past few weeks.

Experts tell us the infestation is just about over and that the vanished foliage should reappear in about three weeks. They also tell us that it's good for the forest to have these creatures move in periodically.

However gardeners can be excused for being less than enthusiastic about the infestation. In some areas, they appear to be particularly fond of raspberry plants. Sevin is an effective insectcide to use to control them, according to ag experts, but it should not be applied directly to the raspberry bushes, since it is also fatal to bees which are needed for pollination this time of year.

So if you treat your berry plants with Sevin, just spray the ground around them.

IF THE ARMYWORMS should win and decide to hold a war crimes trial, I'm afraid we're all in for big trouble.

+++

"You should all be in bed by now," I said. "What's up?"

Jennifer appointed herself spokesman: "It's a huge black thing and it's in Katie'a room and we're not going to go to bed until you capture it."

"Is it a bat?" I asked warily. I just love catching bats in my smelt-dipping net.

"No, it's not a bat," Jennifer said. "It's some kind of bug about two inches long with huge antlers."

"Antlers?" saya I.

"She means antennae," answered Danny, who is better on his bug terminology than the girls. He handed me a flyswatter.

Upstairs, I discovered the creature hiding in the folds of a window curtain. It certainly was a strange looking beast, with a hard shell and, well..a rather larger antler protruding from its forehead, like a unicorn.

"Take it in and show it to mama! Take it in and show it to mama!" the kids cried exciteldy, jumping up and down around me.

From the far reaches of the upstairs, Judy responded in loud, evenly paced, stentorian tones:

"I - Do - Not - Want - To - See - A - Bug -With-Antlers," she said, sounding a lot like God.

So I gingerly carried the critter on the floppy flyswatter into the closest bathroom, lifted the lid and shook it loose into a vortex of white water.

Now I am a little sorry I didn't save it in a jar. What if it were a brand new form of life on earth, something the powers-that-be had been working on for millennia? Finally, just when they get a decent working model, whoosh! Someone ships it off to the sewage plant.

After all, a bug with antlers! You don't run across one very day.

I discovered that I was an old maid last weekend when I went home for my brother's graduation and the wedding of a childhood friend.

Attending the graduation of my youngest brother made me feel pretty old, by itself. After all, when I left home to go to college, he was just entering the fourth grade. For a long time whenever I thought about him, usually I remembered that fourth grader and all of his concerns no matter how old he was.

So, it was hard for me to believe that he was graduating from high school himself. However, I didn't reach the old maid status until I attended the wedding.

Weddings are joyous occasions and I always like going to them and celebrating my friends' new direction in life. In this age of do your own thing, weddings are quite varied and tailored to the taste and personality of the people involved, so that no two weddings are very much alike.

The same is true of wedding receptions. They vary with the people and so are always interesting no matter how many you've been to.

And weddings are always a good time to see old friends that you've lost track of and to catch up on the gossip. So I was eagerly looking forward to this particular wedding. But, I should have known better.

As soon as the wedding was over and I began talking with old friends and the parents of old friends (all of who were married by the way) the first questions that I fielded were: Aren't you married yet? Where's your husband?, When's the date? And Don't you even have somebody on the line?

I was a great disappointment to the people and after a while even I began to feel sorry for myself. After all being single and 26 years old must mean you're an old maid and you don't know what that means. I hadn't really thought about it.

I couldn't really remember what was wrong with being an old maid or how they acted, but I knew, whatever it was, I wasn't doing it.

I rushed to the ladies room to take a look at what an old maid I had become. Were those wrinkles I saw in the mirror? Was that really some flecks of gray in my hair? Was I really passed my prime?

Horror stricken, my eyes were glued to the mirror. I didn't even notice the other woman combing her hair in the mirror.

Jerked back into reality, I sighed with relief. I was still me, single or not. I waltzed back into the reception area and proceeded to have a great time. After all, that was what I had come for.

Dear Cousin Al:

Are you all right? I worry about you living there in little Lapeer County, the crime capital of Michigan, where illegal bombs are made and where lawyers are arrested for selling heroin.

People are now asking me if I was fleeing crime when I moved from Lapeer to Detroit. It's distressing.

I still have loved ones living back there and I'm not sure it's safe for me to speak out publicly. It would be terrible if your local Mafia took reprisals against my daughter or her cats.

When I discuss what's happening back in my old hometown, I try not to say anything that would make a crook mad enough to bomb any of my relatives closer than cousin Al.

It was unfortunate that the articles about Lapeer County's bomb factory and drug arrests were both published on the same day in city newspapers. The only crime news out of Detroit that day was ho-hum stuff – ordinary gunmen and boring dope raids.

But there's Lapeer County in the headlines with a guy arrested for making bombs in his basement – "one of the largest caches of explosives ever recorded in Michigan." And on the next page it said 96 warrants had been issued for the arrest of Lapeer area people on narcotic charges.

I was really shamed, Al. A lot of people razzed me. One wise guy said that, based on population, Lapeer must need more jail cells than hotel rooms. He thought he was kidding but, according to the last time I counted, he was right.

Naturally, everyone here wanted to know if I knew Charles Wesley Bird II, the Lapeer lawyer charged with peddling heroin.

There's a lot more interest in him than in the guy charged with manufacturing pipe bombs and trying to sell them for $50 each.

I guess that's because there's not much call for bombs here, except during riot years, but heroin sells well whenever it's available. And heroin sellers in Detroit are usually just regular street people with not much college education. It's pretty impressive that a member of the bar, with an office downtown, has been arrested for selling heroin in Lapeer.

As you know, Al, Bird was a candidate for Lapeer prosecutor two years ago. I think I met him then.

It would have been interesting if he'd been elected. He might have become the first prosecutor to prosecute himself.

Anyway, there was one confusing thing in the news article about Bird's arrest. I quoted police as saying he was arrested while selling heroin to an undercover cop in the men's room of the country courthouse.

What men's room? That's what my Detroit friends wanted to know, Al. They remember me writing that the Lapeer Courthouse has no public johns and that juries, guarded by a deputy used to go to a gas station across the street.

All the courthouse johns belong to the judges and my wise-guy friends wanted to know if Lapeer lawyers are ordinarily allowed to transact drug deals in the judges' chambers.

This was a humiliating question, Al, so I lied and said the arrest was made in the county Porta-John on the courthouse lawn.

Actually, I got the true answer by phoning my friend Don Poniatowski at The Lapeer County Press. He said the news article was wrong and the arrest was actually made in the county building where the public is allowed to use the john until 5 p.m. After that, I guess the undercover cops have to walk the streets, just like anywhere else.

Al, while I was sympathizing with Don about the tremendous crime problem in Lapeer, he added to my concern. He told me about your vandals. Geez.

In Detroit, the vandals use spray paint. In Lapeer, the vandals are cutting down large-size trees, just for kicks.

The other night they left tumbled timber on a judge's front lawn. I suppose he should be glad they didn't chop it into fire wood and sell it in his bathroom.

That's it for now, Al. Stay brave, and don't flee. The good people have to stop and make a stand against crime somehwere, and I think that's where you're at.

It is rare when adults and children share the same interpretation of a word of phrase.

Thus, water pollution to adults may mean harmful foreign bodies that threoten existence, but to a boy it means "girls swimming in the pool at the same time I do."

Parental brutality is "making me wash my face when I'm not going anywhere."

And incarceration in a penal colony without the advantages of due process of law comes out "summer school."

We've always had a rule in our family. You either get a job or go to summer school. We initiated this ruling when I spent three years with my son one summer listening to him whine, "There's nothing to do."

We don't care what they take so long as they get out of bed, get dressed, leave the house and get a credit for it.

Our son appeared at breakfast yesterday morning en route to his first day at the summer session.

"Want breakfast?"

"Do I have time?" he snarled. "Or do you want me to get there early and help set up chairs and check people in?"

"Why are you so angry?"

"Hey, am I hostile? Believe me, I'm going to do the same things when I have kids.. roust 'em out at the break of ten in the morning all summer long and send them off to a military compound where they're experimenting with solar heat in the classroom. There they'll load them down with homework so they can't hear a new born baby cry, or touch a leaf, or see the sky..."

"Then I'll know why I believe," I said, finishing the song. "It'll never make the top ten."

"C'mon," he said, "I don't know what it is with you and Dad. I thought you wanted happy children out of your marriage. All you've got is a sweaty, irritable kid without affection who goes through every summer having anxiety attacks.

"I just finished up an entire year of study, study, study, term papers, notes, quizzes, tests, finals, research, bibliographies, orals, lack of sleep, dates, places, I don't know how much longer I can go on without cracking!"

If he hadn't been taking a summer class in party guitar, he might have gotten through to me.

Chaperones praise senior class

To the Editor:

Last week we had the pleasure of accompanying the class of '78 on their trip to Cedar Point. We use the work "pleasure" because it truly was. This is not only an exceptional & enjoyable group of young people, but also one of the best behaved we have ever traveled with. Even the bus drivers, from the Flint area, commented on the fine behavior of the entire group. It was a fitting finale to their high school years and the perfect climax to their outstanding graduation.

Antrim County prosecutor hails Charlevoix deputy

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter was sent to Sheriff George Lasuter by James G. Young, prosecuting attorney for Antrim County. Young encouraged Lasater to send the letter to the Courier saying he felt the public has a right to know when their law enforcement officers are doing a good job.

Dear Sheriff:

On behalf of the law enforcement community in Antrim County, I would like to thank and commend Deputy Brock Dagner of the services that he has given to the citizens of Antrim County. As a result of his hard work and investigative ability, he provided us with valuable information which led to the arrest and conviction of numerous persons who were involved in a series of burglaries in Antrim County. Although his investigation initially started in Charlevoix County, he unselfishly shared information with Antrim County detectives. I'm sure that he put in many hours of work off duty.

It is apparent that the citizens of Charlevoix County will receive great benefit from having a Sheriff Department composed of such dedicated and well-trained men.

Respectfully,
James G. Young,
Prosecuting Attorney,
Antrim County

Meet Charlevoix ... Richard Hodgson

By PEG OHLE

Richard Hodgson is completing his second year as Commodore of the Charlevoix Yacht Club. This week he tells the Courier about some of the activities and accomplishments of the Club.

COURIER: How many members does the Yacht Club have, and who is eligible for membership?

HODGSON: We have about 300 members. Anybody over 18 and of good character may join. They don't even have to own a boat or live in the area.

COURIER: When and why was the Yacht Club started?

HODGSON: It was founded in 1970 to promote boating and boating education.

COURIER: What kinds of boats do the members have?

HODGSON: All kinds – power and sail, large and small. They are divided into three fleets – the sail fleet, the cruiser fleet, and the day cruiser fleet which is made up of small power boats. The Club owns five small sail boats for instruction and use by members when not being used for instruction.

COURIER: The Club gives sailing lessons, too, doesn't it?

HODGSON: Yes, we started sailing lessons five years ago. For three years we operated them on a volunteer basis by members. They were reasonably successful, but there was a problem trying to find volunteers qualified and willing. Last year, Janet Begrow took over and we charged a fee. The program was well received. This year Janet has set up a more extensive course which will take 20 hours over two weeks' time. The courses will run into late August, or as long as people are interested.

COURIER: What types of boating activities does the Club sponsor?

HODGSON: We have a Wednesday evening sail series during the summer and well as a fall series. We also have a race series in the instruction boats. Other races include those to Boyne City and the "Square" races on Lake Michigan. Last year we hosted the Flying Scot races, which brought 300 people to Charlevoix for a week. We were mentioned in national sailing magazines. This year we will host the North American 40's races over Venetian Weekend. This will be the first ever national championships for the 40's. There will be about 13 boats and more than 100 people. The races will be on Lake Michigan, but close-in, so the tourists will be able to watch.

COURIER: Why do you bring these races to town?

HODGSON: We feel it is our civic duty to help the town. In fact, we are most proud that we have helped the town in the tourism business and promoted boating as part of the character of Charlevoix. In addition, we have managed the boat parade on Venetian night for several years. We also feel we have made significant contributions to marine safety.

COURIER: What does your power fleet do?

HODGSON: We have a number of organized cruises to such places as Northport, Leland, Beaver Island, and, probably the most popular, to Mackinac Island over the Labor Day weekend. In the past we have had more lengthy trips, such as the one to Georgian Bay.

COURIER: Do you have more sail boat or power boat operators in the Club?

HODGSON: It's about fifty-fifty. In both fleets we have representation in all levels.

COURIER: What types of social activities does the Club have?

HODGSON: During the summer, Wednesday night is a big night after the races. We have specific parties, such as the pig roast that is coming up. Others are the Commodore's Ball in October and the New Year's party. We are open Friday evenings during the winter. The club house is also available to members for private parties.

COURIER: If a person wants to join the Yacht Club, whom do they contact?

HODGSON: They can contact me or the membership chairman, Laurie Keller, at 547-6963, or really any board member or officer. I'd like to point out that the whole success of the Club has been the cooperation of our members. We don't have high dues. All the renovation of the club house as well as building the club docks was volunteer labor. That's what has made it possible for us to do what we have had to do. Very seldom does anyone say "no".

COURIER: What kind of a boat do you have?

HODGSON: A 48-foot power boat, the "Maikai". We kept that name because when we bought the boat it was stenciled on every piece of equipment on the boat. There are three boats on the Great Lakes with that name. We've cruised the Great Lakes – northern Lake Michigan and Georgian Bay, but being in business I don't use it as much as I should.

Richard Hodgson

COURIER: What is your business?

HODGSON: I'm owner of Walker Marina, have been since 1970.

COURIER: Where did you live before coming to Charlevoix?

HODGSON: We came here from the Detroit area. I had vacationed here several years prior and fell in love with the area. I haven't regretted the move at all.

COURIER: Do you have any hobbies other than boating?

HODGSON: I'm a pilot and own a plane. I used to hunt and fish but don't have time for that any more.

HODGSON: My wife, Lois, and I have three sons. Richard is 16, Eric is 13, and Mark is 11.

It's that time again, poison ivy season has arrived here

Poison ivy season is here again.

You may have handled poison ivy last year and escaped without an itch, but don't push your luck.

No one is permanently immune to poison ivy, oak or sumac, the American Medical Association reminds.

Your next meeting with this pesky plant could take place in your own yard, as well as in the woods and fields. Poison ivy, oak and sumac have appeared in city gardens. Poison ivy sometimes forms a beautiful vine up the side of a house. Poisonous oils from these plants can come your way in the smoke of a neighbor's trash fire, or on your dog's coat.

If you can detect poison plants, you can often avoid them. Poison ivy and its close kin, poison oak, are three-leafed plants which may grow as low bushes or climbing vines. They may be mixed with honeysuckle and other climbers. Poison sumac, an eastern swamp plant with seven to thirteen leaflets and small white berries, usually grows as a shrub.

If you have been exposed, carefully remove your clothes and thoroughly wash all affected areas with warm water and soap. Sponge with a 50 to 70 percent alcohol solution. Using rubber gloves, clean your clothes in an oil solvent and soapy water. Dry them in the sun.

Fun-packed summer opens for area youth at day camp

A fun-packed summer will begin in July for Charlevoix area youth and visitors.

Camp McSauba Day Camp, sponsored by the City of Charlevoix, will open for the first of its six week-long sessions July 17. The camps is in its third year of operation under the auspices of Charlevoix Recreation Department director Ike Boas.

Jack Gebott will again head the camp activities with the assistance of David Taylor and Sally Dishong. And the counselors have planned a varied program for the campers.

Gebott said instruction in archery, BB gunnery, arts and crafts, swimming and canoeing will be offered from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Students will also take hikes and be involved in such nature studies as learning to identify plants, and animal tracks. They camp participants will also learn camp skills such as how to handle a hatchet, and some survival skills.

"We also try to work in a little bit of Indian lore and there are competitive games such as softball that the kids will be involved in," Gebott said. "The program really depends on the kids. If they want to try some different things we try to work that in, too."

Gebott said the program varies enough that students who have attended camp last year would enjoy it again this year.

"We have many students returning not only for more than one session in a summer but from year to year," the camp director said.

Children from age 6 to 13 are eligible for the camp. Also five-year-olds who will turn six before December 1 may attend camp. The camp is held at the Mt. McSauba Recreation area and makes use of the 50 acres and 3,500 feet of Lake Michigan lake frontage on the property.

For more information about camp sessions contact the recreation department at 547-4272.

Jobs open up for disadvantaged youth

School district gets Beaver Island grant

By PEG OHLE

There are several jobs available for young people ages 15 to 21 under a special Governor's Grant.

Called "Spdy" for Summer Programs to Employ Disadvantaged Youth, the jobs will be on Beaver Island, where workers will make an historical renovation of the Lighthouse and build an environmental education center. The Lighthouse and surrounding property is owned by the Charlevoix School District.

The project will employ eight counselors ages 18 to 21 and 27 others ages 16 to 21. The young people will camp on the Island Monday through Friday and return to the mainland for the weekend. Because of this mode of living, applicants must have an interest in the outdoors.

Counselors will be paid $3.10 an hour and other workers $2.65 an hour. They will be furnished meals free of charge and their transportation to and from the Island each weekend will be paid for.

The project will begin July 4 for counselors and July 10 for others. It will last to August 25.

Workers will receive high school credit through the Charlevoix School system, and college credit may be available to the older workers.

Because the program is for disadvantaged young people, applicants must meet certain family income requirements. For instance, to qualify, the family of an applicant in which there are three members must have an annual income of not more than $6,660; for five members, the figure would be $9,700, and so on according to scale.

Dan Kaczynski, who has been employed by East Jordan Schools in their Community Education program, will direct the Spdy program.

Application blanks for jobs may be obtained from Jan Elliott at the Char-Em School office on Mercer Boulevard, phone 547-9947.

The complete state appropriation was for $5 million, one third of which goes to the State Department of Natural Resources to enlist young people to work on state conservation projects, and two-thirds of which goes to local units of government so they may hire youths to work on environmental projects operated by park authorities, school districts, housing authorities, and community action agencies.

By PEG OHLE

Beginning July 1, it will cost the builder of a new home between $30 and $35 for inspection and a permit for electrical connections in the home.

As of that date, Public Act 230 of 1972, as amended, will be enforced in Charlevoix County. The Act calls for the issuance of permits not only for the new electrical construction, but for remodeling of existing installations in both residential and commercial buildings.

In the case of residences, the permit fee includes a basic fee of $10, to which is added a fee based on the number of amps in the installation, a fee based on the number of circuits, a fee based on the number of lighting fixtures, a fee for dishwashers – garbage disposals, a fee for furnace or electrical heating units, and a fee for power outlets such as ranges and dryers.

Electric signs, mobile home sites, and recreation vehicle sites are also included under the law.

Transformer and generator run equipment, such as a standby home generator, or a large motor of the type used in a sawmill are in another category. There is no basic fee for this equipment, but rather a fee based on K.V.A. or H.P. units.

For people buying an old building and wanting to know the state of its electrical installations, there will be a fee of $20 an hour for inspection.

Charlevoix County has adopted the fee schedule of the State of Michigan Construction Code Commission. The Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection is the enforcing agency, with Harry Leiber doing the actual inspecting.

People building their own residences and doing their own electrical work must apply for permits themselves. When they take out such a permit, no one else is permitted to do the work. The Department has prepared a guide for those doing their own work so they won't run afoul of the law.

Electrical contractors who are making installations will apply for and receive permits on behalf of the building owners.

The Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection is located in the County Building Annex in Charlevoix, phone 547-4419.

Harry Leiber, Jr., appointed county electrical inspector

Harry Leiber, Jr. of Petoskey, has been hired as electrical inspector for Charlevoix County.

Leiber, who will work with the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection, will be in charge of inspecting electrical installations in all new residences in the county, as well as residences that are being remodeled or altered.

A state law which became effective last November makes such inspections mandatory. However, Charlevoix County is just now getting ready to carry out provisions of the law.

Leiber is a licensed master electrician in Michigan, New Mexico, and Colorado. He is a graduate of Pellston High School and attended Wilbur Wright Business College in Detroit, Cass Tech in Detroit, and Lawrence Institute of Technology in Southfield.

Most recently Lieber has operated Great Lakes Electric in Petoskey, which he is turning over to his son.

Tax board decides to keep allocation

The County Tax Allocation Board has recommended to the County Board of Commissioners that the county tax rate be kept at 15 mills for the years, 1979, 1980, 1981, and 1982.

It is expected that a petition to this effect will be put on the November General Election ballot.

The county has been operating on 15 mills for some time but the two-year fixed millage voted in 1976 expires December 31 of this year.

Mills would be allocated in the same manner as in the recent past: 4.7 mills for county government, 9.1 mills for operation of schools, one mill for operation of townships, and two-tenths of a mill for operation of the Char-Em School District.

Veterans reminded time running out on GI benefits

Veterans of the Vietnam Era in Michigan are reminded that educational benefits must be used before the end of 10 years from the date of their discharge.

In order to get in four years of training, veterans would have to begin their schooling no later than six years after discharge.

Benefits are available for college, high school, vocational correspondence, or business schools. A single veteran going to school full time now receives $311 a month from the Veterans Administration as an assistance benefit toward his education.

Married veterans with dependents receive $370 for one dependent, $422 for two, and $26 for each additional dependent.

Frank Kilcullen, director of the Veterans Administration office in Detroit, urges veterans who plan to enroll this fall in the GI training program to complete their details as soon as possible in order to receive their checks after the first month of training.

Further information may be obtained from Paul Martin, who has office hours in Petoskey on Tuesdays, Phone 347-3973, extension 258, or from Ron Geer at the Charlevoix County Office of Veterans Affairs in the County Building, Tuesdays and Fridays, phone 547-9365.

Health test registration slated Thursdays

Registration for health screening tests for Charlevoix County senior citizens will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. every Thursday in the Charlevoix City Hall Community Room.

It's strawberry time again

Strawberry pie, shortcake, and ice cream sundaes top the list this time of year as fresh strawberries appear again.

To prepare strawberries for freezing, select firm, ripe berries, preferably with a slight tart flavor. (About 2 3 quart of fresh berries make 1 pint frozen.) Wash berries in cold water and remove hulls. Large berries better sliced or crushed than whole. Generally, strawberries do not can well.

Frozen strawberry quality is better in sugar or syrup packs than unsweetened. You can freeze them whole, sliced, or partically or completely crushed.

For syrup pack put berries into containers and cover with cold 50 percent syrup; that's 4 3/4 cups sugar per 4 cups water. It takes 1 2-2/3 cup syrup per pint package of fruit. Remember to space at the top.

For sugar packing strawberries you can simply add 3/4 cup sugar per quart of berries, mix thoroughly, pack in containers; again, leave space at the top and freeze.

To freeze unsweetened berries, pack them into containers with space at top. For better color, cover with water containing 1 tsp. crystalline ascorbic acid per quart of water.

Uncooked Freezer Jam is popular for toast, sandwiches, and even as a dessert topping. It's quick and easy to make. Be sure to follow an updated and accurage recipe.

STRAWBERRY JAM

4 cups sliced strawberries
1/3 cup sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 envelope Knox Unflavored Gelatin
1/2 cup cold water

In medium saucepan, combine strawberries, sugar and lemon juice; simmer 5 minutes, crushing berries slightly. Bring to a boil, then boil rapidly, stirring constantly, 3 minutes.

In small bowl, mix unflavored gelatin with water. Let stand 1 minute. Add to strawberry mixture and stir over low heat until gelatin is completely dissolved, about 3 minutes.

Let jam stand 5 minutes, skimming off foam with spoon. Ladle into jars; cover and cool slightly before refrigerating. Makes about 2 cups jam; 15 calories per tablespoon.

New meter person hits the pavement in search of violaters

Thomure is the new parking meter attendant for the City of Charlevoix. And that involves a lot of walking.

The 1978 graduate of Charlevoix High School couldn't estimate how many miles he walked a day, except to say it seemed like too many for the first few days.

"But as soon as I get some shoes broken in, I won't have any trouble with that," the young man said explaining he had developed a few blisters on his feet during his first three weeks on the job.

As city parking meter attendant, Thomure's duties include: ticketing cars parked at expired meters and in no parking zones, and collecting fine envelopes from the boxes and emptying the change from meters.

Thomure said people's reaction to him has been varied.

"Some people are favorable and some are down right nasty," the auxiliary policeman said. "Those that are nasty think I'm being unfair in giving them a ticket.

"I try to be open minded about it. I know that no one purposely lets the meter run out, but it's my job to write tickets."

Thomure said he tries to be reasonable about issuing the parking tickets.

"If someone asks me if they can run into a store and get change for the meter, I let them do that," the 19-year-old said. "And sometimes they can talk me out of writing a ticket. I'm not stoneface about it, I listen to the people."

But that doesn't stop him from writing between 40 and 50 tickets a day, mostly for parking meter violations. And that's just an average figure. The first three days he was on the job, Thomure wrote more than 200 tickets including one for his high school principal.

He hastened to add that he is paid by the hour and not by the number of tickets he writes or by a percentage of the fines.

"The first week the city starts enforcing the meters, you always write a lot of tickets," the auxiliary policeman explained. "But it drops off after that."

Thomure said he has enjoyed his job so far.

"Everyone seems to be very friendly."

In fact, many tourists stop Thomure and ask for directions, what the various restaurants are like or when the Venetian Festival will be held.

"They also ask me where there's a parking spot with no meters," Thomure laughed.

Thomure said many people ask him for help including one woman with a stalled car.

"Usually I carry a portable radio so that I can contact the police station if someone needs help," the parking meter attendant said. "Or I go into the nearest store."

Thomure is also responsible for keeping bicyclists and skateboarders off of the downtown sidewalks.

"I get a lot of guff from the kids when I ask them to either walk their bikes on the sidewalk or to ride in the street," he said. "But it is just too crowded to let the kids skateboard and bicycle on the sidewalks. I've had some close calls myself."

Thomure is on duty from 9-6 Monday through Friday.

Investing in oil, gas risky business proposition

Promises of rich returns and tax breaks have lured many to invest in oil, gas, and coal exploration. But, even under the most carefully controlled conditions, there are risks involved in these investments.

A new booklet from the Securities and Exchange Commission warns consumers that this type of investment may be significantly different from common stock. For example, in some cases you may be liable for losses even beyond your original investment. But, most oil, gas and coal investment opportunities, while involving varying degrees of risk to the investor, are legitimate in their conception.

To learn more about your rights and responsibilities before you invest, send for Investing in Oil, Gas and Coal. It's free from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 687F, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

In a recent case investigated by the Securities and Exchange Commission, one promoter used exaggerated claims to sell over $1.4 million worth of abandoned wells. In another case, a group of ninety unsuspecting investors lost $6 million by investing on the basis of only a map of potential drilling sites and a list of estimated drilling costs. Other cases showed that promoters used investors' funds for lavish vacations; claims have been made for "sure-fire" scientific equipment or psychic information; and there was even a promise that you could finance a college education on the profits from the $500 investment!

How can you avoid these deceptions? Watch out for "Boiler Room" sales techniques. Salespeople in rooms full of telephones barrage consumers with unsolicited calls. Calling at all hours, they can catch you off guard with misleading statements. Some salespeople lack sufficient knowledge to fully inform you; others deliberately mislead you. They'll often minimize the risks involved, even tell you that the Securities and Exchange Commission has approved the offering (something never done). Many claim that a well known energy company is about to jump in, so you'll have to hurry before all investment positions are gone.

What to do? First, be wary of unsolicited phone calls. Be hesitant if you're asked to send money directly in the mail. Resist pressures to rush to a decision. Ask for proof in writing of all claims and representations, and learn the background of those involved in the venture. Read and understand all statements and literature; ask if you don't understand something.

Here are some important questions to ask: How did you get my name? Is the offering filed with the Safeties and Exchange Commission or State Securities Commission? (If so, get a copy). Also, ask for an independent geological report, then seek the advice of an independent geologist, petroleum engineer, or someone else experienced in energy investments.

When you order a copy of Investing in Oil, Gas and Coal (free), you'll also receive a copy of the free Consumer Information Catalog. It lists more than 200 selected free or low-cost publications from the federal government. The Catalog is published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration.

Duve and Gail Phillips, owners of the Grey Gables Inn, and Mardy Medders of MM Productions, will offer a summer of dinners combined with musical variety shows to Charlevoix residents and tourists alike.

"The dinner entertainment program will be an entirely new thing this year with an entirely new group of people," Phillips explained. "The people we have had performing here in the past have gotten very good jobs with the Michigan Opera Theatre and with summer stock theaters in Detroit and New York.

Phillips contacted the drama departments of Michigan State University and the University of Michigan and had groups from each school audition for him. He settled on Ms. Medders from the U-M.

"We're very excited about this year's program," Phillips said. "We think it will be a terrific program and it is well within the legal bounds of our license.

"The only problems with this year's performances is, if the people miss one they won't be able to see it later in the season because there won't be any repeat performances."

The dinner entertainment program will open this weekend with the O.J. Anderson mime show. A native of Detroit, Anderson studied mime in England under Geoffery Buckley and received his bachelor of fine arts degree from the University of Detroit.

Anderson, also a member of the Black Sheep Repertory Theatre of Manchester, mimics such subjects as: discos, McDonald's drive-ins, Evelyn Woods Speed Reading Dynamics and many other subjects.

He will be performing in Charlevoix June 30 and July 1.

Opening July 6 will be the Potpourri Singers. The eight-member troupe from Birmingham, will offer a musical program featuring a repertoire ranging from Bach, Berlin and Bacharach to the current tunes of the '70s. They will be performing until July 8.

A ragtime weekend is scheduled to begin July 13 and last through July 18 as William Albright from the University of Michigan. Albright will treat his audiences to ragtime and jazz selections.

New campground a family affair

John and Pat Kane of Battle Creek have purchased the 130-site campground and their chilren have pitched in to help them get it ready for the season and to help them run it.

"We've been looking for a campground to purchase for about five years," Kane explained. "We thought it would be a good retirement venture.

"But this has been a family venture since it started," the new campground owner continued. "We have always talked that if I found a campground we would all go there and run it.

"We're campers ourselves and we thought we would like to try this."

Kane's son, Tim, was in the foam insulation business, and his wife, Barb, is a dental technician.

"We all enjoy working with people," Kane said explaining the purchase of the campground. "And owning a campground is one way to communicate with all types of people."

The Kanes, who bought the campground from Edward Ledermann of Detroit, plan on operating the business year 'round. The campground covers 145 acres including 1,275 of lake frontage.

Kane's son and daughter-in-law, Tim and Barbara Kane, will be living on the campgrounds year 'round and managing the business. The senior Kanes will move north as soon as their youngest daughter finishes Lakeview High School in Battle Creek.

Kane works for Johnson Controls of Grand Rapids running the maintenance programs for schools and other companies in the Battle Creek area. His wife, Pat, is the head teller for Michigan National Bank.

They also have a camp store which carries some groceries and paper products. A playground is available to children and swimming, fishing, canoeing and boating lakes place on the lake.

The campground also has a recreation building complete with fireplace and games. The Kanes have already talked with the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club about holding meetings and potluck dinners in the building during the winter and would also like to open up the building to other groups in the area.

"Every place we've ever camped, we've just about tore the place apart to see what works and what doesn't, "so that we could someday use it at our campground," Kane said. "Now we get to try it."

Dockmaster to start monitoring VHF channels

The Charlevoix dockmaster has begun monitoring channels 9 and 16 on VHF radio.

Dockmaster Jim Ance said his office would monitor the channels between 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. and inform boaters about available dock space in the Round Lake Yacht Basin.

The purchase of the radio was recently approved by the Charlevoix Common Council and the radio was installed in the dockmaster's office last Thursday.

Ance said he also wanted to correct recent information printed in the Charlevoix Courier about the increase in dock rates. He said the increases had been published correctly but that last year's rates were not.

The correct rates are: under 20 foot boat, $3 per day, an increase from $2.50; 20-30 foot boat, $5.50 up from $4.50; 30-40, $8 up from $6.75; 40-50, $11 up from $9; 50-6$, $13 up from $11.50, and 60 feet and over, $18 up from $15.50.

DOCKMASTER JIM ANCE uses the new VHF radio recently installed in his office. The radio will be used to inform boats about available dockage in the municipal marina.

Providing professional real estate sales service to Charlevoix area residents and visitors is the goal of the Real Estate Place, the newest real estate office in Charlevoix.

"And our goal in opening the Real Estate Place was to establish a professional office to give the finest professional service there is."

Hamp said the Real Estate Place handles all types of real estate with an emphasis on commercial and top quality residential property.

In the first two months of business, the office has handled more than $750,000 worth of business including the sale by Pati Janero, sales associate, of Waters Edge with one-quarter mile of frontage on Lake Charlevoix.

Hamp is a partner with Grant Rowe, who founded the real estate firm and runs the office at Shanty Creek. Rowe is in charge of land development and general sales at Shanty Creek.

"We're looking to expand our office and we're planning to add more people to our staff in the near future," Hamp said.

Hamp has been in the real estate business since 1973. Prior to establishing the Real Estate Place, Hamp founded and headed Olympia Consultants, Inc., a Chicago area firm specializing in the formation and marketing of real estate investment packages. Hamp's business background also includes 10 years of management and tax consulting with firms in Detroit, Jackson and Chicago.

Ms. Janero has been working in real estate related fields for the last 10 years.

In addition to Hamp and Ms. Janero, the four-member office also includes Linda Bolduc, secretary, and Darcy McCandless, a secretary who is working to obtain her real estate license.

Fourth of July cramped

Maybe the Fourth of July isn't big enough for America anymore. Besides Independence Day celebrations, the holiday all but bends at the knees under other events and memories of the moment.

That's what Mark Twain thought. About a hundred years back he took measure of the annual fireworks casualties of the holiday:

"July 4. Statistics show that we lose more fools on this day than in all the other days of the year put together. This proves, by the number left in stock, that one Fourth of July per year is not adequate, the country has grown so."

The United States is far bigger now, but victims of fireworks are far fewer, thanks to restrictions promoting a "safe and sane Fourth."

Nevertheless, there will be more than enough going on to keep Americans open-eyed, cheering the day, saluting the past, and perhaps looking toward tomorrow.

THE FOURTH – PLUS

First, just about everywhere, July 4, 1978, will be variously celebrated as "old fashioned," "glorious," or "upbeat."

The holiday also will see a loggers' annual World Championship Timber Carnival in Albany, Ore., a Huckelberry Festival in Thornton, Okla., a Pony Express Rerun at Pollock Pines, Calif., a stone-skipping contest aimed at the record of 24 skips at Mackinac Island, Mich., and National Safe Boating Week launched across the country.

At Quapaw, Okla., Indians will wind up their yearly Pow Wow on the Fourth with a football-like contest between women and men.

Look at what's new in Charlevoix

It's two for one in this store

Charleviox residents get two stores in one with the opening of Goldens Shoes and Hamiltons.

The twa stores opened under one roof in part of the former Hess Furnitare Store last Thursday.

Managing the two new businesses are: Candy Golden for Goldens Shoes and Randy Brown for Hamiltons. Both businesses have parent stores in Traverse City.

Goldens Shoes is a family-run, family-oriented business that has been serving residents of Northern Michigan for close to 100 years, Miss Golden explained.

The store features fashionable and serviceabie shoes for children, men and women. Customers in the store will be able to find Topsiders and Wallabys as well as the fashionable Famolare shoes far women, Stride Rite shoes for children and Florsheim Shoes for men.

The shoe store covers 1,600 square feet and has four fulltime employees for the summer.

The 27-year-old Miss Golden has been working in her family's store for the past six years learning the business from the bottom up.

"I've done everything from sweeping floors to the bookkeeping and the buying," she said. "I know a bttle bit about everything that has to be done here."

Miss Golden attended Ferris State College and traveled some before going into the shoe business at age 21. Her brother, Craig, is the manager of the family's Traverse City store and the business is owned by their father Bill Golden.

Hamiltons, a mens clothing store, also has a long tradition of serving the residents of the Northern Michigan area. The founder of the store came to Traverse City with the founder of Millikens to work as store clerks for the Hannah-Lay lumber operation in 1868.

After a while Hamilton and Milliken decided to open up their own store and borrowed the money for their independent operation from their boss, Mr. Hannah. The two men worked as partners in competition with their former boss until 1894 when they decided to go their seperate ways, Pete Strom, vice president and general manager of Hamiltons, explained.

"Mr. Milliken had become more interested in lodies wear and household goods and Mr. Hamilton was more interested in mens and boys clothing and sporting goods," Strom said.

So the two men went their separate ways, but they agreed to keep connecting stores which they have even today in Traverse City.

"We've always been expansion minded," Strom said. "And we felt Charlevoix would be an excellent place to open a store.

"We want to service the summer traffic, but we plan on taking care of the local people as well. We hope to provide the people with things they have to go away for now.

"Plas if there is anything that people want and we don't have in this store, we can always bring it up from the Traverse City store."

Hamiltons will feature mens clothing and sports wear in the Charlevoix store. Such brand name sportswear as Jimmy Connors, London Fog and Pacific Trail will be featured in the sports wear.

In the clothing line, Austin Hill, Cricketeer and Haggar coordinates brands will be offered.

Brown, 28, has been in the retail basiness for seven years. The last five years he has spent with Hamiltons.

A native of Kingsley, soath of Traverse City, Brown attended Northwestern Michigan College and studied accounting and business. He also recently attended a two-week executive management seminar in Woshington D.C. to prepare for his new position.

Brown and his wife have moved to Charlevoix.

Both Miss Golden and Brown are excited aboat the unique concept in merchandizing they are offering Charlevoix residents and visitors with two stores in one and they hope the new idea will better serve the Charlevoix area. The store will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

CANDY GOLDEN and Randy Brown, managers of Goldens Shoes and Hamiltons, take time out during opening day in Charlevoix. The two stores opened under one roof last Thursday.

Do Business Where Business Is Being Done

It was not a sensational final match as golf tournaments go, but it ended with the razzle dazzle that Michigan Amateur followers have learned to expect from the 67-year-old amateur classic.

The new Michigan Amateur champion is a college student from Marshall who started at the top. The 20-year-old John Morse defeated Mark Engelman, an optometrist from Grand Blanc, one-up on the 20th hole during the tournament at the Belvedere Golf Club.

Morse had pulled the upset of the tournament on the same hole Saturday morning by defeating pre-tourney favorite Bob Proben of Redford during the semi-finals after being down three strokes. Prior to that, Morse had gone through four matches without creating much of a stir.

But although Morse has never won a golf tournament of note on the amateur circuit before and had only played twice in the Michigan Am, he played and talked like a champion Saturday.

"I knew when he missed that putt that I had him beat," Morse said of Engelman following his victory.

It had been a rough last hole for the two golfers. They were visibly nervous, especially after they had both missed two putts on the 19th hole.

Engelman's drive on the 20th hole left him in the middle of Stover Creek to the right of the fairway and one stroke down as the ball was moved from the water and back into play. He then hit past the green before chipping on, still a long distance from the cup.

Morse's drive landed him on the edge of the rough to the left of the fairway. His second shot placed him in front of a tree past the green. He ended up taking a short left-handed shot before chipping into the green a short distance from the cup.

"I decided to take the left-handed shot to avoid hitting into the trap, which would have been my only choice with a right-handed shot," the champion explained.

Engelman then missed the long putt by inches and Morse put the ball in to take the crown.

Morse's game had been marked by excellent chip shots which landed him near the cup without exception. And it was his chip shot that won him the tourney.

A very careful golfer, he spent a lot of time measuring each shot and evaluating the lay of the land. He often conferred with his caddy, Leonard Oliver.

Morse is the fourth Michigan Amateur Champion Oliver has caddied for.

"Leonard is the greatest," Morse said. "He really helps to keep you low key."

Although Morse hails from some distance away, he had quite a gallery following him. Two members of his high school golf team came up from Marshall to cheer him on and several Charlevoix residents adopted him because of his relationship with Superintendent of Schools Gordon Van Wieren.

Morse is a friend of the Van Wieren family and even stayed with them for the first part of the week. The family met him when Van Wieren was serving as superintendent of schools in Marshall.

Morse said he thought he could win the tournament from the day he arrived in Charlevoix last week.

'I remember what Dan Pohl said last year that if you don't come up to win you won't," Morse said. "I came to win."

And Morse said he never worried about losing even when he was down by three to Proben. At the 12th hole during the semi-finals.

"The pressure was on him at that point," Morse said. "When you're down like that I think you have the advantage because you have nothing to lose."

Morse said he was surprised that his golf game had been as up and down as it had been both in the semi-finals and the finals. He also commeted that his game had been a little different because he wasn't used to playing the "postage-stamp-sized" greens that are part of the Belvedere course.

"I like match play, though," the champion said. "I've only lost one match and that was here last year.

"And I really like the month of June. It's been the best month for me to play golf. I always do well."

Mock disaster provides practice for hospital staff

The scene was of the ravages of a tornado ofter it had ripped through Ferry Avenue Beach throwing bodies, picnic tables and automobiles everywhere.

A total of 16 people were suffering from various injuries as the Charlevoix city ambulance crews and the Charlevoix Sheriff's Department members arrived on the scene. It looked like the worst natural disaster Charlevoix had ever seen.

Fortunately, it was the scene of a mock disaster set up as a drill for the Charlevoix Area Hospital staff so thot hospital employees would know what to do in case of a real disaster involving a large number of casualties.

"In order to keep our accreditation, we are required by the Joint Commission an Hospital Accreditation to hold two mock disaster drills a year," Barney Roeters of the hospital safety committee, explained. "This way the staff will always be in readiness to handle a large number of casualties should the situation ever arise."

Roeters said the hospital invites the city ambulance crews and various law enforcement agencies to participate in the drill so that they can practice their skills, too.

Employees of the hospital played the part of the disaster victims. And with the help of a Michigan Department of Health moulage kit full of plastic injuries that could be adhered to their skin, they were quite convincing.

The moans, groans and hysterio were quite convincing even though an occasional giggle interrupted the solemnity of the drill.

This year the crew had to deal with 16 victims with injuries ranging from cuts and bruises to death. Several victims had to be removed from underneath picnic tables and from the inside of a car that had been hurled by the tornado.

Once the crews got the victims to the hospital, staff doctors and other staff members treated the victims and lodged them in various parts of the hospital.

Following the drill, all participants were invited to have coffee and doughnuts and to participate in a critique session. Hospital officials will also meet with the police agencies, ambulance crews ond Alice Tunison, emergency services director, to determine if there should be any changes in procedure.

"The hospital has quite an extensive emergency plan that we are constantly re-evaluating," Roeters said. "This drill helps us determine if the plan is workable or if there are things that need to be changed."

The emergency plan was written up by the hospital's Safety Committee and the committee also organizes the drills.

Roeters said this was the first time that the drill hod been announced instead of run on a spur of the moment.

"We felt announcing the drill would help us accomplish our goal, which is to get people to review the emergency plan so that they will know what they are supposed to do," he explained.

LEE MOERLAND works on a 'victim' during a mock disaster drill held by the Charlevoix Area Hospital last week. Members of the city ambulance crew also tested their skills during the drill.

Hats off to collector

Hats off to Tom Weir of Lapeer.

Weir, the fother of Charlevoix resident Earl Weir, has an interesting hobby – he collects hats. And the pride and joy of his collection is a genuine beaver skin top hat.

When Weir was visiting his son lost week, he stopped by the Charlevoix Courier office to display his prize possession.

"I got it at a flea market in Lapeer for $9," Weir explained proudly. "I don't know where the guy got it from. You never do when you go to those things."

The hot, which is in mint condition, is housed in a beautiful leother hat box and corrying case. The case, brown leather on the outside and lined with a rose-colored satin-like material on the inside, almost surpasses the hat in beauty and in value.

"I've been offered more than $100 for the box," the Lapeer resident said. "But I haven't had the inclincation to sell it quite yet."

Weir purchased the hat about a year ago. The hat and the box were made by Benton and Company of London, England. The company was founded during the reign of King George IV.

Weir said various people he has shown the hat to estimate it is more than 100 years old. An old sticker from a railroad storage comportment on the side of the hat box lists the date as 1906 and puts the age of the hat at least 72 years old.

In addition to the top hat, Weir olso has a series of derbys, caps and felt hats in his collection. He even has one of the straw hats that they wear ot Arbys Restaurants in the Lapeer area.

"I feel naked without one," he soid, holding his cap in one hand and the top hat and box in the other.

The Lapeer resident said he doesn't know how he got started collecting hats.

"I guess it started when I sold my lawn mower repair and sales business," he sold. "When you retire, you have to do something."

"I also have a collection of rocks from around the world."

But that's another story.

It's off to the races for Charlevoix boats

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY -- Three racing sailboats and crews from Lake Charlevoix are among the 22 yachts competing in the North American One Ton Championships sponsored by the Little Traverse Yacht Club in Harbor Springs from June 21-30.

"Cheap Shot," the red-masted, red-hulled boat well known to Charlevoix residents for its prowess in races on Lake Charlevoix and owned by Bill Kenifeck of Charlevoix and Craig Tallberg of Petoskey; "Revenge," the white-hulled yacht belonging to Gory Osterbeck of Boyne City; and "The Shodow," the boat with the mysterious face on its hull, belonging to Warren Todter of Boyne City; ore sister ships designed by Charles Morgan and built by Heritage Yachts of Clearwater, Fla.

The three Lake Charlevoix boats and their crews are participating in whot has been billed as the largest gathering of large soilboats of the same design ever to have been assembled.

Series Opened Perfectly

The competitors began a series of five races Thursday in Little Traverse Bay under ideal conditons. Along with one ton racers from as far away as El Segundo, Colif., and Greenwich, Conn., the threee boots burst ocross the starting line heading into a steady 15-mile-per-hour wind, to open the first of three Olympic course races of the series.

The series will also include two long-distance races around courses far into Lake Michigan – one about 150 miles and one about 360 miles out on the lake.

The top competitors in this race will be eligible to compete in World One Ton Championships at Fernsberger, Germany, late in August.

The term "One Ton" is a complicated designation that actually refers to the name of a trophy awarded to winning yachts in races in 1889. "Ton" does not indicate the size or weight of the boat, although all One Ton yachts measure about 36 feet in length.

The original French trophy, le Cercle de la Voile de Paris, was sailed for by Six-Meter boats. However, since 1970, under rules set by the International Offshore Racing Club (IORC) boats ore called "One Ton" if they rate 27.5 feet.

If the IROC 27.5 foot rate seems to contradict the statement that One, Tonners generally are 26 feet long, don't fret. Comprehension of sail boat racing rules and measurements is the domain of a select few sailors, boat designers and builders, whose business it is to build boats that seemingly defy the rules, but through vorious measorements, including sails, end up qualifying as something they might not appear to be.

How The Race Turned Out

The Charlevoix boats Cheap Shot, Revenge ond Shadow – ore not favored to be among the top four because a designer named Bruce Farr has developed a boat that some call "o rule beater."

Sailing Magazine defined Farr boats as "light, long, fat sterned, three quarter rigged ocean going dinghies." To some that is a compliment. Owners of Farr boats might say, "Sour grapes."

The Forr designed boats have become the boats to watch. The second and third place boats in the first race were both Farr boats -- Scalawag, from El Segundo, Calif., and Wild Turkey from Chicago.

Spectators at the start of the first roce thought an upset was in the making when Cheap Shot got off to a very fast start, but after 27 miles Cheap Shot finished 14th. The Shadow, which started "dead last" as Todter says, finished 8th, lending hope to Todter's crew.

Sail boat racing seems to be replete with complicated rules and designations that boggle a layperson's brain. But when the 10 minute gun or horn is sounded and 22 large sail boats begin tacking and jockeying for positions even the most blase observer experiences a rush of adrenalin. The legs of each part of the Olympic course are 3½ to almost 5 miles, with turns marked by red floating buoys.

As they approached the first buoy Thursday, onlookers shouted, "Watch them pop their shoots." And as each boat rounded the buoy, spinnakers, those baloon like multi-colored sails were raised off the foredecks, and the boots surged ahead, flying before the wind. Strung out toward the next buoy, they were an array of reds, oranges, and greens and yellows, enormous flowering plotforms, racing down wind. Around another buoy and the spinnakers were jibed. At the next they were doused.

Racing Not for Lazy

Racing a sailing yacht is clearly not for the lazy, no matter how luxurious a sport it is. Sails are being changed trimmed, adjusted and run around the foredeck as boats tack back and forth, trying to take ultimate odvantage of the wind. An element of danger is always apparent. As one old timer observed. "The crew is made up of o helmsman (he steers), a navigator (he says where to go when) ond a bunch of apes and gorillas (they do all the work)."

As interesting as the race itself, is observing the media such a prestigious race draws. All the well known sailing magozines are represented, plus such unlikely publications as Women's Wear Daily -- WWD's reporter said she had come to Harbor Springs "to watch the beautiful people watching the roce." Photographers with long lenses run around the press boat like hyperactive ants on a picnic, taking hundreds of pictures

And observers can not help but add up the enormous sums spent in the pursuit of yacht racing.

How Boats Got Here

A One Ton boat costs obout $75,000. Except for the Michigan competitors, the boats all were transported from California or the Atlantic on flat bed trucks.

Rogue's Roost, shipped from Connecticut, arrived in Harbor Springs with a large hole in her side. She was hauled out of the water twice to repair a leoking patch, before she went out to win the first day's race.

Scolawag, from California, stopped over at the famous Wisconsin bootyard of Palmer Johnson, where she received 900 manhours of overtime work to prepare for these races. Her owner John Kilroy Jr., is almost os famous and colorful a figure in sailing circles as Ted Turner, the flamboyant America's Cup winner.

Gin, another Forr designed yacht which made a poor showing Thursday, but is expected to improve during the race, wos so new she had never been sailed before the first race. Another favorite, expected to improve on a 12th place finish, Mr. Jumpa, a well-known and consistant winner, was chartered by Traverse City oilman David Hall, who had never sailed on the boat before Thursday's race.

The Lake Charlevoix contingent approoches the competition in a somewhat more low key fashion, pitting their similar boats against each other in a friendly crew vs crew duel. But Kenifeck predicts that soon the racing rules will be changed to make their boats even more competitive on an international scale.

FAITH SHOWS THE FALSE PREMISE OF THE "NEW MORALITY"

The so-called "new morality" we hear so much about these days is neither new nor moral, because its activities have been practiced and condemned since the dawn of history; and yet it appears to be gaining an increasing acceptance among the very people who would have been outraged at the idea only a few years ago. Nevertheless, under the guise of personal liberty these destructive habits bind us instead with the chains of a self-imposed slavery and demonstrate a total lack of respect for our minds and bodies by subjecting them to proven health hazards. It is not too late to learn that those rules of conduct set forth in the Bible were pretty good ones after all, and that those who follow them and go to Church regularly are always ahead in the long run.

Auditors find city in fair financial shape

That was the determination made by Hill, Woodcock and Distel, a certified public accountant firm in Petoskey, in their recent report to the Charlevoix Common Council and Mayor Sam Supernaw on the audited financial statements of the city.

William Schroderus, CPA, and Rockwell Freed, CPA, of the Petoskey firm, were responsible for the Charlevoix audit. A copy of the complete audit is included in this issue of the Charlevoix Courier.

Schroderus told the Courier in a phone interview that the city is in fairly good financial condition. He pointed out that unlike many cities, Charlevoix is not bankrupt. However, he cautioned that some measures should be taken to ensure that the city's expenditures do not exceed revenues in the coming year.

"One of the objectives of the mayor and the council last year was to use up some of the equity which the city had," Schroderus explained. "And they have done that."

(The City of Charlevoix had close to $600,000 in revenues at the end of the 1976-77 fiscal year. However, much of that money was tied up in earmarked funds.)

"The City is just like an individual," the accountant continued. "Unless you have a large accumulation in a savings account, you can't go on spending more than you're taking in for a long period of time.

"I think the city officials' moves to increase the water and electric rates and the millage rate were appropriate and will help to meet the city on an even keel."

Mayor Supernaw pointed out that the city had a decrease in general fund revenue last year due to the decrease in property taxes. This led to spending much of the surplus funds the city had.

City officials voted to drop the mill rate from 9 mills for operation and 3 mills for bonds to 5 mills for operations and 2 mills for bonds during the 1976-77 fiscal year. This resulted in a decrease in the collection of property taxes from $229,334 to $152,722 in 1977-78.

The mayor and the council have now voted to increase the millage to 10 mills for operations and 2 for bonds.

HILL, WOODCOCK & DISTEL

May 12, 1978

The Honorable Mayor and Aldermen
City of Charlevoix
Charlevoix, Michigan

We have examined the financial statements of the various funds and account group, as identified in the foregoing table of contents, of the City of Charlevoix for the years ended February 28, 1978 and 1977. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

The City has not maintained a record of its general fixed assets, and accordingly a statement of general fixed assets, required by generally accepted accounting principles, is not included in the financial report.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly the financial position of the various funds and account group of the City of Charlevoix at February 28, 1978 and 1977, and the results of operations of such funds and the changes in financial position of the utility funds for the years then ended, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a consistent basis except for a change, with which we concur, in recognizing accounts receivable for services and merchandise as income in the current year.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
ALL FUNDS
CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
For the years ended February 28, 1978 and 1977

NOTE A: SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

BASIS OF ACCOUNTING - The modified accrual basis of accounting is followed by the General, Major Street, Local Street, Federal Revenue Sharing and General Debt Service Fund. Under this method, measurable and available sources of revenue are accrued and all other revenues are recorded as received. Expenditures are recorded when incurred except that no recognition is given to inventory, prepaid expenditures and unmatured interest on long-term debt. All other funds use the accrual basis of accounting. In the Water and Sanitation Special Assessment Fund, however, no recognition is given to unmatured interest on special assessments or long-term debt.

FIXED ASSETS AND DEPRECIATION - Fixed assets are capitalized at cost in the Electric Utility Fund, Water Utility Fund, Sewage Disposal Utility Fund and the Motor Vehicle Fund. Depreciation has been provided using the straight-line method. All other funds record fixed assets as an expenditure at time of purchase.

INVENTORIES - Inventories are valued at the lower of cost, determined by the first-in, first-out method, or market.

DEFERRED REVENUE - The land contract receivable in the General Fund is recorded as revenue when collected.

NOTE B: CHANGE IN ACCOUNTING PRINCIPLE

In prior years the City recorded the uncollected General Fund accounts receivable as deferred revenue. To more accurately reflect the current operating results the entire General Fund accounts receivable is recognized as revenue. The cummulative effect of the change in accounting principle is the amount of revenue recognized by applying the new accounting principle retroactively.

NOTE C: CONTRIBUTIONS IN AID OF CONSTRUCTION

Contributions in Aid of Construction in the Water Utility Fund and the Sewage Disposal Utility Fund, represents the contributions from benefiting property owners, Federal and State Grants, contractors contributions from the City, utilized in financing water distribution sewage disposal facilities.

NOTE D: PENSION

The City participates in the Michigan Municipal Employees' Retirement System. Substantially all City employees are covered by the plan. The plan is contributory, the employees' contribution is based on a percentage of compensation and the City's contribution is determined annually by actuarial valuation and includes a factor for unfunded prior service cost, which is being amortized over the next 28 years.

Pension expense for the year ended February 28, 1978 and 1977, was $38,283 and $29,210, respectively. The actuarially computed value of unfunded accrued liabilities as of December 31, 1976, the most recent date for which information is available, was $186,833.

NOTE E: LONG-TERM DEBT

Bonds Payable - During the year 1970 the City issued $700,000 of general obligation bonds. The bonds are secured by the full faith, credit and resources of the City and are being retired with funds generated from an annual tax levy.
The City also has issued $163,000 of special assessment bonds, also secured by the full faith, credit and resources, payable from collections of special assessments receivable. The General Long-Term Debt Group of Accounts indicates details of both issues.

USAF comes on strong in softball play

The USAF team came on strong to win several games during play in the Charlevoix Township Slo-pitch Softball league last week.

During its first game of the week, USAF bombed McArt's Mart 18-2. George Dotson had the win on a mere seven hits and Norm Probert had the loss on 18 hits.

During its second game of the week, the USAF squeeked by Murdick's 15-14. Dotson again had the win on 17 hits and Jack Niswander had the loss on 17 hits.

There were several exciting games during the week. Wojan's managed to down Tri-County 14-8, but the two teams were tied 8-8 in the sixth inning until Wojans blasted out six runs to take the lead.

Gary Balch had the win and Norm Coolman took the loss on 17 hits. Chuck Center had a home run for Wojans.

In another breath-taking game, McArt's Mart just barely got past Flight Deck 8-7. The game went a full nine innings and there were two outs when the final run was scored.

Probert had the win on 13 hits and Don Willis took the loss on 14 hits. Lee Simpson, and Willis each had three hits apiece for the Flight Deck and Don Finley had three for McArt's.

Koontz also won two games during play last week. The team defeated Chesters 12-4 and Medusa 16-13.

Against Chesters, Koontz pitcher Jim Marsh had the win on seven hits. Greg Revoir had the loss on 17 hits.

Koontz had seven runs and eight hits in the sixth inning with Marsh and Ed Bafos each banging out three runs apiece.

Against Medusa Marsh took the win on 17 hits while Hank Archey had the loss on 15 hits. Rory Kandell had a home run for Medusa.

Medusa bounced back, however, to defeat VFW 29-13. Archey had the win on 14 hits and Don Wells, Sr., had the loss on 29 hits.

Fink said the psyciatric and Jim Zeitler each had a home run for Medusa and Roger Putman blasted two home runs for the team. Mike Kane had one home run for VFW.

Murdicks also defeated VFW 14-3. Niswander took the win on eight hits and Wells had the loss on 17 hits.

Jim Moore and John Murray had home runs for Murdick's and teammate Mike Bartz hit two. Jerry Russell had one home run for VFW.

Chester's downed Tri-County 23-12. Revoir had the win on nine hits and Harold Thomure had the loss on 21 hits. Tom Arnold had a home run for Chester's and Gary Warner had a home run for Tri-County.

pointed out that the city lost money in its electrical, water and sewage disposal utility funds and the motor vehicle fund. However, due to surpluses in the various funds, the city is still in the black.

"We have gotten to the point where the cost of the services we have been giving have exceeded what we have been charging for them," Supernaw said. "It was time to raise those rates to meet expenses."

As far as the general fund was concerned, the mayor said there were a few areas where the city seemed to have greatly exceeded its proposed budget such as in the parks, beaches and shade tree category. The over expenditures were caused by a change in the accounting system which reclassified expenditures and put them in different categories than they were griginally budgeted in.

"The money for the expenditures was there, it was just in a different classification," Supernaw said.

from the new stack that is going to be constructed at the cement plant. He also said they would ask for studies on the emissions from other activities at the plant such as the bicreased quarrying that would be taking place and the increased coal use to fuel the plant.

"Medusa has said they plan to double production and that means all of the other activities will be doubled, too," Mindell said. "We want to know what that is going to mean to Charlevoix."

Ironton Ferry may come home Friday

The Ironton Ferry should be on its way back to Ironton this Friday.

Irvin Sturm, Charlevoix County Road Commission engineer-director, said he had talked with Ken Wyskochil, owner of Wyskochil Marine Service in Traverse City where the ferry is being repaired, Monday.

"I called down there today and he said he had worked on the ferry all weekend and that he hopes to have it in Ironton by Friday," Sturm said.

The ferry provides an important link across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix for travelers on Ferry Road. By using the ferry, county residents and visitors can cut their traveling time and mileage in half between Boyne City and Charlevoix.

The Ironton Ferry was taken out of service early last fall and towed down to Traverse City for its five year marine inspection by the U.S. Coast Guard and for the replacement of its engine.

The ferry was due back in Ironton in April.

"Basically the nondelivery of parts required in the drive train has been what has held up the return of the ferry," Sturm explained. "Michigan Tractor Equipment Company,' which supplied the engine, had to go to other companies to get the rest of the parts necessary for the new engine.

"Parts delivery is the place where you're helpless these days," the engineer-director continued. "I know we have that problem ourselves. We're promised a part on Monday and it shows up a week later.

"Believe me, I've made dozens and dozens of phone calls to people trying to track these things down."

And while Sturm was making dozens and dozens of phone calls, the residents of Charlevoix County were also making dozens and dozens of phone calls to Sturm and to their county commissioners.

"Yes, we've received a lot of phone calls from people wondering where the ferry was and asking why they didn't have it," Sturm said. "And they should have it. It is necessary."

Sturm said he had no idea how many people had been affected by the absence of the ferry.

"Not only does it affect the people wanting to get to work by a shorter route, but now that we're in the tourist season, all those people who read AAA magazine about taking a ride on the Ironton Ferry are also affected," he pointed out.

(A recent article in Motor News, the AAA magazine, entitled "101 Offbeat Things to Do in Michigan," listed a ride on the Ironton Ferry as something interesting to do in Northern Michigan).

One of the people affected by the absence of the ferry is Kay Hunt, a Ferry Road resident who works at the Chelsea Clothe Shop in Charlevoix. Mrs. Hunt lives about 1.5 miles from the ferry toward Boyne City.

"I'm rather unhappy about the ferry not being open," Mrs. Hunt said in what could be the understatement of the year. "I expected to have to drive around during the winter when I took this job in Charlevoix. But I also thought the ferry would be open in the summer, especially by now."

Mrs. Hunt estimates she drives an extra 24 miles a day because the ferry isn't open. Her trip from home to Charlevoix and back is 16 miles via ferry and 40 miles via land.

And Mrs. Hunt says more than just the workers coming to Charlevoix are affected by the nonoperational ferry. The tourists are also affected.

"We own Big Pine Resort, which is also on Ferry Road," Mrs. Hunt said. "And the people that stay there really enjoy going across the ferry and coming into Charlevoix to shop.

"We're losing a lot of business in Charlevoix because the people can't go across the ferry and they won't drive around the lake."

County Commissioner John Haggard said his business is also affected because the ferry isn't operating. Haggard owns a plumbing business and has several jobs that his employees could get too much easier if they could take the ferry instead of driving around the lake.

County Commissioner Ralph Richardson, who represents Eveline and Marion townships, the two townships most affected by the absence of the ferry, said he has heard complaints from telephone company employees to people wanting to go to church to the owner of Chester's, a bar situated by the Ironton Ferry.

Chester's has been deluged by telephone calls from people wanting to know if the ferry is open yet, Richardson said.

Blacktop may soon replace the dust and dirt on Bells Bay Road.

The Charlevoix County Road Commission and Medusa Cement Company have reached an agreement on the construction of Bells Bay Road from U.S. 31 to the cement plant.

Under the agreement, the road commission will contribute $10,000 toward the cost of the reconstruction of the road and Medusa will pay for the rest of the project. The cement company will also pay for the cost of all surveys and the preparation of plans for the project.

There will be some widening and minor relocation of the road, which leads to the Bells Bay campground, and residences as well as to the cement plant, under the project. Then cement stabilized base with an asphalt cap will be put on the road.

Irvin Sturm, road commission engineer-director, said the road commission and Medusa reached the agreement at a road commission meeting held two weeks ago. The two groups have been discussing terms for the reconstruction of the road since last October.

Sturm said the two units have not yet signed the formal written agreement on the deal.

"We have reached an agreement in principle with Medusa to go ahead as fast as possible on the reconstruction of the road, but we are still waiting for a written contract," Sturm explained.

"We have agreed to go ahead with the project, we just need to review the contract language to make it final."

The engineer-director said the road commission had already begun doing the necessary survey and layout work in preparation for the reconstruction of the road. And a hearing on the project has been set for 11 a.m. July 28.

Sturm said a hearing had to be held on the reconstruction because of the widening and minor relocation that is involved in the project.

"Based on the results of the hearing, we will advertise for bids and then begin work," Sturm said.

He said the road commission would like to complete the reconstruction project this year. Sturm estimated that the latest the work could be completed by was the end of October.

"I think we should allow three months for the project from the opening of the bids," Sturm said. "It sounds like we should be opening bids around the first of August."

The engineer-director said the road commission would be overseeing the reconstruction of the road, but the actual work would be done by an independent contractor.

"We are not staffed or equipped to handle this kind of a job and our work schedule for the season has been planned for several months and does not include time for this project," he explained.

Elbert Kaiser, Medusa plant manager, said this is the first time the company has ever entered into such a contract with a county road commission. Kaiser said the company took the action at the request of the Charlevoix Township Board.

"It is a public road, but it is a road we use," Kaiser said. "It has been in poor condition and quite a source of dust in the area.

"We feel that this project will provide us with better service and that it will reduce the dust pollution from the road."

Oscar Stroud, supervisor of Charlevoix Township, said he has been working on getting Bells Bay Road paved for the last six years.

"All of the rest of the road system in the township is blacktopped and we felt this road should be, too," Stroud explained. "The township could have had it paved even though it's a primary road and the county and state should pay for it if we could have come up with the money. But that's a big project.

"So when Medusa approached us with its plans for expansion, we felt paving the road should be part of the expansion plans. We feel the road is responsible for 20 to 25 percent of the dust pollution out there and that it should be taken care of."

Medusa is planning a $50 million dollar expansion and conversion program at the plant which also includes improved pollution controls.

THE IRONTON FERRY still sits in the boatyard at Wyskochil Marine Service in Traverse City. The ferry is supposed to return to Charlevoix County Friday.

Lakeside Hobbycraft Show opens in East Park Sat

Handicrafted items designed by more than 100 different artists will fill booths in East Park Saturday during the 10th annual Lakeside Hobbycraft Show.

Jacquie Merta, Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce executive director, said many of the same exhibitors who have delighted visitors to the hobbycraft show in the past will be on hand again this year.

Residents and visitors will see such crafts as Petoskey stone sculptures, all types of jewelry, pottery, macrame, decoupage, candles and hand-painted china.

Mrs. Merta explained that the hobbycraft show differs from the Waterfront Art Fair held in August in two ways. The art fair is juried and the hobbycraft show is not.

Also the hobbycraft show includes many handicrafts which are not considered fine art and cannot qualify for the art fair.

The show will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday and last until dusk.

Two private developers working on projects

Housing commission applies for FHA funds

Pre-application papers are presently being completed for a Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) loan and should be in the FmHA Lansing offices within the next two weeks, Ralph Hamilton, housing commission secretary, reported in a written release.

The city housing commission is seeking funding for the construction of a 96-unit senior citizen complex on Garfield Avenue on property near the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department offices. The site has already been approved for the construction of the housing complex.

Hamilton said the federal government is expected to release additional housing construction fund appropriations in October or November. He predicted the city's final application would be prepared and accepted by FmHA in plenty of time to qualify for the new appropriations.

The housing commission has been working with developer Richard Wiggins of Grand Rapids since last November in securing funding for the senior housing project. Wiggins has been attempting to get money for the complex through the Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA), but he has not been successful.

"Last December it looked very probable that construction on the buildings would have started this spring," Hamilton explained. "But, before all the necessary paperwork was finished, the U.S. government policy changed and only low income family projects could meet the requirements (for funding). This doomed our program.

"A new set of rules will be set up late this fall, but no one can predict how senior housing will be affected."

After the funding sources through the state dried up, the city housing commission and developer Wiggins turned to FmHA. However, no indication of Charlevoix's chances for receiving construction funds has been given by the agency.

"The struggle to bring senior housing here has gone through many phases and changes," Hamilton said. "It has been a discouraging problem and at times a hopeless task.

"It took Petoskey eight years and Traverse City 12 years to reach their goal," he pointed out.

The Charlevoix commission has been trying to obtain funds for a housing project since 1974.

While the city commission has been struggling to obtain funds for a senior citizen housing complex, Frank Vaydik, owner of the Charlevoix Apartments on May Street, has also been seeking FmHA funds for the construction of 48 more units on property owned by Frank Smith on May Street. Smith's property is adjacent to Vaydik's present complex.

Vaydik will be presenting a site plan and a request for rezoning for the apartment complex at the July 17 meeting of the Charlevoix Planning Commission.

Under the new FmHA Section 8 funding, it is possible that all of the new units could be used for housing senior citizens on limited incomes, John Michael, Vaydik's attorney, explained.

If the senior citizens qualify economically, they would only have to pay 25 percent of their income for housing and the rest of the rent would be subsidized under the Section 8 program. Vaydik has 16 units in his present complex which can be used for people qualifying under the Section 8 program. Vaydik has received Section 8 funding for 16 units in his present complex, but it is possible that the government will fund all 48 units in the new complex, Michael said.

A third developer has taken out an option to buy property owned by Irv Drost next to the Citco property for the development of senior citizen housing.

Let's Talk Real Estate

by Jim Thomas

With houses, as with people, first impressions are very important. If someone is looking for a house to buy, the first thing they see is the outside. If you are planning to sell your house, it pays to put some time and money into the exterior condition of the house and surrounding property. Make sure the lawn and vegetation is reasonably well groomed and that the area is clean. Also, make sure all drain pipes, shingles, shutters and such, are secure. If possible, repaint your house, or at leas do necessary exterior patch work. A little attention to these features will pay off in the long run.

As specialists in residential properties personnel at the office of THOMAS REAL ESTATE, 101 Bridge St., 547-4494 can give you hints on how to make your home more attractive to prospective buyers. When you list your home or other property with us we will use our knowledge of real estate and experience in the area to make sure you receive maximum market value. Your home will receive the widest possible exposure through our extensive advertising program. "Do Business Where Business is Being Done". Hours Daily 9-5, evenings and Sun. by appointments.

Let us all make a concentrated effort to support Norman M. Gaffney, our new city manager. A community with good government insures your real estate values.

Post Office offers test for carriers

Post Office Clerk / Carrier examinations for work in several postal areas, including Charlevoix, will be given before August 14.

Interested persons should apply at the local post office between July 10 and July 14. No applications will be given out before July 10.

Salaries, not including fringe benefits, for clerks and letter carriers begin at $6.75 an hour and increase to $8.40 an hour over an eight-year period. Annually this represents a $13,604 starting salary for a full time employee that increases to $16,189 in eight years.

The Post Office Department says it does not want to give the impression they will be hiring great numbers of people in the coming months, but any vacancies that occur in the next two years will be filled by hiring people from their up-dated job register. Those who have previously applied and who have been on the job register for more than two years will lose their eligibility October 8 and must reapply to compete for a standing on the new register.

Hospital employee receives D.D. Walker scholarship

A Charlevoix Area Hospital employee was the recipient of the 20th annual Charlevoix Area Hospital Nursing Scholarship.

Ann Evans of Ellsworth received the $700 check this year. Miss Evans, 21, will be entering the nursing program at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey this fall.

A 1974 graduate of Ellsworth High School, she has worked as a nurses aide at Charlevoix Area Hopsital for the last two and one-half years.

"I really enjoy the work and that's what made me decide to go into training," she explained.

The scholarship is presented every spring to an area resident intending to pursue a career in nursing. Selection of a recipient is made by a committee of the hospital board and is based on academic achievement and financial need.

The scholarship fund has been supported every year by Mrs. D.D. Walker and the late Mr. Walker since 1958.

Unusual golf course reflects designer

By PAULA HOLMES

Nestled in the woods between the rolling sand dunes leading down to the south end of Torch Lake is a fascinating little golf course with on unusual name.

But, the course and its name aren't nearly as fascinating os the man who put them there – Roy Whitmore.

Whitmore, owner of Aga-Ming Golf Course, fulfilled a dream of more than a quarter century when he plunked his nine-hole golf course down near the shores of Torch Lake. And he proudly shows it off to anyone who asks.

It was at on age when most people are ready to toss in their chips that Whitmore decided to come out of retirement and build the course, which has become his pride and joy.

"I retired eight years ago," the 82-year old began, explaining how he ended up becoming the owner of a golf course. "My wife and I bought a little house in Flroida. It was in one of those communities where mostly old people live..."

"They were just sitting around waiting to die," he said his voice trailing off as he shook his head in disgust.

"Finally I said to my wife, 'To hell with this, let's go back up north and build a golf course.' So we did."

That was five years ago. And in that time, Whitmore was almost single-handedly constructed his course and has had it open for the last two seasons.

Whitmore had been travelling past the 90-acre plot where his golf course now sits on his way to his summer cottage for 25 years before he finally bought the land.

"I'd been looking at this land for 25 years and saying that it should have a golf course on it. It has the perfect terrain for it. You know, you've got to have that before you can have a good course."

He bought the land, sold it and then repurchased it before he got around to building the golf course after moving back north.

"I bought a bulldozer and went to work," he recalled. "I did most of the bulldozing myself.

"This was the darndest wilderness you ever saw. It was covered with trees. Why, there were maples this big around," he said making a huge circle with his arms.

"But I can't just tell you about it, let me show you," he said pointing toward a golf cart at the edge of the course. "I'll take you out to see some of the holes."

He drove quickly over the hilly terrain handling the cart with the nonchalance that 60 years of being on golf courses had given him.

"Now look," he said slowing down the cart and then bringing it to a halt all together. "That's the prettiest o hole as I ever saw."

His gaze looked out to a hole in a valley in a small opening in the trees. A pond added to the charm of the setting and Torch Lake was just visible over the tops of the trees. After a few moments of silent appreciation, he went on.

"I've always been an avid golfer," he said. "I have a four handicap and that's pretty good.

"I know what makes a good golf hole. You've got to have something interesting. You've got to have something more out there than just a big cow pasture."

And he designed his 36-par course with something interesting in each hole. The course contains such interesting things as three water traps, several dog legs, forest areas, gullies and springs.

"Now take this one. You tee off from here but you have to walk down this hand-made stairway to get there."

A golfer standing nearby reminded him about the fresh water spring by the hole, too.

"Oh, yeah," Whitmore said. "That's the fountain of youth you know. That's why I'm so young, I drink that water."

"Here, you taste it," he said filling a dipper with the cool, clear water.

He drove on across the course pointing out various intracacies he had designed such as a green on the slope of a gully. Suddenly he pulled up on the top of a ravine.

"This is a 528-yard hole," he explained. "Now most of your big hitters can reach the green in two."

"But I didn't want them to reach this green in tow."

"You got to have a challenge," he said smiling.

Not only does the design of the course capture Whitmore's golf preferences and personality, but even the name reflects his tastes.

"I told my daughter we had to have an Indian name for the place and she came up with Aga-Ming. That means by the water.

"I don't know for sure what Indian language that is, but I like the Souix Indians so that's what it must be."

Whitmore enjoys playing his own course just as much as he does talking about it. He gets out with his clubs about every other day.

"You know, I can still go around and par this course on the right day. Not too many men that can shoot their age you know," he said matter of factly.

"I even got a 35 on it once. But don't put that in there. It'll look like I'm bragging and besides, people don't believe you anyhow."

The golf course owner got his start in the game on a course owned by his older brother in the Detroit area. He was 22 years old at the time.

"It was just a putt and chip place," he said. "But I leanred to love the game on that course."

Since that time he has played many courses and he ranks the Belvedere Golf Club course and the Traverse City Country Club course among his favorites. They rank somewhere after his own course, of course.

It was at the Elk Rapids Golf Course that he got his only hole-in-one, however.

"It was in 1969," he said. "I'll never forget it. The guys yelled, 'It rolled in the hole' "

ROY WHITMORE stops to take a drink from the fountain of youth, a fresh water spring at his golf course.

12.5% of traffic accidents in county happen in Charlevoix

By PEG OHLE

There were 828 reported traffic accidents in Charlevoix County during the year 1977, the Michigan Department of State Police reports.

Eight people were killed in six of the accidents, and 319 people were injured. There was also property damage in 615 of the accidents.

The City of Charlevoix accounted for 164 of the accidents, in which 34 people were injured and property damage sustained by 135. There were no fatal accidents within the city limits.

Most of the accidents in the county, 425, happened on city street, while the other 403 happened on state routes.

The report points out that rural traffic deaths increased 4.6 percent in 1977 over 1976, injuries increased 5.7 percent, and total accidents increased 6.8 percent.

On the other hand, urban deaths decreased 9.1 percent, injuries decreased 0.1 percent, and total accidents decreased 0.0 percent.

There were 16,645 vehicles registered in Charlevoix County during 1977, the report shows. Of these, 10,076 were passenger cars, 3,229 were commercial vehicles, 2,499 were trailers, 823 were motorcycles, 18 were municipal vehicles.

Statewide, there were 374,751 accidents in 1977, in which 1,950 people were killed and 166,389 people injured.

A traffic accident was reported every one minute and 24 seconds. One person was killed every four hours and 29 minutes as a result of a traffic accident. Of those fatal accidents where the drinking condition was determined, 50.5 percent indicated that alcohol was a factor.

Of the 2,672 drivers involved in fatal accidents, 20.5 percent were under 20 years of age and 40 percent of all drivers involved in fatal accidents were under 25 years of age.

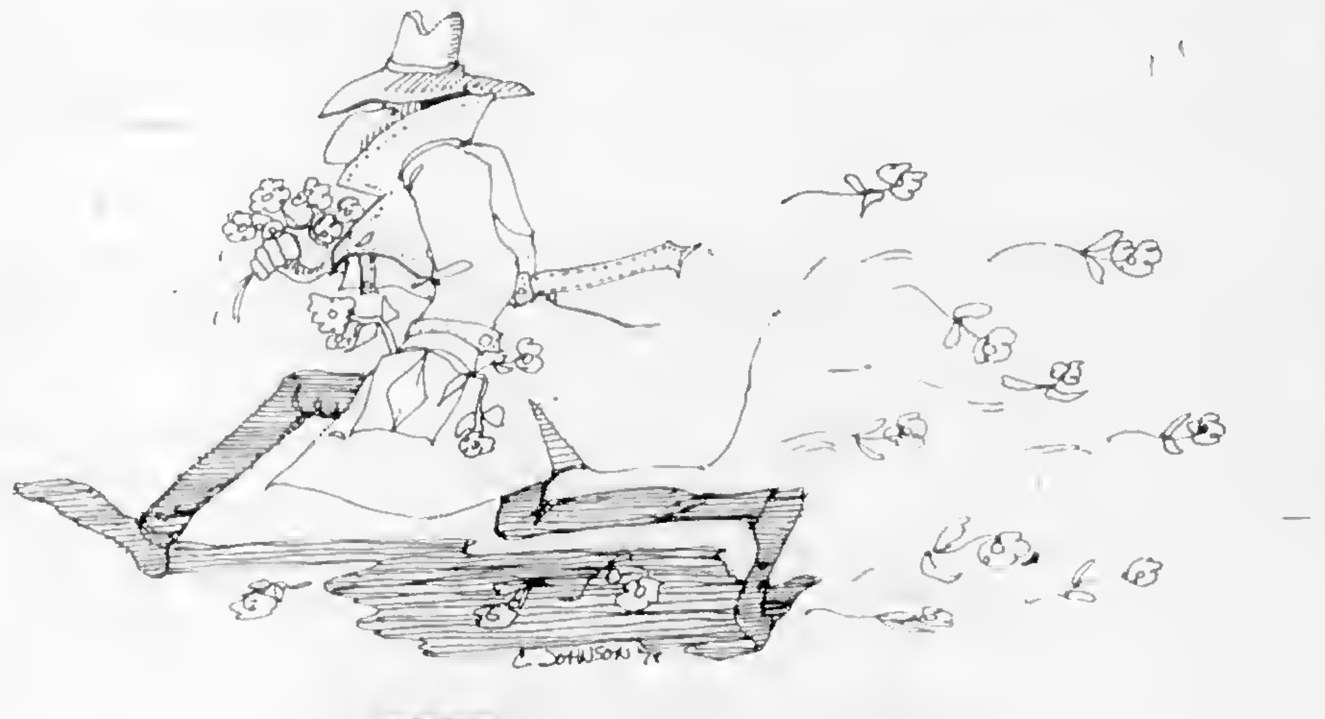
It takes work to keep Charlevoix beautiful



For several weeks in late spring, the Charlevoix Courier Hotline was full of comments about how Charlevoix should change its name from "Charlevoix the Beautiful" to "Charlevoix the Dump."

Many area residents called or wrote in to complain about garbage being strewn everywhere, houses in disrepair and just a general lack of concern for keeping the city clean.

Then, slowly but surely, city residents and city crews began to remove the winter dust and dirt that had collected on city streets and sidewalks.

And as the warmth and sunshine slowly moved north for the summer an interesting phenomena took place. The city crews put up the hanging baskets in the central business district area and the downtown merchants began planting flowers in their window boxes.

Brightly-colored geraniums, petunias and marigolds lined the windows and those stores that didn't have window boxes put out free standing pots. The streets were alive with color and the town had once again become Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Just walking along the streets of town was a pleasant thing for both tourists and residents to do. Charlevoix was indeed a pleasant place to be.

But it wasn't too long until the beauty was destroyed. People began throwing everything from pop can tabs to potato chip sacks to beer bottles in the window boxes. And what they didn't throw in the window boxes they threw in the parks, along the sidewalks and in the public bathrooms.

Others simply picked the flowers and strewed the petals everywhere. And from picking the flowers people went to pulling up entire plants.

Several downtown merchants reported that vandals had torn up the window boxes. At Ski and Shore Properties, which has window boxes on both Bridge Street and Park Avenue, the window boxes have been torn up twice.

"It takes a lot of work to keep those boxes up," one person from the real estate firm said. "It's a little disheartening to put in all that work and then come to the office one morning and see it all strewn along the sidewalks."

The merchants should be applauded for their efforts to make the downtown area as attractive as possible. But it is going to take more than just the merchants to keep it that way.

Instead of laughing the next time someone picks a flower or tosses a bottle into a window box, why not admonish the person to have a little more respect for the property of others. Don't look the other way.

Everyone has to work to keep Charlevoix beautiful.

...Speaking Her Mind

I've been converted.

I spent a Saturday afternoon covering the finals of the Michigan Amateur Golf Tourney a couple of weeks ago and I was converted. I found the game most interesting as I hiked across 20 holes at the Belvedere Gulf Course. And I was fascinated with the deep concentration and skill shown by the two competitors for the title, Champ John Morse and runner-up Mark Engelman.

And that's quite a change for the avowed nongolfer I have been for the last 10 years. I quit playing golf in a fit of pique more than a decade ago.

I remember the day well. I had been taking golf lessons throughout the summer and I was out on the links with my father and brother. I was having a terrible night and it was obvious that I hand't learned much from my lessons.

By the time we reached the fifth hole, I had tallied a score that most people would have been ashamed of for 18 holes. The mosquitoes were thick and attempting to carry me away. I can't remember if I threw down my clubs in disgust and stormed off the course or not. But I like tu think I did.

From that day forward I often referred to the game of golf as one of the stupidest and most frustrating sports I could think of. Why would anyone want to chase a little white ball all over a big field, I queried, as I took up tennis and chased a slightly larger ball all over an asphalt court.

So when I learned that I would be covering the Michigan Am, I was not real excited. After all, what could be interesting about following two guys around on a golf course.

But when I arrived at the Belvedere Golf Club for the finals, I was almost immediately caught up in the excitement. More than 600 people had gathered to watch the two men pit their skill, concentration and nerves against each other and the air was filled with electricity.

At first, the players were quite mechanical – drive, hit, putt, drive, hit, putt for several holes. But as they began to loosen up and show their own style.

The crowd began to loosen up and to become a part of the battle between the two players. The gallery had supporters for both players, but it wasn't beneath the supporters of one player to cheer the exceptionally good shots of the other player.

And when a bad shot was made by either man, an almost voluntary groan would escape from everyone.

It was not a football or basketball game, but the excitement was there just as if it were. And maybe it was even a little more exciting as the two individuals pitted themselves against each other and the course.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

If ever I get rich enough to travel, I'm going to head for Westport, County Mayo, in the Republic of Ireland, to see what I've been missing.

All my life I have heard stories from my mother about her grandmother, Jane Huston, who was born in Ballymoney, County Antrim, in Northern Ireland. And although I have never been there, traveling kinfolk never hesitate to ship home postcards featuring pictures of Ballymoney's downtown section, the farmer's market, the Garry Bog the River Bush and other so-called points of interest. Ballymoney is sort of old hat, if you know what I mean.

But my father has been spending some time with us lately and I was surprised to learn another great-grandmother Ellen Carney, also came from the Auld Sod.

"She was born in Westport, County Mayo, in 1841 and came over to Windsor as a baby during the potato famine.

"Hold on," I said. "If she came from County Mayo, how come we're not Catholic?"

"Before they came over, Ellen's mother caught her father drinking whiskey in the barn with the priest. She told the priest that if he'd stay off her farm, she'd stay away from his church. And they both kept their word."

Ever since dad's visit I have read everything I can get my hands on about Westport, which sounds more like an American subdivision than an Irish seaport. It is located at the southeast shore of Clew Bay and on a clear day you should be able to see the high headlands of Achill Island, where Nobel Peace Prize winner Mairead Corrigan tells us her Peace People Movement was born.

Westport itself has about 3,000 inhabitants and the central focus of the downtown section is the Carrowbog River which flows through the city on its way to the sea. A mall planted with lime trees is located on each side of the river in the heart of the city.

Lime trees on the 55th Parallel? That's right. Thanks to the Gulf Stream, the North Atlantic off Ireland is as warm as bath water. The vegetation on Achill Island is said to be almost subtropical.

So I have put a trip to Westport on my "things to do" list, right up there with painting the porch and mowing the lawn.

+ + +

WHILE perusing maps of Ireland these past few days, I have been struck by the crispness and attractiveness of so many Irish place names. (Westport, unfortunately, is not among them.) and I wonder how the Irish managed to come up with names that literally sing.

Everyone, of course, has heard of Limerick, Tralee, Tipperary, County Down, Shannon Airport and Galway Bay. But there are literally thousands of others that are equally appealing.

Ballyclare, for example. Or Downpatrick. Ballyshannon. Castlebar and Castlemaine. Skibbereen. Kilkenny. Kilmallock. Kilrush. Kilkee. Kildare. Enniskillen. Letterkenny.

Why you could write a song about any one of them.

Of course, some of the names have rather a pedestrian ring to them – Omagh. Cavan, Thurles, Mallow, Fermoy, Athion, Tuam, Longford, and - - sad to say – Westport. But they are cities you never hear about. I bet if the truth were known, Cong and Kesh are bittie better than ghost towns.

Stebbins takes action on pollution

Mr. Ardon Toland,
District Manager
Department of Natural Resources
Cadillac, Michigan 49601

Dear Sir:

This is to report our serious concern over the very obvious air pollution in the Charlevoix aren which emanates from the Medusa Cement plant on South Point near Charlevoix.

On June 14, 1978 at approximately 12:30 p.m. I was in a small boat with two other persons performing a water sampling (under the auspices of the DNR) about 5 miles southeast of Charlevoix on Lake Charlevoix. At that time and for at least one hour thereafter we observed a tremendous amount of emission from the Medusa stacks which drifted to the northeast for a distance of several miles. As we proceeded back up the lake toward the City of Charlevoix we became aware of a strong odor. We almost were able to "feel" the precipitate in the air.

On another similar mission (June 23, 1978 – 12:30 p.m.) accompanied by one other person, with the wind blowing from the northwest, aheavy cloud of emissions (substantially less than on the previous date cited above but still of large proportion) was seen blowing from the Medusa plant to the southwest.

Again today, June 29, 1978 at approximately 12:30 p.m. there was observed a substantial amount of emissions from both the Penn Dixie at Petoskey and Medusa stacks at Charlevoix.

In each of the instances above we believe a reasonable person would report the air pollution as intolerable by any reasonalbe standard.

What can be done to halt this menace to our environment and to regulate the output of the 100 percent increase in facilities now underway at Medusa, Charlevoix?

Most sincerely,
Rodney H. and Gial B. Stebbins

Retarded aren't welcome

She makes her living taking telephone polls. Many times she has questioned the residents of St. Clair Shores, and she is impressed.

"I never knew a community that showed more genuine concern for its lawns," she said.

She phoned me the morning after the St. Clair Shores City Council demonstrated this genuine concern by voting to go to court to keep 5 mentally retarded women from walking on neighborhood lawns.

"We're not against retardation; we're just against putting it into our residential area," said a citizen attending the council meeting.

This is the type of public spirtt that has impressed my friend the poll taker. She is awed by the depth of the feeling St. Clair Shores people show for their lawns. When she learned that a Shores neighborhood was being threatened by 5 retarded women, she wanted to help citizens defend their shrubs. That's why she phoned me.

"You've had a lot of experience with retarded people," she said. "Why don't you give St. Clair Shores some advice on how to keep retarded people off the lawn?"

There's no denying my experience. For over 20 years I lived just a few blocks from Michigan's largest home for the mentally retarded. Every day I saw home patients who had "downtown privileges." Their intelligence would be about the same as that of the 5 women who have St. Clair Shores worried.

To get downtown, these home patients had to walk by dozens of nice lawns. Some of them went downtown to shop. Many had jobs in downtown stores. Some did domestic or yard work at the homes behind the nice lawns.

A few years ago, the state decided that if these slightly retarded people could visit in the community every day, they could live there full time. An open housing law was passed, prohibiting cities from using zoning laws to discriminate against the mentally retarded. It allows group homes for up to 6 retarded residents regardless of the zoning.

It is this law that's caused the anguish about lawns in St. Clair Shores. It has been proposed that 5 retarded women and their 2 supervisors live together in a residential district. Citizens have objected violently, and the City Council is suing to overturn the open housing law.

My friend the poll taker asked if I think the lawsuit is a good idea. Yes. But it's been filed for the wrong reason.

St. Clair Shores residents are worried about the retarded women tromping on lawns and lowering property values and otherwise causing great trauma. Forget it.

Year after year, I watched hundreds of mentally retarded persons perform as pedestrinns, shoppers and employees. They never took shortcuts through shrubs. They never even attacked storekeepers. They did good work for the people who hired them.

But this doesn't mean the 5 retarded women should be welcomed in St. Clair Shores. Mentally retarded people do have unusual traits that can be embarrassing to normal people.

It's been my experience that retarded people, when they go out into the community, tend to be quiet. They never push anyone around, and they never complain when they get pushed. They aren't mean to people who aren't as smart as they are. They are kind to everyone they meet.

Naturally, it is uncomfortable for normal people to be around these dummies. Keep 'em out.

"What if the lawsuit fails? Do you have any other ideas? my friend the poll taker asked.

"The city could pass on ordinance limited residence in St. Clair Shores to people with IQ's over 80." I suggested.

"I'm afraid that might create a ghost town," the poll taker said, "and that would be terrible. There would be no one left to mow the lawns."

Ron Pair responds to editorial with cartoon, other documents

Dear Ms. Holmes.

We are enclosing the following items which hopefully will be published in the forthcoming edition of the Charlevoix Courier.

1) Letter from Arthur Ranger to Mayor Samuel Supernaw.

2) MIDWEST news release from the ublic Relations Department.

3) Cartoon illustration.

The above documents reflect our position concerning the issues related to the "war" between MIDWEST and the Charlevoix County Building Commission.

Our intention is only to present the facts, as we see them, to the citizens of the Charlevoix area and to protect the employees and the associates of MIDWEST International.

You will be personally advised of our future plans as soon as they are made available by our Public Relations Department.

Dear Mayor Supernaw:

I am writing in response to your request for information regarding the BOCA Code requirements for exitways in the new building proposed by MIDWEST CORTH DIVISION OF RON PAIR ENTERPRISES, Stover Road, in the City of Chalrevoix.

Section 609.2 of the BOCA Code fqecifies that "there shall be not less than two (2) approved independent exitways serving every story" in this class of building. The architect's plans indicate one enclosed stairwell, one fireproof elevator installation, and one open spiral staircase to provide egress to the second story of the proposed structure. According to Mr. Charles V. Opdyke, A.I.A., Chief of the Plan Review uection of the Bureau of Construction Codes, the enclosed stairwell together with the fireproof elevator installation satisifiese the BOCA requirement for tow (2) approved independent exitways. I obtained the above information directly from Mr Opdyke durinb a telephone discussion with him on this date. Mr. Opdyke can be reached at his office at AC 517 322-1801.

In order to remove all elements of doubt with regard to the adequacy of the architect's proposed plans as submitted to the County Department of Building Inspection, I would highly recommend that a set of the plans be forwarded immediately to Mr Opdyke's office for plan review and subsequent approval.

If you should have any questions with regard to the information, please contact me immediately.

Sincerely,
Arthur A. Ranger, p.e.

News Release

The recent artistic contribution to Charlevoix's cultural void is a desperate attempt to cover the tracks of Mr Mayhew's incompetency.

Further proof of Mr Mayhew's inability to intelligently interpret the local building code is apparent in Mr Ranger's recent letter to the Charlevoix City Council.

Mr. Mayhew's position with respect to the MIDWEST fire stair requirements, has been rejected by persons more qualified than Mr Mayhew.

Althnugh MIDWEST enjoys the notorrety and associated publicity, it is suggested that the Charlevoix County Building Commission do their homework well before attempting to take MIDWEST to task

Josh Barnes also responds to clarify editorial point

EDITOR'S NOTE: Josh Barnes, president and owner of Lexalite Corporation of Charlevoix, called last week to object to a point made in the editorial printed in the issue of June 28.

In the editorial there was a statement that Charlevoix area residents had agreed to pay higher taxes themselves in order to give tax breaks to industries to keep them in the area. Two of the industries which have received tax abatements are Lexalite and Medusa.

Barnes pointed out that Hayes Township residents are not paying any more taxes percentage-wise because they gave a break to Lexalite and he claimed they are paying less because even though the company received an abatement of $18,000 it is now paying $33,000 more in taxes than it would have been.

Barnes said that the area also benefitted from giving his company a tax abatement because without it the company would not have built in the area. The company has a $430,000 payroll.

"If we had built without the tax abatement we would be paying three times the amount of taxes we would in other states and now we are only paying one and one-half times more," he said.

"We liked the community and the labor market and we wanted to stay here, but we wouldn't have done it without the abatement."

Barnes pointed out that the decision to give the company the tax abatement was a voluntary one made by the Hayes Township Board.

COURIER: How many slips are there in Charlevoix harbor?

ANCE: There are 30 slips and we can handle 40 to 45 boats.

COURIER: Do you make reservations, and how long is a boat permitted to stay?

ANCE: We don't make reservations. The longest a boat can stay is 14 days. However, 10 percent of the boats can stay for the season.

COURIER: What is the largest boat you can handle?

ANCE: Up to 73 feet, that's the maximum, and sometimes they hang over the dock.

COURIER: Are you able to handle everybody who wants to come in?

ANCE: We try ta accommodate everybody. If we can't handle them immediately, they can anchor out in Round Lake or in Oyster Bay until there is room. There is no charge for this, and we put them on a waiting list, first come, first served.

COURIER: What percentage of the boats that dock are sailboats and what percentage are power boats?

ANCE: It's about fifty-fifty, but we do get a log more sailboats in the spring and fall because the racing season is long.

ANCE: Not more than 25 percent at the most. Most local people find less expensive facilities. They can't afford $1,000 a year for dockage so find places of $300 or $350.

COURIER: Where do most of the visiting boats come from?

ANCE: All over, but mostly from Detroit, Port Huron, and Chicago. Right now we have several boats from the Detroit Yacht Club. It's not unusual in June to get boats travelling to their home ports from Florida. They come up the East Coast and through the canals to such places as Chicago.

COURIER: There are several other good harbors on Northern Lake Michigan, aren't there?

ANCE: Yes, – Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Northport, Leland, Traverse City, Beaver Island. But I think the Charlevoix Harbor is the most sheltered and the most beautiful.

COURIER: Do you refer boaters to these other harbors when you are filled up?

ANCE: Not often, because they are so far away. Sometimes we refer them to the Water's Edge Marina, which is just down the way and can handle boats up to 120 feet.

COURIER: What happens when a storm comes up – do you get a lot of boats seeking shelter?

ANCE: Yes, as many as 15 an hour.

COURIER: When is your busiest time of the year?

ANCE: From July 4th through August 15th. The Art Fair and the Venetian Festival always bring a lot of people in.

COURIER: Do you have any specific duties in connection with the Venetian Festival?

ANCE: Only one. We're in charge of clearing away a certain number of boats so people can view the parade.

ANCE: The records show that 987 docked here. The revenue amounted to about $23,000.

COURIER: The City of Charlevoix owns and operates the docks, doesn't it?

ANCE: Yes, and the city crews maintain the docks and utilities.

COURIER: How are dockage fees figured?

ANCE: Under 20 foot boats are $3 a day, those 20 to 30 feet are $5.50 a day, 30 to 40 feet are $8 a day, 40 to 50 feet are $11 a day, 50 to 60 feet are $13 a day, and over 60 feet are $18 a day.

COURIER: Do you charge fees during the entire season?

ANCE: This year we began charging Memorial Day weekend and will continue until September 15. Before the real boating season starts and after it ends, we charge only for utilities – electricity and water.

COURIER: You have a pump-out station, too, don't you?

ANCE: Yes, we have one that can handle both sides of a large boat. It is a 50-cent coin-operated pump.

COURIER: Are boaters permitted to use grills around the docks?

ANCE: Only on the sidewalk and on the grass if they put aluminum foil under the grill.

COURIER: You grew up in Charlevoix, didn't you?

ANCE, Yes, I graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1973 and am now studying hotel and restaurant management at Michigan State.

Jim Ance

COURIER: Are you a sailor?.

ANCE: I've sailed since I was five years old, with Bob Bridge and with my father, Norman Ance. 'My grandfather, Peter Ance, was a lightship operator at Gray's Reef. I worked at Bellinger Marine when I was in high school, so the whole family has been involved with the water for a long time.

COURIER: How do you like your job?

Common sense an important part of buying a brand new car

What's shiny, new and sparkles like a jewel? It's a brand new car, and this year millions of people will be looking for one they hope will run reliably and last for years.

To help you find that perfect car the U.S. Department of Transportation has a new booklet pointing out steps to take before you buy. But, just in case, it also suggests what to do if you have a problem with your new car. For your free copy of Common Sense in Buying a New Car, send a postcard to Consumer Information Center, Dept. 693F, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Before you decide what car to buy, take time to look up road tests in consumer magazines and magazines for automobile enthusiasts. The consumer magazines will usually pay most attention to practical features like roominess, gas mileage, and repair records, while auto magazines will focus on performance and style. Both are available at the local library.

After you narrow the field to one or two, comparison shop your local dealerships. Lowest price isn't all you're after. Consider dependability and responsiveness to service needs. To double check your dealer's reputation, call the local Better Business Bureau or consumer office to check for possible complaints about the dealer. Evaluate convenience. Look at the distance you'll have to travel for service, the hours the service department is open, and whether or not the dealership provides a "loner car" to use while repairs are being made.

Now you're ready for the final checklist. But have patience. Don't be tempted to buy the first car you see that seems to fit your needs. Here are some tips that can help you avoid disappointment later:

Safety and Fit. Make sure your feet reach the pedals comfortably; that there's enough headroom for you and your passengers; and that seatbelts are long enough. If adjustments are needed get it in writing.

Gas mileage. Write Fuel Economy, Pueblo, Colorado, 81009 for a free copy of the government's Gas Mileage Guide. Remember that although good gas mileage is a prime consideration, if you plan to carry heavy loads or many passengers, you may not be satisfied with a smaller, gas-saving engine.

Warranties. Most cars have a 12-month or 12,000-mile warranty (whichever comes first). And most car warranties are "limited". That is, they cover only certain parts, or just parts and not labor, and only the first purchaser; or pro-rated refunds and credits based on how long you've owned the car. Read all provisions before you buy, including your requirements for following a specified service schedule.

If you're offered an "extended warranty" at extra cost, be aware that this is not a warranty at all; it's a service contract. If you decide to buy it, read it carefully, too. Make sure you understand what the Service contract includes and what it doesn't cover.

Road Test. Try to arrange with the dealer to road test the specific car you're interested in. Make sure squeaky brakes, rattles, and any other problems are taken care of before you take possession. Check carefully for stains or paint flaws. Make sure the car's odometer is working properly. And load up the family; drive on surfaces you'll normally use; and, to check for leaks, try running the car through a car wash. A thorough road test can save many headaches later on.

Finally, make sure you receive an odometer disclosure statement required under Federal law. And take the time to have a complete "dealer preparation". Compare all options and accessories with the window sticker and bill of sale.

When you order a copy of Common Sense in Buying a New Car (free), you'll also receive a copy of the free Consumer Information Catalog. It lists more than 200 selected free or low-cost publications.

Native American heritage lives at Greensky Hill

The "noises" were made by about 30 Native American children attending the third Nishnahbeh Nahgaazewin, which is the Ottawa Indian language means Indian Heritage Children's Conference.

The children came from throughout the state to the camp for a chance to learn more about their roots in an authentic Indian setting.

Greensky Hill Church is located about four miles north of Charlevoix on a plateau lying between Greensky Hill and Susan Lake. The site of the children's camp and the church has been an Indian meeting place for centuries although the church has only stood their since 1860.

The camp, an outgrowth of the Indian Mission Workers Conference of the state branch of the United Methodist Church, seeks to combine the teaching of Indian heritage with religious training, Jay Oliver, one of the counselors at the camp and a leading Indian lay spokesman in this area, explained.

The counselors working with the children are also Native Americans from throughout the state. Many of them are from the Charlevoix area.

"There is much on the positive side of Native American heritage in our own community," Oliver explained.

The children study the Ottawa language from hymnals in the Greensky Hill Church. They also learn basic terms and words from Oliver and posters tacked on the walls in the dining room.

At other times during the day they study bead work, basket weaving and nature lore. And they work in a little swimming, kick ball and Bible study, too.

The students, ranging in age from 8 to 14, come from the 10 Native American churches in the state. And several of them are return campers who have participated in the program ever since it opened.

"I really like it," one young camper said as she worked on a basket she was weaving. "I've been here three years."

Jay Oliver to speak to historical group

Jay Oliver of Charlevoix, whose mother was a full-blooded Ottawa Indian, will discuss the Greensky Hill Mission Church at the next meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society.

The meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, July 11 at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the First State Bank.

Oliver will tell about the legend of the Council Trees and other stories relating to local Indian history. Through his mother and contact with his great-grandmother, who died when Oliver was 14, he has learned much of the lore of the Ottawas.

Everyone interested in the history of the area is invited to attend the meeting.

Hal Evans, Mary Ann McGinn married at St. Francis Church

F. Robert Behnen performed the afternoon ceremony before 175 guests.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mary Ella and Jack McGinn of Petoskey and the groom's step-father is Robert Knapp of Pittsford, Mich.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother Patrick. Sister Ellen Marie provided organ music and sang, "One Hand, One Heart," Evelyn Wojcik played "Ode to Joy" on the trumpet. For the processional, Karen Evans sang "Evergreen" and St. Francis students sang the communion and offertory song.

For her wedding, the bride chose an A-line jersey gown with an empire silhouette waist. The neckline was enhanced with tiny seed pearls and the capped sleeves were accented with lace. A sash belt tied in the back and accented the waist. The bride wore daisies and baby's breath in her hair and carried a colonial bouquet of multicolored daisies and baby's breath.

Cathy Upton Olsen assisted the bride as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Brett Baker, Katie Baker and Peggy Kingry. The attendants wore identical two-piece Qiana dresses accented with a sash belt and a ruffled neckline. They carried a colonial bouquet of blue and white daisies and baby's breath.

Thomas Wallace served the groom as best man and groomsmen were David Van Hooser, Bill Mercer and Michael Bonello. Ushers were Robert Baker, Jr., and Mark Matthews.

A rehearsal dinner, hosted by the bride and groom was held at the Country Hearth on Friday evening. (Photograph by Aartvark Studio, Charlevoix)

Summertime 'grate' season for using outdoor grill

A Scottish Proverb tells us, "Summer is a seemly time." And indeed it is. Among many things it is a seemly time for outdoor cooking on the rotisserie or grill. Like kabobs for example, kabobs are usually cubes of meat and vegetables or meat and fruit alternated on a skewer. Kabobs may be cooked on a rotisserie or threaded on skewers and cooked on the grill. The vegetable and fruit pieces should be of correct size so that they will be cooked or heated through, as necessary. If the meat cubes are marinated before cooking, a less tender cut may be used. Chuck roasts coming from the mid-shoulder area are ideal for making into cubes for kabobs. By doing your own cubing, you'll get more tender meat for a lower cost. Do not purchase stew meat for kabobs as it is likely to have come from a less tender part of the carcass.

For cooking on a grill, select steaks, chops, other sliced meats, franks, all kinds of sausages, country-style spareribs, meat patties or cubes on a skewer. Pork steak is a cut that grills very well, but few people think of it as a lower-cost alternative to the more popular pork chops. For grilling, steaks and chops should be cut at least ¾ to 1-inch thick. In the case of steaks, 1-½ inches is even better.

Fresh air and the pleasant aroma of outdoor cooking sharpen appetites and can call for more generous servings of meat. The cut of meat and the way it is prepared influences the amount to buy. For bone-in cuts, allow ¾ to 1 pound per serving. Boneless cuts yield 2 to 3 servings per pound. Roasts, patties, franks, etc. are good choices when serving a large group. Roasts provide more servings per unit of cooking space.

Special precautions should be taken when cooking pork. Have a low to moderate temperature and keep about two inches between coals and pork. Beef requires a moderate temperature as a low temperature will allow some of the flavor to escape.

Three Coast Guard cutters visit Charlevoix

It has never happened before and probably will never happen again.

Last week, three U.S. Coast Guard cutters were moored in Round Lake overnight. The cutters Mesquite, Acacia and Woodrush were all in Charlevoix Tuesday.

And while they were all on their way to different assignments, they do have something in common. They are sister ships of sorts.

The tenders were all built between 1942 and 1944 for service in Greenland. There were three classes – A, B and C – with the C class ships being the last of the batch to be built.

Of the 19 ships originally constructed, five are in service on the Great Lakes.

The Mesquite is a B class tender and the Acacia, Woodrush and Sundew, which is usually home-ported in Charlevoix area, are C class tenders.

"It's very doubtful that three cutters would ever be together," Lt. Cmdr. Miller explained. "Especially if one of them is the Acacia. They are very hesitant to let the ship leave Lake Superior because it is the only rescue boat on the lake."

The crew of the Woodrush is in Charlevoix to swap cutters with the crew of the Mesquite, Lt. Cmdr. Warren J. Miller, commanding officer of the Mesquite, explained.

Home-ported in Duluth, Minn., the Woodrush is enroute to the Coast Guard shipyard at Curtis Bay, Md., where it will be overhauled. The Woodrush, has never been out of the Great Lakes. It was constructed in Duluth in 1944 and has never been assigned anywhere but that port.

The crew of the Mesquite will sail the Woodrush to the shipyards July 5 where it will pick up the Sundew. The Sundew has been in the shipyards for the last year undergoing the same renovations the Woodrush will receive.

"The Woodrush will undergo major renovation in an attempt to extend the life of the ship another 15 years," Lt. Cmdr. Miller said.

Following renovation, the Woodrush will go into service in Norfolk, Va.

The Mesquite crew will take the Woodrush to the shipyards via the St. Lawrence Seaway and the Atlantic to Chesapeake Bay. The crew will pick up the Sundew and after maneuvers at Little Creek, Va., the crew and the Sundew will return to Charlevoix Oct. 4.

During the Woodrush's stay in Charlevoix, mooring next to the Mesquite, the two crews transferred equipment such as items from the galley and mess as well as instruments and personal belongings from one ship to another.

"We're working to get everything tied down and ready for sea and then we will leave July 5," Miller said.

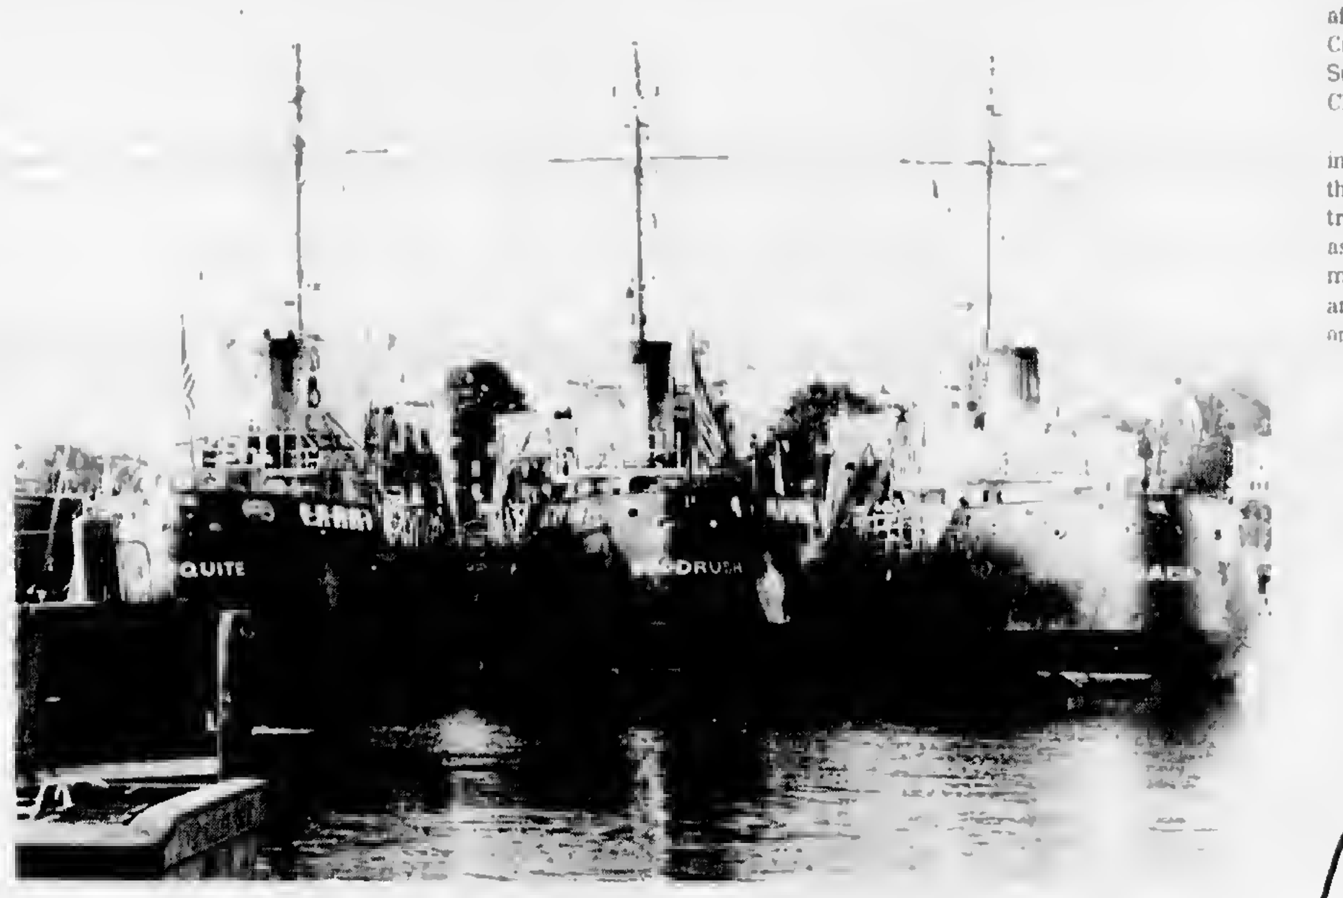
The Acacia, which is out of Sturgeon Bay, left Wednesday morning after picking up a fuel barge, which the Mesquite crew brought down from the Coast Guard station in Sault, Ste. Marie. The ship will be refueling a series of lighthouses.

While the Charlevoix crew is gone this summer the crews of the Acacia and the Bramble of Port Huron will cover for it.



THREE U.S. COAST GUARD cutters were moored in Round Lake last week. The Mesquite, Woodrush and Acacia were docked together before preparing to go on various assignments.

Participant ribbons will be awarded to all runners and 72 medals will be given to the top three winners in each of the 24 categories. In addition, there will be numerous prizes donated by area suppliers. There will also be post performance refreshments for all participatns.

A MESSAGE TO PRESENT AND FUTURE REAL ESTATE DEVELOPERS ON WALLOON LAKE

From the Trustees of the Walloon Lake Association

We believe you will want to know that the Trustees of the Walloon Lake Association are taking a very active interest in real estate developments along the shoreline of the lake. Anyone who is planning to develop subdivisions or multiple family units on or near the shoreline would be well advised to contact us and to hear our views.

The Association represents 400 property owners and its mission is to protect and improve the lake in the interest of all property owners.

We are not an "extremist" group. We are not opposed to the breaking of new ground and the building of new cottages along the shoreline. We believe that new families are entitled to acquire rights along the shoreline just as we did when we purchased or built our own cottages.

However, we strongly oppose certain types of real estate development and will strongly resist such developments. In particular, we oppose what is called "funnel" or "corridor" development where lake front property is purchased not to build a cottage on it but to help sell large numbers of adjacent lots or condominiums which are not on the lake shore. In these developments, a large number of families are given access to the lake through a small corridor of lake front property. This creates pressures on the lake far greater than the pressures created by single family lake front cottages.

We believe this type of development is harmful to the interests of all the people on the lake and harmful to the lake itself. We believe it infringes the rights of present property owners. If it is allowed to spread unchecked, it will change the basic character of Walloon and will make the lake a much less attractive place.

We will be glad to meet with any developer to discuss reasonable guidelines which will allow him to pursue his plans but without infringing the rights of other property owners. Any developer wishing to consult with us should contact Mr. Warren K. Parker in Petoskey (phone 347-2525.)

On lakefront development

Walloon Lake Association stands firm

In a continuing effort to protect Walloon Lake, the Walloon Lake Association has once again issued a statement on its stand toward development of property on the inland lake in Charlevoix County.

The lake association's 12-member board of trustees is re-issuing a statement it prepared during the summer of 1977. The statement to present and future developers of lakefront property on Walloon will appear as an advertisement is the Charlevoix Courier and other area newspapers.

"Our positions hasn't changed since last year," Warren Parker, executive director of the lake association, explained. "And we want developers to be aware of that."

The lake association is opposed to funnel or corridor development of lakefront property. The group, which represents 400 property owners, defines this type of development as a situation where lakefront property is purchased not for a cottage but to help sell large numbers of adjacent lots which are not on the lake shore.

Since issuing the statement last year, Parker said the lake association has been working closely with two developers and several real estate agencies in the area.

"We're not against development, we think that's too isolated a view," Parker said. "We are for and intend to encourage reasonable development."

The group defines reasonable development as that which takes into consideration the type of use that will be forced on the lake. Parker believes developer must consider the type of pressure a project will put on the lake and then scale it down to what the lake can handle.

"We approach each project individually and we work with the developer on a negotiated basis on his plans for the property," Parker said.

"We feel this approach has been very worthwhile and we have been very pleased with the results of our efforts. We think we have a reasonable approach and we find others are working with us."

John Buick, a Boyne City real estate salesman who has worked closely with the lake association, spoke highly of the group.

"I think their approach and their intentions are very good," Buick said. "I think it's admirable that they are looking out for what they have.

"They don't have any axe to grind and they want to preserve what they have now."

Buick said he would like to see the lake association go one step further and solicit ideas from area resource people about how to preserve the lake and to improve its quality. He also feels the lake association should become a watch dog and keep track of what is happening to large parcels of land around the lake.

Dorian Adgate, another Boyne City real estate agent, who has worked with the lake association, also supported its stand.

"I think basically it's a good approach," Adgate said. "We all are concerned about proper development and I think that they (the lake association) have a right to issue a stand.

"You don't find too many lake associations that are that active and I think that's good. But you do have to make sure that you don't take away the rights of the neighbors when you take such stands.

"I know that this has not been their philosophy and I think that they have done a good job."

Country music to top Castle Farms season

A new sound will be coming from the outdoor stage at Castle Farms this year.

The strains of country-western music will fill the air as owner Art Reibel opens his third concert season at the Castle. Three of the five concerts that have been booked for the outdoor stage on the former Loeb family property are country-western groups.

Opening the season July 15 will be the Oakridge Boys, who currently have the number one country song on the charts, "I'll Be True." Also appearing with them will be LeGarde, the top Australian singing group.

The Doobie Brothers, a soft rock group, will perform July 23, and the queen of country, Tammy Wynette, and Don Williams will perform July 28, as a part of the Venetian weekend.

On Aug. 19 the Statler Brothers, another country-western group, will perform and the next day, Aug. 20, Foreigner, a rock group, will give a concert.

Reibel said he is working on setting up dates for three other concerts but the commitments for the performers aren't firm yet.

Reibel, former judge of the 90th District Court, arranged a refinancing loan through the U.S. Small Business Administration in order to open the Castle for the summer season.

The SBA had foreclosed on Castle Farms in December, 1974. Reibel had obtained a court order enjoining the SBA from taking over the property.

The refinancing loan enabled Reibel to close out the mortgage on the property and to buy out the Nederlander Corporation interest and the concession interest on the property.

Last summer, Reibel signed a long-term lease with the Nederlanders, operators of Pine Knob and other entertainment enterprises across the country. The lease permitted a subsidiary, Ned North, Inc., to use Castle Farms facilities for the staging of a summer series of rock concerts by big name groups.

The Nederlanders put on three concerts–the Beach Boys, Chicago and Jackson Browne.

Reibel is doing his own booking and producing this summer. He and his wife, Pinky, will be producing three of the shows at Castle Farms and they are working with Pyramid Productions out of Lansing on other shows.

"The learn curve in this business is real fast," Reibel said. "We've had two years experience now and we think we can do our own booking.

"You know the Nederlanders are the best in the business and we learned a lot from them last year," he explained. "They really put us on the map last year."

Reibel said he thought the Nederlanders overlooked the growing interest in country music, however. Reibel believes the country music will be well-accepted in the area.

"I think country is really going to take off and that's why we're bringing it here," he said. "It's lost its twang and is more acceptable for everyone."

Reibel said he will be doing a few things differently this summer. He has purchased a cloth cover for the stage so that concerts will go on rain or shine.

Also there will be no cancellations this summer.

"If the concerts have been announced, they're going on," he said. "I was concerned last summer and I felt we lost our credibility when the concerts were cancelled. That won't happen this summer."

Medusa, Workers settle strike, employees return to work Friday

Striking workers returned to their jobs at 7 a.m. Friday after ratifying a new contract. Details of the contract were not revealed, however, it was reported the agreement is for a three-year period.

Members of Local 480 of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International walked off the job June 8 when contract talks reached an impasse over language pertaining to job security and safety conditions.

Workers in six states went on strike against the cement company on the same day. They had been working without a contract since May 1. It was the first strike in the history of the Charlevoix Medusa plant.

The settlement of the strike was announced in a joint statement issued by Thomas Olesky, president of Charlevoix Local 480, and Elbert Kaiser, plant manager, on Thursday.

In the statement, the two men said: "We are pleased to announce the negotiators for the union and for management have agreed upon terms for settlement of the dispute which since June 8 has affected operations at Medusa's Charlevoix plant.

"Both sides are gratified that we were able to settle our differences in a spirit of peaceful discussion. Subject to ratification by the union membership, the new agreement will enable us to work together in keeping out plant among the industry's leaders.

"Together, we look forward to the completion of the Charlevoix plant conversion and all that it will contribute to employee job security and to the betterment of the community."

The plant continued to operate under the direction of supervisory personnel from Medusa plants across the country.

In addition, to the strike by Medusa workers, the ironworkers, who are involved in the construction of the four silos at the plant, also walked off the job for five days over safety issues.

However, they are back on the job, too.

Lumbering era saw birth of East Jordan

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

In May 1878 the Village of South Lake applied for and was granted a post office. The name of that post office and soon to become boom-town, was East Jordan, the community which sat to the east of the Jordan River.

Twelve years before that, Archibald Michael Murphy became one of the first permanent settlers in the Jordan Valley, then a densely wooded area, known mostly to Indians and occasional trappers who passed through collecting fur pelts for the Hudson's Bay Company.

Like many who followed, Murphy was a homesteader, seeking his fortune to the west, escaping the depression that followed in the east and northeast with the end of the Civil War.

These recollections and others were shared by Mike Murphy's son, Archie Murphy, who still resides on the original family homestead, now being subdivided, at the edge of town.

Archie Murphy, touring a visitor through East Jordan's Historical Museum at Elm Point, recalled his experiences and the stories he heard since the heyday of East Jordan in the logging era, from the turn of the century to the 1930s.

"By '67 the land was filling up fast," Archie said. "People were traveling in all directions, headed west from Canada and New York.

"They had to be a hardy lot to choose Northern Michigan. Yes. That can't be emphasized enough. But, of course, they came from the same latitude. Some even came from Nova Scotia.

"They were subsistence farmers. There were no railroads to ship goods out until later."

As he walked among the treasures in the museum, Archie, the only surviving son of Mike Murphy, recalled his boyhood and the stories he was told and what he saw of the growth of the lumber industry in East Jordan.

First Nelson-Reddington and Co. lumber company came. In 1880, the first sawmill – Glen and Porter – was established. Soon there were two sawmills and a bank. By 1900 the railroad started coming from Bellaire.

As lumbering prospered so did the community, and with that arrived "culture." The D.C. Lovejoy Opera House opened in 1897, featuring stage plays, opera and vaudeville, performed by touring groups such as Willard Mack and Maude Leone Stock Co., or the Henderson Stock Company.

The largest sawmill in the world, David War Estate was built in the pine forest in 1900. And to serve the lumber business the Detroit and Charlevoix Railroad began running to East Jordan.

"Actually," Archie laughed, "It never did go to Charlevoix and you could only get to Detroit by changing trains."

The railroad hauled pine to East Jordan's two deep water docks – one in town and one on the west side – where two and three masted schooners and steam tugs lined up to sail the lumber up out of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix to Lake Michigan and ports to the south.

The abundance of pine brought other industry. In 1912 the East Jordan Iron Furnace Company and East Jordan Chemical Company worked side-by-side, using waste wood – tops and small trees. The Chemical Company produced acetate for explosives, among other things, and the iron company used the chemical company's partially burned wood – charcoal – to melt the iron ure.

The East Jordan Iron Works, established by Richard Round and William Malpass, was a natural industry to come to East Jordon, and is the only one to have stayed on.

Archie thought back about his youth. Born in 1900 he grew up during the height of lumbering and industrial development in East Jordan.

"When I was a boy, I'd look out over East Jordan on a frosty morning, and watch the smoke from the dozen or so smokestacks to see which way the wind was blowing. The stacks were at different heights and sometimes winds would blow the smoke different directions at different levels. Off the roof of every house rose the chimneys of fireplaces and wood stoves.

"Today on a weekend you can look over East Jordan and there isn't one smokestack smoking."

East Jordan's population was then about 3,000. Today the city's population is about 2,200 and rising.

The prosperity of those days brought a mixture of personalities to East Jordan.

In 1910, the Cherry Vale Players – performers from touring companies looking for a place to vacation or retire – arrived to establish a cherry business. Their dreams of easy riches growing Michigan cherries didn't come true and most left, but some remained to join the community.

Archie recalled Al Warda, "who had been all over the country in vaudeville, but lost his voice and had to quit acting."

Warda, Archie said, started raising chickens for a living, "which brought us together."

"As a farm boy, I didn't have much to do with things in town, but when I sold Warda eggs I persuaded him to help with Grange Hall entertainment programs. He was a great female impersonator – played large old battle axes. We put on plays in Granges all over the county. Then Warda tried a vaudeville comeback, but that didn't work."

The D.C. Lovejoy Opera House burned in 1910. The new Temple Theatre provided a mixed bag of stage plays, vaudeville and movies – first silent then talkies.

"The movies killed vaudeville," Archie stated.

At the same time the high toned culture was touring East Jordan men from the lumber camps were providing a different diversion.

"Those lumberjacks would come to town from the camps, get drunk, get hilarious, fight and break up saloons. Then the marshal would have to muster help to round them up.

"The most talked about were the Ferguson boys. They were notorious."

Archie said the rough and tumble saloon life which began with the lumbering carried over into the '30s, and gave "local option" momentum. Slowly Northern Michigan, county by county, voted to go dry.

With the end of the lumbering era, East Jordan, like so many similar communities, not only lost the impetus lumbering gave the economy, but the varied industries that depended on the supply of lumber departed as well.

When Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet counties went dry, a popular song, sung to the tune of "It's a long Way to Tipperary" was: "It's a long way to Traverse City, but Petoskey's gone dry. Good bye to beer and whiskey, farewell to rock and rye. It's a long way to Traverse City, but Petoskey's gone dry."

Which wasn't to say there were no bootleggers, Archie laughingly added.

The population dwindled, but now it is on the upswing and once again East Jordan is growing.

"These are the best times since the lumbering era," said Martha Kamradt of the Chamber of Commerce. "The foundry now employs 400 people, Gulf and Western employs about the same number. We have two tool and die manufacturing plants and two ITT plants."

"East Jordan is on the way up again."

Tourism is now an important industry to East Jordan and the natural beauty of the area is the drawing card.

"If you stand atop Deadman's Hill you can see out over all of the Jordan River Valley," Mrs. Kamradt enthused.

Canoe liveries offer tourists the chance to explore the Jordan River Valley the way earlier visitors did, with a beautiful and, at times, thrilling 15-mile run from Graves Crossing down stream.

Fishing for brown trout and speckled trout in the river is famous, as is walleye and blue gill fishing in Lake Charlevoix, where the river ends.

The East Jordan Hobby Craft show draws visitors July 15, and the first Saturday and Sunday in August artists from around Michigan and the country gather at the park on Elm Point for the Portside Art Show.

Archie Murphy talked about changes in terms of standards of living.

"During those lumbering days there was no electricity on the farms, no plumbing, no refrigeration. All tasks done today by electricity on a farm were done by hand. In the lumbering industry the wages were $1.50 per day and people lived in tar paper shacks.

"And talk about air pollution, when the pine forests started burning, the sky was never clear. The sun was only a red glow.

Carillon fills air with ringing

By PEG OHLE

Visitors who are in Charlevoix at noon, at five o'clock in the afternoon, or at 9:40 Sunday morning will be treated to a 15-minute concert by the carillons of the First Congregational Church.

The carillons play a 15-minute program of music consisting of Protestant general music, general old-time popular music, classical music, and sometimes on Sunday, Easter hymns.

Postludes for weddings and other festival occasions are also often broadcast by the carillons.

Although how far the carillon sounds travel depends on the wind, the Reverend Raymond Giffin says they have been heard as far north as Waller Road and as far south as Loeb Farms.

Purchase of the carillons was made by the church last January from contributions by church members and friends to a special fund. The fund was set up in memory of Carl Browne at the request of his widow, Maxine Browne, who wanted contributions in his memory to be used to purchase something musical for the church.

A plaque in the church names those in whose memory or honor the carillons was given: Dr. and Mrs. L.B. Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Duke, Katherin Fitch, Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Hawkins, Clarence Heise, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Wulfman, and Cecil Barnes.

The carillons were manufactured by Mass-Rowe Carillons Inc. of Escondido, California and create the sound of church bells by striking carefully tuned bars of bell metal and amplifying the resulting tone electronically. They can be played automatically by means of specially recorded tapes or live from a keyboard attached to the organ console.

Similar carillon systems can be found in the AMVETS Chapel in Grand Rapids, at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City, the San Francisco Opera House, the Mormon Tabernacle, Salt Lake City, and the Naval Academy, Annapolis.

FRAN TOLLAS, organist at the First Congregational Church, plays a selection on the church carillons from the organ keyboard.

On this date, workers throughout the county will be on the street selling tags to benefit the Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Proceeds from this year's tag day will be applied to the cost of purchasing a therapeutic bathtub, the Century tub, for use by the patients.

Petoskey soloist to open concert series at church

A Petoskey soloist will open a series of summer concerts at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix July 16.

June Zoerhof, soprano, will present a concert at 3 p.m. in the church sanctuary. The concert will consist of a variety of music with one of the high lights including a piece written for piano, clarinet and soprano entitled, "Shepherd on the Rock."

Mrs. Zoerhof will conclude her concert with a medley of show tunes.

The concert is sponsored by the Music Committee of the church. Fran Tollas, a committee member, explained that the committee wanted to give local artists a chance to perform.

"There are a lot of tremendous musicians in the area and this concert series will give them a chance to do a little performing," she explained.

The concerts are free to the public although an offering will be collected to cover minor expenses.

The next concert will feature an organ recital.

Minnie Meyers marks 80th birthday July 2

Helpful hints for staying cool during summer's heat

Is the heat wearing you down?

It's hot in most of the United States in mid-summer. In the desert and in the south it's even hotter. But July and August is hot all over, even in the mountains.

Regardless of whether you blame the heat or the humidity, it's still hot.

There's nothing you can do about the outside temperature. Unless you are fortunate enough to have an air conditioned office or shop, home and auto, there's nothing much you can do about it inside either.

But there are some things you can do to be more comfortable, things that will help you beat the heat.

Stay out of the sun as much as possible, especially during the middle of the day when rays are hottest. Wear light, loose clothing, the less the better. The ladies have an edge over the men in this respect. Drink more liquids than usual, but take extra salt only on your physician's advice. Particularly if you have liver or kidney trouble or a heart condition.

Take a shower or dip in the pool once or twice a day to cool off. Get plenty of rest and sleep. Eat your regular diet and don't go overboard on cold cuts and salads, unless you like them anyway.

Get up early in the morning to do your heavy work on the lawn or garden. Or work at dusk in the evening. Try to avoid heavy exertion during the hottest hours of the day.

You need exercise in the summer as well as in the winter, but don't overdo it, especially on extra hot days. Don't overdo physical exertion, whether at work or play.

The more relaxed outdoor life of the summer months has many advantages to compensate for the heat. Stay relaxed and use common sense, and you can beat the heat – at least somewhat.

Waterfront Art Fair noted in AAA magazine article

The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair is highlighted in the July issue of the Michigan Living – AAA Motor News Magazine.

In an article titled, "Michigan's Arts and Crafts Fairs," the Waterfront fair is described as one of the better ones in the state.

The article read, "Several towns and cities along Lake Michigan offer summer art fairs and festivals. The Aug. 12 Waterfront Art Fair at Charlevoix, with 185 artists from across the United States, is certainly one of the better ones."

Several Charlevoix landmarks were also mentioned in an article titled, "101 Offbeat Things to Do In Michigan."

The article suggested vacationers could ride the Ironton Ferry, visit Beaver Island, golf at Boyne Mountain where all 18 holes are downhill and ride the Boyne Valley Railroad.

School board approves loan for operations, renovation

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education approved the borrowing of funds to run the school district for the coming year and to complete renovation at the middle school.

Two bids for $680,000 in tax anticipation notes were received and the bid submitted by the Charlevoix County State Bank at 4.49 percent interest was accepted. The interest rate for the bid totals $22,390.13 for the 264 days of the loan or $84.81 per diem.

The money borrowed against anticipated school taxes will underwrite the cost of operating the school district until the tax money becomes available in mid-March.

The school board also accepted bids for notes against the income generated by the 1 mill levy for five years for renovation at the Charlevoix Middle School. In order to complete the work planned for this year it is necessary to borrow against anticipated revenue for 1979 as well as the 1978 levy, Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren explained.

The school board plans to complete the work during the summer.

A bid from the First State Bank at an interest rate of 4.8 percent for a loan of $85,000 was approved. The loan, which was made July 3, will be repaid in 266 days or on March 26, 1979.

A second loan of $80,000 to be repaid March 24, 1980, or in 630 days was also approved. This is to be made from the Charlevoix County State Bank at a rate of 5.5 percent.

In other action, debt retirement payments were made on the 1959 bonds (on the high school) and the 1968 bonds (on the elementary school). The payment of $59,940 was made to the City National Bank, Trust Division, in Detroit on the 1959 bonds and 101,932 to the National Bank of Detroit, Trust Dept., on the 1968 bonds.

The purchase of the book "Language for Daily Use" published by Harcourt, Brace and Jovanovich for use at the middle school was approved.

A request for a maternity leave made by Mrs. Pat Corland for the 1978-79 school year was approved.

Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren advised the board of the latest development regarding the Beaver Island Lighthouse property. A work staff headed by Dan Kaczynski will begin on the project beginning next Monday and continue for seven weeks.

He also said that a problem that had developed regarding the delivery of unit ventilators for the middle school project had resolved itself the day of the meeting when Haggard Plumbing and Heating had been advised that they would receive delivery by August 28. Previously, the Nesbitt Company had advised Haggard, the prime contractor, that the delivery could not be made and there was the possiblity that other arrangements would have to be made.

It was reported that five candidates for the middle school math position had been interviewed and others would be before the final selection would be made.

Supt. VanWieren said that since the defeat of the 1.0 mill in the recent election, there would have to be some cuts made in the reading program. He said that some type of program would probably be offered but it would have to be cut by the amount the millage would have generated.

At the close of the meeting, Robert J. Cook who had served on the board since mid-March to fill the unexpired term of the late Claire C. Martin was thanked for filling the vacancy for the remaining months of the term that would have expired June 30.

James Haggard who was elected to fill the vacancy was present and was welcomed to the board. He will officially be seated on the board at the next meeting, which will also be the organizational meeting, on Monday, June 10.

Recent social security checks show 6.5% living increase

A cost of living increase in the monthly social security benefits was included in checks delivered on July 3.

Th increase will amount to 6.5 percent for most people and is based on the increase in consumer prices from the first three months in 1977 to the first three months in 1978.

Social security pays monthly benefits to about 12,500 people in Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties and to about 34 million people nationwide.

The payments are funded by social security contributions from employees, employers and self-employed people. No action was necessary to receive the increase. It was added automatically to the checks.

For more information, contact the Petoskey Social Security office at 347-8727.

Mr. Robert Schleman of the Belvedere Club appeared before Council to file a formal complaint against the Grey Gables Restaurant. He stated that the Grey Gables does not provide adequate parking for their patrons, that they leave loose garbage scattered on their own and adjoining property, and that the building does not conform to fire and safety regulations imposed on other residents. The matter was referred to the Committee of the Whole meeting scheduled for July 3, 1978 for further study and evaluotion.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the rezoning of Frank Cook's property on Ferry Avenue from R-2 to C-1. Robert Cook represented his son at the Hearing. As the property was purchased for a commercial use, Mr. Cook requested it be returned to its original zone. No action was taken on the matter as the surrounding property owners had not been advised of the proposed zoning change as required.

Two die in accidents over Fourth of July weekend

Highway accidents in the Charlevoix area claimed as many lives over the holiday weekend according to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

Jacqulyn Ruth Gorentz, 23, Lake Orion, died enroute via ambulance to the Charlevoix Area Hospital as the result of injuries received when the car she was driving went out of control when a deer ran into its path and rolled over. The accident occurred at 5:15 p.m. Monday approximately three miles east of here on the Boyne City road. According to sheriff's deputies, the car, traveling west, started down a hill at See Road in Hayes township when the deer dashed into its path.

Her passengers, her sister, Suzanne, also of Lake Orion, and Kathy Vujeik, 21, of Warren, were admitted to the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The body of Miss Gorentz was returned to the Beuhler Funeral Home in Detroit.

In the second accident at 1 a.m. Tuesday on M-66 near Villa Noava, Donald Eugene Olds, 23, of Lansing died of injuries received in a head-on collision. He died enroute via East Jordan ambulance to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Death was the result of multiple injuries according to Dr. Robert G. Martin, Charlevoix County Medical Examiner.

According to sheriff's officers, Olds, who was observing his twenty-third birthday anniversary, was a passenger in a car driven by Monty McCarrick, also of Lansing. Officers said the McCarrick car, traveling nurth on M-66, pulled out of its lane to pass a truck and struck a south-bound car driven by Chester F. Otmanowski, 53, of Charlevoix, head-on.

KODIAC OF Gaylord was the winner of the annual July 4th softball tournament sponsored by the Charlevoix Slow pitch Association. The team won four games in the winner's bracket before defeating Hascall Steel of Grand Rapids 29-27 to win the title.

Gaylord team takes title in annual holiday tournament

A strong Gaylord team ran away with the title in the Sixth Annual Charlevoix Invitational Slo-Pitch Tournament held over the weekend.

Kodiac breezed through the tournament undefeated defeating Cat Paw Bar of Manton 13-4, Bazuin Well Drilling of Lewiston 21-1, Kit Carson of Charlevoix 20-4 and Manchester Tool and Die 29-10, before meeting Hascall Steel of Grand Rapids in the finals.

The final game started out to be another romp for Kodiac, but it turned into one of the most exciting games of the tourney. After maintaining an 18-5 lead through four innings, Kodiac found a strong Grand Rapids team fighting back. Hascall scored a total of 22 runs in the next three innings with 13 of them coming in the top of the seventh giving Hascall the lead 28-26.

Kodiac came back with three runs after two outs to take the game 29-28.

Charlevoix representatives in this year's tourney were Kit Carson Lumber, and the Townhouse of the city league and Murdick's Fudge of the township league. All three teams were defeated early in the tourney with Carsons staying in the longest.

Carsons started off the tourney defeating Murdicks 26-8. Gordie Block and Pete Spieles each had four hits for Carsons while Bernie DeVries, Tim Carey and Jim Ciuk and Block each had two home runs.

In Carsons second game against a Big Rapids team, a two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh by DeVries gave Carsons their second win of the tourney 17-16. DeVries also led the way with four hits while Leon Smolinski, Carey and Steve Dunkelberg each had home runs.

The team's first loss of the tournament came in their third game when they were defeated by tourney champs Kodiac, 20-4.

In their fourth outing, Carson redeemed themselves by coming from behind in the bottom of the seventh inning to defeat Weisel Construction. Carey had a grand slam home run to push Carsons ahead. Ralph Doan and Carey each had four hits.

In Carsons final game of the tourney they fell victim to the home run hitting of second place Hascall. The Grand Rapids team had 15 home runs during its 26-21 victory against Carsons.

Carsons ended up in fourth place overall.

The Townhouse started out on the right foot by besting Weisel 13-5. Gary Crain led the way for the Townhouse hitting two home runs one of which was a grand slam. Also getting homers were Ed Holm, Scott Blanchard and Kurt Meixsell. For their next two games Townhouse was out done by Manchester Tool and Die 25-5, and Reed City Merchants 16-10.

Murdicks Fudge, one of the leaders in the township league, were defeated two straight. They lost to Carsons 26-8 and to Bazuin Well Drilling 23-3.

Fastpitch team drops game

The Charlevoix group lost 18-8 during the Friday evening game. The series was close through the fifth inning. Brenda Buchanan had two hits to make the score 7-6.

But Pellston came roaring back in the sixth inning with seven runs.

However, earlier in the week, the girls fared better as they trounced Harbor Springs 13-1.

During that game, Teresa Noirot had a triple and Bridget Noirot had two hits. Colleen LaBlance had three runs batted in.

Together the team stole 20 bases.

Ms. LaBlance had the win as pitcher during that game. The team is now 5-1 for the season.

This week the team will play the Petoskey Vikings Thursday in Petoskey.

FAITH REVEALS THE UNLIMITED FACETS OF LOVE

To many of us, the word "love" usually signifies romantic adventure, happy marriage or the care and anxiety of a parent; but while all of these are good examples of it, they by no means tell the whole story. Love is an act of kindness for one's neighbor; an anonymous donation to a worthy cause; food and supplies sent to starving native children or victims of a disaster; a regular visit to the sick, the elderly or the lonely of any age; and so on indefinitely. Whatever form it takes, the main ingredients of love are thoughtfulness and unselfishness, and you will find the recipe for it at the Church of your choice. It will be served with a generous portion of happiness for you as well as for the recipients of it.

Respect is what we owe; love, what we give.
—Phillip James Bailey

"A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you."

MARK S. BLACKMAN

Funeral services for Mark S. Blackman, 53, who was drowned while swimming alone in the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix off Holy Island on June 26, were held Friday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Austin Regier of the United Methodist Church officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater Blackman was reported missing Tuesday morning after failing to return to his home after leaving at 10 p.m. Monday evening to go swimming. A search for the body was initiated a short time later by the Sheriff's Marine Patrol and divers from the East Jordan Fire Department and the body recovered at 10:15 a.m. in 15 feet of water approximately 30 feet off the west side of the island which is located east of M-66. Dr. Robert G. Martin, County Medical Examiner, said death was due to drowning.

Blackman had been a summer visitor to the island for 40 years and since October a permanent resident having moved here from Okemos where he lived for 12 years prior to that time.

He was born in Jackson Nov. 22, 1924, and was graduated from Michigan State University where he lettered in football for four years. While there he was also affiliated with ATD fraternity. Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, David of Okemos; three daughters, Diane of Okemos, Cynthia of Denver, Colo., and Marcia of San Diego, Calif., and a sister, Mrs. George Delafield of San Diego.

Hospital announces $2.1 million expansion

A $2.1 million expansion and renovation program for the Charlevoix Area Hospital was announced by hospital officials during a special news conference Monday afternoon.

Simultaneously, the area hospital board kicked off a $750,000 area-wide fundraising campaign to foot part of the bill for construction costs. The remainder of the project will be funded through either grants, loans or public bonds, Richard Krueger, Charlevoix Area Hospital administrator, said.

Krueger said there would be approximately 15,000 square feet of new construction plus extensive renovation within the hospital under the proposed project.

A new wing will be built on the north end of the hospital overlooking Lake Michigan. The new wing will be a two-story structure, but the height of the upper level will not exceed the height of the present building, Krueger stressed.

Because of the sloping of the land, two stories may be constructed without going any higher than the present building.

The upper level of the new wing will house 12 patient beds in six rooms, an expanded nursing station and a new solarium. The lower level will house administrative and business offices as well as classrooms and meeting rooms.

Krueger stressed that the new addition will not provide an extra beds for the 44-bed hospital, but instead will provide room for currently over-crowded departments.

"The hospital will maintain its status as a primary care facility with other area-wide referral centers such as Northern Michigan Hospitals as secondary care centers," Krueger explained.

"We plan to continue providing the same vital basic services that we always have. We're not planning to do something we haven't done in the past.

"The expansion and renovation will prepare us to meet the need of our expanding area and the demands of new medical techniques."

Departments that will be affected by the expansion are: radiology, electrocardiology, emergency services, general medical surgical supply and storage, inhalation therapy, out-patient services, physical therapy, clinical laboratory and surgical support services.

Construction on the new wing and the renovation is expected to begin in July, 1979 and to be completed by December 1980.

The fundraising campaign began Monday and is expected to be completed by September. Members of the hospital staff, hospital employees, board members and the womens guild have already pledged $150,000 or 20 percent to the fundraising campaign.

"We are solidly behind this project," James A. Gels, M.D., chief of staff said.

The physicians have donated $70,000 with the employees adding another $40,000, the women's guild, $15,000 and the board of directors $25,000

COURIER

RICHARD KRUEGER, Charlevoix Area Hospital administrator, points to some of the areas of the present hospital that will be renovated under the current proposal. The hospital expansion and renovation and fundraising drive were announced Monday.

Wrong size parts delay ferry homecoming

The Ironton Ferry still isn't back in operation on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Due to a problem with parts, the ferry is not expected back in Ironton until today (Wednesday) or at the latest on Friday.

"I was down in Traverse City checking out the ferry Friday," Irvin H. Sturm, engineer-director of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, said Monday. "At that time they were expecting the new parts Friday afternoon or Saturday morning.

"I really pressed them to return the ferry by this Wednesday and they reluctantly agreed to try for Wednesday, but it was more likely that the ferry wouldn't be done until the end of the week."

Sturm said the engine installer at Wyskochil Marine Service, where the ferry is being repaired, found last week that the clutch hubs were undersized and that the shaft had to be altered when he was working on the ferry. Both parts were sent out to be machined to order to make them fit the ferry.

The ferry has been in Traverse City since last fall where it received its five-year marine inspection by the U.S. Coast Guard and minor repairs and a new engine at Wyskochil Marine Service. It was due back in Ironton in April.

Windsor man drowns at Waters Edge

The accident happened at 5:22 p.m. and the young man's body was recovered by the sheriff's department at 5:50 p.m. Barat was a nonswimmer and in poor physical condition. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barat.

The drowning is still under investigation by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

WHY AREN'T RESTROOMS OPEN?

I would like to know why the restrooms at the Chamber of Commerce building are not open to the public? I took my boy to the band concert last night and he had to use the restroom quite bad and I had to look all over town to find a restroom. I think that during concert night or any other night the restrooms should be open to the public.

MORE ON BUILDING CODE

Could an outsider comment on the building permit controversy? I'd like to say that if I were on the 2nd floor of that building, and a fire began in the area of the one approved stairway, I would hate to have to stake my life on using an elevator that depends on electricity or a spiral staircase that could be pretty hazardous in dense smoke or extreme heat. Thank you.

AGREES ON STROUD COMMENT

Last week in Hotline, we were commanded to "lay off Oscar Stroud." Now, the caller was 100 percent right. The less said about that character, the better.

Charter boat owner charged with swamping gill netter

By TOM DAMMANN

An East Jordan charter fishing boat owner has been cited by the U.S. Coast Guard for allegedly swamping two Indian fishermen in their small boat last week.

William D. Holt, owner and operator of the Charlevoix-based charter boat, "Gary D", was charged with gross negligent operation in the incident. Holt has denied the charges.

According to Petty Officer Steven Neal, four East Jordan Ottawa Indians: John W. Case, Sr., his son, John W. Case, Jr., Melvin Winstone, and John A. Case, were in two boats off the Medusa buoy in Lake Michigan at about 8 a.m. Friday when the Gary D circled them at a high speed creating a wake which swamped one of the boats.

John W. Case, Sr., said the big cabin cruiser slowed and approached the Indians and that heated words were exchanged. He and his son were in a 12-foot skiff tied to the other larger boat and were able to hang on to it when the boat was swamped.

The incident was reported to the Coast Guard at about 12:30 a.m. Saturday.

Holt denied having circled the Indians in a telephone interview Sunday.

He said he had a Detroit family aboard and was trolling in a westward direction when he noticed the Indians pulling gill nets.

"There was no use fishing there, so we pulled in our lines and I headed west, then turned left to go down to Fisherman's Island," Holt said. "Then I noticed one of the Indians shaking a stick at me so I headed back and we had words. But I didn't circle him."

Case said he was able to save most of his catch of some 450 pounds of whitefish and five lake trout.

According to a spokesman at Coast Guard 9th District Headquarters in Cleveland, Ohio, the citation will be studied by the Boat Safety Division and Holt will be notified by mail as to what action, if any, the Coast Guard will take.

The citation was still being processed early Monday, the spokesman said.

Neal said Monday that the investigation is still continuing and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department has been cooperating with the Coast Guard.

He said that at about 8 a.m. Sunday the Indians had called them on a CB radio that they were being approached by several power boats and feared another incident.

A Coast Guard boat was dispatched to the scene, again near Medusa, but that there appeared to be no danger of another confrontation, although the Coast Guardsmen did board a boat at the scene, for inspection.

Case said some of his party were warned "by charter boat people that somebody might be killed if the Indians continued fishing." He could not identify the person or persons who made the threats.

Sheriff George Lasater said Monday that his department is keeping a close watch on the situation "and will not tolerate anyone taking the law in his own hands."

In a telephone interview Friday, George Dahl, Department of Natural Resources Law Enforcement Chief, said Indian fishing is unregulated in Lake Michigan from the Grand River to the Straits of Mackinac and elsewhere in Lakes Superior and Huron.

He said this is because the State Supreme Court had ruled in December 1976 that Indian fishing rights guaranteed in the 1836 Treaty of Washington are still valid.

Dahl said the question is being tested in a corollary case, pending before Federal District Court Judge Noel P. Fox in Grand Rapids for which no trial date has been set yet.

On Ron Pair construction plans

State official denies making comments

A state building code official has denied he ever indicated approval for the proposed expansion plans of Midwest Division of Ron Pair Enterprises on Stover Road in Charlevoix.

Charles V. Opdyke, A.I.A., chief of the plan review section of the Bureau of Construction Codes, was asked his opinion of the plans during a phone conversation following several months of haggling between the Charlevoix County Department of Building Code Inspection and Ron Pair, owner of Midwest, over whether the company's proposed plans meet the BDCA building code requirements for two fire exits from the second floor to the first floor.

The proposed plans call for one enclosed stairwell, one fireproof elevator installation and one open spiral staircase between the first and second floor. Pair contends that the exitways are sufficient to meet the code.

In a letter to the editor published in the July 5 issue of the Charlevoix Courier, Opdyke was quoted as saying an enclosed stairwell together with a fireproof elevator installation would satisfy the BDCA building code requirement for two approved independent exitways.

The letter quoting the state official was written by Alvin Ranger, former city building inspector, to Mayor Sam Supernaw upon Supernaw's request. The mayor was seeking another opinion in the matter.

The letter was sent to the Courier as a part of a packet from Pair responding to an editorial published in the June 28 issue of the Courier.

"I can't remember the exact details of the conversation, but I believe I was asked about a two-story building and access to the second floor for handicapped people," Opdyke said of his conversation with Ranger.

"I was asked if the elevator could serve as a means of access for handicapped people to public restrooms located on the second floor. I replied that the elevator was acceptable.

"The elevator is not acceptable as a means of egress or as a fire escape."

Opdyke said the only way the elevator could qualify as a fire escape would be if it had a firewall surrounding it that would last four hours in a fire and if its means of power were housed in a separate building and protected all the way to the elevator.

"Often times people call me and just give the information I need to get the answers they want," Opdyke said. "Without lots of time to review the plan I can't always give an answer."

When questioned about Opdyke's comments, Ranger replied that Opdyke had changed his story from when the engineer originally had contacted him.

"I purposely went over the situation two or three times to be sure that he understood it and that was the reply he gave me," Ranger said.

"I have nothing to gain by lying about the conversation. And now it's just his word against mine."

Ranger said he wrote the letter at the request of the mayor and not because he had any interest in the situation.

The engineer suggested that a copy of the Midwest plans be sent to Opdyke for review as a means of settling the question.

Environmentalists, Medusa agree to drop some charges

The Committee for Preservation of the Environment, Inc., and Medusa Cement Company have signed a stipulation agreement dropping part of the charges they have levied against each other in Charlevoix Circuit Court.

Under the agreement, the committee has dropped its request for a motion for a temporary restraining order preventing any construction at the cement plant located on South Point on Lake Michigan until hearing on a request for an environmental impact study is held in circuit court.

A series of silos for cement storage is currently under construction at the plant and is the first phase of a $50 million conversion and expansion program for the cement company.

In turn, Medusa has dropped its request for a motion for accelerated judgment asking Circuit judge Martin Breighner to quash the committee's suit on the ground that the committee was not yet a legal entity at the time the suit was filed.

John Michael, representing the Committee for Preservation of the environment; and Thomas Pointner, representing Medusa; signed the agreement early Monday morning. It was expected to be presented to Judge Breighner later in the day.

The judge has set a Dec. 20 trial date in the suit filed by the committee against Medusa. The committee believes an environmental impact study should be conducted on the proposed expansion and conversion at the cement plant and is requesting that such a study be ordered.

In addition, Richard Aull, spokesperson for the committee; will be appearing before the Natural Resources Commission public hearing Thursday afternoon at the Petoskey Holiday Inn. The committee plans to make a presentation complete with photographs voicing its concern about the pollution caused by the cement plant and about the proposed expansion.

Former Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Roy C. Hayes was honored by the Charlevix County Sheriff's Department last week.

Hayes was given the Citizens Award by the department for his assistance to the department during his term as prosecuting attorney, Corrine Russell, department dispatcher, explained.

"We wanted to show our appreciation for what he did for the department," Mrs. Russell explained. "He was involved in training the deputies and in helping in any way he could."

Hayes said he was very pleased to receive the award.

"I've worked for bigger departments but never better," Hayes said as he accepted the award. "I thought this department did a terrific job when I was prosecutor and I feel fortunate now as a citizen to have them working for us."

Hayes said he felt the department compared very favorably with other departments in the state. He rated the Charlevoix office as one of the most professional he had worked with.

"This is very meaningful to me," Hayes said. "And the plaque will grace the walls of my new law office."

Hayes opened a private law practice in June after serving as county prosecutor for more than two years. He also now serves as city attorney for East Jordan.

FORMER CHARLEVOIX County Prosecutor Roy C. Hayes was honored by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department last week for the help and assistance he had shown deputies during his term in office. Corrine Russell presented the award.

New campground opens on Lake Michigan

A new, private campground opened on the shores of Lake Michigan last weekend.

Owned by Nancy and Ray Wood, the new Nine Mile Point Park Campground and Cottage, will be managed by their son-in-law and daughter, Jerry and Linda Kimble.

The campground, which is located on U.S. 31 just north of Charlevoix, offers 50 primitive sites complete with electrical hook-ups, picnic tables and fire pits. Water is also available.

In addition to the campsites, the campground offers 128 acres of land for hiking and 3,000 feet of Lake Michigan frontage for swimming and fishing.

The campground is located on Nine Mile Point, which is and old navigational point used by sailors and is also the site of former Indian council grounds, Mrs. Wood explained. The property was also used for the location of commercial fishing operation at one point.

The family has been planning to expand the facilities offered at Nine Mile Point for three years. Previously, they only rented cottages to summer visitors. If the new campgrounds is successful, it may be expanded another 50 sites within the next few years.

School board sets Sept. 12 as date for vote on bond issue

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education has set Tuesday, Sept. 12, as the date for a Special School Election on a bond issue for remodeling and expanding Charlevoix High School.

At that time voters of the school district will be asked to approve a $3.2 million bond issue to underwrite the cost of the project.

The enrollment at the high school level which has surpassed the 700 mark is presently being housed in a building constructed for 470 students. The drastic need for additional space was pointed up at the meeting by Vane H. Smith, high school principal, who said students entering high school this fall would be unable to enroll in science classes because of lack of space. He added that the problem would only be compounded as more and more students could not sign up for science classes, especially if they were entering a field that required more than one year of science.

The possibility of moving a portable classroom to the high school area was turned down because of the cost which would be between $10 and $12,000, nearly as much as a new classroom would cost. It was only be a stop gap solution and would not warrant the expense, it was decided.

The need for additional classroom space in other areas is equally as critical, Max Novak, president of the board, said in discussing the urgency of the need.

Approval was given a request by Pias Presnell for a year's leave of absence to accept a position as an assistant at Central Michigan University. Mr. Presnell is a Learning Center teacher. The position will be posted.

Jeanne Seymour, chairperson of the Math Committee, presented a report compiled by her committee. The report, which is for all grades one through 12, outlines the continuity of a math program that would carry the student through each of the three school, elementary, middle and high school. Mrs. Seymour said that it might seem like an ambitious program but that after receiving input from teachers at all grade levels the committee had agreed this would best aid all students.

The members of the committee will take the results of the study to teachers in all three schools.

Hoy Fortin, assistant principal, who is in charge of the Adult Education program, reported that a total of 25 classes serving 250 students had been taught in the Adult Education program during past school year. This included seven classes totaling 44 students in the High School Completion program and 18 classes of 206 students in the Enrichment Program. The entire program was conducted at a cost of $1,264 to the school district. The remainder of the total cost which was $4,871 was financed by fees from enrichment classes.

Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren reported that the restoration of the Beaver Island Lighthouse located on the property owned by the school district has started. A work crew of 30 under the direction of Dan Kaczynski was to begin work Monday on the project which is to last six weeks. The water blasting of the lighthouse itself to return the brick to its original red color is scheduled to begin shortly.

VanWieren also reported that unit ventilators would be available late next month. Though they may have to be installed after school begins there will be no delay as was anticipated earlier. He said other work on the building was progressing satisfactorily.

He reported that the trampoline owned by the high school would be offered for sale. Because trampolines were considered dangerous, insurance rates had increased $500 a year per unit.

By the vote of 6-2, the board voted to turn over the scheduling of middle school athletic events to Dale Burge, athletic director. Until now the building principal has been expected to handle this.

The lunch program at the Middle School came in for some discussion. It is the most costly of all lunch programs in the school system. Efforts will be made to remedy the situation before school opens.

Max Novak re-elected head of Charlevoix school board

Officers of the Charlevoix Board of Education were reelected without opposition to their respective offices at the organizational meeting Monday night.

Max Novak was elected to his fourth term as president; Charles A. Wlzinga, vice president; Kenneth J. Boss, secretary and Mrs. Ardeth Wieland. The latter was appointed to the office in March to succeed the late Claire C. Martin.

Trustees are Donald W. Brown, Mrs. Connie Pointner and James J. Haggard who was elected to a four year term to succeed Mr. Martin. Mrs. Wieland was re-elected to a four-year term in the recent school election.

Following the election, the duties of the board was reviewed.

The board concluded its action with the setting of the first and third Mondays of each month as the dates of regular meetings. The meetings will be held at 7:30 p.m. on those dates at the Charlevoix High School. The next meeting, however, was scheduled for July 21.

The first State Bank of Charlevoix was designated as the depository for the Title I, hot lunch, old debt service, new debt service, central office internal, high school activities, middle school internal, culinary arts and building and site-1974 accounts.

The Charlevoix County State bank was named as the depository for the public library, general fund and payroll accounts.

The board president, secretary and treasurer were named as signatories for the general fund, old debt retirement, new debt retirement, building and site-1974 and Title I accounts; Vane Smith and Joane Grubaugh, high school activities account; Vincent Chew and Virginia Wood, middle school internal account; Gordon W. VanWieren and Lillian Carr, central office internal account; Gordon W. VanWieren, Judy Boss and Margaret Kuzmik, hot lunch account and Vincent Olach, Judy Boss, Margaret Kuzmik and Elizabeth Meadows, culinary arts account.

Common council studying purchase of Ferry Ave. property

The council and Mayor Sam Supernaw authorized city attorney Michael Gibbons to draw up a land option agreement to purchase 300 feet of lake frontage next to Ferry Avenue Beach owned by United Toolcraft.

The city is seeking a two-year option on the land in order to have time to acquire state and federal grants for the purchase of the $180,000 parcel of land. During the two-year option the city will reimburse the land owners for the cost of the city taxes on the property as the price of the option.

The taxes are estimated at $4,000 per year.

In other action, the council designated the memorial garden on Mercer Boulevard as having the same status as a city park. The council adopted a motion requiring a public hearing be held before the garden can be altered in any way.

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club, which maintains the garden, had requested that the city take action to secure the parcel. The land was not designated as a park upon the request of Police Chief Jack Mol, who felt that youth might interpret the designation literally and cause hazardous driving conditions on the street by using the median area as a regular park.

City manager Norman Gaffney also suggested that the council make some decisions about the improvements that are needed at Mt. McSauba. Gaffney reminded council that many changes must be made to meet state requirements before the ski hill can open for the season.

The city manager also urged council to take steps to secure a grant for the construction of a hockey rink at the park. Council directed Gaffney to prepare the necessary papers.

In other action, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers held a public hearing on proposed improvements on the Pine River channel bank.

Representatives of the corps explained that the main object of the project was to deepen the channel at both the north and south ends for commercial traffic. The corps will also be improving the banks with stone and riprap to prevent erosion and provide stabilization for the north bank like it did on the other side of the channel.

Mayor Supernaw said the Charlevoix Planning Commission would be submitting a proposed landscaping plan for the channel banks to the corps and that the city would also be studying the effects deepening the channel will have on city utilities.

Water, sewer and electric lines may have to be lowered if the channel is deepened.

In other action, the council also approved the rezoning of the Frank Cook property from residential to commercial. Two other lots on Ferry Avenue which are adjacent to the Cook property and have existing commercial uses were also rezoned.

A lot split was also approved for Ronald Zednicek as recommended by the planning commission.

Council also agreed to have the Michigan Codification Service of Ann Arbor go through the city ordinances and organize them at a cost of $4,650.

The codification is required under the new charter and will provide the city with 25 copies of all the ordinances and laws that it operates under.

Council also agreed to give up as bad debts $1,231.08 of utility bills and paid bills amounting to $143,000.

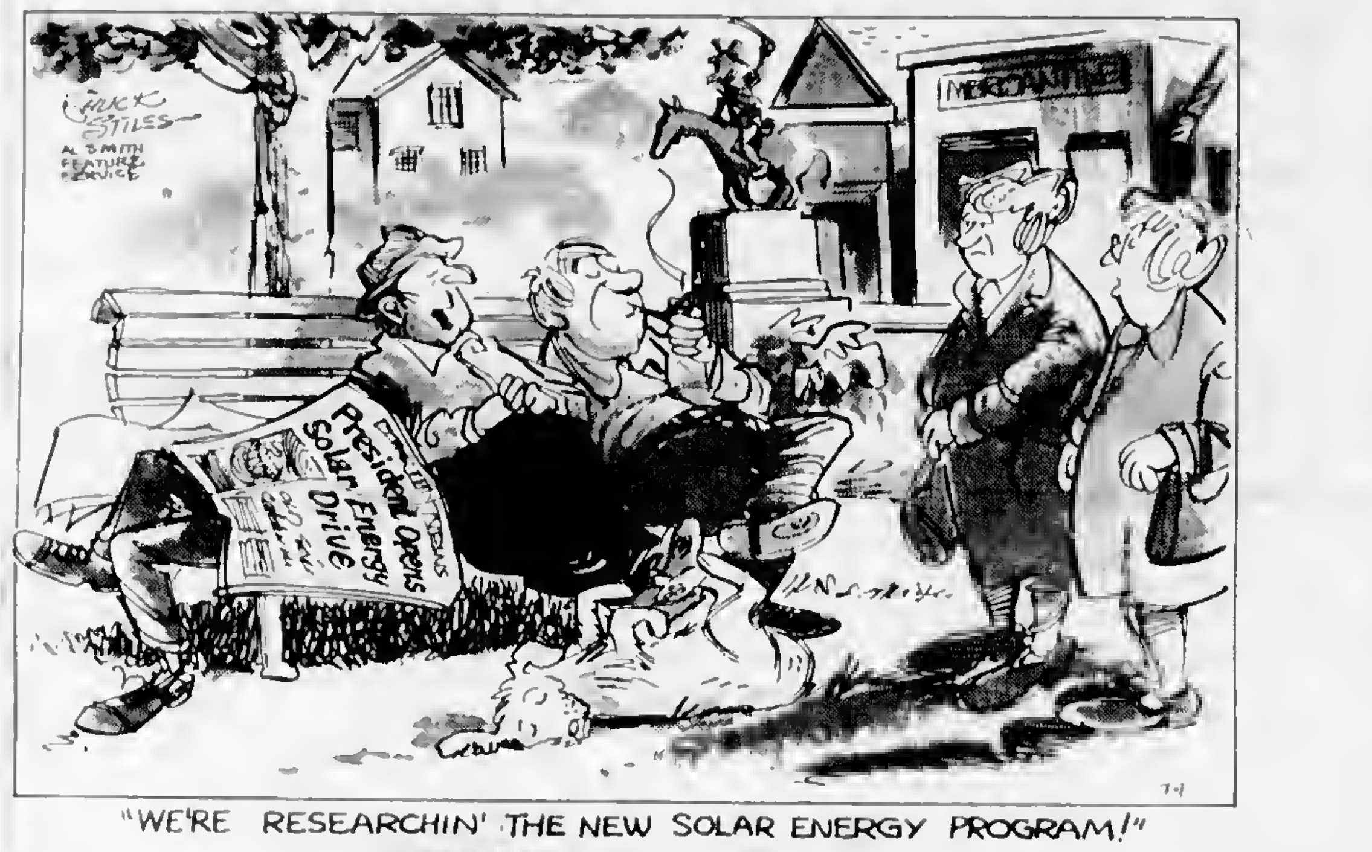
City manager needs backing of everyone



"WE'RE RESEARCHIN' THE NEW SOLAR ENERGY PROGRAM!"

The new city manager has been at his desk for just two weeks now, but he's working hard to get his feet wet and to become an active part of Charlevoix city government.

Already he's working to secure information about possible grants for the development of the Charlevoix Lumber Company property into a city park and recreation area. And he has also been active in dealing with complaints from city residents.

It's good to know that someone is back in the helm in the city manager's office. Charlevoix city council members and Phyllis Loucks, secretary to the city manager, did an admirable job of running the city while the mayor and council searched for a new manager, but they were short-handed both time-wise and experience-wise.

Gaffney's background in city government appears to be extensive and he should bring much experience to Charlevoix that can be put to use to the benefit of the city. His 16 years as a city manager have taught him may valuable lessons that can be used in Charlevoix.

He seems to be especially strong in the grants area and he should be able to help the city secure federal funding for projects that have not been pursued before because they have been too costly for the taxpayers to afford through the city millage levy. This ability should be a nice addition to city operations.

Charlevoix's ability to get grants in the past has been lacking.

However, Gaffney should not be expected to be a miracle worker. No amount of experience can make him that. It will take a lot of hard work to bring those grants and other changes to the city.

And the new city manager cannot do it by himself. He's going to need the support and backing of the city council and city residents. Council and city residents should make their wishes for the direction of the city known to Gaffney as soon as possible. He is not a mindreader and can not be expected to know things about the wants and needs of city residents without being given some hints.

Now is the time for city council and city residents to turn over a new leaf in their approach to the city manager. In the past there has seemed to be certain animosity between the city manager, the council and the city residents. Nothing good can be accomplished in that type of atmosphere.

But with everyone working together to create a better community much can be accomplished through the positive use of the talents of all the people involved.

Let's give it a try.

...Speaking Her Mind

I've never seen such a beautiful Fourth of July in Northern Michigan as this last one was. I don't think the skies were ever bluer or the weather more perfect.

I've been in Northern Michigan just two weeks over four years and I've been waiting for this type of day since I left the big city. People told me that it would come if I was patient, but I was beginning to lose faith.

The first two years I lived in Petoskey, I had to take parade pictures on the Fourth of July so naturally it rained both of those holidays. In fact, it got to be a joke at the office. If you assign Paula to a parade on July 4, it's bound to rain, the saying went.

The third and fourth Independence Days I spent in God's country were so cold I was sure it was going to snow any minute. And I think one year it did hail.

So this year I had both my raincoat and my snowsuit ready for the holiday. But, when the day dawned, it couldn't have been more beautiful. I spent hours soaking up the sun and the conversation of my friends.

But the highlight of the day didn't come until later. I was driving from Charlevoix to Petoskey with some film when I noticed great billowing clouds in the dark night sky.

At first I thought the clouds were smoke from the fireworks display in Petoskey which I assumed were just completed based on the bumper to bumper traffic on U.S. 31. But then I noticed that the clouds were moving and twisting. It was the aurora borealis – Northern Lights.

As the white light danced across the sky, I was hypnotized by its beauty. Long fingers reached from the horizon into the sky as other lights twisted and whirled high in the night sky.

Never have I seen such a display, the sky was literally alive with the light. I have seen Northern Lights in Northern Michigan before, but never like this. And no fireworks display I have ever watched, downstate or here, could hold a candle to the natural display of lights that night.

The Northern Lights are somehow tied to sunspots and solar storms the surface of the sun. According to astronomers, residents and visitors to this area should be seeing plenty of activity in the sky through the next month. It's also falling star season as well as time for the Northern Lights.

So take some time one night to have a look at the sky, you'll be well rewarded for your effort and you'll have seen another beautiful part of Northern Michigan.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

The worst part of the taxpayers' revolt now underway across the nation is that it wouldn't have been necessary at all if our public officials had the guts to impose their personal value systems upon their respective governments.

As an example, let me tell you about Joe Bindertwine who has supported his family for years on a little 100-acre spread of fairly fertile farmland. Bindertwine isn't exactly getting rich, mind you, but he's getting by. He grows most of his own food, which his wife dutifully cans and freezes. He cuts his own firewood. He owns his farm free and clear. He doesn't spend great sums of money traveling or eating out at fancy restaurants, but he does make it to the county fair every fall, which is about all he wants out of life.

If he makes $4,000 to $5,000 a year after taxes he considers himself darned lucky.

Then, because of his deft hand at handling money, Joe Bindertwine's friends and neighbors suggest that he run for the local school board. Bindertwine is flattered beyond words. So he runs and is elected. Serving with him on the board are a banker, a lawyer, a few business people, a social climber and a housewife.

One of the first orders of business for the new board is to decide on an annual salary for the new teacher, Crayola Chalkboard, a recent graduate of one of the state's normal colleges. Miss Chalkboard is 22 years old, lives with her widowed mother in town and is as cute as a button.

"Well, gentlemen and ladies," says the banker, who is also president of the board, "what shall we do about Miss Chalkboard's salary?"

Silence.

"We have to offer this woman something," says the banker. "What will it be?"

"How much do other teachers make?" asks the lawyer. "That should give us something to go on."

The owner of a drygoods store checks some notes in front of him. "According to the Michigan Education Association, beginning teachers in Michigan make anywhere from $8,000 to $11,000 a year. That's with a bachelor's degree. Of course, Miss Chalkboard has her M.A."

"Hold on a minute," says Joe Bindertwine. "You mean these kids fresh out of school make up to $11,000 a year? Holy Moses! That's more than twi..." But he didn't finish. The board didn't have any business knowing how much he made a year.

"Bear in mind," says one of the businessmen, "that Miss Chalkboard has spent five long years in college, toiling over her books night and day, sacrificing her pleasures to get a good, sound, education so she could come home and help smarten up our kids."

Joe Bindertwine does a little mental arithmetic, but he doesn't say anything. If Miss Chalkboard attended college five years, she actually spent something less than four years in the classroom considering long summer vacations and assorted holidays. Furthermore, as a teacher she'll work only nine months a year, not 12.

"And you have to remember this girl is going to support her mother," says the housewife.

Joe Bindertwine knows that the old lady is drawing Social Security and a fat government pension, but he doesn't say anything.

"We certainly don't want to pay our teacher less than Centerville," says the social climber. "It wouldn't look good."

Joe Bindertwine thinks of the long hours he puts in on his farm to earn such a paltry little bit of money every year. If his father could have afforded to send him to college, he certainly would have been a lot better fixed today without working half as hard. Suddenly he feels sorry for himself for the first time in his life.

There is a long silence around the board table. Finally Bindertwine speaks.

"I move that we offer Miss Chalkboard $12,000 a year, with annual increments of eight percent." He certainly doesn't want to appear to be a skinflint among his affluent friends and neighbors.

The motion passes unanimously.

When Joe Bindertwine arrives home after the meeting, he mixes himself a bicarbonate of soda at the kitchen sink. His stomach is upset and he doesn't know why.

A lot of people deplore the visit with friends or relatives in another city. They say it puts a strain on the relationship.

This can be avoided if guests remember one simple rule: do not visit any longer than 36 hours.

The host who went to the store every three hours to bring in fresh food supplies and said, "What are families for?" is now phrasing it, "I know what families are for – stuffing their faces. Tell me what they're against and I'll do it."

I remember the first night Howard and Fay came to visit us with their three kids. We got into our bathrobes and talked and talked until almost 7:30. Then we said, "What do you want to do?" They said, "Just visit and chat about the good old days." This was tricky as we had met them once at a VFW picnic with my parents and said, "If you're ever out West, give us a call."

One of their children complained that her glass wasn't wrapped in plastic like it was at their last stop. Another one said the white gooey stuff at dinner (scalloped potatoes) looked like a secret weapon from an alien planet. The other child was packing my children's toys in his luggage faster than you can say, "Arrest that creep." Howard was in training for the gargling Olympics. Fay kept saying, "I'd help in the kitchen, but I don't know where anything is." (I wanted to label the door.)

At breakfast every morning, they would say, "What's to see in this town?" We got in the car and took them on a three-hour trip.

"You call this a 'scenic attraction'?"

"We call it the Grand Canyon," we said proudly.

"Fay, took a look at it. Couldn't Esther clean this up and make a rock garden out of it?"

There are several state laws governing the assault of house guests who stay longer than 36 hours. They're very lenient.

His work's never done

The husband was about to leave the bedroom. "Pull that blanket up on your side of the bed," his wife instructed him. And then she complained that he wasn't tucking the blanket under the pillow properly.

"I don't make beds," the husband explained reasonably.

"What do you mean you don't make beds? Why don't you make beds? Do you think only women make beds?" asked the wife who thinks she is Bella Abzug.

"Of course men can make beds," the husband said, still reasonably. "But I've never made beds around here. You do that. I go to work every day while you stay home with the beds. That's the way it's always been in over 20 years of marriage. We've developed a domestic pattern in which I don't make beds."

"You're a male chauvinist. You think making beds is strictly women's work," the wife said.

That evening the happy couple went to a baseball game. There's a domestic pattern to this, too. After they've been seated, a few minutes before the first pitch, he always goes to buy their dinner. She always stays behind to count how many times the Detroit manager pats his players' butts as they leave the dugout to begin play.

Dinner is 2 hot dogs and a beer for the husband, and 2 hot dogs and coffee for the wife. At Tiger Stadium it is necessary to stand in line for 10 to 20 minutes before purchasing these items. There are many lines stringing out from many lunch counters, and at the end of some of these lines, you can buy only beer, not hot dogs and not coffee. So a person should be careful to get into a line leading to a woman who will sell food and coffee as well as beer. Otherwise, the dumb person will end up standing in 2 lines.

The husband usually stands in 2 lines. Eventually his 4 hot dogs and beer and coffee are packed into a small open container about the size of a cigar box. This container appears to be made of cardboard but it is actually made of slightly starched toilet paper.

It is necessary to put the hot dogs in the middle of the box, with the beer at one end and the coffee at the other. By carefully putting 1 hand under the beer, and the other hand under the coffee, the husband usually manages to spill only half the beer and coffee on the hot dogs. Unless someone bumps into him, in which case he spills all of the beer and coffee.

The wife likes both mustard and ketchup on her hot dogs. The husband likes just mustard. The women who sell hot dogs at Tiger Stadium do not sell mustard and ketchup. Customers must help themselves from squirt jars located across the corridor. There are always thousands of people walking fast in these corridors. These are the people who make sure that the husband spills all of the beer and coffee on the hot dogs.

At the mustard-ketchup shelf, the husband must unwrap each hot dog to apply the mustard and ketchup. The wrapping won't come off because it is soaked with the spilled beer and coffee.

When the husband removes the box of dinner from the mustard-ketchup shelf, he must be careful to hold the box with both of his hands spread wide across the bottom. This is because the soggy bottom has fallen out of the box.

"Why do I always have to go get the dinner at the ball park?" the husband asked the wife when he finally got back to his seat on the evening of the day he helped make the bed. "We have been going to baseball games for over 20 years and you have never once gone to get the hot dogs."

"Men always do those things," she answered, "because they're supposed to."

"What is the difference between making the bed and getting the hot dogs?" the husband asked.

"I don't slop beer and coffee all over the bed," the wife said.

The husband sobbed.

Summer visitors concerned about growth of Medusa

To the Editor:

On June 29th and 30th, we were in Charlevoix. Charlevoix has been a favorite summer tourist stop for us. Our family has had happy memories over the years getting our fill of Charlevoix beauty ... our main attraction always being the lighthouse and the Lake Michigan horizon with tall pines and beach.

We have observed Charlevoix's' subtle changes and development. The business district with shops and specialties have become increasingly more attractive, complementing and enhancing a waterfront atmosphere for tourists. We enjoy the waterway with its rising draw bridge allowing the tall sailboats and ships to pass into or out of the Round Lake basin, taking a moment of leisurely precedence over busy traffic.

We have also noted the growth of the Medusa Cement Company plant over the years into a monster appearance, eating away the natural beauty of our Michigan shoreline here. It is like a giant lake monster, looming over Charlevoix, devouring Charlevoix's beauty. We realize, there are people dependant upon Medusa for a living. We don't think it's a case of doing away with a cement plant, but rather the cement plant being responsible to the community for cleaning up itself any damage it has done to the appearance of the environment; pollution of the air; and possibly the water. It seems there used to be more seagulls, and other birds along the shore. So far the beautiful tall pines are still holding their own, but for how long?

The last couple years we excused the Medusa Cement Company pollution as being a hazy day, or wind blowing the wrong way. But, this time sky was dulled even in the most perfect weather. We would never choose to live in Charlevoix allowing this lakefront condition to make a mockery of Charlevoix's name, and perhaps threaten the life of the community. As tourist, we would stop coming.

There must be something people can do. It was encouraging to find, through the Charlevoix Courier, that people are voicing their concern and taking steps for an environmental impact study on the Medusa Cement Company. Perhaps, other Michigan cement plants should take note as well, to act responsibly in checking their pollution.

We have lived in Royal Oak, Michigan, Detroit metro area for 12-13 years and have noticed some air pollution control come into effect during this time. It helps. And so do beautification projects. For example, we have a huge cement city garage parking structure. It was made more pleasantly attractive with pine tree plantings around it. I am hopeful, in your community the leaders, the experts, interested people, and those especially responsible will work with ingenuity to bring about positive solution. It appears urgent!

Thanks to the Committee for Protection of Environment, for directing an outlet to speak of concern for Charlevoix. Rise up and stay Beautiful!

Charlevoix needs senior housing

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following column, written by Mike Ready, a former Charlevoix resident and area newspaper editor, appeared in the June 17 issue of the Traverse City Record-Eagle. It is reprinted here to remind Charlevoix area people that there are aa alternatives to Grandview for our residents.

By MIKE READY
Record-Eagle staff writer

When we moved to Charlevoix in 1970, an old man lived behind us, and an old woman lived next door. Both were over 80. Both lived alone and were a bit eccentric. Neither had any children. Neither had any close relatives within hundreds of miles.

Mary's mind began slipping fast about two years after we moved in. She saw "little people" in the knotholes of her wall, and she began scolding neighborhood toddlers for cracking her sidewalk by riding tricycles on it.

She was taken to Grandview – a medical care facility operated by Charlevoix County. With no responsibility for running a household, no old friends, nothing to do but exist, she soon lost all touch with reality.

For years now, Mary has recognized no one. She can't do anything without being helped. She, like many of the other residents at Grandview, babbles incoherently and looks at the walls.

People at Grandview are alive, technically, but they're not the workers, the lovers, the thinkers, the doers they once were.

There's no laughter and no sorrow at Grandview. The bodies and the minds have already been disconnected. New bodies walk in and old bodies are carried out, unnoticed.

All this despite the best work of a good and conscientious staff.

Our other former neighbor, Carl, is 88 now. He's still living at home, but he isn't as sharp as he used to be. He doesn't drive a car anymore and he needs help handling some of his mail.

He's not going to be able to live alone in his home much longer. But he has sworn, in past years, that he'll never be taken to Grandview. And I'm convinced it would be terribly unfortunate if he were.

Grandview and other nursing homes around the country are necessary, of course.

Mental and physical sharpness fade with age, and all of us eventually will depend on others to do what we can do for ourselves now.

But there are alternatives to nursing homes, in some cases. More than 100 people are living in one such alternative, the Riverview Terrace senior citizen housing center in Traverse City.

I've visited senior citizen centers like Riverview Terrace before – in Monroe, Boyne City and East Jordan. In all cases, the residents seem to be happy and sharp.

Before (and frequently instead of) becoming too physically and mentally infirm, these old people are living in apartment complexes with other old people. There, they have the freedom, and the responsibility for maintaining their own residences, as nearly all of them have done throughout their lives.

They are forced to prepare and cook their meals and take care of their bills. They are forced to keep their minds sharp.

They look after and socialize with each other, without worrying about transportation or bad weather.

People there are more likely to die like they have lived, as intelligent and self-reliant people until the end.

Unfortunately, there are not enough good alternatives like Riverview Terrace. The waiting lists are long in each case that I know about. Even doubling the existing capacity would not satisfy the demand in Traverse City. But even with a full supply of Riverview Terraces we'll still need places like Grandview. It's just a sad fact of life. I just hope that people I know will never have to go there.

Committee meets to discuss purchase of Hiller property

A committee, appointed by Mayor Sam Supernaw to pursue funding for the purchase of the former Charlevoix Lumber Company property, held its first meeting last week.

Richard Donaldson, Chairman of the five-member group, said the meeting was basically an organizational one and he predicted it would be two weeks before the committee would know what options were open to it.

However, some steps have already been taken to investigate avenues for funding the purchase of the property, Donaldson said. The committee chairman is attempting to set up a meeting next week with Brian Davis of the Trust for Public Land.

This group acts as a catalyst to help municipalities find the funds for purchasing land for the development of parks and recreation areas. Davis would have to come to Charlevoix and look at the property before he could determine if the group would be able to help the city find funding for the project.

Jacquie Merta, executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, is also preparing background information on the city for use in evaluating the need for funding and for the development of park property.

City Manager Norman Gaffney has also requested a computer printout of all the federal monies available for the purchase of land for parks and recreational uses. Gaffney expects to receive the information within the next few weeks.

Donaldson said the committee is also working on a site plan for the use of the property which will also be revealed within the next few weeks. He said the plan varied slightly from what the Charlevoix Planning Commission had originally proposed.

The planning commission recommended the city pursue purchasing the 2.12 acre parcel owned by James Hiller at the June 14 city council meeting. At that time the commission presented a site plan suggesting the property could be used for parking, expansion of the docking facilities and for housing city departments and equipment.

The commission proposed that two parking lots one for 20 spaces and one for 63 spaces be constructed on the property. It also suggested that the 322 feet of frontage on Round Lake could be used for 12 docking spaces for medium sized boats

Other members of the committee are: Ken Staley, planning commission representative; Jeff Porter, city council representative; Tom Bickersteth and Gene Bridge.

Meet Charlevoix

...Earl Muma

By PEG OHLE

Earl Muma of Muma's Sunoco Service was elected to the City Council for the first time this spring. He is also active in the Air Force Reserve. This week the Courier talks with him about these activities and a few others.

COURIER: Is there a shortage of gasoline?

MUMA: No. If there was, the cut-rate stations wouldn't have any.

COURIER: What effect will the outlawing of double-tankers have on the price of gasoline.

MUMA: I think the law becomes effective in three years. Single-tankers will also be limited in the amount of gas they can carry. All of this will probably result in a price rise of five to six cents a gallon. However, I think the price is stable for at least a couple of years. I see no drastic change right away.

COURIER: As a councilman, what do you think are some of the things the City should do?

MUMA: We should try to expand city facilities. I would like to see a Civic Center on the Hiller property, a place that would house a Senior Citizens Center, a gym, and such things. It would be a great thing for the City. A lot of money is available grant-wise. We need to improve the curbs in the downtown area. The streets need repairing, and the lighting on back streets is poor. As far as the sewers are concerned, I don't think we can do anything unless something is done with the Township, maybe merger. We can't have two independent systems. I also think we should try to get back the Schleman property adjoining the Ferry Avenue Beach, which we sold 20 years ago, so we can expand the park. They're willing to sell it back. I believe Gaffney (the new City Manager) will try to get us grants for our needs. He's good at that. And I hope that when he sets priorities others will agree with him. This is my first association with politics, and I like it.

COURIER: What do you do in your spare time?

MUMA: I repair bikes for foster children under Social Services' care. People bring them in and I put them in working condition. David Hand at Ace Hardware sells us the parts at no profit. This is all under the jurisdiction of the Lions Club. I also take care of the Lions' trailer.

COURIER: What about the Air Force Reserve?

MUMA: I'm a Senior Master Sergeant in charge of mechanics, repairing helicopters. I have 24 years in the service, 15 of them on active duty with fighter-type aircraft.

COURIER: How much time do you spend on this?

MUMA: One weekend a month on active duty and once a year in a two-week encampment.

COURIER: What unit do you belong to?

COURIER: What does the unit consist of?

MUMA: It is combat-ready and has seven HC 31 aircraft and three "Jolly Green Giant" helicopters. We fly cover for the President and other dignitaries when they cross the Atlantic. All of us have a world-wide commitment for rescue and search and carry world-wide passports and have the necessary shots to go anywhere.

COURIER: Has the unit ever been called to active duty?

MUMA: It was called into active duty during the Pueblo incident for 19 months, but I wasn't a member then. The men who were members had to leave their jobs and go with the Reserves.

COURIER: But you are a volunteer, aren't you?

MUMA: Nobody is forced to join a unit, but when they do, they all know they might be called to active duty. It's a chance they have to take.

Earl Muma

COURIER: Do you have any military decoartions?

MUMA: I think there are seven on my uniform, but I don't remember what they are.

COURIER: Why do you stay in the Reserve?

MUMA: I like the military, it grows on you. The benefits—wages, retirement—are good. And I like the work because I feel I'm my own boss when I'm doing it. If the unit is ever called to active again, I'll be with them.

COURIER: Where did you grow up?

MUMA: In East Jordan. I graduated from high school there and my family moved to Charlevoix in 1952. I returned from active service in the Air Force in 1967.

COURIER: Do you live in Charlevoix?

MUMA: Yes, Meadow Lane with my wife, Alice, sons Allen and Robert and daughter Sharon. They're 16, 14, and five years of age. We also have a 40-acre farm on Ferry road where we raise quarter horses.

Lack of supplies puts Horton Bay on map

By PEG OHLE

When, in August, 1858, Samual Horton left the City of Pine River (now Charlevoix) and sailed southeastward some 10 or 12 miles on Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) to a beautiful bay where he decided to make his home, little did he know that 122 years later that bay and the community situated on it would still bear his name.

William H. Ohle, in his centennial history of Horton Bay, states that Horton, the first white resident of record in the Horton Bay area, sailed to Pine Lake from Toledo, Ohio. There is no record of the size of his boat, "The Rover," but it must have been quite large because it brought Horton's large family as well as John Newman and Archie Buttars who became prominent citizens of early Charlevoix.

Dr. M.L. Leach of Traverse City, an early historian of the area, writes that Horton had sailed north on Lake Huron and around the top of the lower peninsula with the intention of proceeding to Grand Rapids, where two sons were living.

Being short of provisions, he put in at Pine River, where adverse weather prevented him from leaving. Tiring of the delay, it is said he decided to start on a certain day if the wind was fair; if not he would take it as an indication that Providence had ordered that his home should be beside the waters of Pine Lake.

On the appointed day, the wind was unfavorable, so the prow of "The Rover" headed up Pine Lake. At the bay that has taken his name, he found a shack apparently abandoned by a Mormon in the waning days of King Stang's influence in the area.

Horton Bay did not really become a community until 1876, when several houses and the country store were built along the "main" road. Most of those houses as well as the store stand today as reminders of a bygone era, although the gasoline pumps in front of the store can jolt one back to the present.

It's a pleasant drive to Horton Bay from Charlevoix. The visitor may stop in at the Horton Bay store to inspect the old wooden floors, the board walls, and high ceiling. Even the presence of modern-day cooling equipment cannot take away the aura of age.

A little farther down the road is the Bay Township Hall, in front of which a State Historical Site marker proclaims Horton Bay a State Historical Site.

The community was awarded the recognition on the occasion of its centennial celebration. The legend on the marker reads:

"Named for pioneer settler Samuel Horton, this village was founded as a lumbering community in 1876, complete with sawmill, shanty boys, boarding house, company store, blacksmith shop, and draft horses. The store and many early buildings still stand. After the timber was gone, three fine restaurants opened: Dilworth's, The Waffle Shop, and The Red Fox Inn. Young Ernest Hemingway frequently came here to fish and camp on 'The Point.' This area is the setting for several of his famous 'Nick Adams' short storries. Hemingway was married here in 1921."

Each year many people go to Horton Bay to view Hemingway's haunts. His early story "Up in Michigan" contains a description of Horton Bay with its "five houses on the main road" and its general store with its "high false front" and wagons "hitched out in front."

Hemingway wrote that the houses were "in a big grove of elm trees." Today, many large trees line either side of the road, but the elm trees in Hemingway's story were destroyed by the elm blight that killed most of the elm trees in the midwest. He described the road as being "very sandy". The present road is modern asphalt.

There is only one other road in Horton Bay. It runs from the main road toward the bay, in front of the old Dilworth house where Hemingway often visited his friends Jim and Liz, bunking with them when it seemed more desirable than going home.

Following Hemingway's marriage to Hadley Richardson, Liz Dilworth served the wedding breakfast in her home, which looked substantially as it does today.

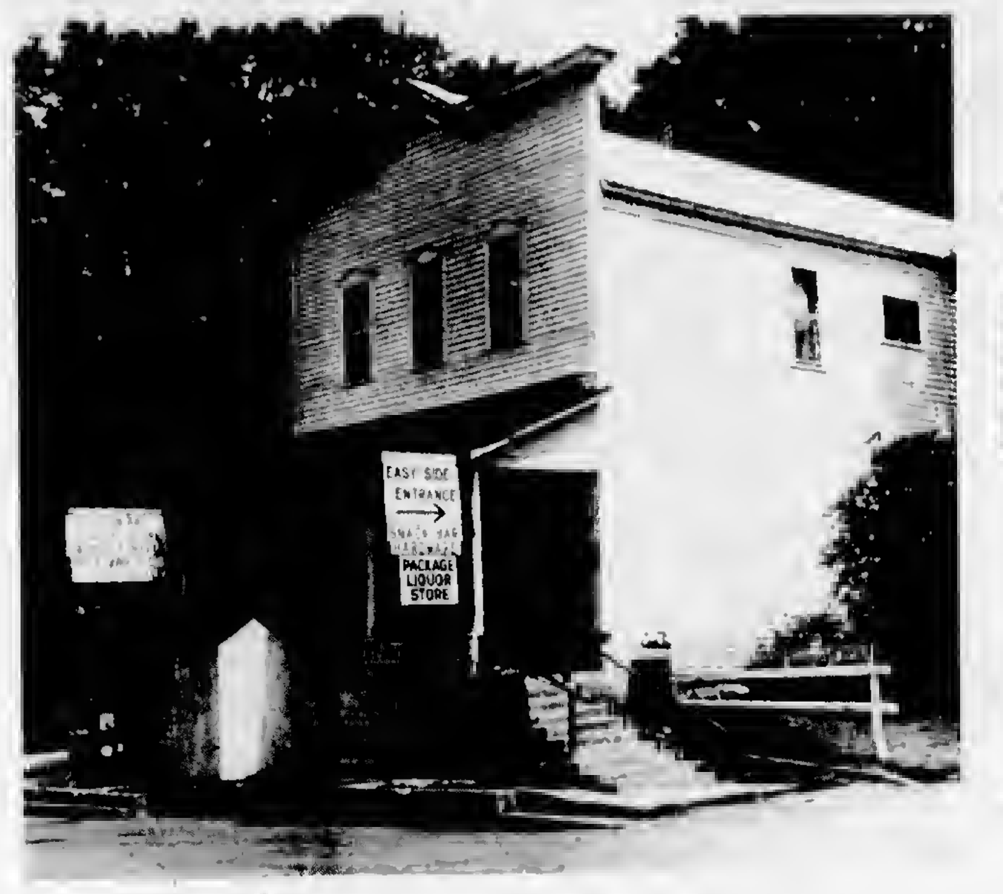
In Hemingway's day, there was a bubbling spring along the road to the lake, and a tin cup hung on a forked stick nearby. He drank from this spring many times in his youth and remembered it clearly enough to mention it in the opening sentence of his "Summer People."

The road to the bay has now been "improved" and the spring is no longer visible, but water from it runs idly along the road to help fill the bay.

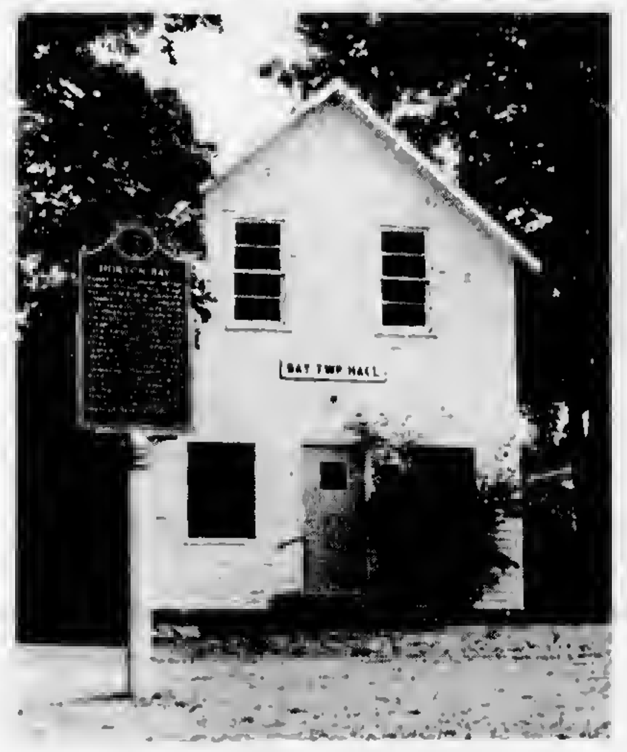
Besides the store, the Town Hall is probably the most interesting building in Horton Bay. It, too, was once a country store, but for many years it has been the center of Bay Township "government."

On the west and east walls of the interior of the building are two wooden "voting booths" attached with nails. Each one is made up of three panels. One panel raises to form a writing "table" and the other two swing from the sides to provide secrecy for the voter. These booths were used until three years ago, when the increased number of voters made a voting machine necessary.

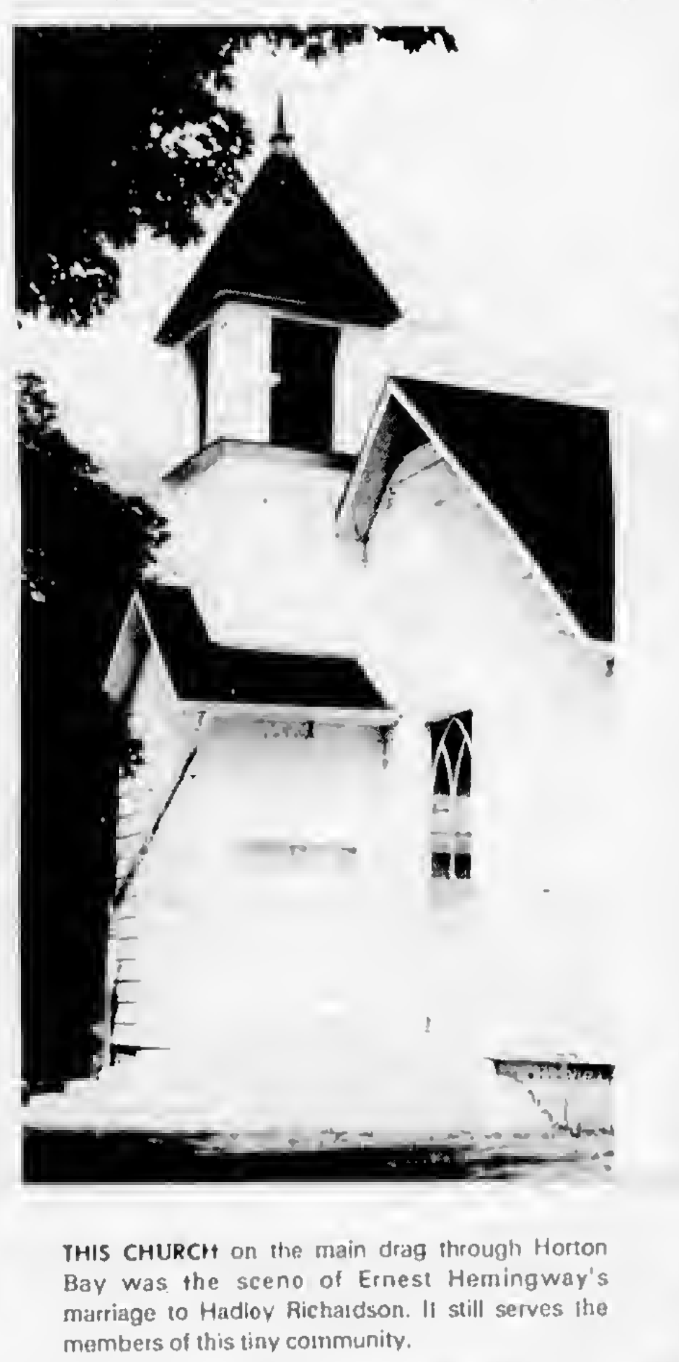
If time permits, the trip to Horton Bay can be lengthened to include a tour around Lake Charlevoix, going through Boyne City on to Ironton, where the world-famous Ironton Ferry awaits the traveler for a trip across the South Arm. On the road from Ironton to Charlevoix, the buildings of the fabulous Loeb Farms built over 50 years ago appear on the right.



THE HORTON BAY store looks much like it did during Hemingway's visits to Horton Bay. Only the gas pumps give away the era in which the store now operates.



ONE OF THE MOST interesting buildings in Horton Bay is the Bay Township Hall. It was once a country store but is now the center of the township government.



THIS CHURCH on the main drag through Horton Bay was the scene of Ernest Hemingway's marriage to Hadley Richardson. It still serves the members of this tiny community.

To walkathon winners

Big Brothers hand out prizes

Prizes were given in various categories to people participating in the annual event. This year 257 people came out for the hike with 186 completing the whole 22-mile course.

The winners in the most money collected division and the oldest walkers, Della Wolgamott, Becky Murdick, Daniel Staublin, Gerald Staublin, Bill McKay and Janet McKay, received a fishing trip from Mark White of the Harbor Charter Service.

Laurie Stanek of East Jordan was the winner in the youngest walker finishing the middle school age division. She received an airplane ride from Ray Wood of Charlevoix.

For getting the most money sponsored and collected, Margaret Fowler of Charlevoix won a free dinner family-style from the Argonne Supper Club. She gave these dinners to her parents for their wedding anniversary.

Mark Russell and Jeff Drenth were the first walkers in to the finish line to tie in the high school division and split a $10 prize.

Kristy Burt of East Jordan Elementary School was the winner of the pizzas donated by the Village Inn Pizza of Charlevoix and Todd Will of Charlevoix was the youngest walker of 22-mile route and he won a $10 gift certificate from the Dairy Queen of Charlevoix for his efforts.

Radios, one donated from Puffs Appliance and one donated by Big Brothers-Big Sisters, were won in a drawing after the walkathon by Terri Klama from Charlevoix Middle School and Yvonne Kitson from the East Jordan High School.

Area charities that will receive money from the walkathon in addition to Big Brothers-Big Sisters are: Charlevoix County Humane Society, Special Olympics, Classes of 1984, 1983, 1982, 1981, 1980, 1979 and 1978, flag football, Assembly of God Church, Charlevoix baseball, Bergmann Center, Cancer Society, Grandvue Medical Care Facility, Charlevoix Cross Country Association, Charlevoix County 4-H, Horse Developmental Association and the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Many of the walkers are still collecting pledges. Nancy Wood, executive director of Big Brothers-Big Sisters, suggested the people help their favorite charities by taking their walkathon envelopes to the chambers of commerce in their own communities by July 21.

CHARLEVOIX AREA Garden Club members finished planting the Michigan Avenue Garden Island on the north side of Charlevoix last week. Marigolds, lemondrops and ageratums were planted in the island with a border of white alyssum which was provided by Franks Florists. The garden club also arranged a similar display in the Charlevoix post Office planter. Members working on the projects were: Bonnie Hicks, Joyce Totten, Karen Joy, Margorie Dinnwiddie, Joanne Zinn, Ruth Francis and Nancy Wood.

Mental health board sponsors camp for handicapped adults

The Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Board will hold a camp for handicapped adults at the Beaver Island Lighthouse property this summer.

Harold J. Kaufman, director of the services board, said the purpose of the camp is to provide an opportunity for vocational recreational and social development in a camp setting for mentally disabled adults 18 years old and up.

The first campers and the camp staff departed from here aboard the motorship "Beaver Islander" Monday for the primitive camp site already established on the lighthouse property by members of the camp staff. Campers and staff will live in tents erected over floors and provided with bare necessities such as cots and eat their meals, work at camp crafts and enjoy indoor recreational facilities in a large all-purpose tent. Lillian Bergmann, Life Consultant After Core Director for the N.M.C.M.H.S. Board who is in charge of client services on the mainland and coordinator for camper services, explained.

She went on to explain that campers will become involved in a work project of renovating and existing building as a camp store and a service project of cleaning up the area. Swimming, woodsmanship and other camping skills as well as camp crafts and planned recreation will be offered by an on-the-site staff of five.

There will be two camp sessions of four weeks each with the sessions being staggered in order to orient campers to the program in small numbers. A total of 20 adults will attend the camp with a maximum of 10 campers attending at one time.

Paul Krepel, director of Little Traverse Enterprises, the new Emmet County Work Activities Center now under construction, is overall director of the camping program. Joining him in organizing the new program is Mrs. Bergmann. Both are already affiliated with the Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Board.

Assisting have been the camp staff headed by Susan Martin of Petoskey, activity therapist for Little Traverse Enterprises, who will be camp director; Linda Hall of Petoskey, assistant camp director; Virginia (Ginger) Berg of Charlevoix, waterfront director, Thomas Martin of Petoskey and Rick Merriner of Charlevoix.

All will double as camp counselors, instructors and work forces.

The entire project is in cooperation with the Charlevoix School District which owns the lighthouse property, the Char-Em Intermediate School District, Department of Social Services and the Grand Haven Public Schools.

AMONG THOSE who were at the municipal dock here Monday to see the first campers depart for the camp on Beaver Island sponsored by the Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Board were Paul Krepel who has organized the program, Ginger Berg of Charlevoix, staff member; Pat Passehl of Bay Shore; Rick Merriner, staff member; Mrs. Lillian Bergmann of Charlevoix; Harold J. 'Sam' Kaufman, Director of the N.M.C.M.H.S. Board and Robert Bergmann. Miss Berg and Merriner accompanied the campers on the trip.

Exhibition tennis raises $800 for Charlevoix hospital

In the first Challenge Cup exhibition match, Ed Mannion and Betty Kenny were pitted against Tooie Dubuque and Girard Brownlow. All the players are members of the Belvedere Club.

People attending the match placed bets on which team they thought would win the game and the proceeds went to the hospital fund.

YOUR FAITH IS NOT CONFINED WITHIN THE CHURCH

The busy lives we lead are like a solid fabric woven into a jumbled pattern of work, recreational pursuits and the personal problems inherent in our material world. Faith is too often omitted from the design; or at best, crowded into a small corner known as Sunday morning. But the message of faith received in Church can re-weave the tangle of doubt and confusion with threads of peace, harmony and order, and mend the raveled edges of trouble; if you will only carry it with you throughout the week. Faith is not confined within the walls of the Church, but that is where it begins.

"So then faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God."
-Romans 10:17

Faith is but an idle canvas,
Flapping on an idle mast,
If it not be found within thee
As the work of life at last.
-Samuel Miller Hageman

POSITION STATEMENT

COMMITTEE FOR PRESERVATION OF ENVIRONMENT, INC.

"We Believe in Charlevoix"

The membership of this committee consists of local, year around residents, summer residents, and other persons who have an interest in the protection and preservation of the natural beauty and environment of this area.

Medusa Cement Company has been operating on South Point for a period of approximately 12 years. We recognize that cement manufacturing facilities such as Medusa can be prime polluters of the environment due to the necessity of their creation of quarries, use of dynamite, grinding and crushing of rock, burning quantities of coal, handling, loading, transporting and disposal of product that has the consistancy of face powder. We accept the fact the Medusa is here, and undoubtedly will stay, and acknowledge the fact that their existence has been of benefit to our community in some cases. However, our group does very strongly feel that because of the product that it manufactures, Medusa has an obligation of responsibility to the community in which it operates, which it has failed to recognize and meet heretofore, and we are, therefore, very concerned regarding the future.

We ask you to look at the plant and the air around you. Do you feel the shock waves of the blasting at the quarry? Have you heard the noise of the rock crushing and grinding equipment at the plant? Were you aware that the excessive emissions from the smoke stack this past winter were caused by efforts to increase production and failure to cease production occasionally to clean and adjust the electrostatic precipators in the plant? Have you seen the mountainous piles of overburden and waste from the kiln which covers many acres, and upon which no vegetation will grow again? Have you smelled the pungent sulphur odor from the smoke stack which can be noticed both in town and many miles from the plant? Have you observed how much more frequently your car and the windows in your home must be washed? Have you observed the die-off of trees in the green belt along Lake Shore Drive?

The membership of this committee has seen, heard and smelled the above, and are truly concerned about the future of our environment and the air we breathe in Charlevoix.

Now Medusa says that they are going to double their production and we are really alarmed. Does this mean doubling the size of the quarry, doubling the amount of blasting, doubling the rock crushing and grinding, etc.? How many more pollutants and odors will be discharged into the air? We have verified that Medusa proposes using a new manufacturing process developed in Japan which has never been used or tested in this country, which process requires a building of over 300 feet in height on our water front – 125 feet above the existing smoke stack. We, frankly, do not like the idea of Charlevoix being used as a guinea pig and testing ground for this new process.

We are unable to accept assurances from Medusa as they, of course, are prejudice. We, therefore, have been compelled to institute suit in the Charlevoix County Circuit Court for impartial review and examination by experts, via an Environmental Impact Statement, of Medusa's proposed fifty million dollar expansion program and their doubling of production. Hopefully, by this process, we can determine the effect of Medusa's proposed actions, and be in a position where we can have control in protecting our environment to the maximum extent possible. We believe in Charlevoix. If you believe, support us and sign the petitions circulating in the community.

Neighbors lend hand to friend

HAY BALERS were everywhere at the farm of Franklin Cellner last week as neighbors came in to help Collner put up his hay. Cellner couldn't do the work so his neighbors pitched in at an all-day work bee.

It was a work bee in the best tradition of American farming.

Friends and neighbors from throughout the country came to Franklin Cellner's place on Ferry Road to help him put up his hay Wednesday morning and they stayed until the job was done.

Cellner suffered a heart attack around Memorial Day and hasn't been able to work his 170-acre farm since then. Doctors have told him he must rest until September or October—well after the farming season is over.

"They (his neighbors) told me the second day after my heart attack not to worry about the hay, that they would help me get it in," Cellner explained from his lawnchair where he was sidewalk superintending the activities.

"So it was no surprise when they showed up."

A few friends and neighbors came to the farm Monday to mow the hay and get it ready for baling. Each man brought his own equipment to Cellner's farm and the group had the 30 acres of hay mowed in no time.

"With seven guys out there cutting all at once, it only took a couple hours," Cellner said.

Then on Wednesday, more than 21 men showed up and went to work baling the 30 acres of mowed hay. Once again they moved their equipment over to Cellner's farm and soon a parade of balers began moving from the fields to the barn.

Later on in the afternoon, fellow employees of Cellner's from Medusa joined the neighbors and finished up the work. The men put up about 4,000 bales of hay.

Although nobody would own up to it, Cellner said his neighbors, Chuck and Carmen Kiteley, arranged the work bee, organizing all the people and machinery.

"Oh, it was the Kiteley family that got this all together," Cellner said, appreciation filling his voice. "They've been helping us right along since I got sick."

The Kiteleys just shrugged their shoulders.

"He had to get his hay in," Mrs. Kiteley said. "And there was no other way."

Cellner said his immediate neighbors as well as friends from Boyne City came to the Ferry Road farm to lend a hand. Ed Rebman, county extension agent, and Bill Grimm, district conservationist, were also on hand.

The farmer also has 14 acres of corn planted which his neighbors will take care of and some beef cattle which his wife and daughters have been feeding during his absence.

Cellner said he has taken part in work bees himself.

"I was involved in one some years ago," he said. "But I never thought there would be one for me.

"It's great."

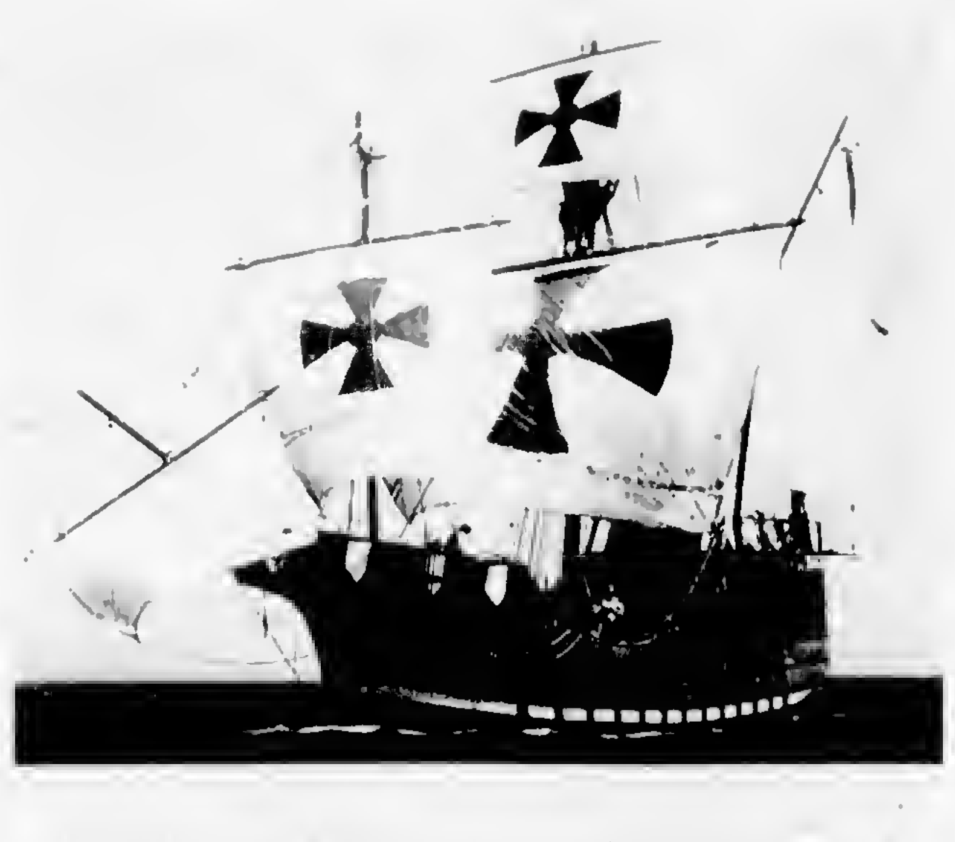
Santa Maria to visit here during Venetian Festival



A REPLICA of the Santa Maria, the flagship of Christopher Columbus, will sail into Charlevoix for the Venetian Festival. The ship will be open for tours to the public and the sailors will be dressed in authentic costume.

Boats of all kinds will be on hand for the 48th annual Venetian Festival including a replica of the ship that Christopher Columbus sailed to the new world more than 200 years ago.

The "Santa Maria," the flagship of the three vessels that sailed to America, will be on Round Lake July 28-30. The square rigger is a three quarter six replica of the original ship and is 94-feet long.

It is a genuine working, sailing vessel and is as close as is possible to a true, factual copy of the ship in which Columbus discovered America.

The ship was constructed by Young American Showcase Inc., of St. Petersburg Florida, as an educational exhibit at a cost of around $400,000 dollars.

A crew of ten mans the ship, and the sailors wear costumes of the 15th century mariners and soldiers.

On her maiden voyage, the ship sailed to New York City as a participant in "Operation Sail" with the Tall Ships. Since then, the Santa Maria has sailed to over 100 ports from St. John, New Brunswick, Canada, to Port Isabel, Tex., providing the public with a floating museum and history lesson.

The ship is now sailing into various coastal cities and towns in the United States and is providing educational field trip programs for students as well as opening to the general public.

Young American Showcase Inc., is planning to continue this project over the next several years.

Construction of bulkhead proposed in East Jordan

Area residents have one month to send comments to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on the proposed construction of a bulkhead in Lake Charlevoix.

Robert F. Cummins of LeCroix Road in East Jordan is proposing to construct a 144-foot wood pile and timber bulk head. along the Lake Charlevoix shoreline. After bulkhead is constructed approximately 80 cubic yards of material will be trucked in to fill the area.

Cummins said the purpose of the work was to provide shore protection.

VASCO ZUCCHIATTI, services supervisor for the Charlevoix Department of Social Services; and Mary Piehl, newly-hired adult community placement social worker; discuss the plans for the new Comprehensive Community Care Project.

Social Services Plans expanded senior program

By PEG OHLE

In an attempt to provide more at-home care for senior citizens and incapacitated clients, the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services has launched a "Comprehensive Community Care Project."

The County is one of six in the State selected to participate in the pilot program designed to help keep people in their homes and out of institutions.

Richard Tillen, Director of the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services, explains that in the past, people have had little or no choice about where they would be cared for.

Vasco Zucchiatti, Services Supervisor for Social Services; Mary Piehl, newly-hired Adult Community Placement Social Worker; Frances Hooper, Head Nurse of District 3 Health Department in Charlevoix County; and Beverly Thorpe, Social Services Bureau of Medical Assistance Social Worker, will head up the program.

It will be Mrs. Piehl's job to make home calls to determine the needs of clients and assess them to determine how best to serve the clients.

The assessments will cover such items as the client's activities of daily living, including housework and chores as well as personal habits; physical health needs; psycho-social needs; and living arrangements (family, friends, etc.).

When the assessment interviews discover certain health needs, the clients will be turned over to the District Health Department for its attention.

Social Services and District 3 Health Department are working together on the project since the Health Department already provides some of the services offered by the new program, such as chore services and home health care.

Zucchiatti points out that it costs around $1,000 a month to keep a patient in a facility such as Grandview. If it is possible to care for that patient at home, the cost could be reduced by $350 to $400 a month.

Persons who can afford to pay for all or part of the home care services will be required to do so, with Social Services picking up the tab for those who can't.

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging will also soon be brought into the picture to coordinate their services with those of Social Services and the Health Department.

WHY HAVE ELECTRICAL PERMITS, FEES?

What's the object of all these electrical permits and fees? We have built before without these inspections and fees. Bureaucracy at work. It's just another way of taking out money. Who needs it?

COMPLAINTS ABOUT CEMETERY ROAD

The cemetery road has chuckholes! Are you listening, Mr. Street Commissioner? Please repair the chuckholes and rough road that winds through our beautifully-kept cemetery. Many people, both local and tourist, visit this quiet sanctuary and it is a jerky road to travel through. I hope our new city manager, Mr. Gaffney, will call this to the attention of the street department.

HAIR PROBLEM

What happened to the health law that says waitresses should wear hair nets? Now we have a different problem. Those little short hairs you find in your food are beard hairs. Only two chefs in Charlevoix do not have a beard.

VANDALISM CLOSED BATHROOMS

To the lady concerned about restrooms:

The Chamber of Commerce bathrooms are supposed to be open every night until 10 p.m. They had to be closed one night recently however, because of repair. The drain cover and tile had been ripped off the floors by vandals and had to be replaced. The cement wouldn't have had time to set if the bathrooms had been open during the regular hours. It's hard to keep the bathrooms in good operating order with all of the vandalizm. Water balloon fights and everything else occurs in the bathrooms when they are left open.

CALLS FOR RESIGNATION

Now that one member of the Road Commission has resigned, it would be nice if the other two did the same thing after what happened at Bell's Bay.

DESERVE TO BE SWAMPED

The Indians need eight Coastguarddsmen to protect them in their illegal activities out on Lake Michigan and now they are callin on the Sheriff's Dept. to help them too. If Holt, on that little charter boat, could swamp them, they ought to be out there when the Beaver Islander goes by because the waves are 3 times as high as other boats. Nobody but a fool would be out on Lake Michigan last Saturday or Sunday in a 12' boat.

Medusa pledges $75,000 to fundraising campaign

Hospital reaches one-third of goal

A pledge of $75,000 by the Medusa Corporation to the Charlevoix Area Hospital fundraising campaign has moved the hospital one-third of the way down the road to its $750,000 goal.

Scott A. Rogers, president and chief executive officer of Medusa Corporation, made the $75,000 pledge to the hospital fundraising campaign during a special press conference at the hospital Monday afternoon.

Medusa is the first organization outside of the "hospital family" to make a contribution to the campaign. The hospital family, consisting of physicians, employees, board members and the womens guild, has already pledged $150,000 toward the expansion and renovation program.

"We have admiration at Medusa for the manner in which the hospital has done its job for the community," Rogers said. "We like to support successful operations such as the Charlevoix Area Hospital."

Rogers pointed out that the $75,000 pledge was the largest the company had ever given to any organization in the history of the corporation.

"This was an opportunity for Medusa to do something constructive here within the community and we're glad to do it," Rogers said. "We have quarries in 67 other cities and major cement plants in seven other communities, so we have many communities to support.

"But we went all the way here, not just to show support for El Kaiser, plant manager who is serving on the hospital board of directors, but also to show our appreciation for the service the hospital has given."

Medusa employees have used the hospital emergency facilities on occasion due to work-related injuries and many Medusa employees and their families use the services on a regular basis, Richard Krueger, hospital administrator, said.

Rogers said the company would be presenting the hospital with $25,000 in cash during the summer and then would pay off the rest of the pledge over the next five years.

"We're pleased to accept this pledge and to acknowledge that with the money that the hospital family donated this puts us one-third of the way down the road toward our total fund drive effort," Glenn Kenney, chairman of the fundraising campaign, said.

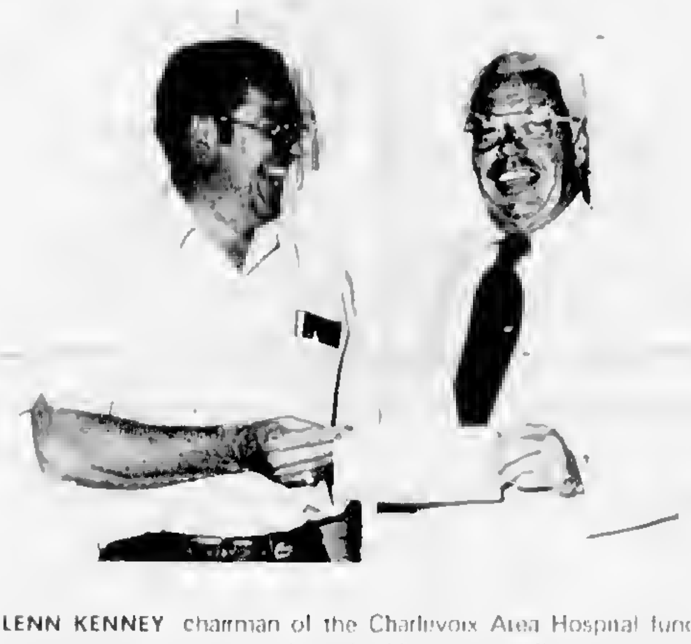
"We know that with this kind of example we can be assured of our success in the fundraising drive."

The hospital is proposing to construct a $2.1 million expansion and renovation at the facility that will provide 15,000 square feet of new space and that will provide additional room within the hospital for expansion of various departments.

Departments that will be affected by the expansion are: radiology, electrocardiology, emergency services, general medical surgical supply and storage, inhalation therapy, out-patient services, physical therapy, clinical laboratory and surgical support services.

Construction of the new space and the renovation is expected to begin in July, 1979 and to be completed by December, 1980.

The remainder of the funds for the project will be raised through grants, loans or public bonds.



GLENN KENNEY chairman of the Charlevoix Area Hospital fundraising campaign, accepts a pledge for $75,000 from Scott Rogers, president and chief executive officer of Medusa Corporation. The hospital has now moved about one-third of the way toward its goal of $750,000 for its expansion and renovation project.

Medusa plans to clean up

Medusa Cement Co. plans to take steps to clean up the fugitive dust problems at its Charlevoix plant that the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has said are in violation of its pollution guidelines.

Scott Rogers, president and executive officer of Medusa Corporation, said the company would be taking steps to correct any deficiencies cited by the DNR.

"The DNR always has to be dealt with carefully, professionally and technically, " Rogers said. "And we plan to do whatever is necessary.

"We've never had any problem before."

Elbert Kaiser, plant manager, said most of the DNR complaints centered around the fugitive dust problem. Kaiser said the construction at the plant and the strike had aggravated the problem.

"During the strike we operated without our regular personnel and some things didn't get done," Kaiser pointed out. "We had to operate completely without an vendor assistance. No one would cross the picket lines and that included the chloride trucks.

Rogers said the company was not trying to blame the strike for the problems.

"We are concerned about any violations and we're not trying to excuse them away with the strike, but that did play a part in things," Rogers said

Rogers said the company was also concerned about local citizen concern about the upcoming expansion and renovation at the plant and the affects they may have on pollution in the area.

"We realize that Charlevoix has a special climate and we want to protect it not only for the summer, short term resident but for the year round residents and our employees and their families and neighbors and friends," the corporation president said.

"We're not going to spend five times what the other cement companies do with their plants, but it takes a little extra to get things done, we will spend it.

"We haven't ever put more money into enginerering and design than we have in Charlevoix

Rogers said he realized it was hard for people to believe that doubling the production would not double the problems, but he was sure that there would be no additional problems.

"We have a great opportunity with the expansion to improve everything from sound to looks to odor. And we're betting our whole company on it.

"This is our only project during 1978-80."

Dr. Howard Tanner, DNR director, issued a warning to the cement company that it faces renovation of its permit to operate the Charlevoix plant unless it cleans up operations there.

Tanner issued the warning during a regular monthly meeting of the Natural Resources Commission at the Petoskey Holiday Inn Thursday. The warning came after an appeal for on environmental impact study of the plans for the $50 million expansion, currently underway at the plant, by the Committee for Preservation of the Environment, Inc.

Richard Aull, spokesman for the committee, made the appeal for the impact statement. Aull pointed out that there was growing concern in Charlevoix about the possibility of greater pollution in the area due to the doubling of production resulting from the planned expansion of facilities.

Ken Winter awarded National Endowment for study of history, law at U-M

The general manager and former editor of the Charlevoix Courier has been awarded a $15,000 National Endowment for the Humanities fellowship.

Kenneth M. Winter, 27, is one of 12 journalists nationwide who will be taking a nine-month leave of absence to study at the University of Michigan beginning September 1.

The purpose of the fellowship program is to offer journalists an opportunity to stand back from their work and study the historical, social, cultural and philosophical dimensions of their profession. Winter will be studying relations between press and government – history and law.

Winter has been active as a journalist since he was a teenager. As a youth, he was hired by the Lansing State Journal on an experimental basis. During his college years he continued to work for the newspaper in the news and circulation departments.

Following college graduation he worked for the Petoskey News-Review for eight months before returning to the State Journal as an area reporter and later as the director of public service at the paper. He also taught journalism at Lansing Community College.

He became editor of the Charlevoix Courier in the spring of 1974. In less than two years, the paper received 12 awards for journalism excellence in state and national newspaper competition.

In 1976, Winter was named one of 30 finalists nationwide for the White House Fellowship program. He was also named to the newly created position of assistant general manager of the News-Review, remaining as general manager and vice president of the weekly Courier, a subsidiary of the News-Review's parent company, Northern Michigan Review, Inc. He also edits the News-Review's Graphic Resorter during the summer.

Locally, he is a director and treasurer of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, member of the Petoskey Kiwanis Club, Petoskey Retail Board, Crooked Tree Arts Council, Little Traverse Historical Society, Charlevoix Yacht Club and Historical Society of Michigan.

Let's Talk Real Estate

by Jim Thomas

For years, easy chair philosophers have said that land is the only sure investment. Real estate investing is certainly very profitable in many cases, but it is not a sure fire investment. You must be very careful when purchasing property, whether it is open land or has a building on it. Make sure you know what you expect out of the property before you purchase. Are you interested in a long term investment? Short term? Do you want to develop the land? Do you want to resell it for development? Is it accessible by road and for utilities? Is it for vacationing? Is it for personal use? These are only a few questions you must consider before you buy anything.

If you are looking for building lots visit the office of THOMAS REAL ESTATE, 101 Bridge St., 547-4494. Although we are residential specialists we also can help you in this area. You will find our office most relaxing and our view overlooking the Pine River Channel. "Do Business Where Business is Being Done." Hours: Daily 9-5, evenings and Sun. by appointment.

Boaters find much to praise about visits to Charlevoix

What's the best thing about Charlevoix?

Well, there isn't any one best thing, there are several, according to boaters docked at the municipal harbor in the Round Lake Yacht Basin, and it keeps them coming back for more.

For instance, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Oringer and Dr. and Mrs. Milton Jacobs, all of West Bloomfield, have been coming to the Charlevoix area for years.

"I've been coming to this area for about 28 years," Dr. Jacobs said as he sat comfortably on the deck of his yacht as it was moored at the city dock. "We always spend time here either on vacation or when we take the kids to camp."

"We always made a point of coming here even when the kids went to camp in other areas," Mrs. Jacobs added. "We just like it here so much."

This is the fourth year that the Oringers have boated to Charlevoix.

"This is the only harbor we know of on the Great Lakes that is protected," Dr. Oringer explained. "You're always protected here. Just like right now, it's rough on the big lake, but it's very pleasant here."

In addition to the protected harbor, the two couples said they also liked the harbor masters at Charlevoix.

"We've always liked the harbor masters here, no matter who they have been," Dr. Jacobs said. "And the other boaters that come here are nice too and so is almost everybody."

The four West Bloomfield residents said they enjoyed all of the restaurants, the shops and the people.

"There are good mechanics in this harbor, too," Dr. Jacobs said. "And everyone is so willing to help when you need it."

The couples said their friends liked to drive up and meet them on the boat and especially when they were docked in Charlevoix. And the four said they enjoyed making new friends with people walking along the docks.

Other tourists often stop as they walk along the harbor to ask questions about the boat and to learn more about the owners, the two couples said.

Another yachter who has been coming to Charlevoix for a long time is Herb Ennis of Chicago. Ennis has been visiting Charlevoix for the past eight years.

"We like the lake and the harbor," Ennis said. "And the town is really nice, fun, and there's good shopping.

"Between Charlevoix, Petoskey, and Harbor Springs we feel this is the great triangle and we like to stop here.

"I guess we keep coming back because we can't think of any reason not, too.'"

Marvin and Audrey VonAswege, also from the Chicago area, like Charlevoix enough to have been docking here for 15 years.

"It's nice to come to one of the prettiest towns we know of," VonAswege said explaining why the couple keeps coming back.

The Chicago couple also enjoys seeing their boating friends and making new friends at the Charlevoix dock.

Another visitor who has been coming to Charlevoix for more than a decade is John Roehrig of Ludington.

Charlevoix is the most beautiful place we know of," the sailor said explaining why he and his family have been coming here for 15 years.

"And the people do things differently here. The town is so clean and the people are su nice. It's just a garden spot here."

The Roehrigs spend a week or so in the area every year and always enjoy it.

"Anybody who says anything bad about this place has got to be crazy," the boater added

BOATS FILL the city docks in the Round Lake Yacht Basin throughout the summer months. There are many reasons that boaters list for coming to the Charlevoix harbor. Beauty and cleanliness of the city are two of the reasons most often mentioned.

SOME BOATERS who visit Charlevoix every year are Dr. and Mrs. Richard Oringer and Dr. and Mrs. Milton Jacobs all from West Bloomfield. The two couples enjoy the beauty of Charlevoix as well as the shops and the people when they visit.

Rash of new tax proposals hits state legislators

By PEG OHLE

State legislators are as much concerned about property taxes as are taxpayers, if the rash of new tax bills in the legislature means anything.

A survey by the Michigan Township Association of bills recently introduced indicates that there are nine having to do with property taxes. In capsule form, the bills are:

House Bill 6417, Representative Cawthorne. Permits payments of property taxes in six equal installments; permits additional fee.

House Bill 6437, Representative Mueller Permits persons to pay property taxes in six installments.

Senate Bill 1562, Senator Guastello. Includes 1976 disputed property tax cases whereby they must be protested before the board of review before the tax tribunal may acquire jurisdiction.

Senate Bill 1563, Senator Guastello. Provides, subject to the general court rules, the costs incurred by a local taxing unit in the defense of an assessment appeal in which the total amount in dispute exceeds $100,000 shall be shared pro rata with the other taxing units which are parties to the case.

House Bill 6379, Representative Jacobetti. Freezes property values for three years.

House Bill 6381, Representative Barcia. Provides for information on tax notice of year or period for which taxes are set.

House Bill 6896, Representative Ostling. Prohibits increases in property assessments more than once every three years.

Seante Bill 1588, Senator Welborn. Permits township boards of review to meet in closed session, upon request of property owner, to review assessment of person's property.

Those with ideas, pro or con, on any of the above bills should write their representative or senator in Lansing.

Friends of library sponsor meeting with local author

Charlevoix residents will have a chance to meet the author from 4-5 p.m. July 27 at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Ellen Williamson, a Charlevoix summer resident, will be on hand to autograph copies of her latest book, "When We Went First Class."

In her book, which includes several chapters on summering in Michigan and particularly in Charlevoix, Miss Williamson chronicles what it was like to travel and live in the 1920s, '30s and '40s.

The heiress of the Quaker Oats fortune, describes travel when maps and paved roads were nonexistent in locomobiles and Pierce Arrows. And she mentions travelling first class on the great ocean liners and in private Pullman Car.

The 70-year-old author now calls New York City her hume, but she still travels extensively nd continues to summer in Charlevoix. She is also the author of "Wall Street Made Easy," and "Spend Yourself Rich."

The special program featuring Miss Williamson is being sponsored by the Friends of the Charlevoix Library.

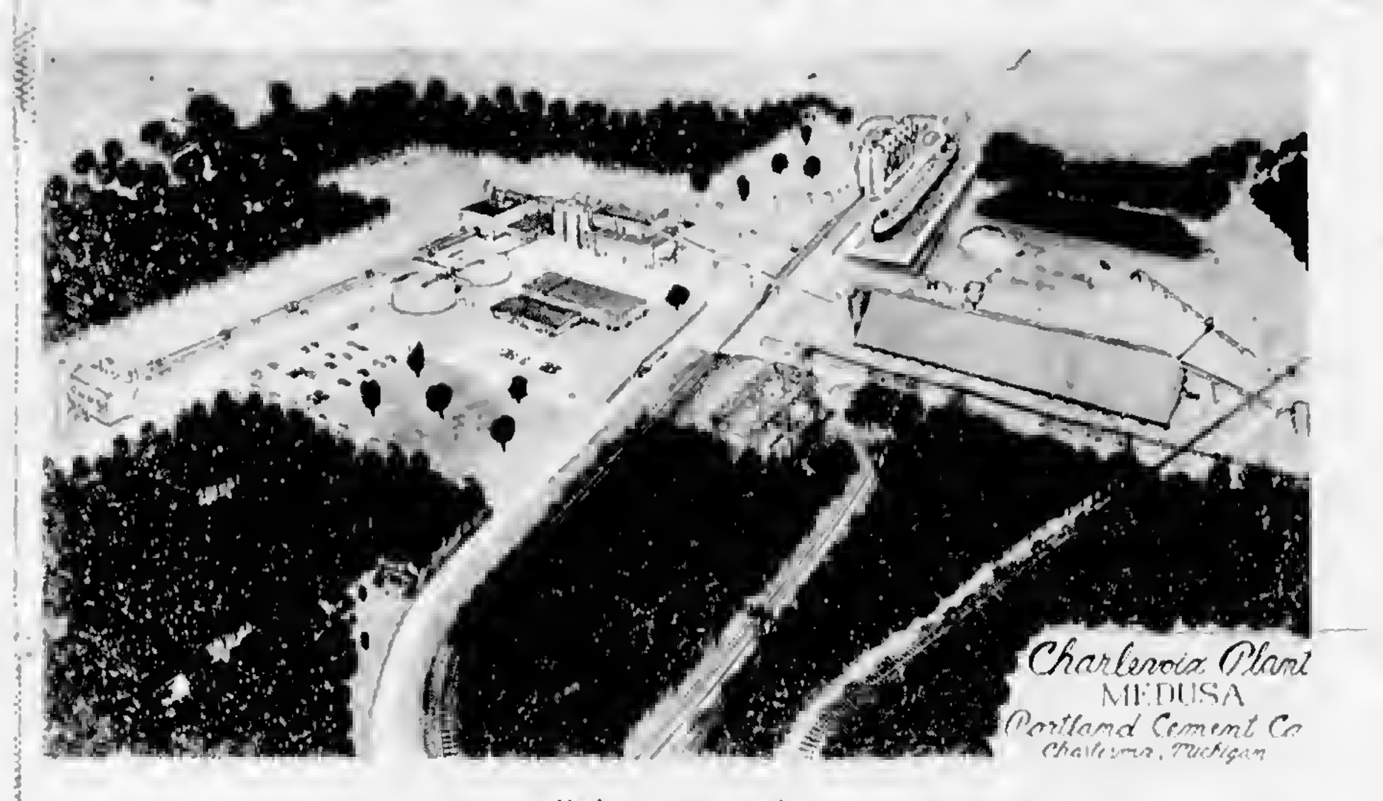
Medusa must answer to charges by DNR



Medusa as proposed

Medusa today

Just this week the company announced it had pledged $75,000 to the Charlevoix Area Hospital expansion and renovation fund drive.

The cement company, located on South Point on Lake Michigan, is also sponsoring the performance of the internationally renown Gentlemans Agreement barbershop quartet at the 48th Annual Venetian Festival in 10 days. And it has pledged to pay all costs beyond $10,000 for the construction and paving of Bells Bay Road.

These are all wonderful things that the cement company is doing for the community and area residents and visitors, no doubt, appreciate the company's generosity very much.

In fact, after looking at all of the contributions Medusa has made to the area this summer, the corporation looks like an ideal neighbor.

But, for all the noise the company is making about its fine contributions to the community during these past three months, it has remained surprisingly quiet about another contribution it has been making to the community during the same time period.

A fine layer of dust, which is sometimes accompanied by the odor of rotten eggs, has been spreading over the community, from the cement plant at the same time Medusa has been spreading its goodwill.

Some area residents have noticed the dust on their porches and in their window sills. Boaters have noticed it on their boats and complain that such dust is the reason they no longer visit another Great Lakes port, Alpena.

Car dealership owners have found the dust on the cars in their lots and often have to take vinegar to their cars to get rid of the particles dulling the shine of new paint jobs.

For a while, the area residents and visitors put up with the dust and odor as part of the price they had to pay for having industry and year-round jobs for local residents.

But, after a while, the protests began. At first the people were labeled crazy and fanatical, but they kept on and became even more concerned when the company announced plans for expansion that would double production. More than 1,000 people have now signed petitions saying they are concerned about the proposed expansion and that they want to see an environmental impact statement completed before the company expands.

Many of the people claim that the cement company has not kept the promises it made when it first moved here. Now they wonder about the current promises and if they will be kept.

But the people of the area and the tourists and summer residents aren't the only ones who are concerned.

The Department of Natural Resourses is also concerned. In fact, the DNR is so concerned that it has told Medusa to clean up its act or shut down its operation.

Conditions at the plant were described as terrible and in violation of the law.

But still we have heard nothing from Medusa. No explanations, no plan for improved control of existing dust. No apology.

The community appreciates Medusa's generosity, but it takes more than a summer of generosity to make a good neighbor.

...Speaking Her Mind

I received some angry phone calls last week about Mike Ready's column in the Traverse City Record-Eagle, which was reprinted in the July 12 issue of the Charlevoix Courier.

The people making the phone calls felt that Grandvue Medical Care Facility had been handed a raw deal and that Ready had not researched his facts thoroughly. They also felt that his column only served to repeat some old stereotypes and stigmas which really aren't true about medical care facilities and nursing homes in general any more.

In his column, EReady, a former Charlevoix resident and area newspaper editor, presents a case for the development of senior citizen housing complexes. Ready argued that providing senior citizen housing complexes where the area's elderly citizens can live without financial burden in pleasant surroundings among friends, would help keep elderly people young, active both mentally and physically, and contributing members of our society.

Ready told a story about two of his Charlevoix niighbors who couldn't keep up their homes and because there are no senior housing complexes in Charlevoix, eventually ended up as patients in the Grandvue Medical Care Facility. The two elderly people were slowly losing control of their faculties and Ready felt that because they were in the nursing home where they weren't challenged by the daily responsibilities of maintaining their homes and themselves that they deteriorated even more.

The point the Courier was trying to make by reprinting the column was that there is a need for senior housing complexes in Charlevoix. We weren't trying to criticize Grandvue or its very capable staff.

In the past, the Courier has been very supportive of Grandvue and has always tried to be. And we believe that the residents of Charlevoix County feel the same way. Evidence of the support county residents feel for Grandvue is especially obvious in the approvol of the one mill for construction at the facility which voters approved two years ago.

The Courier and the county is also proud of the fact that Grandvue is probably one of the first medical care facilities in the state to plan to construct a supervised residential care wing which does provide an alternative to the medical care facility patient. In the supervised care wing, the residents will be free to come and go and will eat meals together in the dining room instead of in their beds as patients who need constant care do.

The new wing will provide an alternative living area for people who need just a little supervision and medical attention.

The Courier is also supportive of the new program initiated by the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services, the adult comprehensive community care program, that will provide alternative living arrangements for the county's senior citizens.

However, the point the Courier wanted to make in printing Ready's column was that Charlevoix needs senior housing. And it needs good senior housing where a recreation area and programs are provided for the senior citizens and where a building superintendent is on hand to make sure that necessary repairs and snow removal takes place.

Dignity is important to people. They like to take care of themselves in their own homes or apartments as long as is possible. Charlevoix should help its seniors retain their dignity.

Senior housing is another alternative to nursing home care that the county and the Courier could be proud of.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

Agriculture has to be one of the riskiest businesses in the world today, judging from the appearance of area cornfields that have been denied a good soaking rain for the past month.

Extension workers tell us that unless relief comes soon, substantial crop losses are expected throughout Northern Michigan.

The funny thing about the drought – if there can be anything funny about natural calamities – is that it is so spotty. The Petoskey area had an overnight rainfall more than a week ago, giving crops and gardens a good soaking. Charlevoix received a few drops and that was it.

It is strange that as the world approaches the year 2000 that so little is known in the field of weather control. To be sure, rainmakers are gaining quite a reputation in some parts of the country, but their work can't be guaranteed 100 percent or anything close to it.

Furthermore, a host of legal questions remain to be solved over wha owns the rain clouds overhead. If Charlevoix County milks thunderheads drifting in from Lake Michigan, can Emmet, Otsego and Antrim counties sue for theft of potential rainfall?

And who is to blame if the rainmakers conjur up a hailstorm, which can be just as devastating as a drought?

The weather is one of the last elements in the human experience to thumb its nose at analysis and regulation. Man can fly to the moon and plunge to the bottom of the ocean. But he can't harness tornadoes or even predict them with absolute accuracy.

The weather certainly has frustrated farmers since the beginning of time. It is ironic that the very weather conditions which may rob them of their livelihood – hot, dry, cloudiness days – have proven a boon to Northern Michigan's other major industry – tourism.

+++

IF THE CITY Council has a few dollars to spare in its present budget, it might want to look into the purchase of a pump and a few yards of hose to rig up some kind of irrigation system at Depot Beach, which has turned waffle-grawn during the recent drought.

The wiry grass has become a gigantic Brillo pad in recent weeks and it is tough on the winter-tender feet of picnickers, bathers, volley ball players and others who make use of the park area during the summer.

It also looks like the devil.

Water could be dumped directly from the lake to pravide a green oasis for those of us who have given up the battle to keep our lawns fresh and green.

If the city is really flush, it might even hook up sprinklers to the present city water supply at the beach, much as it does at East Park on Round Lake.

+++

IN THE SAME vein, I wish the city would give its water customers a break on water bills during the summer as was the custom in years past.

Today, water users are billed more than triple for every drop of water they draw from city lines. The first billing is for water alone, Then a whopping sewage charge is added.

For example, if you use $11 worth of water a month, you can expect to pay about $26 in sewage charges. All of which is unfair during the summer when some use considerable water on shrubs and lawns. This water never enters the sewage system and we should not be billed for it.

I propose that the city estimate residential water bills in June, July and August on the amount of water consumed in March, April and May before we have started our own private campaigns to keep Charlevoix green and beautiful.

The present billing system may not be illegal, but it is as unfair as all get out. Think about it.

Griffin's pro-noun

Many of his supporters were dismayed when Republican Robert P. Griffin reneged on his promise to not seek reelection to the U.S. Senate. They couldn't believe that their man could be a double-crosser.

These supporters are feeling better this week. It has now become clear that it wasn't really Griffin who changed his mind and stabbed his buddy. It was his pronouns.

U.S. Rep. Philip E. Ruppe was not kicked in the groin by Sen. Griffin. He did it. But it wasn't Griffin.

It was a personal reference – a pronoun. It could have been him or he or even who. It might have been I or me. But it wasn't Griffin's idea to perform a flip-flop. It was his idea.

If you're not a U.S. senator, you probably find all of this confusing. You probably don't understand how a pronoun can be different from its noun. Stick around. I'm going to explain.

If you care at all, you remember that it was in April 1977 that Griffin announced he was tired of being a Michigan senator and would quit at the end of his present term. Several Republicans immediately said they'd like to take his place. One of the candidates was Rep. Ruppe of Houghton. He said his good friend Griffin encouraged him to run for the Senate instead of the House in the GOP primary.

A year later, Griffin said he had reconsidered and would run again after all. He had the vigorous support of Gov. Milliken and the GOP machinery. Ruppe and the other Republican candidates were screwed.

Naturally, Griffin received much criticism. He always has projected a nice-guy image. There were even some political observers who thought Griffin was as nice as Milliken, who has become unbeatable by being nicer than Doris Day. So how could Griffin commit such a dirty deed against his good friend Phil Ruppe?

It was a question that could have cost Griffin considerable votes, except for a revelation with an ironic twist. Ruppe and all the other Republican candidates – except one – dropped out of the Senate race in the face of Griffin's flip-flop. The lone exception was L. Brooks Patterson, Oakland County's ubiquitous prosecutor. And it was Patterson who inadvertently struck the spark that led to the disclosure that it was Griffin's pronouns, not Griffin, that double-crossed Ruppe.

Patterson was upset by a newsletter mailed out by Griffin at taxpayers' expense – about $100,000 worth. Patterson claimed that the newsletter was blatant political propaganda. He said it violated Senate rules restricting the number of times a senator may put a picture of himself in a single newsletter.

The limit is 4 pictures per newsletter. It seemed that Griffin's photo appeared 5 times in 4 pages. Patterson recently filed a lawsuit against Griffin and also complained to the Senate Ethics Committee. And this is when an awed nation learned that sometimes a picture is not a picture.

One of Griffin's 5 pictures was part of the masthead of his newsletter. Last March the ethics committee ruled that a masthead picture of a senator should not be counted as a picture. Rather, it should be counted as a "personal reference."

Senators are allowed to refer to themselves, via the usual pronouns such as I, me or he, 5 times per newsletter page. And if the senator's picture appears in the masthead, the picture is a pronoun, or vice versa.

The conclusion is obvious: If a senator's pronouns are pictures, the pronouns can't also be senators. So it wasn't Sen. Griffin who put the screws to his friend Ruppe; it was his pronouns. It certainly wasn't Doris Day.

All of which you may think is the silliest thing you ever read, but don't gripe. This newspaper cost you only a few cents. It costs around $2½ million to keep 1 U.S. senator in office for 1 year.

And that's a silly amount of money to pay clowns for the miracle of the pronouns and pictures. You could get loaves and fishes cheaper.

Letters to the editor

Board explains decision

To the Citizens of the Charlevoix School District:

The Charlevoix Board of Education has adopted an election resolution which will request voter approval of a bonding proposal of 3.2 million dollars for an addition and renovation to the Charlevoix High School on Tuesday, September 12, 1978.

This same issue in various forms has been defeated by the voters for the past ten years. Why, then, is the Board holding another election?

The answer is very simple. It is the responsibility of the Board of Education to provide the best education available for the children of our community, and this addition is absolutely necessary.

Our school has been warned that we will lose accreditation due to the overcrowded conditions and inadequate facilities.

The school is designed for 478 students and 840 students were enrolled last year.

There are approximately 50 students who cannot take science this year because there is no space available for other science lab and our present labs are used every hour of the day.

There will be major energy conservation because we will be connecting the two buildings and eliminating portable classrooms. Students will no longer have to go outside to change classes.

During the next two months our community will have a chance to think about the future of our children's education in Charlevoix.

Since the property tax is the one chance voters have of showing their dissatisfaction with their taxes, it is very tempting to say "we cannot pay anymore!"

However it is time for our community to take a closer look at what we are saving in light of what we are sacrificing.

It is time for our community to decide if we are willing to maintain our educational standards and accreditation.

It is time for our senior citizens to realize that they can vote for education rather than their pocketbooks because of new tax rebates, and the school's business office will be happy to assist anyone with questions concerning this.

More will be said about this bonding proposal in the next two months, and we sincerely urge all voters to give this issue serious and thoughtful consideration. Our chilrean and their education depend on you.

Sincerely,
The Charlevoix Board of Education

Former staff member offers defense of Grandvue

To the Editor:

Regarding Mike Ready's June 17th column, "Alternatives for Oldsters," I cannot agree with him more - there is indeed a great need for more homes like Riverview Terrace Senior Citizen Housing center. On the other hand, I feel compelled to defend Grandvue, Charlevoix County's medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

I was on the staff of Grandvue for 12 years and was the social worker for 10 years. Mr. Ready's friend, Mary, is also my friend and I must disagree with his statement that "She babbles incoherently and looks at the walls." I must also disagree with him when he states - "There is no laughter and no sorrow at Grandvue."

I remember Mr. Ready's visits to Mary, but I think that he was never there long enough to see her and more of the other old folks enjoying themselves at one of the many parties or laughing and clapping for a band or dancing group who regularly come in to entertain. I'm sure that he never saw Mary every Friday morning on her way to the chapel for Mass or on Wednesdays and Sundays when she also attended the Protestant services! I wonder if he ever saw her in the beauty shop, at least once a week, having her hair done by one of the faithful volunteers; or saw her with her nails newly manicured and pink with polish because one of the aides took the time to do it for her because it pleased her so much.

When Mary went to Grandvue it was because she could not possibly manage at home any longer. She had neighbors and friends but one cannot expect them to give the 24-hour care that she needed. At this time she was desperately in need of continuous medical and nursing care. If she could have functioned in a senior citizens center, the Department of Social Services would have made the arrangements for her, or at least have put her name on a waiting list. At that time, however, she was confused and disoriented and was not able to do even the simplest things for herself.

And so, the alternative for her was Grandvue, where she has lived for the past eight years, most of them happily, I believe. She is served good, nourishing food, she is bathed regularly and has a comfortable, clean bed. It is not ideal, to be sure; but she is not alone. She is surrounded by a staff of kind people who care about her and she will not be alone when she dies, and "her old body will not be carried out unnoticed."

I have not missed the point of your article, Mr. Ready. I only want your readers to know that Grandvue is not the hopeless, dreary place that you portray. Many former residents have been rehabilitated so that they were able to return to their own home or to live in an adult foster care home or in a senior citizens residence. If one is never able to reach this point, then he lives out his life at Grandvue where he is treated with dignity and respect. I feel sure that this is what will happen to our friend, Mary.

Grandvue offers alternative

To the Editor:

A copy of Mike Ready's article, When You're Ready - Alternatives for Oldsters, dated Saturday, June 17, 1978, has just been brought to my attention, and I feel it warrants a reply.

I have been employed at Grandvue (note spelling) for 10 years, and feel that as one of the "oldsters" - staffwise, anyhow, I can speak with some clarity. I feel very strongly that Mike has given your readers a very slanted opinion of what Grandvue is and what our residents are like. True, some of them "babble incoherently and look at the walls," but these people are a minority.

For the most part, our readers are much the same as the elderly anywhere - your grandparents, my neighbors, our friends we meet in every day living. The only difference between "those on the outside" and "these on the inside" is that our residents have reached a point in life where they are no longer able to care for themselves, but it for a short while or for the rest of their lifetime. While it is true that some do come to Grandvue never to return to their homes, many do leave - still alive - to resume their place in society, whether it be returning to their own homes or going to live at an Adult Foster Care home.

While they are residing here, our residents keep mentally and physically active, each to his own capacity. There are programs every day to strengthen their bodies and sharpen their minds, and those able to participate are encouraged to do so. Of course there are those unable to do anything for themselves. And there are those whose

Various claims have been made for specific foods at different periods. The stress on fish as a brain food, celery as a nerve tonic, and onions to cure a cold are examples of exaggerated claims made for specific foods. The claims by some faddists for yogurt as a superfood provide another illustration. Yogurt is a fine food but it is not the only food with the same available nutrients. We should all exercise caution in accepting sweeping claims about specific food products.

Meet Charlevoix

...Eleanor Carson

By PEG OIHLE

Eleanor Carson is one of the busiest ladies in town. This week she tells the Courier about some of her activities, past and present.

Courier: Perhaps we'll begin by asking what organizations you have been active in.

Carson: I've been a director of the Child Guidance Clinic and the Children's Aid and Family Service in Traverse City. I served for 15 years on the board of the Charlevoix Area Hospital and worked hard to get the new building built in the 1950's. Also afterward, when I followed up on the pledges until they were all paid. We are fortunate in having a hospital here – there's more of a personal touch than in the cities where no one knows you.

I've been president of the Women's Fellowship of the Congregational Church. Right now I serve with Fred Willis on a Salvation Army Committee that examines needs and distributes help to people in emergencies. We're going to have a Salvation Army Tag Day again this year, with the help of the Kiwanis Club. All of the money that's raised goes to the needy, none for administration. The Salvation Army also gets some help from the Community Chest. I believe in doing things locally so you can see the good that's being done.

I belong to the Charlevoix Women's Club and give book reviews for them and other organizations. It's about a girl who went to Alaska to teach.

COURIER: How do you go about preparing for a book review?

CARSON: I read the book first, then go back and make notes on what I want to talk about.

COURIER: What are your hobbies?

CARSON: I like to garden. I do all the work around the house myself except the edging.

COURIER: What about sports?

CARSON: I play golf, sometimes in the women's tournaments. The best score I ever had was 44 for nine holes. In the winter, I often play 18 holes in Florida. I enjoy bowling – belong to a women's afternoon league, the "Gutter Gals." I really like all sports. I watch the Tigers on TV, also the golf tournaments. And I usually follow the players in the Michigan Am tournament.

COURIER: What else do you do in your spare time?

CARSON: I also play in the bridge tournament each year and belong to a duplicate bridge group. I love to read too, and buy the books I think I'll want to keep.

COURIER Have you travelled?

CARSON: Yes, all over Europe. I liked Switzerland and Austria the best. I've also been to Alaska. I couldn't believe that the Penney's store in Anchorage had 21 beauty operators and the largest book department I've ever seen. On the longest day of the year up there, they have a ball game at midnight.

COURIER: Where did you grow up?

CARSON: I was born in Hamilton, Ontario and later lived in the little lumbering town of Deward, near Frederick. My father had a little store there. In those days, there were a lot of lumber camps in the area and I remember wandering away one day to a camp and having lunch with the loggers. Later we moved to East Jordan and my husband started the lumber business in Charlevoix. He sold it to Glenn Kenney, who was one of his salesmen. Glenn kept the name of Kit Carson Lumber Company.

COURIER: Your late husband served on the County Board of Commissioners, didn't he?

CARSON Yes, for many years and he was also mayor of East Jordan.

COURIER Did you ever work?

CARSON: I taught school in Kalamazoo and East Jordan and did some substituting in Charlevoix. I taught kindergarten and first grade. I loved kindergarten.

COURIER: Do you have a family?

CARSON: Our son, Kit Jr, lives in Lansing and works for IBM. He has five children, Casey (who's really Kit, 3rd), Kelly, Christopher, Kirk and Corey.

He plans on construction 50 cubic yards of stone riprap for a total distance of 208 feet. This will be backfilled with about 300 cubic yards of coarse gravel covered with topsoil and seeded.

The purpose of the construction is to provide shore protection.

People may send their comments to the Corps of Engineers, at: Department of the Army, Detroit District, Corps of Engineers, Box 1027, Detroit 48231. Comments should refer to process number 780858C / 78-5-49.

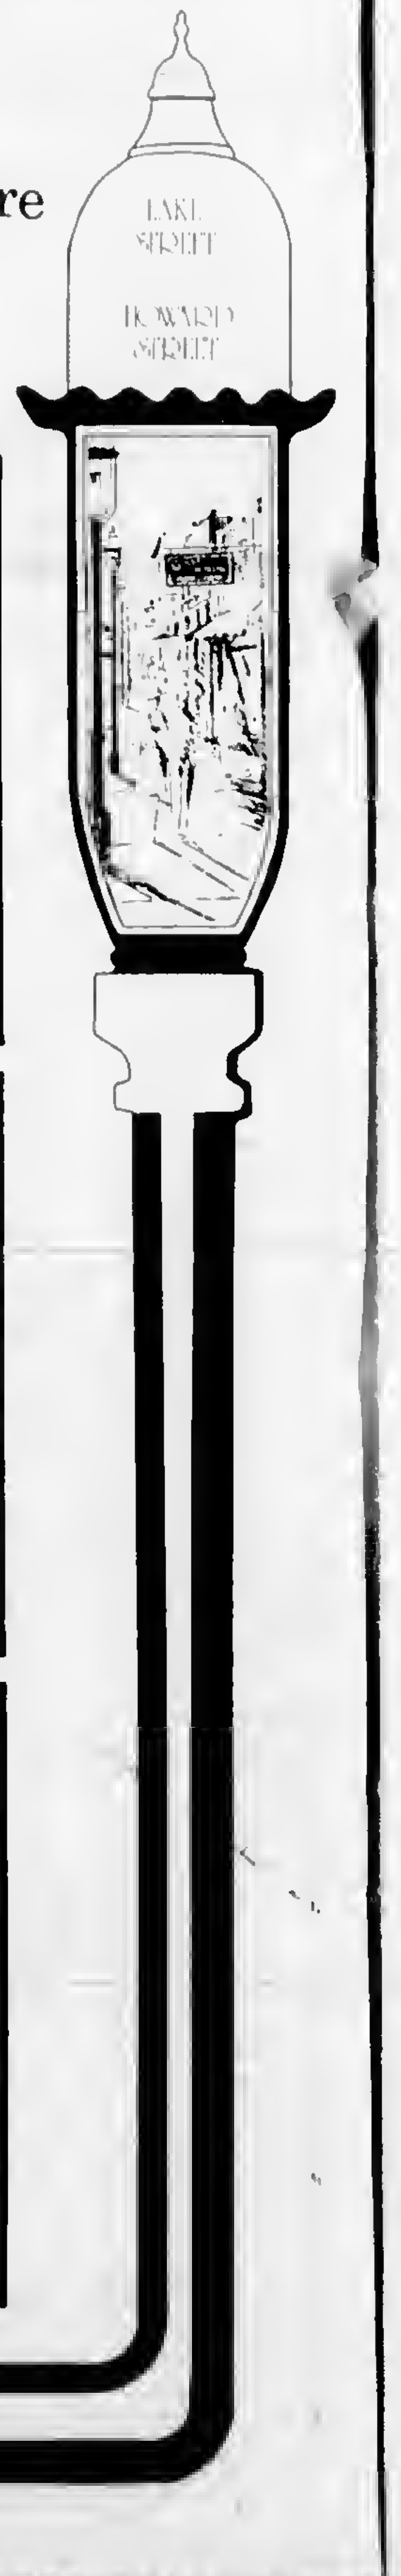
Petoskey, Michigan



Little Traverse Bay has quiet beauty and unforgettable charm When the setting sun spreads its radiance over the waters, it is indeed lovely from the vantage point of the limestone cliff on which the city of Petoskey now stands, the setting sun provides a spectacular show. The Indians created a legend about it. Since the first settlers and sightseers arrived over one hundred years ago, the beauty of the sunset has been a thing of wonder and awe to all.

Very few white people had seen a sunset over Little Traverse Bay on that late fall day in 1863, when the first train whistled to a stop at the end of its line--

On board was a reporter for a Grand Rapids newspaper, who in reporting on the wilderness scenery, dubbed it Petoskey's Million Dollar Sunset

The metamorphosis of Petoskey was rapid It grew from a small Indian settlement at the mouth of Bear river, to a dynamic, busy village catering to the needs of sightseers and homesteaders To house the visitors, the Arlington and other luxury hotels were constructed overnight Rooming houses for the less affluent were soon to follow

By 1890 a substantial number of shops had sprung up along the main street, creating a very unique pioneer shopping area Along the Bear River waterpower was harnessed to run sawmills flour mills, hardwood flooring industries, butter bowl factories, and furniture-making industries The limestone cliffs along Little Traverse Bay provided Petoskey with lime, a natural resource of great importance to the industrial development of the town

Little steamers plied the Bay, and the summer visitors who registered at Petoskey hotels and rooming houses took advantage of the many excursions offered The most popular trip was the Circular or Inland Route. This lengthy excursion took the traveler up the coastline of Little Traverse Bay into Lake Michigan, around to Mackinac Island, on to Cheboygan and then down the chain of rivers and lakes to what is now Conway. Until the quaint little dummy trains were in operation, the excursionists were jolted back to Petoskey from Conway by wagon and team

In 1880 the system was in full operation and trips were being made every fifteen minutes By 1905 two trains ran from Petoskey to Harbor Springs at half hour intervals. Many of the people who had come to see the area on the train liked what they saw and became regular summer visitors. By the 1900's the shift from tourism to settled summer communities was in motion. Many resorts developed around the Bay and inland lakes of the area The new-fangled summer resorters spelled the doom of the delightful little streamers on the Bay, the little dummy trains, and the luxury hotels. Many of the hotels burned and were not rebuilt; the dummy engines were sold for scrap, and the steamers sailed off over the horizon.

Although the modes of transportation have seen drastic change, Petoskey's magnetism remains. There is still an element of charm and friendliness in shopping adventure which belongs uniquely to Petoskeys Gaslight District. One may still marvel at the beauty of Little Traverse Bay and experience the wonder of the Million Dollar Sunset

Northern Michigan blessed with trails

By PEG OIHLE

Northern Michigan is blessed with hiking trails. The Department of Natural Resources has laid out four trails in Charlevoix and nearby Antrim County which would be a real experience for the outdoorsman.

The nearest trail to Charlevoix is a short, two-mile layout in Bell's Bay State Forest. It is reached by Bell's Bay Road, off of Highway 31 south of Charlevoix. Camping is permitted.

Spring Brook Pathway is in the Eastern part of Charlevoix County, off the Thumb Lake Road.

The pathway runs through swamp conifers over the Spring Brook River three or four times, then into the hardwoods. There are two loops, one four miles, and one five miles. The five-mile loop is rather hilly.

The Warner Creek Pathway is off Highway 32 and starts about one and a half miles west of Highway 131. It is a 3.8 mile loop running along Warner Creek for the first mile, then through the Jordan Valley to O'Brien's Pond. The rest is open fields and hardwood hills.

The "grandaddy" of the trails is the Jordan River Pathway. It can be approached by Dead Man's Hill Road off of UW Highway 131. This trail was established to provide hiking and backpacking opportunities as well as to show the scenic, biological, and historic aspects of the Jordan River Valley.

The pathway offers several options as to length of hike. Deadman's Hill loop is three miles and begins and ends at the top of Deadman's Hill.

According to the DNR, the other segments can be hiked individually or in combination. All start and end at county roads. Backpacking the entire pathway is a two-day hike, covering 18 miles. The end of the first day will place the hiker at the campground to spend the night.

Among the sights to be observed at the various posts along the trail are:

At stop 4: The river study area. Information signs help the hiker understand the ecology of the watershed system. The Jordan River watershed contains 101,800 acres, of which approximately 22,000 are state owned.

At stop 6: the old logging railroad, built by the White Lumber Company about 1910. A beaver flooding and dam are adjacent to this grade.

At stop 8: Here the hiker gets a view of the famous Jordan River, dedicated in 1972 as Michigan's first Natural Scenic River.

At stop 10: This railroad grade was built about 1918 by the East Jordan Lumber Company. The timber was cut by crosscut saws, loaded on flatbed railroad cars and shipped to East Jordan. There it was processed into lumber to be shipped to Chicago and other points west.

At stop 15: In 1976, this area received both a commercial and non-commercial timber harvest, employing a selective harvest technique.

At stop 21: Fifty thousand white spruce seedlings were hand planted in this area in 1975 by the DNR. The planting covers more than 100 acres.

At stop 24: There are two pieces of a crosscut saw in the crotch of a tree at this stop. Apparently the sawyer broke his saw and put the pieces in the crotch of the tree. The tree has continued to grow, encasing the blade. The maple is 55 years old. The blade was left about 40 years ago.

Bill Mittig, State Forester, says no special shoes or equipment are needed for the Bell's Bay or Warner Creek hikes, but hiking boots should be worn for Spring, Brook and the Jordan Valley trips.

YOUR FAITH IS NOT CONFINED WITHIN THE CHURCH

The busy lives we lead are like a solid fabric woven into a jumbled pattern of work, recreational pursuits and the personal problems inherent in our material world. Faith is too often omitted from the design; or at best, crowded into a small corner known as Sunday morning. But the message of faith received in Church can re-weave the tangle of doubt and confusion with threads of peace, harmony and order, and mend the raveled edges of trouble; if you will only carry it with you throughout the week. Faith is not confined within the walls of the Church, but that is where it begins

"So then faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God."
-Romans 10:17

Faith is but an idle canvas
Flapping on an idle mast
If it not be found within thee
As the work of life at last

New general manager appointed at WVOY

A new general manager has been appointed to WVOY radio in Charlevoix.

William B. Berkey has been appointed the station manager replacing Terry Edger. Edger, a founder and one-third owner of WVOY, has sold his interest in the station to his partners and will no longer be working for WVOY.

William Berkey

Berkey comes to Charlevoix from Houston, Tex., where he has worked as a consultant for the broadcast industry for the last year. He has 21 years of radio experience and has been in management since 1969. He has worked as a disc jockey, salesman and sales manager with various AM and FM stations.

A native of California, Berkey has worked mainly in Texas and Louisiana. He holds a bachelor's degree in business administration from the University of Southern California and also served in the Air Force four years as a teacher.

It was while he was serving in the Air Force that Berkey got his start in radio. He had a friend in the business who helped him get a job at a local station while he was serving in the Air Force.

Berkey said he isn't planning any major changes in the format of WVOY which he described as adult contemporary, or in station operations.

Colburn named head of center

The East Jordan Family Health Medical Center Board of Directors was selected an administrator.

The board has selected Neal Colburn from a field of seven candidates for the administrator's position. He will take office July 24.

Colburn, 32, has been employed as the general manager of the Charlevoix County Press in Boyne City.

As administrator, Colburn's main responsibilities will be to administer the center's department of Health, Education and Welfare rural health initiative grant and to keep the center in sound fiscal condition.

Colburn will also be involved in planning for the future of the clinic and making recommendations to the board about the operation of the clinic.

Colburn holds a bachelor of arts degree in English and speech from Northern Michigan University where he was graduated in 1968.

He also spent more than two years as the administrative assistant to the director of the Lansing Model Cities Program. In this program he was directly involved in creating yearly plans and administering a $16.5 million program.

One of the 30 programs in model cities that Colborn was actively involved in was a program to establish a model cities health center. He also worked directly with a 38-member board which was responsible for the model cities program.

He has also served as a mortgage banker.

Allen Sandberg joins Colwell & Co.

A new salesman has joined Colwell & Co. Realtors of Charlevoix.

Allen L. Sandberg will be involved in both residential and commercial sales and the firm, Bill Carey, associate broker and manager, announced.

Sandberg is a former Charlevoix city administrator and has more than 20 years experience in local government. He believes his past experience in city government helps him provide the best possible background information to people interested in purchasing or selling real estate.

"Being familiar with city planning, zoning laws and procedures and their effects on real estate values is important to clients and is a basic function for the professional realtor," Sandberg said.

Sandberg and his wife, Marjory, and son, David, live at 502 Division in Charlevoix. Another son, Erick, is a graduate of the University of Connecticut in computer science.

THIS PICTURE SHOWS what a teeming lumber town Norwood once was. At the sawmills wood was cut to make wooden boat propellers, shingles, posts and board for shipment to the rest of the country.

AS IN MOST SMALL towns, much of the social activity centered around the church. Here is an old time picture of the church which looks pretty much the same today

When Lumber was king-- Norwood was his queen

By PAULA HOLMES

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of stories that is running in the Charlevoix Courier this summer on the history of the small communities in the area, how they got started and where they are today. The first two articles were on East Jordan and Horton Bay. This week, readers are "Traveling the Back Roads" to Norwood.

If Daniel Webster had wanted to use places instead of words to provide the definition of peaceful when he wrote his great dictionary, he probably would have picked the Village of Norwood.

The sleepy, little community, located a couple of stone's throws south of Charlevoix on U.S. 31, is worlds apart from the hustle and bustle of neighboring towns.

Nestled in the sand dunes off the beaten path, the villagers quietly and peacefully go about their business in Norwood. Since the only industry in the village is farming, most residents have to leave their peaceful community for work in other towns, but Norwood, with its tremendous view of Lake Michigan, is there waiting for them at day's end, unchanged in an ever changing world.

The Norwood of 1978 is a far cry from the teeming, surging Norwood that existed when "Lumber was King" in Northern Michigan. Back then, 100 years or so ago, the village was a company town and the hub of economic activity in the region.

COMPANY TOWN

It boasted of several sawmills, an extensive wooden dock in Lake Michigan for its shipping trade and a fine company store which provided supplies for lumberjacks, mill workers and farmers and their families from miles around.

The town also had a United Methodist Church, which still stands today, two schools and numerous expansive homes, which have since changed hands but are still standing now.

Norwood is also fortunate to have some natives still living there who have taken time to collect information about the history of the town. Bertha and Bill Parsons, who were born and raised in Norwood, have an extensive collection of pictures and written collections of the town which they gladly share with anyone who asks.

"The Charlevoix Historical Society asked us one time to do a little program on Norwood," Bertha Parsons said explaining how she happened to get involved in collecting Norwood memorabilia.

"I guess they couldn't find anybody older than us who had been born and raised here," the white-haired woman said laughing. "Anyway we got interested in the history then and we've been collecting things ever since.

"I hope to write a book one day--if I can ever find the time to get this stuff together."

She rummaged through a cardboard box full of photographs and sheets and sheets of yellow legal pad paper bearing written memory after memory of Norwood.

FIRST SETTLER IN 1867

According to Mrs. Parson's records, the first white settler came to the Indian Village of Norwood on the shores of Lake Michigan in 1867. William Harris brought along his wife, Marion, and two children in a row boat from Antrim City which was eight miles down the lake coast from Norwood.

Following Harris, came many businessmen and others trying to seek their fortune in lumber. Three men got together and built the first sawmill under the name of O.D. Wood and put Norwood on the map.

Lumbering was a flourishing business here," Mrs. Parsons said. "The first hardwood cut in Charlevoix County was cut at Norwood. They made ties, posts, shingles and wooden boat propellers, too."

And as the lumbering business flourished, boats began to arrive weekly to haul the cut wood away to Milwaukee and Chicago. In exchange the ships brought food and dry goods to Nash's company store.

The arrival of the ships was an important event in the Norwood of the late 1800s, according to Mrs. Parsons. The arrival of the ship was announced by three sharp blasts of its whistle. This brought the men running from the fields and the mills to help unload.

'They got 50 cents apiece for unloading," she explained. "That was quite a bit of money."

As the town flourished and became a trading center, its citizens became prominent, too. William Harris, the founding father of the community, was elected to the state legislature for two terms. During that time he succeeded in getting got the apple blossom named the state flower.

FOURTH OF JULY

Being a company town, Norwood was well taken care of. Numerous old timers interviewed by Mrs. Parsons could recall the fantastic Fourth of July celebrations that Norwood had. The highlight of the day being the fireworks display shipped up from Chicago by the Nashes and VanPelts for the enjoyment of their employees.

As with most small towns, the activity of Norwood also centered around the church. Church services as well as social activities filled many a free hour.

Mrs. Parsons can remember riding a sleigh to church and parking the horse in a small shed where the family filled a box with hay and left the house dry and warm while the family went to church.

She also remembers the bob sledding parties held in the village.

"We would hang lanterns on the trees along the hill down to the lake and then seven or eight kids would jump on a bobsled and down the hill we would go," she recalled.

"It was great fun. Kids today don't have the fun like we did then."

As lumbering began to wind down, so did Norwood. The mills burnt down and the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Pere Marquette Railroad were constructed to the east of town. The crowning blow came when U.S. 31 was rerouted outside the village.

"But the isolation became a blessing to the resorters," Mrs. Parsons explained.

And so Norwood, with its rolling sand hills and numerous beautiful views of Lake Michigan, went the way of many a company town and became a summer resort.

But the tourist business didn't really catch on and today Norwood has a few summer residents and the rest of its townspeople are year 'round residents who wanted the advantages of life in a small community off the beaten path.

THE CHASE HOUSE, which is now owned by the MacLeans, was once a summer home for resorters who came to Norwood after the lumbermen left. Ned Chase once lived here.

CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

JULY 10, 1978
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding. Aldermen present: Wood, Whitley, Muma, and Porter. Absent: Aldermen Plumm and Swanson.

The Minutes of the June 26, 1978 regular meeting and the July 5, 1978 special meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Council continued the Public Hearing initiated at the June 26, 1978 regular meeting regarding the rezoning of Frank Cook's lot on Ferry Avenue. The City Planning Commission recommended that the Cook property, as well as two other lots on Ferry Avenue presently being used for commercial purposes, be rezoned to C-1.

Moved by Alderman Wood and supported by Alderman Muma to rezone Lots 10, 11, and 12 of Eaton's Addition to the City of Charlevoix from Single Family Residential to Community Service Commercial. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Muma, and Porter. Nays: None. Absent: Aldermen Plumm and Swanson.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the proposed improvements to the Pine River Channel by the Corps of Engineers. Mr. Dick Alpert and two other representatives of the Corps were present to discuss the various problems of the harbor with the General Public. The main area of concern, as expressed by Dick Donaldson and other members of the General Public present, is to control the surge of water down the channel during stormy weather resulting in severe turmoil along the north shore of Round Lake. Representatives of the Corp stated that the present project was initiated strictly to deepen the channel for commercial vessels, not to correct other problems in the harbor; and, that any attempt to alter the plan at this time would delay the project a minimum of five years. Mr. Donaldson maintained that work already completed by the Corps had caused the problem and that it is their responsibility to correct it. There was also some discussion regarding the cost of lowering the utility lines under the channel which must be paid by the City. June Cross of the City Planning Commission stated that the Commission will submit a design of the desired landscaping of the completed project to the Corps.

Moved by Alderman Muma and supported by Alderman Porter that the lot split requested by Ronald F. Zednicek be approved as set down on the attached survey and accompanying map. Girls fastpitch team moves into sole possession of first

The Charlevoix Intermediate girls fastpitch team took over sole possession of first place in their league with a 16-2 romp over the Petoskey Outfitters last week.

Colleen LaBlance pitched a one-hitter and raised her record to 5-1 in the regular season.

Behind the solid batting of Melanie Kerridge and her teammates, Charlevoix exploded for nine runs in the first inning and six in the second. Ms Kerridge had three hits while Teresa Noirot, Brenda Buchanan, Mary Ellen Cluk, Colleen LaBlance, Julie Archey and Kim Bolduc all had two hits apiece.

In district tournament action, last week, Charlevoix lost to Pellston 11-9. Ms. LaBlance was credited with the loss.

During the game, the lead changed hands four times. Ms. Kerridge was the leading offensive player with two hits and four runs batted in.

Here's a classification I don't need to see, It has already done its work for me!

League leader Murdick wins

Murdicks Fudge showed what has made it the first place team in the Charlevoix Township Recreation Department slo-pitch league last week by taking two victories.

Murdicks downed Koontz 20-12 and Flight Deck 8-4.

Against Koontz, Murdick's Jack Niswander had the win on 15 hits, Earl Colfey had the loss on 23 hits. John Murray had a grand slam for Murdicks and Mike Bartz had a round tripper. Beano Archey, Mike Bartz, Chub Skippergosh, Steve McClellan and Jerry Skippergosh each had three hits apiece for the winners.

Robert Russell and Phil Morrison each had home runs for Koontz and Morrison also tallied three hits.

In the Flight Deck game, Niswander again had the win on 11 hits while Roger Smigiel was credited with the loss on 10 hits.

Randy Haicheck had a home run for the victors and Pete Sweeney had three hits for the Flight Deck.

The second place Chesters also showed the stuff it was made of this week as it also chalked up two winners. Chesters defeated McArt's Mart 20-6 and Wojans 18-8. Against McArts Mart, Greg Revoir had the win on a mere seven hits while Norm Probert had the loss on 17 hits. Larry Darrah and Harvey Cole each hit a home run and Ron Siwarga had four hits while Darrah had three for Chesters.

Dave Charbeneau was the winning pitcher against Wojans allowing only 10 hits. Glenn Cunningham was credited with the loss on 22 hits.

Joe Baillargeon, Dick Burdette, John Hutchinson, Rob Hilton and Herm Madison all had three hits apiece for Chesters.

A third team, USAF also won two games during last week's action. The USAF shot down VFW 23-7 and squeaked by Medosa 15-14.

Bob Hill had the win in the VFW game in 11 hits while Pete Culver took the loss on 22 hits.

Paul Collins, Mike Deacy, Frank DNoa, Fred Sommerfeld and Dan Hensley all had home runs for USAF and Bill Hargrove and Frank Noa each had three hits apiece for the team.

Against Medusa, USAF came from behind to win. The USAF was down two runs at the top of the seventh inning and then went ahead to win by one. George Dotson had the win on 20 hits, while Hank Archey had the loss on 19 hits.

Art Williams had four hits and Deacy had three for USAF in that game.

Jeff Brodin and Albert Sharrow each had a home run for Medusa and Rory Kandell had three hits while Don Potter and Sharrow had four hits apiece.

In other exciting and close game, the Flight Deck just beat Tri-County 27-26. Tri-County gave the game every effort but just couldn't win. The team was trailing by 10 runs, came on strong to score nine runs and then went out with one man on base.

Don Willis had the win in the game on 26 hits and Norm Coolman was credited with the loss on 25 hits.

Bill Roloff and Lee Simpson had two home runs and Bob Frabis had one for the Flight Deck with Simpson banging out four hits.

For Tri-County Jerry Kele had two home runs and Phil Skeel, Glen Taylor and Mike Reinhart each had four hits.

Tri-County came back later in the week to just beat McArt's Mart 20-19. Harald Thomure had the win on 23 hits and Tom Pussehl had the loss on 14 hits. Geary Warner and Kele each had two home runs for Tri-County with Kele hitting a grand slam.

minds are not alert any more and confusion and apathy have conquered them, but when you consider that there are 73 residents living here, and out of that 73, perhaps 20 are confused, I would say the average is very low.

The Mary that Mike talks about as being unable to recognize anyone and babbles incoherently is not that Mary any longer. She is a lovable, alert, sweet lady who is a favorite of everyone, and who, incidentally, won the spelling bee just this morning!

Please be sure of your facts before you mislead people into thinking places like Grandvue are filled with people who are useless and waiting to die. We are proud of our achievements and want our public to be proud, too! Thank God for places like Grandvue!

W.W. Price elected historical group head

W.W. Price was elected president of the Charlevoix Historical Society at its annual meeting last week.

Other officers elected include Mrs. Edward Shanahan, first vice-president; Robert Miles, second vice-president; Ralph Hamilton, treasurer; and Mary Gelken, secretary.

Mrs. Arthur Stoel and Mrs. Charles Duerr were elected directors to fill the vacancies left by the expired terms of Vincent Olach and William H. Ohle. Hold-over directors are Dale Boss, Robert Cook, Mrs. Ben Gill, and Robert Morgridge. Hamilton has served as an officer of the Society since it was reorganized in 1973.

Retiring President Edward Beutner and Hamilton reported that over $16,000 has been raised by the sale of "Bob Miles' Charlevoix – a Century in Pictures." Over 1,200 of the 2,000 numbered copies have been sold and 83 life members signed up through this fund-raising activity to build a museum.

The men cited the need for storage space for historical items and records and pictures. Such an archives room would form o nucleus for organizing collections pending the time when museum quarters are available.

Several hundred old pictures and photographic glass plates were added to the collections during the last year alone.

The program of the evening featured a discussion by Jay Oliver of the history of Greensky Hill, the council trees, and the mission church. He provided personal insight on the impact of changes in culture among the Ottawa Indians brought about by contact with the white man. Benjamin Green also presented a slide program on Greensky Hill.

At the next meeting of the Society, on August 1, Mrs. Alvin Joslyn will tell something of her family history. She is o descendent of Medad and Phoebe Thompson, who are thought to be the first permanent white settlers in Charlevoix.

Accomplishments of soil district many this year

By CHARLES KITELEY

This progress report has been prepared to show Conservation accomplishments for fiscal year 1977 by the United States Soil Conservation Service personnel assisting the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District. Bill Grimm, District Conservationist, Ray Weiss, Soil Conservation Technician and Joan Neumann, Charlevoix and Emmet Soil Conservation District Aide, provide the technical assistance necessary to carry out the programs of the Soil Conservation District, in cooperation with other agencies, such as, Cooperative Extension Service, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Their office is located in the Sears Building, 29 North Park Street, Boyne City, Michigan 49712.

There are 264,960 acres of land in Charlevoix County. Of this acreage 45,000 is state-owned. The remaining land area is under private and or municipal ownership. Three hundred ninety-two land owners in the county are Charlevoix Soil & Water Cooperators, representing 52,558 acres of land. The Charlevoix District is continually adjusting and revising it's programs and developing new priorities to meet the conservation needs of the District.

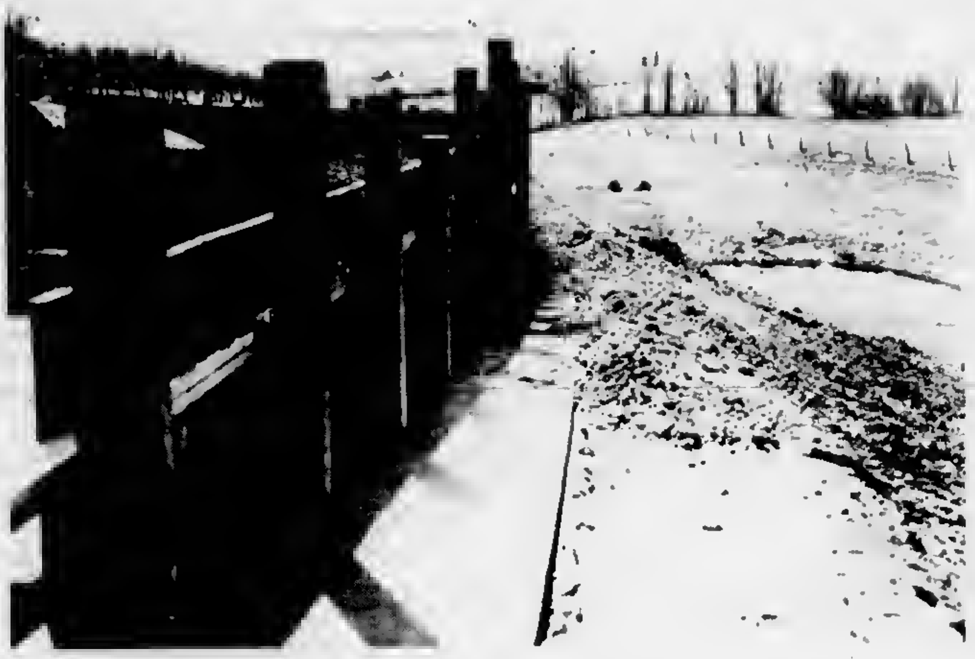
This year (1977), the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District approved 10 new District Cooperators; 8 Soil & Water Conservation Plans; and revised 6 others. One hundred twenty land owners were assisted with 236 service calls. Inventories and Evaluations for land use treatment problems were made to 24 land owners.

Fourteen units of government were assisted with 18 contacts in which 1 Inventory and Evaluation was submitted for resource planning.

The following are some of the Conservation Practices applied by the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District Cooperators for fiscal year 1977.

Conservation Cropping System, 2,326 acres; Critical Area Planting, 253 acres; Minimum Tillage, 1,940 acres; Tile Drainage, 13,165 feet; Grassland Planting, 912 acres; Farm Ponds, 3; Wildlife Habitat Management, 2,815 acres, Woodland Improvement, 605 acres, Streambank Protection, 12,600 feet; Waterways, 3 acres; Tree Planting, 47 acres; Stripcropping, 148 acres; Irrigation System, 2; and Land Adequately Treated, 8,543 acres.

New Cooperators joining the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District in fiscal year 1976-1977 were: Bob Malpass, Andrew Jerema, Bill Beckenhauer, Dan VonSoosten, Ray Margherio, Wilson Boss, Neil Jones, Bill Henne, Norman Brumn, and Boyne City Public Schools.



New method of handling manure

IN ORDER TO HANDLE livestock manure as a solid, it is necessary to remove precipitation water from manure stack. This picket fence structure allows precipitation water to seep through fence into a gutter channel. This channel carries water to a tile which outlets into pond lagoon, below structure.

Combination livestock pollution abatement practices such as these are being installed by area farmers to eliminate off site pollution.

Agricultural exports hit $22.8 billion

U.S. agricultural exports to foreign countries the coming cropping year were approximately $22.8 billion in goods exported last year.

Dr. Vernon L. Sorenson, Michigan State University agricultural economist, says that while tonnage declined somewhat, it will be offset by higher prices commanded by soybeans, oilseed products and cotton.

Soybeans and oilseed products will amount to $6.1 billion, up about $1.4 billion over last year's figures, which Sorenson says reflects the strong soybean market in many world areas.

"The Soviet Union purchased 2 million metric tons of soybeans from the world market for delivery in the 1977 fiscal year," he relates, "the U.S. supplying about 1.5 million tons of that amount."

The U.S. grain export, including rice, will be around 77.5 million metric tons in 1976-77, with a stronger demand for corn than for wheat. "This represents a slight softening in world demand for U.S. grain from last year when a record 83 million metric tons were exported," he says, but "increasing consumption of livestock products in major industrial countries along with short grain supplies in western Europe, due to drouth, will help maintain demand for feed grains.

Substantial shipment of grain to Russia will occur despite their large grain crop that will exceed 220 million metric tons.

Farmers honored for help

Beginning in 1951 and every year since, the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District have shown their appreciation to District Cooperators who in their opinion have contributed greatly to the District's soil and water environmental program. The winners this year are as follows:

Wilson and Judy Boss, Route 1, Charlevoix who own and operate a 235 acre dairy, beef and cash crop farm. In addition, farm operations are in coordination with another farm nearby. Conservation practices applied are conservation crop rotation, hayland and pasture management, strip cropping, tile drainage, farm waste pollution abatement practices, wildlife habitat improvement practices.

John and Hildy Frey, Route 1 Charlevoix who own and operate a 213 acre beef and cash crop fram in Marion Township. Conservation practices established are conservation crop rotation, tile drainage, hayland management, livestock exclusion, lakeshore protection, wetland wildlife habitat improvement.

No-till comes to Charlevoix Co.

The first acres of NO-TILL seedings in Charlevoix county were made last fall.

Farmers in Antrim, Charlevoix, and Emmet counties have made use of the "No-TILL" power seeder rented to farmers by Conrad Klooster Equipment Company of Atwood, as shown above.

Lime and fertilizer are bulk spread before the seeding is made. A selective herbicide is sprayed on the vegetation to retard and or eliminate plant competition. Legume and grass seed are seeded into the soil in one operation.

"NO-TILL" seeding can be accomplished on hillsides where erosion would be excessive with conventionally seeding methods. Many acres of sloping hillsides can be treated in Charlevoix county where pasture and hayland improvement are needed.

Cost share assistance can be available through the Charlevoix County Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service, Boyne City, (582-6631).

Each NO-TILL site area should be evaluated so that proper management can be applied for best results. Technical assistance concerning NO-TILL can be requested through the Soil Conservation Service office in Boyne City, (582-7341) or the Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension office, Boyne City, (582-6232).

So if stands are running out and the field is not in rough condition. No-TILL may be the answer to re-establish legumes and grasses without breaking ground. It may even reduce the amount of stones to pick compared to those worked up by conventional methods.

No-Till Hints

NO-TILL SEEDING of Hayland and Pasture areas may well become a popular practice as this method has little if any erosion occur due to the mulch cover that is retained until the seed is established. The following are general sod seeding recommendations —

1. Clip or graze stand so that about 2" of growth is existing prior to planting.
2. Broadcast lime and fertilizer according to current soil test recommendations.
3. If broadleave weeds are a problem, spray stand with one pound of 2, 4, -D Ester Active ingredient per acre at least 7-10 days prior to seeding.
4. Three days prior to seeding, apply Paraquat at ½ pound active ingredient, using 40-50 gallons of clean water under 40-50 pound pressure. Use a surfactant with Paraquat, such as X-77, to insure good coverage of foliage.
5. Seed with adoptable seeding mixture with a NO-TILL Seeder.

The above are general recommendations, but each NO-TILL site should be evaluated so that the best recommendations can be made to assure good stand. For more information concerning NO-TILL operationa, contact Cooperative Extension Service and Soil Conservation Service offices in Boyne City.

No-till approach to farming was used for the first time extensively in Charlevoix County by members of the Charlevoix Soil Conservation District. Here a farmer used equipment borrowed from the John Deere dealership in Atwood.

Soil district to hold hearing on soil, water resources in county

A public meeting to appraise problems, needs and trends in the use of Charlevoix County soil and water resources will be held Thursday, July 27, at 8 p.m. at Whiting Park.

The meeting is sponsored by the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District, Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Service, Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service, Soil Conservation Service and other Federal and State resource agencies.

All individuals and groups concerned about the use and conservation of all of Charlevoix County's natural resources are invited and urged to attend.

The opinions, comments and ideas gathered will be used to direct future soil and water conservation programs of the U.S.D.A. Agencies and Soil Conservation Districts.

Last fall Congress passed the SOIL & WATER RESOURCES CONSERVATION ACT,(Public Law 96-192). The Act calls for a comprehensive look at the nation's basic natural resources and for better programs to protect and improve them. An important part of the law is its emphasis on citizen participation in determining the future of conservation programs that affect local communities.

Under the law, citizens are requested to express their views and opinions on the nation's natural resources at the local level.

The responsibility of this Act has been granted to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with local Soil Conservation Districts and other Resource Agencies.

NOW is your chance to express your concerns on the local level about the natural resource problcsm in Charlevoix county.

Simply follow the outline below when submitting a concern and return to the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conaervation District no later than August 1, 1978. 29 North Park Street, Boyne City, Michigan 49712 or phone in your concern by calling 582-7341.

More hints for farmers on no-till practices

PREPLANTING —

Select fields that will warm up first for early planting. Don't jump the gun and plant too early just because a sod will support the farming equipment.

Soil temperature at seed planting depth should be at least 50 degrees. Use a soil thermometer for accurate temperature determination.

Use clean water for spraying; muddy water will neutralize Paraquat.

Use preemergence and contact herbicides currently recommended. Follow label instructions exactly. Use 40 or more gallons of water per acre to insure goof foliage coverage. Apply at a pressure of 50 to 60 lbs. per square inch with a recommended surfactant (sticker-spreader or wetting agent)

In successive years of no-till one may need to change herbicides to give control of fall panicum and other fall weeds and grasses.

Use properly adjusted fan-type sprayer nozzles.

Direct spray nozzles straight down so the force will cause the spray to penetrate the living or dead residue.

PLANTING —

Use a fluted coulter no-till planter. Add weights to the planter if needed to attain desired planting depth.

A planting speed of 3 mph and a seeding depth of 1½ inches is most desirable.

Apply fertilizer in accordance with soil test recommendations. Nitrogen can be applied in liquid form and used as a carrier for herbicides.

Select a familiar kind of seed, but one with a shorter maturity.

Du not allow seed and fertilizer to track or follow the same path. But both should be somewhere within the area covered by the coulter.

POSTPLANTING —

Fields may look like nothing has been done at first. Be patient and let the chemicals do their job.

Plant cover crops to improve soil tilth.

Handling Farm Waste

THE FARMER OF TODAY, in managing his farm waste system, has to consider storing, handling, and disposing of farm waste, while at the same time, maintaining an effective pollution abatement program. A 100-cow dairy herd creates enough volume of manure equivalent to a town of 1,600 people. Each farm has different problems and conditions to work with. This manure stacker system recently installed on an area farm for 70 cows and storage for 180 days, allows the farmer to handle manure as a semi-solid. The manure is stored behind a picket fence which allows excess liquid to seep through the fence into a drop inlet structure which outlets into a liquid pond. The manure is handled and spread with conventional manure spreader, while liquid is irrigated into adjacent cropland areas.

For soil conservation district

Rebman lists highlights of year

The activities and program of the Charlevoix Soil and Water Conservation District for the past year were under the direction and leadership of five directors: Charles Kiteley, Charlevoix; David Parsons, Charlevoix; Terry Healey, Charlevoix; Steve Miller, Boyne City; and William Korthase Jr., Boyne City.

Charles Kiteley served as chairman, William Korthase Jr. as Vice Chairman and Terry Healey as treasurer. Ed Rebman, Charlevoix County Extension Director has served as secretary ever since the district was organized in September 1948 for a total of 30 years.

The directors again assisted in the Conservation Education Program by making available two scholarships to attend the Environmental Education Workshops at Higgins Lake during the summer. They have also assisted in the 4-H Conservation Program.

The Board reviewed nine permit applications under Act 346, the Inland Lakes and Streams Act. All of these were proposed according to specifications or were under the responsibility of the DNR.

The Directors and staff cooperated with the Emmet Districts in sponosring a Tree Day in April. Cooperators can sign up for trees and then pick them up at one location.

William Korthase Jr. was appointed to represent the District on the North West Michigan Clean Water Citizens Advisory Committee. This is the group that makea recommendations for Act 208 - Non Point-Pollution.

The Directors sponsored a series of events for No-Till crop seeding. Two meetings were held one in Petoskey and one in East Jordan. Arrangements were made to have equipment available. The also assisted in the Extension Program on irrigation.

Neighbors help ailing farmer bring in crops

EDITOR'S NOTE: Part of belonging to the Charlevoix Soil and Water Conservation District is belonging to a group of friends helping friends work out mutual problems. The following is a story about some members of the Charlevoix soil district helping out an ailing friend.

It was a work bee in the best tradition of American farming.

Friends and neighbors from throughout the county came to Franklin Cellner's place on Ferry Road to help him put up his hay recently and they stayed until the job was done.

Cellner suffered a heart attack around Memorial Day and hasn't been able to work his 170-acre farm since then. Doctors have told him he must rest until September or October—well after the farming season is over.

"They (his neighbors) told me the second day after my heart attack not to worry about the hay, that they would help me get it in," Cellner explained from his lawnchair where he was sidewalk superintending the activities.

"So it was no surprise when they showed up."

A few friends and neighbors came to the farm earlier in the week to mow the hay and get it ready for baling. Each man brought his own equipment to Cellner's farm and the group had the 30 acres of hay mowed in no time.

"With seven guys out there cutting all at once, it only took a couple hours," Cellner said.

Then a few days later, more than 21 men showed up and went to work baling the 30 acres of mowed hay. Once again they moved their equipment over to Cellner's farm and soon a parade of balers began moving from the fields to the barn.

Later on in the afternoon, fellow employees of Cellner's from Medusa joined the neighbors and finished up the work. The men put up about 4,000 bales of hay.

Although nobody would own up to it, Cellner said his neighbors, Chuck and Carmen Kiteley, arranged the work bee, organizing all the people and machinery.

"Oh, it was the Kiteley family that got this all together," Cellner said, appreciation filling his voice. "They've been helping us right along since I got sick."

The Kiteleys just shrugged their shoulders.

"He had to get his hay in," Mrs. Kiteley said. "And there was no other way.

Cellner said his immediate neighbors as well as friends from Boyne City came to the Ferry Road farm to lend a hand. Ed Rebman, county extension agent, and Bill Grimm, district conservationist, were also on hand.

The farmer also has 14 acres of corn planted which his neighbors will take care of and some beef cattle which his wife and daughters have been feeding during his absence.

Cellner said he has taken part in work bees himself.

"I was involved in one some years ago," he said. "But I never thought there would be one for me.

"It's great."

Franklin Cellner

BALERS WERE EVERYWHERE on the Franklin Cellner farm recently as neighbors brought their own equipment to their neighbor's farm to help him put up his hay.

Tiles Can Help Drainage

WET SPOTS LIKE THIS, which aggravate field operations, are being tile drained at an increasing rate. Tile drainage has accelerated in Charlevoix County since early 1960's. A total of 127,165' of tile drainage has been installed in Charlevoix County with 13,165' installed this year. Current costs to tile drain an acre of land is $350.00. It appears installation costs have increased by $50.00 per year for the last two years. For more information on tile drainage, contact the Soil Conservation Service Office, 29 North Park Street, Boyne City, Michigan. PHONE 582-7341.

Mark equipment for identification

4-Hers help area farmers

Usually it's the livestock that gets branded, but it was the farm machinery that got "branded" at the Wieland farm.

Working in teams of three, members of the 4-H Club marked each piece of Wieland's machinery with his driver's license numbers and a sticker warning that the machinery had been marked with special identification.

The driver's license numbers were stamped on the machinery with a special kind of indelible ink.

Bob Bellairs, county 4-H program director, explained that the club got the idea for the identification project from Ray Wood, regional Michigan Farm Bureau representative from Wolverine. The Farm Bureau agreed to supply the kits for the project if the high school student members of the 4-H club would provide the elbow grease.

"The Farm Bureau has found that like everything else, there has been an increase in the number of thefts of farm implements," Bellairs said. "So they have prepared special kits to help farmers mark their machinery.

"While farm machinery theft has not been a problem in Charlevoix County, we felt that this project would be an added deterent."

The 14 members of the service club watched a movie instructing them in the use of the kits earlier this month and then went to work marking machinery last Saturday. The students are willing to mark the machinery of any area farmer interested in the program. The club is working in conjunction with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, which has been notified about the project.

On hand for the "Branding" were: Carl Smith, who along with Sally Saunders is the coordinator of the 4-H club, John Frey, president of the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau, and Sheriff George Lasater.

Judge to name hearing officer in Medusa case

The suit filed by the Committee for Preservation of the Environment, Inc. against Medusa Cement Company in Charlevoix has taken a new twist.

Charlevoix Circuit Court Judge Martin Breighner announced in circuit court Monday that he would be appointing a master to hear the technical testimony that the two parties to the environmental suit will be providing.

"Following my examination of the Environmental Protection Act, I have found that I may appoint a master to hear the technical testimony," Judge Breighner told John Michael and Bernie Mindell, co-counsel for the committee, and Thomas Pointner and other counsel for Medusa.

A master is a court officer who acts as an assistant to the judge by inquiring into such matters as the judge assigns him. In special cases, such as this suit, a special master is appointed for a specific assignment.

Breighner asked that both groups provide him with a list of three people who he could consider appointing as a master for the hearings. Breighner said the people selected should be qualified to understand the technical evidence that will be provided in testimony.

The judge asked that the three names be presented to him within 10 days. He also said he expected the expenses of the master to be shared equally by the committee and Medusa.

In its suit, the committee is requesting that an environmental impact study be conducted before Medusa is allowed to continue with its proposed $50 million expansion and renovation program at the plant located on South Point in Charlevoix.

The committee is asking the judge to order that the study be conducted since the Michigan Department of Natural Resources has indicated there is no need for such a study.

The committee contends that there is not enough information on the operation of the new cement making process Medusa plans to employ.

Medusa representatives contend they have adequate data from Japanese plants using the new process to show that pollution will be reduced.

The suit is expected to be heard Dec. 20 in circuit court. The master will hear the evidence and prepare a report for the judge. The judge has the right to hear additional testimony if he feels it is warranted, but he will most likely base his decision on the report of the master.

In the meantime, several charges and counter charges have been filed by both parties in the suit. Three motions made by the committee last week were dismissed and one motion made by Medusa was not discussed in court Monday because the proper time limit for informing the plantiffs had not been met.

The committee had filed an amended motion to add Charlevoix County as a defendant in its suit which already names Medusa and Charlevoix Township as defendants.

This motion was dismissed because the law says that a suit may be amended only if no other parties have filed responsive pleadings. Medusa had already filed pleadings.

Mindell said he would be seeking the judge's approval to add the county to the suit during the coming week and that he would then refile the motion.

The other two show cause motions, which were filed by the committee asking that the building and zoning permits be revoked immediately because they had been improperly issued, were also dismissed because of a technical error in filing the motions.

The show cause motions cannot be filed if the county is not a defendant.

Medusa also had filed a motion asking that the committee be required to post a bond to cover court costs of the trial. Under a court rule, which regulates the practice of the court, defendants may ask that plantiffs file security for the costs of the trial.

Medusa officials estimate that it will cost $110,000 for the trial and they would like the committee to post a bond for that amount insuring that the costs would be covered in the event that Medusa wins. If the committee could not file the bond the case would be thrown out.

CHARLEVOIX
COURIER
Charlevoix County's [illegible] Newspaper

No 83 Vol [illegible]

Dennis Chase named new Courier editor

Dennis Chase has been named editor of the Charlevoix Courier by Ken Winter, general manager.

Chase, 25, has been a reporter-photographer for the Petoskey News-Review, and prior to joining the daily newspaper worked as a sports writer for The State Journal In Lansing.

While at the News-Review, Chase covered the Petoskey Area Public Schools, as well as several Emmet County and area township governmented agencies.

In 1977, he was awarded the Michigan United Press International first place award for feature sports writing and photography and the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals award for coverage of school activities.

A Lansing native, Chase graduated from Lansing O'Rafferty High School in 1970. He then attended Lansing Community College before graduating with a journalism degree from Michigan State University in 1976.

"It's going to be a challenge working as editor of the Courier," Chase said. "And I'm looking forward to it.

"It's the right time in my career to make this move and I'm glad I was able to do that and stay in this area."

Dennis Chase

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Chase of Lansing.

Chase succeeds Paula Holmes, who after two years as Courier editor, is leaving to become press secretary for Michigan Gov. William Milliken's re-election campaign.

Leaky water system costing city thousands of dollars

Testing for leaks in the city water system is now underway, the Charlevoix Common Council learned Monday night.

City manager Norman Gaffney informed Mayor Sam Supernaw and common council that Granger Engineering of Cadillac had begun sounding tests of the water pipes to determine where leaks are in the system.

Sounding tests are conducted by portable listening stations that are moved along the pipes to determine where leaks are located.

Gaffney had informed the council earlier that leaks amounting to up to 50 percent water loss had been occurring in the city's system. The city manager said the amount of the water loss had been determined by comparing the water pumped in the city system with the amount billed for.

"We're losing several thousand dollars just in the cost of the electrical pumping fees because we aren't charging anyone for the use of that water," Gaffney explained. "And we know that no one is stealing the water or using it without paying for it because it is not going through the waste water treatment plant."

The city manager said based on his experience with water systems in other communities that the leaks would probably be found in a low section of town where several small leaks have occurred undetected and allowed the water to escape.

City crews had attempted to trace the leaks with chlorination tests but hadn't had any luck. Gaffney said the average rate of water loss for a system is 8 to 10 percent.

In other action, city attorney Michael Gibbons reported that attorneys for Robert Schleman and United Toolcraft had reviewed the working draft of a lease option for the city's purchase of 300 feet of Lake Charlevoix frontage owned by the company. The property is adjacent to Ferry Avenue Beach.

Gibbons said two basic changes had been made on the lease changing the amount to be paid for the option to purchase the property and disallowing the option fee as credit toward the purchase price.

The city is seeking a two-year option on the land in order to have time to acquire state and federal grants for the purchase of the $180,000 parcel.

City council also approved a rate hike for the Lake Charlevoix Cable TV Company. Gil Clark, general manager of the cable TV company, explained that the rates needed to be increased 75 cents per month to allow the company to add three new channels to it offerings.

Council approved the rate hike adding a provision that senior citizens be allowed a discount. The discount and the rate increase are expected to go into effect in November or December.

Dan Boone was also on hand at Monday's council meeting to discuss his proposed construction of a dock in Round Lake. Boone has made application to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for the construction of a 175 foot dock

STOP PICKING ON MEDUSA

I wish people would stop picking on Medusa. Personally, I'm getting tired of hearing about it. About 15 years ago, when Medusa was being built, was the time to do the complaining.

KUSINA MOTORS SUPPORTS MEDUSA

This is Kusina Motors calling from Charlevoix. I just read this week's issue of the Courier in which is stated that some local car dealers complained about the depth of dust on cars from Medusa cement. I'd like to say that our dealership has had to clean the dust off and that's part of doing business in Charlevoix and we don't look at it as a hazard. We welcome the business that Medusa has brought into this community, and the things they've done for it. If that's the only problem I ever have, my life is going to be a lot easier.

USE BUSES FOR CONCERTS

When they have these concerts at Castle Farms, why don't they use the buses supplied by the Federal Government, I think, or the State, to pick up people at 3 or 4 different places in town, like the schools, or Edward's or Olcson's or Captain's Corner and take them out to Loeb's. That would give the older people and people who don't like to drive in heavy traffic some relief and also relieve some of the traffic congestion. There would be a fee for this. Then, after the concert, haul them back. Then, a lot more people would go. This is just a suggestion. Any comments? Thank you.

GARDEN CLUB PRAISES CITY OFFICIALS

Wilma Stabnick, past president of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club and chairman of the Memorial Garden Committee, called the Hotline to say the garden club wanted to let the mayor, council and city staff know how pleased it was with the cooperation and support which has been shown to the group. Mrs. Stabnick said the club needed to get some additional information about the recent action of the council last week and the city staff was so helpful that it was a real pleasure to work with them. She said she noticed a difference in the atmosphere at city hall and she mentioned how receptive everyone was. She said the garden club was very impressed.

TACKY POLICE UNIFORMS

I am a resident of Charlevoix, and I have never seen our city police look as tacky as they do at present. Their uniforms are so patched and worn that they are a disgrace to our community. A disgusted Charlevoixan.

Concert goers pack Castle Farms area, back up traffic in town for miles

The first rock concert of the year started off with a bang at Castle Farms Sunday or it was a total disaster, depending on who you talked to early this week.

More than 17,000 people poured into the Charlevoix area becoming the largest group ever to attend a concert in the three-year history of Castle Farms Music Theater, Patti Muma, director of the organization, said.

That same 17,000 people also created the largest traffic jam ever to occur in the area. Traffic was bumper-to-bumper on Bridge Street up to M-66 for most of the afternoon and was backed up on M-66 and the Boyne City Road.

"It was an excellent concert," Mrs. Muma said. "Even with all those people here we only had two minor cuts that had to be attended to at the first aid station.

Things went great, according to one of the 75 security guards who worked for Pyramid Productions, promoters of the concert. The guard said there weren't any problems with the concert goers.

"It was a total disaster," Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater said. "The traffic, the whole thing waa just a disaster.

"There was no way the conditions out there could accommodate all the cars and all of the people."

Lasater said his department received 120 complaints ranging from parking problems to malicious destruction of property. There was also one three-car accident that sent nine people to the hospital.

The sheriff's department issued 90 citations most of which were for the violation of the Marion Township traffic control ordinance. The ordinance prohibits parking along the side of M-66.

Several citations were also issued in connection with fender-bender and other accidents.

"The city had its hands full and so did we," Lasater said. "If I had had 100 officers there would have been no way we could have handled all the traffic."

Lasater had 10 officers on duty for the concert which began at 7:30 p.m. and ended at 10:45 p.m. The gates opened at 5 p.m.

"We did have a little trouble with the parking," Mrs. Muma conceded. "But we are already working on obtaining more parking space and on directing it differently.

"We will be working with the sheriff's department to improve the parking situation for future concerts."

In the meantime, Sheriff Lasater is contemplating contacting the county prosecutor to find out what grounds he has to stand on as far as the conditions that the concerts create.

"I have serious problems when people come to me and say it took them two hours to go three miles," Lasater said. "I don't feel the average citizen should have to deal with these problems."

Lasater said the average concert goer was a law abiding citizen.

"It was just a matter of too many people and too many cars in such a small area," he said.

The next concert, which will also be arranged by Pyramid Productions will be the groups Heart and Pablo Cruise on Aug. 11. The Statler Brothers will be in town Aug19. That concert is being promoted by Art Reibel owner of Castle Farms, and Mrs. Muma.

PEOPLE AND CARS poured into Charlevoix Sunday for the first rock concert of the season at Castle Farms. More than 17,000 people attended the Doobie Brothers Concert. Cars were backed up Bridge Street to the north and south outskirts of town most of the afternoon.

Did you ever hear of a "Handyman's special"? This is a house that needs a lot of work, but can be bought for less than houses that are in better shape. It is this last point that is what makes a handyman's special so tempting to many people. Actually, many of the older houses in this class have a charm and style that is hard to find in some modern houses. Often, the handyman's work involves just some basic redecorating and a lot of elbow grease cleaning. Sometimes the work can be done by the lay person, with a little advice, perhaps from some friends. So don't be afraid of one of these specials. It might turn out to be very special indeed.

If you are thinking of buying a home visit the office of THOMAS REAL ESTATE, 101 Bridge St., 547-4494, and discuss your needs and desires with our experienced staff. Two bond issues will appear on ballot for school voters

Voters in the Charlevoix School District will find two proposals on the ballot, instead of one, when they go to the polls in a special school election on Sept. 12 as the result of action taken by the Charlevoix Board of Education on Tuesday.

At that time, the board voted to break down its request for $3.2 million to expand, renovate and equip additions and existing areas of the Charlevoix High School into two separate proposals.

Proposition I would be for $2.315 million to finance the cost of additional classrooms between Building A and B and at the west end of the existing buildings, remodeling these buildings, partially re-equipment existing classrooms and equipping the new rooms.

Proposition II would be in the amount of $885,000 to build and equip an addition to the present Physical Education facility at the high school. This would include an all-purpose room south of the present gymnasium, locker rooms and storage areas for equipment.

While this is broken into two proposals, a spokesman for the board said the entire amount is needed.

Classroom space is badly needed in the building constructed for 478 students which now houses 640. When school opens this fall as many as 50 students entering high school as freshmen will be unable to enroll in science classes. Other classes are being curtailed because of the lack of space.

Under Title IX like classes and sports must be made available to both boys and girls. As a result, the sports program which once offered football, basketball and track for boys now includes Cross Country, wrestling, football, basketball and track for boys; volleyball, basketball and track for girls and golf, tennis and skiing for both if they qualify for the teams. In addition, physical education is now required for all students. All this has pushed existing facilities to the limit.

Students are not receiving the education they are entitled to. Library facilities, for instance, do not meet accreditation standards. Other students are being short-changed because they are unable to enroll in classes that are required for graduation because of large enrollments. The problems are real. Something must be done if we are to give these students the education they require " a spokesman for the board said following the meeting.

Miss Bolt named scholarship winner by art fair committee

A young Charlevoix artist has been awarded the annual Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair Scholarship.

Lori Bolt, a student at the Cleveland Art Institute, has been named the recipient of the scholarship for the third year in a row. Miss Bolt, the daughter of local artists, Russell and Sue Bolt, is beginning her fourth year of a five-year program in textiles at the art institute.

In addition to the $500 she will receive, Miss Bolt is also entitled to exhibit in the Aug. 12 Waterfront Art Fair along with 165 other artists from Michigan and other states who have been selected by a jury to participate in the show.

The scholarship is available to anyone in the Charlevoix area who is interested in studying art. It is funded by the entry fees for the Waterfront Art Fair. Applications for the scholarship are taken in the spring of each year.

LORI BOLT received the Waterfront Art Fair scholarship for the third time this year. Here she displays some of her work which she will be showing at the art fair Aug. 12.

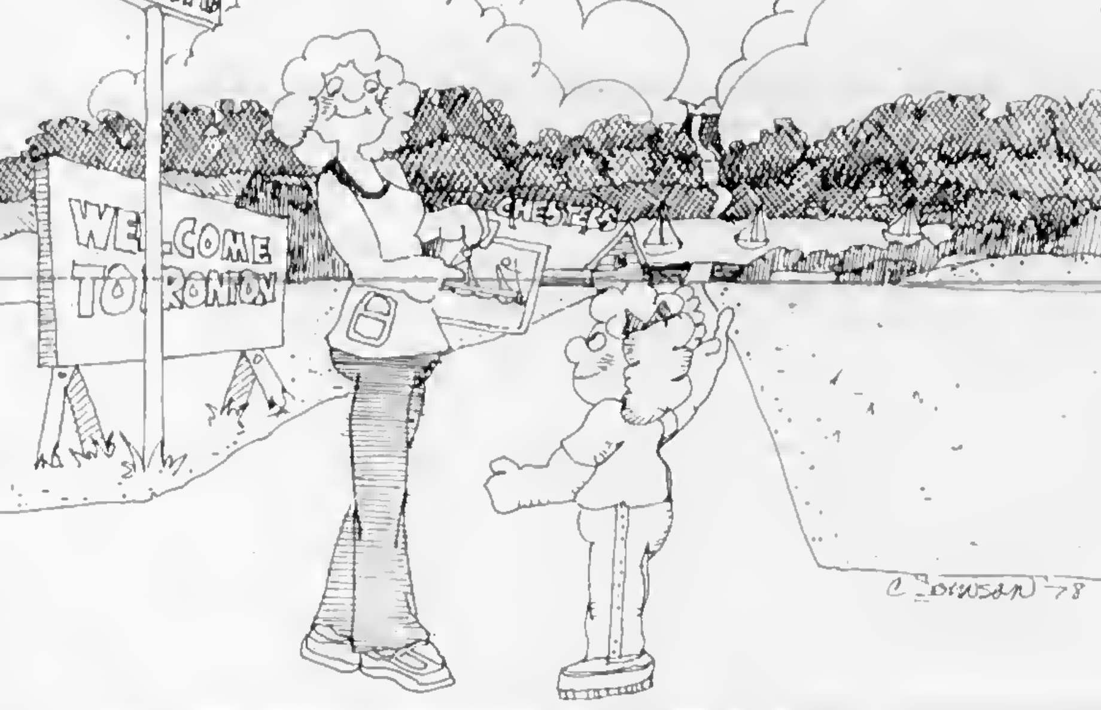
Yes, Virginia there's an Ironton Ferry



Dear Editor:

Is there really an Ironton Ferry?

Signed,
Virginia

Yes, Virginia, there is an Ironton Ferry. And while it may seem that like Santa Claus, the ferry only lives in our hearts and minds, that is not really true.

The Ironton Ferry does exist. It is real. It is just tied up in Traverse City like the radio commercial says.

The ferry was taken down to Traverse City last fall for its five-year inspection by the U.S. Coast Guard and for some repairs including the installation of a new engine by Wyskoehil Marine Service. Wyskoehil, by the way, was the low bidder on the job.

Why the ferry is still tied up in Traverse City when it should be in Ironton helping you and your friends across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix is a good question. It was scheduled to return to Lake Charlevoix in April and then May and then June.

Unfortunately, there don't seem to be any real good answers as to why the ferry hasn't shown its red, white and blue body up here yet.

Oh, residents and media representatives have heard a number of things about why the ferry hasn't made it back. Representatives of the road commission and the county board of commissioners say that a delay in the shipment of parts has held up the work that needed to be done. They claim that it is impossible to get a guarantee on parts shipment.

It must also be hard to get a guarantee that the right part or the right sized part will arrive when it is shipped. The elected and appointed officials claim that many times parts have arrived but they were the wrong part or the wrong size and they had to be sent back or retooled to fit.

But then, what can you expect when the road commissioners and the county commissioners agree to pay 90 percent of the cost of the new engines and the bid before the work is done.

And what can you expect when there was a deadline in the contract for when the ferry was due back in Lake Charlevoix, but no penalty clauses were added. What can you do?

Wait. That's right Virginia. All you can do is wait. And hope. Hope that some day soon, the Ironton Ferry will be towed back up Lake Michigan to its home.

While the ferry's absence inconvenienced many people and caused businessmen to lose money and caused young people like yourself to doubt its existence, there has been a valuable lesson in all this. And that is that the county officials have to be a little sharper in their business deals and in protecting the interests of the people who elect them.

Virginia, the ferry may show up before you get my reply, but remember this lesson in case you grow up to be a county official yourself someday.

Paula Holmes... ...Speaking Her Mind

I was disappointed in the recent action of the honorable elected officials in the state House of Representatives and the State Senate on the appropriations bill for the 1979 fiscal year.

Once again the elected officials, 90 percent of whom are male, have turned the issue of abortion into a political football. After all, it is an election year, so why should they bother with such uninteresting issues as jobs, property taxesand transportation, when they can argue about something more interesting and definitely more important like abortion.

I don't mean to belittle the impact of abortion on individuals. It is not something to be taken lightly. However, somehow when the issue of abortion becomes politicized it cease to be an issue that affects human lives.

Sure the emotion of the issue is still there, but the people behind the emotions and those who are touched by the issue are lost in rhetoric and politics. Only hot air is, not new insight, is added to the discussion.

The way the new appropriations bill for the funding of state level programs including Medicaid has been designed, reimbursement by Medicaid for abortions is limited to $1 each except if the life of the mother is in danger.

Essentially what the legislators have told the woman of the State of Michigan, who also vote and pay taxes, is that if they are rich, then they can have the full benefit of the law of the land and the right to choose what they feel is the best course for them as far as abortion is concerned.

But, if the women are poor, they have no right to the full benefits of the law. You can't be much more contrary to the beliefs of the founding fathers of this nation than that. Equality has been dealt a serious blow by our elected representatives.

Our esteemed legislators have also given poor women the dubious distinction of being pawns in the political game known as election year.

In addition to cutting off funds for abortions no increase in the funding for family planning was made. The legislators are not only cutting off a last resort, but they aren't even giving poor women a fighting chance.

Funding abortions through Medicaid simply gives all women the right to choose an alternative, it doesn't force them to use it. And in the long run, it may help cut down on the amount of welfare dollars that this state spends.

Studies have shown that in a majority of the cases, welfare children grow up to be welfare parents with welfare children. It's a vicious cycle and it's getting to be an expensive one.

If women on welfare are given the choice of abortion, perhaps this cycle can be broken or at least the numbers limited.

It's too bad that the issue of abortion is such a political one and that the people involved are ignored in the interest of furthering a political career.

If you are a regular reader of the Courier, please move on to another column, read the editorials or turn the page.

This column is for our summer visitors – folks who are spending their holidays in Charlevoix or who have come to town for the Venetian Festival.

As a year-'round resident of Charlevoix, I hope you enjoy your visit. By the end of July, the water in Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix is ideal for swimming. The recent rains have given a greenish cast to our golf courses. Our tennis courts are superb (although we still don't have enough of them). You won't find better boating anywhere in the world. Our restaurants are renowned the country over for their cuisine and ambiance, which means you don't have to ask for water. And our shops are jam-packed with enough merchandise to give you a healthy head start on your Christmas shopping.

And if you don't sleep like a baby in Charlevoix's invigorating northern climate, you had better check with your doctor when you get home.

All of which is my way of saying Charlevoix is a pretty fine place to visit in the summer. At least we think it is.

But it can't hold a candle to Charlevoix in the dead of winter. That is why we'd like to have you come back say about Jan. 15 or Feb. 15 and have a look around.

Before I-75 knifed its way north through the heart of Michigan, Charlevoix was a little out-of-the-way for winter visitors. Oh, sure, we had a few skiers now and then, but nothing to get excited about. Most of the downtown shops put up shutters after Labor Day and didn't take them down until the first of May. Those stores that did stay open kept erratic hours and often would close for weeks at a time while the owners sun-bathed in Florida.

But those days are behind us. For the past several years, Charlevoix has been a four-season town and, believe it or not, the city can be just as lovely under three feet of snow as it is on an August afternoon.

Even if you come from a snow-belt city, you have to see Charlevoix's snow to appreciate it. For one thing, it seldom gets dirty like snow does in Detroit or Lansing. Or if it does get a little tacky, there's a fresh squall due off Lake Michigan at any minute to freshen things up.

Another thing: Charlevoix's snow seldom melts, because the temperature rarely climbs above 32 degrees all winter long. The contours left by our big blizzard last Jan. 26 remained with us until the snow started to go in late March and early April.

And although we get up to 10 feet of snow every winter – sometimes more, sometimes less – it seldom if ever keeps us from doing what we want to do or going where we want to go. Take the Jan. 26 blizzard, for example. That was probably the worst snowstorm we'll have for another 10 years. Yet all of our city streets and major highways were open for traffic the next day. It took a couple of days longer to clean up the alleys and country roads, but no one was inconvenienced for very long.

We were surprised to read that more than a month after that same blizzard some streets in the Detroit suburbs were still barely passable. Our street and highway crews have the equipment to handle snow and they aren't afraid to use it.

How would you like to have dinner at the Weathervane and watch fields of pancake ice float down the channel? They're just as pretty as cabin cruisers. Or walk into Grey Gables between elbow-high snow banks? Or visit nooks and crannies of the northwoods on cross-country skis, areas that are virtually impossible to visit other times of the year?

Even if you don't care for outdoor sports, Charlevoix has plenty of cozy spots and chimney corners to offer when the wind is roaring off the lake at 40 knots and the chill factor is down to 25 below. You'll love the aroma of woodsmoke from a hundred chimneys.

Why don't you make a reservation for next winter before you leave?

If it Fitz

by Jim Fitzgerald

It's expensive by the pound

The wife was excited. "I received a phone call from London, England, today," she told the husband.

"I suppose it was the queen asking why I wouldn't stand in for Prince Charles at Princess Caroline's wedding in Monte Carlo," the husband said. "I hope you told her I was too busy. She should have phoned Susan Ford."

"It was our son. He said he didn't know 44 pounds if $80," the wife said. "He phoned collect."

Then the husband remembered what he'd been trying to forget. 4 days earlier, wearing dirty white tennis shorts and hiking boots, the son had left home, saying he and a Chinese friend were going walking in Scotland. All of this is true, and can be documented.

The son said he wanted to make a Scottish friend who would go walking with him next summer in China.

"What is Nerd doing in London? He was supposed to go to Scotland," the husband said, remembering last summer when the son went hiking in Oregon. He returned with two dozen color slides, all taken in a Chicago motel.

"He said he stopped over to see the tennis tournament at Wimbledon," the wife explained. "I guess that's why he got on the plane wearing those awful shorts."

"Why did he phone? Why didn't he send a postcard?" the husband asked.

"I guess he couldn't afford a stamp because his boots fell apart. He said he had to buy a new pair in London and he thought they cost $44 but they really cost 44 pounds and that $80. His budget is shot."

"How could his boots fall apart so soon? He just bought them last year for the Oregon hike," the husband said.

"I think they were damaged when he got his feet caught in the elevator door at the Chicago motel."

"You're the one who wanted children," the husband reminded her. "I wanted to buy a poolroom."

"Why did you say the Queen of England should have phoned Susan Ford?" the wife asked. She was changing the subject. She doesn't like to be reminded that her son is a product of Planned Parenthood. As her husband once said, "It's like planning to have a nervious breakdown."

The husband explained that he'd just read a newspaper interview with Susan Ford and it had occurred to him that she and other children of past and present presidents are the nearest thing the United States has to England's royalty.

"The one difference is in the method of payment," he explained. "In England, the taxpayers pay Prince Charles thousands of pounds for doing a shilling's worth of work. In the United States, private business pay Susan Ford thousands of dollars for doing 75 cents worth of work."

Susan is a 20-yeear-old photographer who recently bought her own condominium in Palm Desert, Cal, near her parent's home. In the newspaper interview, she said she made "just under $100,000" a year. But it hasn't been easy.

"I've had to fight twice as hard as any other photographer, first because I'm a female, and second because I've had to prove that I can get jobs because I'm a good photographer, and not just because my name is Susan Ford," she said.

Susan added that she won't work for newspapers because she'd have to take "nonsense pictures." She prefers doing free-lance work lined up by her agent.

The husband thought these were exceedingly dumb things for Susan to say. He called it "royally dumb."

"That's so dumb it could have been said by Princess Margaret," the husband explained. "Susan Ford couldn't make $5 a year as a photographer if she weren't the daughter of Gerald Ford. And if Margaret hadn't been sired by a king, she would be squatted behind the cash register in the London shop that sold those boots to Nerd."

"He said he'd need more money to get home on," the wife said.

"Send it to that motel in Chicago," the husband said.

Letters to the editor

Josh Barnes urges officials to take action on taxes

To the Editor:

The following is a copy of a letter which was mailed to Federal and State Officials:

The enclosed brief editorial so well expresses the thinking of many of us who are vitally concerned about the tax situation, that I feel it worthwhile to bring it to your attention.

"I'm afraid the media has missed the point entirely, and particularly disagree when I see in our own relatively conservative area, an editorial applauding the use of federal funds through grants with the use of the words: "let's get our share". I urge the Government itself to quickly revise its philosophy to avoid the chaos that will unquestionallly result when the present system fails, as otherwise it must.

Thank you for your consideration.

Television specials are probing the phenomenon. Newspapers are analyzing the situation. Finally, it seems, everyone is aware that the taxpayer is staging a full-fledged revolt.

That's all well and good, but the taxpayer has been doing just that for years. The waves created are finally starting to rock the boat, and that's fine. However, it isn't going to do much good until our elected officials understand what the revolt is all about.

A good example is what's happening in our school system. They seem to be taking the initial brunt in the taxpayers saying "enough is enough." Schools are being closed, class sizes are being increased, educational programs are being pared to the bone - all to the detriment of our youngsters. Yet, from somewhere, taxpayer dollars are being found to subsidize cake decorating, basket weaving, flower arranging, or homeowner carpentry adult education classes for people who, for the most part, can afford to pay for those educational luxuries.

The knee-jerk reaction of elected officials to the taxpayers' revolt makes it clear the message still isn't getting across.

Schools used to be places for education. They have evolved into nutritional and health care centers, baby-sitting services, and instruments for desegregation. All of these activities are worthy. But they all cost money. And, for the most part, they have nothing to do with basic education. Yet basic education seems to be what is suffering.

The functions of our various governments - local, state and federal - have likewise been adulterated.

What upsets taxpayers the most is the knowledge that we are getting twice as much as we intended to buy and only half of what we are paying for.

The problem centers not on how much tax has to be paid, but rather what the tax dollars are being used for, how the politicians are spending our money.

Until we can get the people running our public institutions, our governments, to understand that we want to get back to basics, the taxpayers' revolt cannot be called a success.

Dahlquist offers a look at costs

To the Editor:

With continuing interest in the cost of utility services, comparison of cost figures for 1967 and those of 1977 for Consumer's Power Company may be of interest to your readers. The data are the latest available. The figures are from financial and statistical data prepared for the Company's 1977 Annual Report.

–Despite the severity of the 1976-77 and 1977-78 winters, our residential gas customers used an average of 168,000 cubic feet in 1977 for home heating, considerably under the 198,000 cubic feet used in 1967. The 1977 average was the lowest annual average in the 10-year period.

–On the other hand, electric residential customers in 1977 averaged 6,911 kilowatts, compared to 5,298 kilowatts in 1967 and only one kilowatt less than the 1976 average, which was the highest in the 10-year period.

–The cost of fuel for generating electricity has quadrupled in 10 years. The average for all fuels – coal, oil, nuclear and gas – was $1.11 per million British thermal units in 1977, compared to 30 cents in 1967. Residential customers in 1977 paid 4.02 cents per kilowatt hour, while in 1967 they paid 2.18 cents per kilowatt hour.

–The cost of gas sold to customers leaped from $85.5 million in 1967 to $496.6 million in 1977, an almost 500 percent increase. However, revenue from residential gas customers only increased in those 10 years from $1.02 per thousand cubic feet to $2.40 per thousand cubic feet, less than 250 percent.

–Although Consumers Power Company grew from 764,903 gas custumers and 1,002,706 electric customers in 1967 to 1,014,585 gas customers and 1,258,380 electric customers in 1977, the number of employees increased only a fraction, from 10,837 a decade ago to 10,920 at the end of last year.

–To meet the increased electric load demanded by more customers using more electricity, from 3.4 million kilowatts to 6.4 million kilowatts.

–Return on common equity was 10.38 percent last year, well below the 12.57 percent of 1967. The market price per share of common stock in 1977 fluctuated from a low of 20 and 7 8ths to a high of 25 and 7 8ths. In 1967, the price was 38-½ at its lowest and 50 and 3 8ths at its highest. Number of common shares outstanding at year end was 42.2 million last year, compared to 22.6 million in 1967. Cash dividends per share were $2.09 last year and $1.86 in 1967.

These figures sketch a composite picture of a company faced with higher costs of providing service, growth in total customers and total output of service, growth in stockholder shares and common stock dividend but a decline in stock value, and customer conservation in gas use and a probable increase in the number of electrical appliances in most households. It might also give some of your readers an insight into why their utility rates are higher today than they were 10 years ago.

Sincerely,
R.G. Dahlquist

Mrs. Mackowiak praises Grandvue operations

To the Editor:

In response to Mike Ready's column which recently appeared in the Traverse City Record-Eagle and which was reprinted in the Charlevoix Courier, I am wondering if you have ever visited your friend Mary at the Grandvue Medical Care Facility. I can't believe that you have and that you are still as biased as you appear to be.

I agree 100 percent that we need more senior citizen housing for the elderly who are able to take care of themselves, but, for those with medical problems, Grandvue is a wonderful place!

Having visited Grandvuew several times weekly for the past five years, because my mother is a patient there, I feel qualified to defend the facility.

The residents there have the advantage of excellent care by devoted employees, attractive and nutritious meals, therapy, recreational and religious activities – all provided in clean, sanitary, pleasant housing.

I can't give enough praise to the employees for their understanding, courtesy, kindness and patience. It can't always be easy with the more "difficult" patients, but the tender loving care still shines through.

We are so fortunate in Charlevoix County to have Grandvue!

Could you find time to visit the facility and observe these facts for yourself? Then, hopefully, you will reconsider your statement – "I just hope that people I know will never have to go there."

Mrs. Rosemary Mackowiak

Bud Matthews comments on Medusa problem

To the Editor:

Flying north at 6,000 feet passing Torch Lake, the evening is cloudless, except for the plume of the Medusa stack spreading a fan of haze. There the odor of rotten eggs fills the cabin and the air feels full of grit. I cannot believe it. This pollution spreading 15 miles to the south and east. Why do the people of Charlevoix tolerate this monster? Jobs and a tax base, they say. What will happen to the jobs and tax base when these acres of land are totally devoured? One of the most beautiful coastlines in America is then destroyed, no way to reclaim it. Plant sites for light industry are gone forever, resort sites are gone forever, residential sites are gone forever.

For years Charlevoix has enjoyed continuous growth of light industry, tourism, permanent vacation homes, and retirement homes. Will this desirable growth continue or be halted by one undesirable industry? Do the few jobs Medusa may create justify elimination of hundreds of jobs that could be created in the next decade by promoting and planning for growth of Charlevoix County's principal assets, unspoiled land, unpolluted water, and once again, pure fresh air? Is a fully automated computer-run plant going to increase or decrease employment?

Fortunately, or unfortunately, Medusa is sitting on an immense limestone quarry. If its production were essential to the well being of our country, we should sacrifice our landscape and ship it away by the boatland.

Unfortunately, Medusa must convert to the new dry process to meet Canadian competition. But at whose expense? Will Charlevoix ever regain a pittance of the enormous loss of this priceless and irreplaceable possession ?

It is absolutely impossible to believe that technology is available to overcome the pollution. How can you take Government as well as additional income to Medusa stockholders to spend elsewhere. What a deal. How many stockholders live here?

Some may consider this another assault on big business. Not so. Corporations no longer can survive on profits alone; the overall public benefit must be considered by its directors and management if a corporation is to survive and prosper in this day and age.

This project is about the same as leveling Mackinac Island and stripping the land to widen I-75. This project is the rotten egg smell out of burning coal? Reduce it by 80 percent, they claim. One rotten egg smells about as bad as five rotten eggs. With the continuous super-heated air billowing from the stacks, how can you keep the cement dust from rising with it from the plant, the silos, the loading docks? Impossible. Let it float skyward in its great plume and settle back on our water, our homes, our boats, our cars, and in our lungs. Color Charlevoix gray.

A further insult: no compensation of this loss will accrue to this area. In fact, the tax break given by the County will create a windfall tax to the Federal worse than strip mining for coal. At least coal is essential in our energy crisis and the land strip mined can be reclaimed.

This expansion should be stopped in its tracks and the present facility phased out. Medusa may suffer a decline in earnings, Charlevoix may suffer a temporary loss of employment, but both can recover. Medusa has other avenues in which to employ its capital. Thay have had considerable success in manufacturing and oil production.

One hundred years ago our land was stripped of its white pine forests; now it's the very land on which this community's real future depends. Do we learn from history or does history repeat itself?

Meet Charlevoix

...Norman Gaffney

By PEG OHLE

The Courier sat down with City Manager Norman Gaffney last week to hear what he has to say about his job after being here less than a month. Here is how it went:

COURIER: Are you going to make any changes?

GAFFNEY: Under the new charter, quite a number of changes will have to be made, but not in personnel.

COURIER: What type of changes?

GAFFNEY: Because the city clerk's job will be replaced by a clerk of the council and elections, the clerk's present duties will be passed to other departments. The treasurer's job will become a controller's job. We are now taking applications for someone with controlling experience.

COURIER: What about the other employees?

GAFFNEY: We are making evaluation tests of our employees to determine their strong points so they can best serve the community.

COURIER: How do you assess your own job?

GAFFNEY: I like to delegate work to department heads – I try to be a good coach rather than a boss. I see my job like that of the superintendent of schools, to work with all departments.

COURIER: How have you been received by the public?

GAFFNEY: I have been pleased with the response. I've been stopped by people on the street who say, "Happy you're here." We can't do anything without the help of the people. I appreciate the article in the Courier about getting behind the new manager. We need that kind of help.

COURIER: What things have you decided need attention first?

GAFFNEY: We have a good product to sell and want to get the show on the road. I met with the city council and we decided that our number one problem is probably water. We need better pressure throughout the area. We are pumping a lot of water but are losing about 50 percent of it. It's costly. We are now investigating through Ranger Engineering where the losses are. They will take soundings to discover where the breaks are and find the losses. Some areas have old transmission lines that probably have several small breaks. There might even be one in the channel. We expect a report in about three weeks.

COURIER: What is number two in priority?

GAFFNEY: Sewers. We have to separate the storm sewers from the other sewers. We would like to see the sewers extended to the township. The plant was overbuilt to work with the township in the future.

COURIER: What about streets?

GAFFNEY: Some of the streets should be reconstructed. I have gone over the street problem with the foreman and we will repair some of them. The bids are out. Old city streets are difficult to maintain. Good streets appreciate people's property values and a beautiful city should have beautiful streets.

COURIER: Have you done anything about grants yet?

GAFFNEY: I've made some inquiries on grants available. We're not interested in just getting a grant but in getting a grant for something that's needed. We've contacted several public officials about the purchase of the waterfront (Hiller) property. This would not have the priority that others would, but they're looking at all avenues where we might get help. Hopefully we will have something favorable to report within the next few months.

COURIER: What on-going plans do you have?

GAFNEY: We will have monthly reports from all the departments, we will have regular staff meetings, and we will recognize employees for exceptional service.

COURIER: Have you received any complaints from people?

GAFFNEY: I've gotten some complaints. However, this gives me an opportunity to meet people and I try to help them. I'm always available. I don't screen office calls.

COURIER: What did you do before you came here?

GAFFNEY: I grew up in Port Huron where I had some retail outlets. I was active in the Chamber of Commerce, a councilman, mayor pro-tem and on the county board of supervisors for eight years. It is an advantage to have been on the other side of the fence.

COURIER: Then what?

GAFFNEY: I was the first trained city manager of Northlake, Illinois. Then I went to Lewistown, Pennsylvania as a borough manager, then to Plymouth, Michigan, and finally to Ionia, where I was for five years.

COURIER: Where did you go to school?

GAFFNEY: I graduated from Port Huron High School, went to junior college, then to Eastern Michigan College of Commerce.

Norman Gaffney

COURIER: How large is your family?

GAFFNEY: I'm proud of being a family man. I stayed in Michigan because we like to see each other. My wife Jean teaches school in Belding and is taking some courses for an advanced degree. Daughter Kathleen teaches in the St. Clair County Community College. Son Norman Michael Gaffney, Jr. is an attorney in Lansing. Daughter Mary Jo was born on St. Patrick's Day and has beautiful red hair. She is in library science in Winnetka, Illinois. Jeanie is 15 and a sports enthusiast. She also likes band and cheerleading. We also have a grandson

COURIER: What are your hobbies?

GAFNEY: Gardening, cooking (I like to consider myself a gourmet cook), traveling (I've been to "God's Country" - Ireland) as well as other European countries and most of the United States, and cutting my lawn for exercise.

COURIER: Do you belong to any organizations?

GAFFNEY: I'm past president of the Rotary Club and have held offices in other clubs. I like to meet people and find service clubs are a good way.

COURIER: What do you like best about Charlevoix?

GAFFNEY: I'm proud of the three beaches, the tennis courts, and the golf course. Mt. McSauba will be in business next winter, too.

Charlevoix band student enjoys marching to a different drummer

When the Midshipmen Drum and Bugle Corps marches out on the field during one of its many performances this summer, a Charlevoix youth will be marching proudly with them.

Charlevoix High School senior Steve Landon is a member of the rifle corps for the Midshipmen. Landon is the first Charlevoix student to participate in the corps, which is based in Petoskey.

The drum major of the Charlevoix High School marching band said the excitement and the competition of the drum corps enticed him to join the group.

"The music is fantastic–it's so exciting, so fanfarish," Landon explained as the memory of a recent concert brightened his face. "And it's so exciting to watch the corps perform."

Landon said he had been the Midshipmen and many other corps in the Drum Corps International circuit perform in the past and had always been impressed with the groups. So, when Dr. C.B. Wills, manager of the Midshipmen, called Charlevoix High School to invite students to become a part of the Midshipmen, Landon answered the call.

The high school student has been playing the oboe in Charlevoix bands since he was in the sixth grade. He has marched in the high school band for two years–one year in the rhythm section and one year as drum major – but he has never participated in a drum corps before.

Landon said his first performance with the drum corps was completely different than he had expected.

"It was very scary," the student recalled. "The judges are running all over the place watching what you're doing.

"But then, about half-way through the show, you realize that you can do it and things get better after that. It's a real experience."

Landon said he enjoys the competition part of being in the drum corps.

"It's very exciting and it's good to see everyone pulling for the same thing," he explained. "And it's especially fun when you have a good crowd. That spurs you on to do even better."

Although there is no specific coach assigned to the rifle corps, the other members of the group have helped Landon pick up the routine.

"It has come naturally to me, which pleased and surprised me," he said. "And the corps style is really not that difficult to learn.

"It's great when you become really snappy and proud. It's not hard at all to adjust to that."

As a part of the five-member rifle corps, Landon has also been involved in writing all the routines that the groups performs with the Midshipmen.

Landon has put in a lot of time this summer as a corps member. The Midshipmen average two competitions and one parade a weekend and they practice three hours a night for three nights a week.

"And whenever I have a chance at home, I practice the drill then, too," Landon added.

He has been practicing with the Midshipmen since February preparing this season's show.

Even though the Midshipmen perform the same show week after week, Landon said he never gets bored with it.

"It changes somewhat every week, although it's basically still the same show," Landon said. "The judges make suggestions and we try to incorporate them.

"You know, we've been doing the same show for three months now and we still don't do it perfectly."

The high school student said it was a little tough being the only Charlevoix member of the Midshipmen.

"They tease me a lot, but I've made a lot of really super, lifelong friends," he added.

Landon feels his experience with the Midshipmen will help him as drum major of the Charlevoix Marching band next year.

"It's really seasoned me," he said. "Now I've been able to watch the Midshipmen's drum major and I've seen how he's handled every situation and I think that will help me in the fall.

"Also I've had a chance to see this summer what's going to be "In style" for marching bands this summer and I will be able to help Mr. (Gary) Stutzman write some of the program we'll be doing."

Landon said he has had a lot of help from friends and relatives and that has made it much easier for him to belong to the Midshipmen.

"Dave and Bonnie Hand, my bosses, have been really super about letting me have time off when I need it and supporting me," Landon said.

"And my parents and a friend mine, Chris Verpagel of Petoskey, who is also in the Midshipmen, have also helped a lot."

The determination of normal weight for individuals is difficult because of variations in body build. For practical purposes however it is possible to determine whether or not an individual is obese. Metropolitan Life Insurance Company statisticians define an overweight person as one with a deviation of 10 percent or more above his ideal weight. It is estimated that at least one fifth of the American population over the age of thirty is overweight. That means that there are five million obese adults in the United States. However, we suggest checking with your physician before starting on a high protein or other advertised diet in vogue today.

She lists skiing, swimming, reading, sailing and writing poetry as her hobbies. She also enjoys traveling.

A Charlevoix artist has recently completed a pen and ink drawing of an aerial view of Charlevoix and Round Lake.

Greg Winmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Winmer, spent four months completing the drawing which is now available at the Little Traverse Trading Company in Charlevoix.

Winmer composed the drawing from several aerial pictures he has of the town. He decided to design this particular drawing because he thought it would have appealed to Charlevoix residents and visitors alike.

Winmer is an artist with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and has done many historical murals as well as illustrated informational pamphlets and signs for the department.

He also draws and paints for himself and he recently won the best in the show classification in the Albert Lee, Minn., art show. His drawing, a cornstalk silhouette, which is composed of scenes from Charlevoix was purchased from Charlevoix by the library.

Winmer graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1969 and also studied at the Kendall School of Design where he received formal training in the arts.

Belvedere Club celebrates 100 years of summer

One hundred years of summer in Charlevoix the Beautiful is being celebrated at the Belvedere Club this week.

The 350 members of Charlevoix's oldest summer community are observing their centennial year Saturday with activities steeped in the tradition of the club, according to Peggy Disbrow, member of the centennial committee.

"Children are a very important part of the activities at the Belvedere and they always have been," Mrs. Disbrow explained. "So the things we will be doing Saturday are planned for them as well as the adults."

A picnic featuring games for the young and young-at-heart will be held Saturday afternoon on the upperterrace of the club where the former Belvedere Club Hotel used to stand. Prizes will be awarded and box lunches will be supplied.

Following the afternoon's activities, club members will watch the Venetian Festival Boat Parade and fireworks display to complete the day.

"We thought the Venetian Festival would be a nice finish for the day," Mrs. Disbrow explained. "People at the Belvedere have always enjoyed it, so we planned our celebration around it."

On Sunday, the club members will gather at the Belvedere Casino for a hymn sing and prayer meeting reminiscent of the hymn sings that used to be held weekly at the club.

"The Belvedere Club was a very religious organization when it was started," Mrs. Disbrow said. "The first members were devout Baptists and they started the weekly services.

"But we have had complete religious tolerance since the beginning and now I don't think we have one Baptist left.

"We kept up the hymn singing on Sunday nights for years, but gradually attendance dropped off and we stopped it."

The Belvedere Club is also marking its centennial by placing plaques at three historic sites in the club. One plaque will be placed at the site of the former windmill on the upper terrace which provided water and energy for the first cottagers.

A second plaque will be placed at the bayou where the sailboats for the club are presently docked and a third plaque will be placed at the site of the former hotel.

"We decided to do this so that our children will know a little of the history of the club," the centennial committee member said.

"For our 90th year we wrote a book tracing the history of each cottage. These plaques will go along with that."

The Belvedere Club got its start in 1878 when six men from Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids and Fort Wayne banded together to form the Charlevoix Summer Home Association.

The men purchased 25 acres of land from the City of Charlevoix for $625 and immediately constructed six cottages and a pier.

"Must of the people came here by boat or stage in those days," Mrs. Disbrow explained.

The following year a boarding house, which later became the enormous Belvedere Hotel, was built.

The six men settled in Charlevoix because of its beauty and because they were boat people like so many of the Belvedere residents are today, the centennial committee member said.

Gradually the club grew to the 88 cottages that it has today. The Belvedere draws its members from St. Louis, Chicago, Grosse Pointe, Memphis, Nashville, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, and parts of Texas.

One of those families is the John Ware family from Wichita, Kan. Ware brought his wife and four-year-old daughter, Mickey, to the Belvedere for the first time this summer. Mickey is one of four children in the Ware family who represents a fifth generation in the same family at the Belvedere.

Mickey is one of three five generation family members who are still summering in the same cottage.

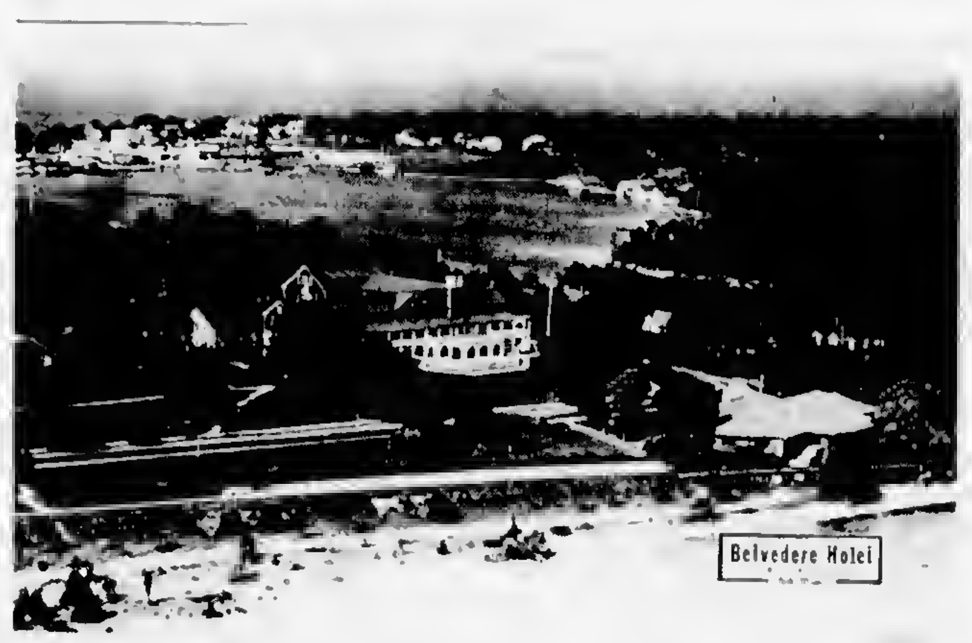
There are three Ware family cottages in the Belvedere Club, built by three brothers, the sons of Elisha Ware who helped found the club.

As the Belvedere grew, history was made. Statesman Adlai Stevenson, actor Bill Tallman and writer Ernest Hemingway all have roots in the club.

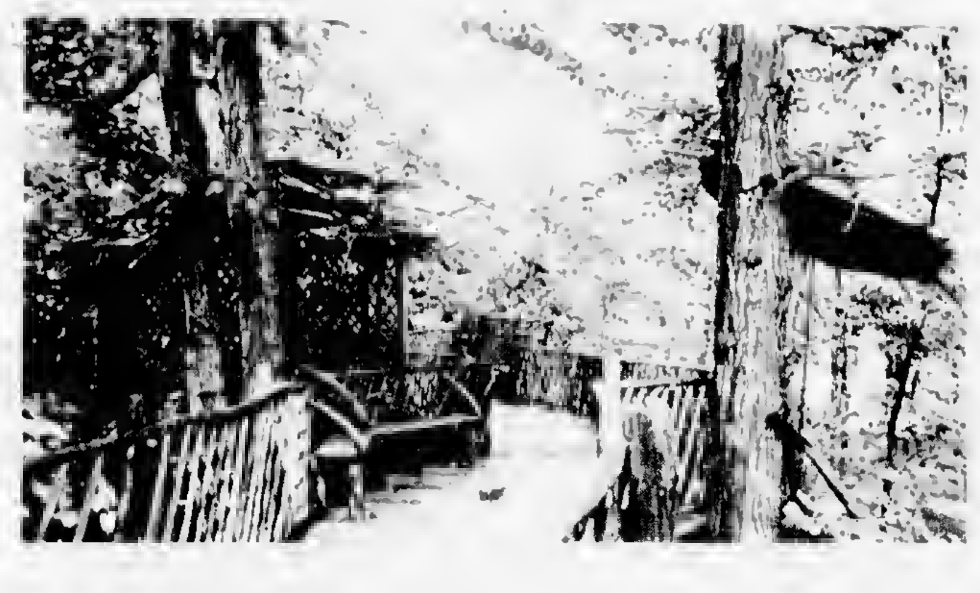
Other, not so well know, people created history at the club, too. Like the members of the club who sat up all night looking at the hotel as it was being constructed and decided it should be named the Belvedere, thus changing the history of the club.

Or the members who tell the stories of having to go down to the dining hall to use the only bathtubs in the club.

"You had to sign up to use the bathtubs and they charged you 25 cents," Mrs. Disbrow said recalling her history. "They had running water more or less. It was cold or you could use heated up water from the stove."



THE BOARDING HOUSE built at the Belvedere in 1879 eventually evolved into the Belvedere Hotel as pictured here. The hotel was torn down around 1908.



THIS WOODEN BRIDGE used to connect the two sections of the Belvedere Club. It was torn down because of age and has never been replaced.

ELISHA CLARK WARE poses down by the bayou at the Belvedere Club in 1890. He is the father of Ralph, Walter and Robert Ware who each built cottages at the club. The Ware families have spent five generations at the Belvedere.

DR. STUART LEVINE mounted a one-man protest in front of the Cinema III last week over the long run of the movie "Grease." Levine said holding the movie over so long was a disservice to the community.

Protester pickets theater, demands "Grease" relief

The Cinema III in Charlevoix was picketed by a lone protestor last week.

Dressed in a sedate, blue sports coat and dark tie topped with two cardboard, hand-printed signs, Dr. Stuart Levine, sauntered back and forth in front of the movie theater most of the evening Wednesday.

The signs bearing the slogans, "We want Grease relief!" and "This show has to go," were greeted mostly by cheers from passersby.

Grease, the hot box office number about the 1950s which features Olivia Newton-John and John Travolta, just completed its sixth week at the Cinema III.

Levine, a summer resident in the Chicago Club on Charlevoix's north side and a psychology professor at Bard College in upstate New York, said he believed the owners of the theater had a responsibility to change the movies at the theater at least once a week.

"It seems to me that if there is only one movie theater in town, the owners have a responsibility to the citizens to change the movie more often than every five weeks," Levine said explaining his protest. "I feel very strongly that when they don't do that they are disregarding the best interest of the citizens.

"You can't hold a movie in the only theater in town for five weeks and hope to meet the entertainment needs of the residents."

Levine agreed that there were many other things Charlevoix residents and visitors could do besides go to the movie, but he still felt that they should have the opportunity to go to a different show every week if they wished.

He also pointed out that driving to the theaters in Boyne City or Petoskey was not a viable solution because of the gasoline shortage and energy crisis facing the nation.

"Oh, it's the owners perfect right to do what he is doing, but I feel it's a disservice," Levine said.

"There are a lot of people on my side, too."

Onne man who disagreed with Levine was Howard Wolf, a Charlevoix resident.

"The owners wouldn't run the show if people weren't coming to see it," Wolf argued. "And it seems like people are still going to see it so it should be run.

"Also do we need this type of big city activity here," Wolf said, referring to Levine's protest. "Do we need this activity in this type of town?"

Sam Supernaw, part owner of the theater, explained that in order to bring Grease to Charlevoix he had to sign a contract that stipulated how long the movie would stay.

Under the contract, if the theater grossed so much in the third week the movie was shown, the owners had to keep it to the fifth week and if it grossed so much the sixth week it had to stay o sixth and so on.

"The contract with Paramount says as long as we make the gross we have to keep the movie," Supernaw said. "That's what we had to do to get the movie here."

Supernaw said he would be calling Paramount this week to find out if he had to keep it a seventh week.

THIS SHOW HAS TO GO!

Gordon Wellman

Gordon R. Wellman, president of the Charlevoix County State Bank, has volunteered to be chairman of the "Patern Gifts" Division of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Fundraising Campaign.

As chairman of the Pattern Gifts Division, Wellman and his committee of 11 volunteers will meet with leaders of businesses, foundations, and corporations as well as individuals capable of giving $10,000 or more to the hospital's fundraising campaign.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital officially announced its plans for a $2.1 million expansion and renovation project to expand and remodel its out patient departments of X-ray, laboratory, emergency room, physical and respiratory therapy and similar departments on July 10. The fundraising campaign was opened simultaneously.

Wellman, who has lived in Charlevoix for the past seven years, has been President of Charlevoix County State Bank for the past three and a half years, and has been active in community affairs. He was president of the Charlevoix Lions Club, president of Charlevoix Community Chest for two years, and a member of the Charlevoix Parking Authority.

Other members of the "Patern Gift Committee" are E. James Hiller, Conrad Klooster, Eleanor Freedman, Jack Malpeli, Jane Sooy, Thomas Pointner, Roy Rankin, Walter Hufford, John Campbell, Maurice Foster, and Mary Gelken.

When Welman and his committee meet potential donors to the hospital's fundraising campaign, they will explain in detail the expansion and renovation project.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors determined that the hospital had to expand and remodel certain vital departments as a result of the tremendous growth in the use of these departments over the past several years.

Changing trends in medicine have focussed more emphasis on out-patient treatment rather than hospitalization, whenever feasible. This trend is aimed at controlling costs to both patient and hospital.

At Charlevoix Area Hospital, this trend coupled with the addition of many new physicians over the past six years, has meant that departments such as X-ray and laboratory have experienced up to 300 percent increase in use. Similar increases are true for the emergency room, respiratory and physical therapy, and other out-patient departments as well.

Thus, while the Charlevoix Area Hospital's expansion and renovation project involves no additional beds, a new two story wing will be built, running east-west facing Lake Michigan, to house beds moved from inside the present structure. Space provided by the move of the beds and administrative offices will permit the expansion and renovation of the vital out-patient departments within the present hospital.

Construction is slated to begin next spring, to be completed by 1980.

The $750,000 Fund Raising Campaign will provide the capital for the project. The fundraising campaign, now just beginning with Wellman's chairmanship of the Pattern Gift Committee, will continue until mid-September.

The campaign got off to a quick start when the "Hospital Family" -- employees, doctors, Guild, and Board of Directors -- announced a total gift of $150,000.

An additional boost was provided this past week when Medusa Corporation pledged $75,000 to the campaign.

Sheriff's department reports June busy month for deputies

The month of June was considerably busier for the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department than was June of 1977.

The Department's report shows that 292 complaints were received last month, compared with 177 last June. Of the complaints received, 240 were closed during the month, compared with 152 last June.

However, there was one fewer arrest this year, eight compared with nine last year. Only one arrest was a felony.

The number of jail inmates booked remained the same, 26, but the number of meals served at the jail jumped from 516 to 763.

The Sheriff's Department assisted in 35 accidents, compared with 25 last year; made 52 traffic arrests compared with 57 last year; issued 48 traffic warnings compared with 18 last year; gave 108 general assists compared with 13 last year; made 212 security checks for businesses and 25 security checks for residences (none last year); received 2,696 telephone calls, compared with 2,775 last year.

The Department also processed 101 civil cases, compared with 86 last year; made 31 liquor inspections, compared with 21 last year; received 68 dog complaints, compared with 79 last year; and made 138 marine inspections, compared with 133 last year.

To carry out these duties and many others, Sheriff's Department vehicles traveled 20,281 during June, 1978, compared with 14,563 miles in June, 1977.

Silver prospecting topic for next historical meet

The story of a silver prospecting trip to Ontario during the year 1907 will be told at the next meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society Tuesday, August 1, at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the First State Bank.

The informal program will recreate a trip made by train from Charlevoix to Cobalt, Ontario on which Louise Beutner, the two years old was taken by her parents. Her father's purpose was to investigate the silver prospecting rush which was taking place at that time.

Mrs. Beutner will tell how they used five different railroad lines on the trip from Charlevoix, making connections at Petoskey, St. Ignace, Trout Lake, Sault St. Marie and North Bay to reach their destination in Northern Ontario. These cities were important then in either lumbering or mining.

All interested persons are invited to attend the meeting, which will be presided over by the newly-elected president, W.W. Price.

Farmhouse and 280 acres, all or part, a really fine parcel of ground, some tillable, some pasture, some timber. Walk-in freezer, seven outbuildings, four potato cellars, small pond and creek on property, small orchard, corral and pasture are fenced. Located 6 miles west of Boyne Mountain and 20 miles West of Gaylord and I-75, 6 miles to Lake Charlevoix. More details at 582-6771 Bieganowski & Assoc.

Assembly of God dedicates new church

What has a gym, 13 classrooms, a fully-equipped kitchen, offices, a small meeting room and a large meeting room?

The new Assembly of God Church on M-66.

While the large meeting room is normally called a sanctuary, and the small meeting room is known as a chapel, the church does indeed house all of the other rooms in its 18,500 square foot expanse situated on 26 acres just past the Hoskins Manufacturing plant.

The 300 member congregation designed its new church with such a variety of rooms so that it would be functional, Rev. Donald Schorsch explained.

"To borrow a phrase from one of the churches we visited before we started building our own church, we built this building as a place to worship and not as an object of worship," Schurach said.

"We're a nontraditional non-stained glass window congregation. We wanted our new church to be functional and useful. And we wanted it to be a useful tool for the community as well as for our congregation."

And so, the building committee, with the voted approval of the members of the congregation, added several unique items to the new church.

One unique feature of the sanctuary is that there are no pews which provide the seating in traditional churches. Instead, rows of brightly upholstered individual chairs fill up the expanse designed to seat up to 500 people.

"This will allow a more personal, individual approach type of ministry," Schorsch commented. "With the seats the way they are, you look at people instead of everybody's head.

"And if you want to you can rearrange the seats into small group clusters or in a circle to try some different forms of worship."

The chapel seating is designed identically which allows the small room to also be used for adult Sunday School and for meetings.

The fellowship hall also doubles as a gymnasium and features all the necessary space and equipment for competitive sports. The area will also be used as a meeting room and dining room.

In addition the church is equipped with a library, restrooms that feature showers, carpeting throughout and a foyer decorated with a Brumm sculpture.

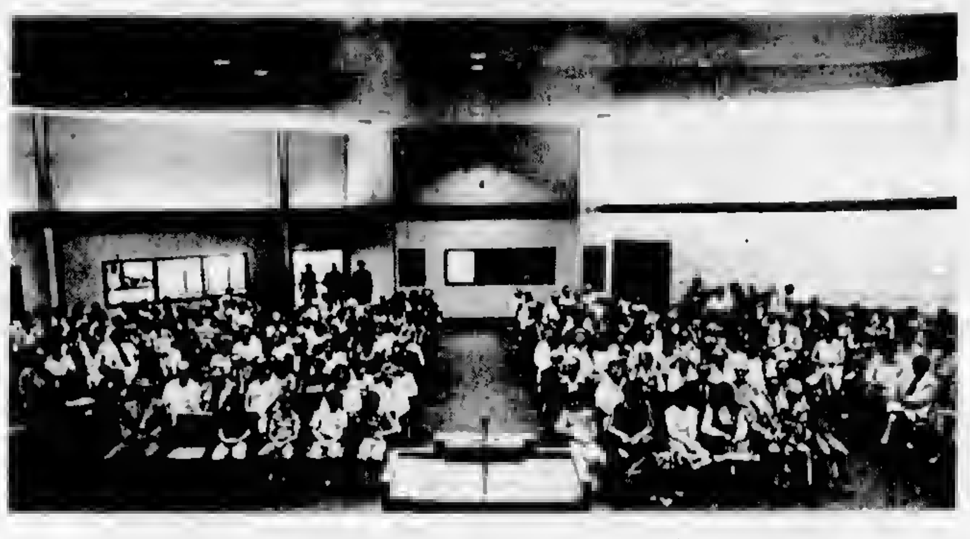
Construction of the new building began in October, 1977, by Peninsula Construction of Traverse City. It is a steel building about three times the size of the former church and it cost approximately $450,000.

The construction costs were funded through the sale of bonds.

Special dedication services will be held at the church at 3 p.m. Sunday. Rev. Ivar Frick, Michigan District Assembly of God superintendent will be the speaker. Several former ministers will also be on hand including Rev. Reynold Warner, who starred the Charlevoix congregation, Rev. Arthur Austin of Bailey, Rev. Lyle Phillips of Davison and Rev. Ted Thodeson of Manchester.

Area residents are invited to join the dedication services and to tour the new facility.

THE NEW ASSEMBLY OF GOD CHURCH will be dedicated Sunday. The congregation has been worshiping in the new building for about two months. It is located on M-66 just south of Charlevoix



THE SANCTUARY OF THE new Assembly of God Church has a unique feature in its seating. The sanctuary has chairs instead of pews to allow for a personalized ministry and a varied use of the sanctuary.

And You'll Know You've Found The Petoskey Shopping Area More Reminiscent Of Earlier Days, More Creative And Nostalgic Than Any Place You've Ever Been.

Petoskey,
Michigan

Little Traverse Bay has quiet beauty and unforgettable charm. When the setting sun spreads its radiance over the waters, it is indeed lovely from the vantage point of the limestone cliff on which the city of Petoskey now stands, the setting sun provides a spectacular show. The Indians created a legend about it. Since the first settlers and sightseers arrived over one hundred years ago, the beauty of the sunset has been a thing of wonder and awe to all.

Very few white people had seen a sunset over Little Traverse Bay on that late fall day in 1863, when the first train whistled to a stop at the end of its line.

On board was a reporter for a Grand Rapids newspaper, who in reporting on the wilderness scenery, dubbed it Petoskey's Million Dollar Sunset.

The metamorphosis of Petoskey was rapid. It grew from a small Indian settlement at the mouth of Bear river, to a dynamic, busy village catering to the needs of sightseers and homesteaders. To house the visitors, the Arlington and other luxury hotels were constructed overnight. Rooming houses for the less affluent were soon to follow.

By 1890 a substantial number of shops had sprung up along the main street, creating a very unique pioneer shopping area. Along the Bear River waterpower was harnessed to run sawmills, flour mills, hardwood flooring industries, butter bowl factories, and furniture making industries. The limestone cliffs along Little Traverse Bay provided Petoskey with lime, a natural resource of great importance to the industrial development of the town.

Little steamers plied the Bay and the summer visitors who registered at Petoskey hotels and rooming houses took advantage of the many excursions offered. The most popular trip was the Circular or Inland Route. This lengthy excursion took the traveler up the coastline of Little Traverse Bay into Lake Michigan, around to Mackinac Island, on to Cheboygan and then down the chain of rivers and lakes to what is now Conway. Until the quaint little dummy trains were in operation, the excursionists were jolted back to Petoskey from Conway by wagon and team.

In 1880 the system was in full operation and trips were being made every fifteen minutes. By 1905 two trains ran from Petoskey to Harbor Springs at half hour intervals. Many of the people who had come to see the area on the train liked what they saw and became regular summer visitors. By the 1900's the shift from tourism to settled summer communities was in motion. Many resorts developed around the Bay and inland lakes of the area. The new-fangled summer resorters spelled the doom of the delightful little steamers on the Bay, the little dummy trains, and the luxury hotels. Many of the hotels burned and were not rebuilt; the dummy engines were sold for scrap, and the steamers sailed off over the horizon.

Although the modes of transportation have seen drastic change, Petoskey's magnetism remains. There is still an element of charm and friendliness in shopping adventure which belongs uniquely to Petoskeys Gaslight District. One may still marvel at the beauty of Little Traverse Bay and experience the wonder of the Million Dollar Sunset

Opportunity passed Ironton by

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

"Ironton might have been a small city today, similar to Gary, Indiana," Mrs. Ross Alexander has written for her book-in-process.

But things didn't work out that way.

Mrs. Alexander, the acknowledged resident historian of Ironton, is spending as much time as she can spare trying to bring her book – a history of Ironton – to a finish this summer.

Ironton today is but a shadow of its original boom-self.

In the early 1880s two men, S.R. Adams and R.M. Cherrie constructed a pig iron smelting company on the shores of Lake Charlevoix where the South Arm begins.

The location was a natural. The hardwood forests could be harvested for wood to produce charcoal, the lakes solved transportation problems.

More than 20 beehive-shaped kilns were lined up to receive the dollies of lumber that were run along railroad tracks to the kilns.

The tracks and dollies were all steel, another resident historian, Pete Bennet reports, so the loads of wood could be run directly into the kilns.

Ironton's population was swollen by the employment of some 500 to 600 men at the Pine Lake Iron Company's smelter, kilns, and in the woods.

Two saloons flourished and Mrs. Alexander writes of some wild times.

The laborers, she writes in her forthcoming book, were paid in script and did all their shopping at the Pine Lake Iron Company General Store.

Ironton was then a prosperous community, Mrs. Alexander says, showing a visitor pictures of rows of spacious homes along the shore, and on nearby streets.

"There were," she says, "two rows of houses on Washington Street, and many houses nearer the smelter."

The digging out and recording of Ironton's history has been a "labor of love", the retired teacher admits.

But the facts of history are often as convoluted as plots of novels.

Cherrie was an avid Republican, she reports. Anticipating the election of 1893, he announced he would go out of business if a Democrat was elected.

"It took weeks in those days to get election results," Mrs. Alexander reminds her listener — "no TV nor radio, you know."

Grover Cleveland, a Democrat won the election and true to his word, Cherrie went out of business:

He put a load of dynamite into the smelter and blew it up.

His partner's daughter Eva Adams, however, was not about to leave Ironton, Mrs. Alexander says. Eva Adams began the Sweet Brier Farms, a resort, using some of the old homes from the smelting period. Sweet Brier Farms continued until 1936 when it was destroyed by fire.

"Guests came on train to Charlevoix and by boat to Ironton," she explains.

The development of Sweet Brier Farms and the end of the industrial period in Ironton changed the future of the small settlement by the lake. It became what it has continued to be, a farming and resort community.

About 1936, after the fire of Sweet Brier Farms, a man known as D'Amico built the Ironton Playhouse – a summer stock theatre – which Mrs. Alexander recalls put on good plays, "such as Uncle Tom's Cabin." The theatre operated for six years.

Developing with the growth of the community was the world famous Ironton Ferry.

It began as a rowboat, with Robert Bedwin taking passengers across the South Arm for 5 cents a head, in 1876.

As the furnace developed a larger ferry was needed, and a scow was built by Arden Shelden, capable of hauling a team of horses and a wagon across, Mrs. Alexander's history recounts.

The history of the Ironton Ferry is near and dear to Mrs. Alexander. Her late father-in-law Sam Alexander was the hero of the Ripley's Believe It or Not story which heralded him for having traveled 15,000 miles while never more than 1,000 feet from his home.

Pete Bennett, her neighbor, is also deeply interested in the ferry. He took over when Sam Alexander retired.

Mrs. Alexander's book will chronicle the growth of the ferry from Shelden's skow where passengers had to help crank the windlass, to a larger skow and eventually the present day ferry.

One of the more remarkable facts, details of which she plans to reveal, is that Sam Alexander ran the ferry for 40 years 24 hours a day.

"They didn't keep hours in those days," she laughs. "Times have changed."

Mrs. Alexander is well qualified to write the book.

She came to Ironton to teach in its one room school house in 1920. She taught two years in Ironton and one year at the Lincoln School in Charlevoix before Ross Alexander persuaded her to get married.

She has carefully collected and preserved photographs that in themselves tell the story of the little community: wiry men lounge in front of a kiln.; a group of Indians bear a dugout canoe; elegant ladies stand in front of Sweet Brier Farms cottages; passengers and ferrymen operate the Ironton Ferry; and the company store looms large in several pictures from the late 19th century.

Changes kept coming in Ironton, as avid fisherman, Pete Bennett points out. As well as having been the ferry operator for many years, he owned the site of what is now Chester's Boat Livery and Restaurant.

"About 1940 we bought it and named it Pete's Boat Livery," he recalls.

His wife, Mary, laughs and says it was a good thing she was not a fisherman, because the perch runs then were a boom time for them, and Pete spent a lot of time guiding fishermen.

"You'd get a pail full as fast as you could. They were the big yellow bellied perch. Weighed about a pound or little less," Pete's eyes sparkle with the memory.

"I always was a fisherman, and those guys paid me," Pete chuckles, referring to times when people were lined up on its docks waiting for a boat to rent.

Pete blames the lamprey eel and over-fishing by commercial fishermen for the decline in perch runs.

But as a fisherman's paradise and a resort, Ironton is still being heard from.

As this writer was talking to Mrs. Alexander, her husband Ross, son Sam and several companions arrived with an impressive take of Lake Trout and one enormous silver King Salmon.

Ross Alexander and his friends cleaned their fish and Mrs. Alexander returned to her notes and typewritr, casting her thoughts back to the history she loves to research and the community she is clearly proud to be a part of.

IRONTON WAS ONCE a hotbed of logging activity. But history passed the community by when logging died out

MRS. ROSS ALEXANDER is hard at work compiling her notes into a book on the history of Ironton. Mrs. Alexander consented to be interviewed about the small community on Lake Charlevoix for the Courier.

Physical examinations slated next week for Charlevoix students

Physical examinations for all boys and girls in the seventh through the twelfth grades who are planning to participate in interscholastic competitive sports and cheerleading at the Charlevoix high school during the 1978-79 school year will be held early next week Dale Burge, high school athletic director, has announced.

All boys will be given physical examinations at the high school study hall at 7 p.m. Monday.

All girls will receive their physical examinations at 7 p.m. the following day, Tuesday.

Doctors from the area will be present to conduct the examinations under the direction of Dr. Reed Freidinger of the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Students are encouraged to attend these physical education clinics, which are without charge, if they plan to participate in any part of the school's athletic program.

Students who do not receive physicals at this time must make their own arrangements as physical examinations are required by the Michigan High School Athletic Association for participation in all sports.

The coaching staff will be present to assist students in registration.

In Memoriam

Died a violent death,

One of the most beautiful bays in the world.

Its stately trees uprooted,

Its shoreline gouged and converted by bull-dozers

Into gravel pits and quarry roads.

Its wild life destroyed,

Its quiet beauty lost forever.

May all of us who have robbed future generations Of their inheritance, learn from this sad experience; MERE OWNERSHIP OF LAND DOES NOT GIVE MAN THE RIGHT TO OUTRAGE IT. . .

Carlsons takes title in Topside slo-pitch tourney

King James had to play all of its games Sanday because of rain which halted Saturdays play. The women defeated E & M Standard of Boyne City 19-7, First Street Tavern of Manistee 15-7, Northern Service Bureau of Petoskey 7-4 and Tiny's Bubbles of Hubbard Lake 25-17 only to lose against Carlsons 17-0.

Charlevoix representatives in the tourney were Topside Lounge, Medusa Cement and the Townhouse Bar. Topside and Medusa were defeated early in the tourney while the Townhause battled it out for three games.

Townhouse pulled off a big win in their first game against King James Court. The local women were down 15-1 in the fifth inning when they gained eight runs plus 13 more runs in the top of the seventh inning to take the game 23-17.

The team then battled it out with Tiny's Bubbles but lost 11-10 after eight innings. The Townhouse had another close game against the Northern Service Bureau but lost that one 15-14.

Most valuable player of the tourney was Pat Day of Carlsons Fish and she also claimed the batting championship trophy with an average of .692.

Shirley Wisniowski of King James Court was named best infielder and Diane Deschermeir of Northern Service Bureau was named best outfielder.

Recital rescheduled at Congregational Church

Fershee brothers take over Osceola circuit courtroom

Charlevoix County District Court Judge David Fershee and his two brothers, John and Paul, were in Osceola County Circuit Court for special ceremonies last week. Paul was admitted to the Michigan State Bar last week.

The oldest brother, John, who is a partner in the firm of Donley, Walz, Fershee, Jordan and Stanton, P.C., in Big Rapids, sponsored his younger brother, Paul, for admittance to the practice of law, while the middle brother, David, swore him in.

Judge Fershee explained that the state Supreme Court administrators office can assign a district court judge to the circuit court to assist in the handling of cases.

"I've been assigned to sit in various circuit courts before," Judge Fershee explained. "And I requested to be assigned to Osceola for this special ceremony."

Fershee said the ceremony for his brother, Paul, was unique in several respects.

"First, he is the third of three brothers being admitted to the practice of law and second, I had my two brothers appearing before me, which will probably never happen again," the judge explained.

It was also the first time that Judge Fershee has ever sworn a new attorney into the practice of law. District judges normally can't do the swearing in, which is why Fershee asked to be assigned to the circuit court.

The judge said it was his older brother John, who convinced him to become an attorney. Both men attended the Detroit College of Law.

Fershee said he and his brother were careful not to push Paul into law school, but were pleased when he began classes at the Cooley Law School in Lansing.

Also attending the ceremony were: Paul's wife, Eileen, his parents, Paul aand Marilyn Fershee of Lansing, and his wife's mother, Mrs. Carl Davis.

Paul plans to open a law office in Evart.

JUDGE DAVID FERSHEE swears in his brother, Paul, (left) to the practice of law as his older brother, John, watches. John sponsored Paul as he entered law practice. Judge Fershee got a special assignment to Osceola Circuit Court for the ceremony.

Venetian Festival has long history

The Venetian Festival has a long history in Charlevoix.

This weekend will mark the 48th time that Charlevoixans and summer visitors to the area will celebrate what has become the summer happening in town.

The first boat festival in town was held in 1929. Known as the annual Boat Regatta, the city council authorized an amount of $250 to underwrite the cost. The regatta consisted of power boat racing and was organized and promoted by what was then called the Charlevoix Boat Club.

Later, the Charlevoix Marine Club sponsored the Venetian Boat Parade beginning in 1931. About this time, the Charlevoix Board of Commerce was formed and the parade was sponsored by this organization.

In 1958, the present Chamber of Commerce was formed. It was then that the Chamber of Commerce was formed. It was then that the chamber board realized it would be advisable to build a festive occasion around the boat parade and call it Venetian Festival.

There were some lean years when it was difficult to interest the boat owners to participate in the boat parade. Some of the problems occurred during World War II when it was decided to discontinue the festival. Also, the boat owners became rather disturbed because candles and Japanese lanterns were used for lighting effects. This caused a great deal of work for the boat owners in cleaning the wax off the decks and if any great amount of wind developed during the parade, it also created a safety hazard.

Today most of these problems have been solved by using generators and electric lights.

Down through the years many outstanding designs and themes have been worked out for the boats. Each owner may select a theme, however, political displays are discouraged.

Another important part of the four-dav festival is the Venetian Queen pageant. The queen competition originated in 1935 as a part of the Charlevoix Homecoming and centennial.

That year the first queen, Marge Carey who is now Mrs. S.E. Coleman, was crowned.

A variety of methods have been employed to select the Venetian Queen throughout years. In 1950, when Charlevoix was trying to raise money for a new hospital, the queen was determined by which candidate raised the most money in her name for the project. Cannisters were placed in various businesses in the queen candidate's name around town.

Now after almost half a century, Venetian Festival become more than another summer festivity. For area residents it means hoemcoming. Venetian nights are the time of year that families whose members have moved downstate or out of state are united. They share their love, their memories and their thoughts during the celebration.

For visitors to the area, Venetian nights are four days of fun and festivities. Many visitors haven't missed a Venetian Festival in years, even though it means making a hotel reservation a whole year in advance.

Many people work hard to make Venetian possible

Many, many people work hard to help make the Venetian Festival a fun time for all concerned.

And while it is impossible to list all of the names of people who have worked on various projects, there were a few who volunteered to take a lead in getting the festival off the ground.

They are:

Bill Supernaw, chairman of the Venetian Festival; Kris Schaperkotter and Jan Elliott, co-chairmen of the Queen's Committee and Marilyn Engle, member of the committee; Marina LaBlance, chairman of the Dress Up and Doll Committee; Dean Eby, Frank Cook and the Charlevoix Yacht Club, sponsors of the Yacht Parade; Charles Carey, chairman of the Street Parade Committee; Earl Muma and Clem Wagner, members of the Santa Maria Committee; and the Charlevoix High School Cross Country team and LeCycliste Enterprises, sponsors of the Venetian Festival Foot Race Committee.

Group may appeal Breighner's decision in Medusa suit

The Committee for the Preservation of the Environment, Inc., is considering appealing a recent action by Charlevoix County Circuit Judge Martin Breighner concerning the suit the committee has filed against Medusa Cement Company.

Judge Breighner announced last week he would be appointing a master to hear the technical testimony. The Environmental Protection Act, under which the suit is filed, allows the judge the option of appointing the master.

A master is a court officer who acts as an assistant to the judge by inquiring into matters the judge assigns him. In special cases, such as the suit filed against Medusa, a special master is appointed for a specific assignment.

The judge asked both parties in the environmental suit to submit three names of people qualified to hear the technical testimony within 10 days. He also said the expenses of the master would be shared equally by the committee and the cement company.

"We feel this may be an appealable issue," John Michale, co-counsel for the committee along with Bernard Mindell, said.

"By statute the judge can appoint a master to hear the testimony, but I think he's dead wrong in splitting the costs between the two parties.

"This can get to be quite an expensive thing," the attorney continued. "And by splitting the costs, you're saying that only those with money can go to court."

The attorney for Medusa, Thomas Pointner, favored the appointment of the master.

"The statute is designed to enable the circuit judge who is not trained in these technical things to take advantage of technical expertise in deciding a case," Pointner said.

"I think this is a good idea."

Neither side has submitted any names to the judge at this point and attorneys for both sides declined to list the names of any people under consideration for the position. The names are due to the judge by Monday.

In other action, a counter motion filed by Medusa attorneys asking that the committee be required to post a bond to cover court costs during the upcoming trial will be heard at 9 a.m. Aug. 16.

Under a court rule, which regulates the practice of the court, defendants may ask that plantiffs file security for the costs of the trial. Medusa officials estimate that it will cost $110,000 for the trial and they would like the committee to post a bond for that amount insuring that the costs would be covered in the event that Medusa wins.

If the committee can not file the bond, the case will be thrown out of court.

The Committee for the Preservation of the Environment, Inc., has filed a suit asking that an environmental impact study be conducted before Medusa is allowed to continue with its proposed $50 million expansion and renovatiion program at the plant located on South Point in Charlevoix.

The committee is asking the judge to order that the study be conducted since the Michigan Department of Natural Resources has indicated there is no need for such a study.

The committee contends there is not enough informations on the operation of the new cement making process to insure that pollution of the area will not be increased.

Medusa representatives contend they have adequate data from Japanese plants using the new process to show that pollution will be reduced.

The suit is expected to be heard Dec. 20 in circuit court. The master will hear the evidence and prepare a report for the judge. The judge has the right to hear additional testimony if he believes it is warranted, but he will most likely base his decision on the report of the master.

ABHORS CASTLE FARMS AFTERMATH

It's a week now since the concert at Castle Farms and today the seagulls seem to be doing a better job of the final clean-up than they didearlier. I've been a little distressed to see that the papers cover just one half of the story and not follow through to see what the aftermath is, from the standpoint of the citizens here that are paying the taxes, for what seems to be a littering job, an abuse of public facilities, roads, etc. The only thing I have seen in any of the three papers locally is the comment by Sheriff Lasater that the traffic problems posed quite a difficult problem for he and his men to control. We not only get the crowds, we get the noise, we get some rather unpleasant characters, incidents of which we have heard, and we get, from Monday through Thursday, a riotous litter of papers, cans, you name it and it's there. Now, if we're to continue to have this kind of thing, if it has to be, why don't they have litter barrels, why don't they have some penalties for littering, rather than have the rest of the community to put up with the sights we had Monday morning. If your papers were not there to take a first hand look at the mess that was following that concert, I hope you'll be there for the next one. It does not seem fair for one man to put the entire community, to not only this, but to several abuses of the rights of other people. I think it's becoming a little bit of an indication that Charlevoix County is buffalowed by Mr. Reibel and his pursuits.

WE NEED CASTLE FARMS

I would like to express my opinion about the Castle Farms traffic situation. I feel that if Sheriff Lasater's so-called ten men knew what they were doing, how to direct traffic and handle people, they wouldn't have run into the problems they had. And, by the way, where was the Sheriff's Dept. auxilary members? Castle Farms has parking facilities but a lot of people don't use them, and that's not the fault of Castle Farms. I don't think people realize the good things these concerts do for the city of Charlevoix. The concerts bring people here and tourists here that otherwise Charlevoix merchants would not have seen It helps make Charlevoix a better tourist attraction. Why don't we take a closer look at Castle Farms instead of condemning it? After all, a few days out of the year isn't too much to ask for out of our Sheriff's Dept. or any other local citizen. A merchant who voted for Sheriff Lasater.

BEWARE OF WILD DOG

Beware! On the southwest side of Charlevoix, our family pet of eight years was tied in his yard July 24, 1978, when attacked by a large, unknown dog. He was badly mangled. He had to be put away because of his injuries. He will be sadly missed by his family of four. We bought his dog license and his shots. He was a house dog and very seldom loose. He was not a vicious dog and would not hurt anyone. He will be missed by us and a lot of good friends and neighbors. Where is the Sheriff's Dept. when you need them? We also have a bill for $38, and there is no way of bringing our pet back. We want some action taken. Don, Laura, Don Jr., and Julie Wells of Charlevoix.

SHERIFF RESPONDS

Sheriff George Lasater said that he has talked with Mrs. Wells since she called the Hotline and that the response of the animal control officer was much sooner than she had thought. The officer arrived within one-half hour and began immediately looking for the dog. It took one-half hour for the officer to get to the neighborhood because he was in East Jordan on a call.

Ironton Ferry grounded again

Bad luck continues to hound the Ironton Ferry.

The ferry returned to Charlevoix County last Thursday, but it has been in operation for only three hours since then.

A busted outboard shaft is the latest malady plaguing the ferry, according to Irvin Sturm, Charlevoix County Road Commission engineer-director.

"Three hours after the ferry opened for operation Friday, the outboard shaft, which is a part of the old equipment on the ferry, busted," Sturm explained Monday.

"They had the shaft in the machine shop this morning and plan on working on the ferry the rest of the day. He (Ken Wyskochil, owner of Wyskochil Marine Service, which has been working on the ferry,) wouldn't estimate when the ferry would be ready.

"And I won't either."

Sturm said following the breakdown Friday, two employees from Wyskochil Marine Service complete with skin diving equipment, pulled the defective shaft from the ferry.

A new piece of equipment had to be purchased and a man was sent to Saginaw to pick it up.

A machine shop then had to be hired to taper and thread the shaft to fit the ferry.

One of the few county residents who had a chance to ride the ferry before it broke down was Ralph Richardson, county commissioner representing Eveline and Wilson townships, the two townships most affected by the absence of the ferry.

The Ironton ferry provides an important link across the South Arm of Lake Charlvoix for travelers on Ferry Road. It also connects the two halves of Eveline Township.

Richardson, who rode the ferry Thursday night, said he was impressed with the work that had been done on it.

"The engineering looks good," Richardson said. "All the negative things that I've been hearing didn't appear to be true. In spite of everything, I think they did a good job."

The Ironton Ferry was taken out of service before the season was over last fall and towed down to Traverse City for its five year marine inspection by the U.S. Coast Guard and for the replacement of its engine.

It was due back in Ironton in April in time to open for the regular season. But because of a misordering and a non-delivery of parts required in the drive train, scheduled work on the ferry was delayed for three months.

Once the repair work on the ferry was completed two weeks ago, bad weather continued to hold up the ferry's return to Charlvoix County. Twice last week the ferry left its Traverse City port bound for Charlevoix and twice it had to turn back because of high winds and waves.

Officials were concerned that the ferry would be swamped as it was being towed up the Lake Michigan shoreline.

Finally on Thursday, the ferry made its way down the Pine River Channel to enter Round Lake and then Lake Charlevoix amidst blowing boat horns and a standing ovation from Charlevoix area residents and visitors standing along the channel.

The Ironton Ferry was towed back to Ironton last week, but still isn't running.

School board adopts resolution on bond issue proposals

At a special meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday, the board approved an election resolution that would break down the request for a bond issue into two proposals.

Proposal I asks for $2.315 million to be used to remodel and expand the high school facilities, partially equip the new classrooms and improve the site.

Proposal II asks for $885,000 for an addition on the existing gymnasium to allow for the construction of an all-purpose room, locker rooms and storage areas to take care of the expanded physical education facility required under Title IX.

At the same time the board approved the purchase of two textbooks for use in the Biology department. They are the up-dated edition of "Modern Biology" and "Living Things", both published by Holt-Rinehart-Winston for use in general biology classes.

The next meeting of the board is scheduled for Monday, Aug. 7.

Sidewalk Sale this weekend

Charlevoix merchants will be celebrating Sidewalk Sale Days Friday and Saturday.

Downtown merchants and participating stores in the Captains Corner Shopping Center will move their sale goods out onto the sidewalks during the two-day sale.

Hours for the sale will follow regular business hours of the participating merchants.

Newspaper magnate skippers an unusual 115 foot boat

Global Star once a Danish hospital ship, but now it is the yacht of John McGoff

By PAULA HOLMES

It handles like a small ship, has a reinforced hull like an icebreaker and yet looks like a yacht.

And actually the Global Star is all three.

The 115-foot yacht, which often has been seen coming in and out of the Round Lake Yacht Basin and Lake Charlevoix this summer is a former Danish hospital ship which has been converted to a personal yacht for John McGoff, Michigan newspaper magnate.

McGoff has a preference for the unusual in sailing craft. A Great Lakes sailing buff, the Williamston, Mich., resident is a frequent visitor to the Charlevoix harbor and until this year sailed here on the Lady Margaret.

The Lady Margaret was a 101-foot traditional wooden power yacht of the same vintage as the Sequoia, the U.S. presidential yacht. In fact, the first time the boat sailed into Charlevoix the rumor circulated that she was the Sequoia in disguise.

At that time, Michigan's Gerald Ford was president.

The Lady Margaret later sank when it caught in a severe storm in the Atlantic Ocean.

"I'm involved in shipping, too," the owner of 95 newspapers and other communications media, explained. "I heard this ship would be on the auction block, went over looked at it and decided to buy it."

He then named the yacht after one of his communications companies.

"The word Global comes from one of my corporations, Global Communications," McGoff explained. "And Star, well it just seemed to fit."

McGoff said this boat is the first yacht he has named after a thing. In the past, he has always named his yachts after members of his family.

"But I've had such bad luck with those yachts that I thought I'd try this," he said. "And so far things have been fine."

The Global Star was built in Denmark in 1955 and later christened by Queen Juliana. From 1955-75 it served as a hospital ship in Greenland.

Its hull is reinforced with one-half inch of steel to make it ice resistant and it has a 22-foot beam. The ship draws 8½ feet aft.

It carries 7,000 gallons of fuel and has a range of 4,000 miles. A crew of six operatores the ship that can sleep 20.

McGoff purchased the ship in 1977 and had it converted to a yacht in Miami. Shipbuilders spent 18 months remodeling and redecorating the hospital ship in the likeness of a contemporary home designed by Mrs. McGoff.

The yacht owner is almost as unusual a person as is his preference in boats. A solid conservative politically, McGoff has been a voice in the wilderness as far as his political views are concerned.

A firm believer in the free enterprise system, McGoff has constantly called for less interference and spending by the federal government.

Militarily, the newspaper publisher is a hawk, supporting the proposed construction of Seafarer in the Upper Peninsula. He also supported this country's involvement in Vietnam.

And he makes his views known through the 65 newspapers in his Panax chain in Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Virginia, Maryland, Florida and Texas and through the 19-paper chain in California and Texas which is owned by Global Communications. Global is also holds the controlling interest in UPI Television News which is used in 95 countries including the Iron Curtain nations.

"If you are going to take the economic responsibility for newspaper then you have the prerogative to have your views expressed in them," McGoff explained.

The newspaper publisher received national attention last year over the firing of two editors for his papers in the Upper Peninsula for not printing some articles he had decided should be in the papers.

Many outraged newspaper people accused McGoff of being a dictator and of controlling the news.

"There is no possible way for me to control the news in 90 to 100 newspapers," McGoff scoffed. "A newspaper and news is an every day creation. And there is no possible way to control the views of the staffs of that many newspapers.

The publisher charged the television networks with being the real dictators of the news world.

"The most dangerous sources of power in the U.S. today are in the television networks," he said. "In television just a few people control what everyone will see on the national newscasts and the local stations have to say in what will be in the broadcasts."

THIS AERIAL VIEW of the Global Star gives a better impression of how large the Global Star is in comparison to other boats in Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix. The 115-foot yacht is a remodeled Danish hospital ship.

You CAN do repairs yourself!

What costs about $16 at the shop, $8 at home, and is probably the best way to prolong the life of your car? It's an oil and filter change and grease job.

Whether you have it done at the local gas station or automobile repair shop, or you're ambitious enough to do it yourself, you'll enjoy reading the new Volume II of the Backyard Mechanic, put together by the editors of "Driver Magazine" published by the Air Force. The book is 75 pages of illustrated, do-it-yourself instructions on how to care for your car. To get your copy, send $1.60 to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 085F, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Why change the oil? Because oil, like most other things, eventually wears out. Even adding oil supplements can't remove the acid, ash, moisture, or other contaminants that build up in motor oil over a period of time. And, the oil filter can remove just so much junk until it, too, fails to function. For the same reasons, grease "wears out," too.

How often should you change the oil? One thing is certain, changing the oil too often won't hurt your engine. But 5,000 miles is the longest your car should go without a change. And, in dusty areas, 3,000 miles is the outside limit.

It's often confusing with so many types of oil on the market. But, your car manual will tell you what grade and weight oil works best in your car's engine. Older cars manufactured before 1971 use oil graded at least SD (Service Deluxe). Newer cars require SE (Service Extreme).

Hospital fund drive needs our support

Now is the time to act if Charlevoix area residents want to keep their community hospital and the services it provides.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital recently announced the opening of a $750,000 fundraising campaign to expand and renovate the hospital and to provide improved services for area residents.

Already the doctors, hospital employees, the board of directors and the womens guild have pledged $150,000 or 20 percent of the necessary funds, but the hospital needs support from the public, too.

The hospital board of directors has acted carefully and prudently in making its decision to expand and renovate the hospital. The proposed expansion and renovation program will not financially overburden the hospital nor the public. Although $2.1 million sounds like a lot of money, in terms of hospital construction it is a drop in the bucket.

The board has said it does not plan to change the direction of the hospital or to duplicate services that are already being provided at other hospitals in this area.

The board has no delusions of grandeur for the Charlevoix Area Hospital. They intend to work to keep it a community hospital and to maintain the personal and friendly atmosphere that area residents have come to expect when they have to use or visit the hospital.

"We plan to continue providing the same vital, basic services that we always have," Richard Krueger, hospital administrator told media representatives recently. "We're not planning to do something we haven't done in the past.

"The hospital will maintain its status as a primary care facility with other area-wide referral centers such as Northern Michigan Hospitals, as secondary care centers," Krueger explained.

What the hospital board does intend to do is provide the best health care possible to its patients. And there are many patients coming to the Charlevoix Area Hospital for care.

Krueger said in the last several years there has been a 212 percent increase in the use of the emergency room, 180 percent in use of the laboratory and a 200 percent increase in patients needing X-rays.

And during the last several years, the hospital has come a long way in trying to provide the services that people were demanding. The staff of physicians has improved and expanded as has the hospital staff. But the hospital is now facing a need for more space to continue providing improved services.

And that is going to take financial commitment from area residents.

The trend in the hospital business has been toward merger as was recently experienced in Petoskey or toward the development of large institutions. If Charlevoix area residents value their community hospital and want to maintain the atmosphere that is there, they are going to have to put their money where their mouths are.

Fundraising campaign workers under the direction of Glenn Kenney, general chairman, have already begun canvassing the area. Your contribution is needed.

...Speaking Her Mind

Good-bye Charlevoix. It's been fun, but opportunity knocks.

It's not every day that you get an offer to work as part of the re-election campaign staff for the governor. And while I'm ambivalent about leaving, it was just one of those opportunities I didn't think I should turn down.

So, come Aug. 8, I'll be packing my bags and moving to Lansing to become a part of the staff lodged in the campaign headquarters there. My title will be press secretary for the Milliken for Michigan Committee, the governor's official campaign unit.

As press secretary I'll be writing press releases, speeches and position papers. I'll also be talking with reporters and attempting to furnish them with information they need.

And I'll probably make it back to Northern Michigan and again when the governor's or his wife's travels along the campaign trail bring them to this neck of the woods.

But even though I'll be in Lansing, my childhood stomping grounds, I'm having bets that my thoughts will often turn to Charlevoix. My heart will be here even though I'm not.

One thing I've learned in the four years that I've been a resident of Northern Michigan is that there is no replacement for the clear air, the blue water, the rolling sand dunes covered with a variety of vegetation and the closeness of neighbors.

Not even the bright and tantalizing lights of the big city can make up for that. That type of beauty gets into your blood and reaches into your soul.

I'm going to miss the excitement of being a part of this town means. For instance, I'll miss the football and basketball games and the many times that I have had an athlete accidentally dropped into my camera bag.

And I'm going to miss sprinting down Bridge Street to get a picture of the Ironton Ferry – or whatever – coming through the bridge. I'll especially miss that bridge and what it means to summer.

Of course, I'll also miss the city council, county commission and all of the other meetings I've attended. And I'll miss the local politicians and officials and the disagreements and surprisingly the agreements we've had through the years.

It's been a personal goal of mine to be as fair as is humanely possible and to make sure that each side of an issue is represented on the Courier editorial page and that each side is reportedly fairly in the news columns.

And you the readers have helped me achieve that goal by writing letters to the editor when you agree and disagree and calling in to the Hotline. I've appreciated your support and the interest that has been shown in making the Charlevoix Courier an active and vital part of the community.

I hope that you will continue to show that kind of support for Dennis Chase and the Courier in the future.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

Robert Fulton invented the steamship, right? And Eli Whitney invented the cottong gin. And Elias Howe invented the sewing machine. And Elias MacDonald invented the hamburger, right?

These are facts that most Americans like myself can click off one-two-three without giving them a second thought. This information was drilled into us when we were young and it is always there to be drawn upon – like money in the bank – whenever there is a lull in the conversation.

"Did you know that Elias Howe was only 18 years old when he started working on the sewing machine and he received his first patent when he was 27? Oh, of course you do! We had the same teacher for American History in the fifth grade."

In fact the history of the 19th century in America is literally riddled with the names of inventors – people who were clever enough with their hands and their heads to come up with gadgets to make life easier for the rest of us.

So many fresh ideas popped up all around the country that the expression "American ingenuity" was born. The expression, unfortunately, lingers today only in the pages of the Readers' Digest.

I am sure we still have inventors around today, judging from all the new products on the market every year, but you never hear about them. I can't name you one inventor worth his salt since the death of Tom Edison.

Who, for example, invented the electric guitar which whines through the infamous electronic amplifier? I bet you don't know, yet here are two instruments of torture worthy of the Inquisition. Yet their creators, perhaps for good reason, remains cloaked in anonymity.

By the same token I have no idea who invented the crock pot, the pop-up toaster, the vaccuum sweeper, the drill press, pneumatic tires, the typewriter, the voting machine, the eletric iron, the hair dryer, the automatic dishwasher, and just any other modern-day convenience.

For some reason our inventor heroes today have chosen to live in obscurity.

All of this came to mind the other day when I tried to look up something in the encyclopedia on Public Address systems, a communications media which is not exactly new but one which is gaining in use every year. The News-Review in Petoskey, for example, recently had its P.A. system hooked up to its telephone system. Simply by pushing two buttons, each telephone becomes a broadcasting station for the entire building.

Yet my encyclopedia has no listing for the Public Address systems, just as though they were never invented And this is more that a little aggrevating to me because most of my lifetime the major events that have taken place in my lifetime I have learned about over various P.A. systems.

I remember in Ninth Grade Social Studies class listening to the addresses of Winston Churchill to the British people during the Battle of Britain – live from London. I can't remember what he said because of his dreadful British accent, but I will never forget the rumbling cadence of his sentences, rolling like long peals of thunder across the Atlantic.

Later, at Northwestern High School in Detroit, I remember sitting in English class and listening to the high, raspy voice of a little senator from Missouri taking the oath of office as president of the United States. My classmates and I looked at each other and made wry faces. This fellow on the P.A. would need more than divine guidance to run the United States.

We didn't know then that Harry Truman would turn out to be one of the giants in American political history, right up there with Abraham Lincoln.

Later, when I was teaching, it was the P.A. system that brought word to my 6th hour study hall at Holly High School that President John Kennedy had been murdered in Texas. Never before has an electronic device triggered such anguish.

But who invented the Public Address system? History has either forgotten, or is keeping it a secret.

by Jim Fitzgerald

After 22 years of mortgaged ownership, the wife and the husband have sold their home in a small town to the people next door. It is suspected that the purchase was part of a neighborhood improvement project with everyone in the block sharing the cost, the theory being that if a neighbor won't stop throwing his dirty socks out his bedroom window, buy his house and appoint a welcoming committee to serve refreshments to the men in the moving van.

Anyway, the wife and the husband are now fulltime apartment dwellers in the big city where the garbage man is ever present, anonymous but omniscient, hidden in a little room just a few steps down the hall. He can't be missed which is marvelous.

When she was a home owner, nothing bothered the wife more than missing the garbage man. To understand this phenomenon, you must understand how it was with the wife and her garbage.

In the first place, it's not really garbage as the husband was brought up to understand the term. His mother's garbage was always coffee grounds and bread crusts (that's why he doesn't have curly hair) and potato peels and other assorted gloop and glop.

His mother would put this old-fashioned garbage in one of those big pans with holes in the bottom – a drainer, it was called. His job was to move the pan of garbage from the sink to the garbage pail outside so swiftly there wasn't time for gloop to ooze through the holes.

He never really made it, but he always ran in a crouch, so that his knees were under the pan and the gloop dripped on his pants instead of on his mother's floor. He preferred scraping his pants once a week to washing her floor every night.

His wife's garbage is different from his mother's. The wife has a disposal in her sink to eat gloop and glop. Only cans and bottles and boxes go into the garbage can. At their former home, the garbage man came twice a week, and the wife always worried about missing him.

The problem was that she wanted her garbage put into the garbage pail in the backyard one minute before the garbage man arrived. She would station a child at the front window to yell when the garbage truck came around the corner. She would then instruct the husband to get eight bags of garbage into the garbage pail quickly, before it was too late.

"He's coming, he's coming..."

You are probably wondering why the wife insisted on suspense with her garbage. This makes you eligible to join the club of which the husband has been president for 22 years. (The only other member is the garbage man, who joined on the day he asked the husband how come it was always either feast or famine at his house. If the pail wasn't overflowing, it was empty.)

The bags of garbage were hidden in kitchen cupboards and closets. They were not in the garbage pail, waiting for the garbage man, because the wife thought it was sloppy to have garbage in garbage cans. The neighbors might have seen the garbage, or their pets might have chewed on it, or the Queen of England might have stopped by to use the garbage pail to wash her crown in.

Of the husband didn't get the garbage into the pail in time for the garbage man to remove it, the garbage had to be stored in the kitchen for two or three extra days. If this happened twice in a row, the wife ran out of hiding places and there were so many garbage bags stocked in the kitchen, you could only chew on one side of your mouth at a time.

This clutter often created confusion. One day the husband brought home a fresh bag of groceries and accidentally put it down next to a garbage bag. That night they had a fried corn flakes box for dinner.

So the wife is pleased now to be living in an apartment building where she can dump her garbage the minute it becomes garbage. She never misses missing the garbage man. She just throws the garbage into the huge garbage closet down the hall and slams the door. The neighbors never know where it came from.

The husband is also delighted by the new garbage set-up. Another reason he likes living in a high rise is that by the time his dirty socks hit the ground, the neighbors don't know where they came from, either.

Erma Bombeck

We are living in an age of temperance.

You can't go to a gathering anymore without coming face to face with a group of reformed smokers, sanctimonious joggers, committed dieters or born-again drinkers.

I sit through entire evenings with people who have given up watching TV and want to tell me why, who no longer baste themselves in the sun and give me their reasons for abstinence, who have made a decision not to have children and insist on stating their case.

Everyone listens. After all, people have their own personal reasons for doing things. No one gets too uptight about a stand.

Until the other night.

The conversation around the dinner table was about 86 decibels when the hostess placed on my plate a meringue shell, filled with ice cream, topped with butterscotch sauce, whipped cream, and a maraschino cherry on top.

"No thank you," I whispered as she placed the dish in front of me, "I don't eat dessert."

The entire room fell into silence. The host gasped. Forks poised in midair. Jaws stopped chewing. The hostess stopped breathing. Every eye in the room was on me.

"What do you mean you don't eat dessert?" asked my table partner.

"Do you mean to tell me you are going to pass up Helen's dessert – Future Blimp – which she has worked on all day long?"

"It's stubborn and it's spiteful."

"I suppose you're too big for desserts anymore."

"Are you saying that just this once you couldn't make an exception?" asked a woman across from me.

"How can you resist? Just a bite of it wouldn't kill you."

"I've never seen anything so rude," came a muffled voice at the end of the table.

Dinner continued, but a pall had settled over the entire group as I sipped at my coffee.

Yesterday, I was shopping in the supermarket when I met a couple who had been at the party. "You remember her, George. She's the one who refused Helen's dessert."

It's funny. I could discover a cure for boredom, run for governor, or give birth while running the Boston Marathon, but I will always be remembered for refusing to succumb to meringue and butterscotch.

County voters go to polls Tuesday

By PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County voters will go to the polls next Tuesday to cast their ballots for State, Congressional, Legislative, County, Township, and Judicial candidates. There will be no city primary.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Those who are voting by absentee ballot may pick up a ballot from their township or city clerk until 2 p.m. Saturday, August 5. The ballot must be returned to the clerk before 8 p.m. election day. Michigan law permits all registered persons over 60 years of age to vote absentee, as well as those who are physically unable to get to the polls and those who will be out of town on election day.

A sample ballot, this one for Charlevoix Township, appears in the Courier. Other townships and county commission districts in the cities throughout the county will have the same ballots, with the exception of township offices and candidates for county commissioner.

Also, the eastern part of Charlevoix County is in the 106th State Legislative District, in which a different slate of candidates for the legislature is running.

Pharmacy Footnotes
by Jock & Leah Urban, Reg. Pharmacists

Historically speaking, the term health is derived from an old Anglo-Saxon word haelth meaning the condition of being safe and sound or whole. For many years this historical definition was lost because of the common belief that health was in essence freedom from disease. Health as a relative condition, state or quality, however, still has various meanings and interpretations for different people. Whatever our personal feelings about health, however, it is indeed one of the most sought after blessings of life.

Meet Charlevoix

...Myrl Keller

By PEG OHLE

Myrl Keller is in charge of the Charlevoix Fisheries Station for the department of Natural Resources Fisheries Division. This week he tells the Courier about what he and other people at the Station do.

COURIER: How long have you been in Charlevoix?

KELLER: For 11 years. I set the station up. It was the first fisheries station to work especially for the Great Lakes. Now there's one in Marquette for Lake Superior, one in Alpena for Lake Huron, and one in Mt. Clemens for Lake Erie and Lake. St. Clair. When we started we covered Lakes Michigan, Huron, and Superior.

COURIER: What did you do before you came to Charlevoix?

KELLER: I worked in Lansing on the Fisheries Division staff. Before that I was habitat biologist for the top eight counties, working out of Indian River. And before that I worked in Ohio, on Lake Erie. Another job was with the Federal Government, working on the sea lamprey problem on Lake Superior. Perhaps my first job was commercial fishing, which I did off and on since my family were commercial fishermen in Saginaw Bay.

COURIER: Then you grew up in the Eastern part of the state?

KELLER: Yes, in Sebewaing, in the Thumb area. I graduated from high school there in 1953, then went to Michigan State and studied Fisheries Biology.

COURIER: Specifically, what do you do at this station?

KELLER: The station's primary function is to evaluate fish stocks in Lake Michigan waters, to the Wisconsin line, to Menominee and Marinette, to the Indiana line. We use two boats, the "Steelhead" and the "Juday". This summer the "Juday" is working out of Saugatuck. We collect information with these boats and crews and get more information from sports and commercial fishermen, then make management recommendations for Lake Michigan. All fisheries information on Lake Michigan comes through this Charlevoix facility.

COURIER: How large a staff do you have?

KELLER: There are nine permanent employees plus three CETA people and two other temporary employees.

COURIER: Who uses the information you collect?

KELLER: It is used within the state and by states bordering Lake Michigan as well as the Federal Government and many universities.

COURIER: How do the crews go about getting the information you need?

KELLER: We set survey nets, collect fish, and take biological information such as length, weight, sex, fin clips, and lamprey wounding marks. We save some and use them for analysis for PCB and other chemicals.

COURIER: What do you do with the information after you get it?

KELLER: The information is put on a teletype and sent to the University of Michigan's data bank. We can recall any part of it we want to for whatever projects we're working on. The evaulations are all geared to what's best for the fish and how to improve fishing. We cooperate closely with Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and also the Great Lakes Fisheries Commission, the Federal Government, and the Ontario Government. Some of this cooperative work is funded through the DNR and the Federal Government.

COURIER: What kinds of fish do you study?

KELLER: Besides the lake trout, whitefish, salmon, etc., we are studying such underutilized species as suckers and smelt. In the future these species will be in demand in the markets for food.

COURIER: How do you tell the age of a fish?

KELLER: By removing the scales. In suckers we can tell the age by fin rays, much like the rings in a tree. Last year we scaled and aged over 12,000 fish.

COURIER: What is your relationship with fishermen?

KELLER: We work closely with both sport and commercial fishermen. Some of the regulations we have to impose may not be desirable but we take the attitude they are best for the people in the long run. We serve the commercial fisherman, the sport fisherman, and the individual who eats fish in restaurants. We take them all into consideration.

COURIER: What kinds of problems do you have?

KELLER: We are always confronted with something new -- the sea lamprey, commercial fishing gear, chemicals such as DDT and PCB. Now it's the Indian issue.

COURIER: What about the lamprey problem?

KELLER: The lamprey are under a level of control that we can introduce trout and salmon with excellent survival. They are not eradicated and never will be. We have a new chemical now with which we can give partial treatment in the estuaries. The work is being done by the federal Government and Canada. They have a budget of over $4 million. They're doing a super job.

COURIER: How did you treat the alewive problem?

KELLER: By introducing salmon. We knew the salmon would feed on the alewives – it was like letting cows graze in a green pasture.

COURIER: What do you have in the fish tanks in the building?

KELLER: The Charlevoix facility has always held fish, but just as a stop-gap. It is obsolete as a real hatchery. We have brook stock of brooks, browns, and rainbows. They will be transferred to Oden.

COURIER: What other services are carried on in this facility?

KELLER: We have the marine safety officer for 16 counties in the station. He works on boat safety from Pentwater to Cheboygan. He's Roger Bush and he works with the Law Division. Also in Charlevoix, the Patrol Boat No. 2 works on commercial fishing law enforcement. Vic Patrick and Melvin Plumm are in charge of that.

COURIER: How's fishing?

KELLER: It's still good but not as good as three or four or five years ago. However, with the new technology such as fish finders, fishing is more efficient so catches are still up. There aren't as many lake trout, but there are more king salmon in the area, particularly in late summer. Brown trout and rainbow have stayed about the same. Small mouth bass are better than a few years ago. When the salmon and trout fisheries are better, we're going to look into perch. We don't have the best habitat for them – they need warmer water, but we think we can develop something, particularly in Lake Charlevoix. We've never worked on perch in a hatchery system but it's not an impossibility.

Myrl Koller

COURIER: You like your job, don't you?

KELLER: It get hectic, but in the fall when I see retired people on the pier catching large fish, I feel it's worth it. They come, sometimes, on crutches, walkers, even wheel chairs. Our fishing is not just for boaters – the retired and young enjoy it, too. I like to see the expressions on their faces when they catch a big one.

COURIER: Do you have a family of fishermen?

KELLER: My wife, Joanne, and I have three sons. Michael is 17, Steven is 13, and Scot is 11. They all love to fish, especially the two younger ones. I think I wore out the older boy fishing when he was young.

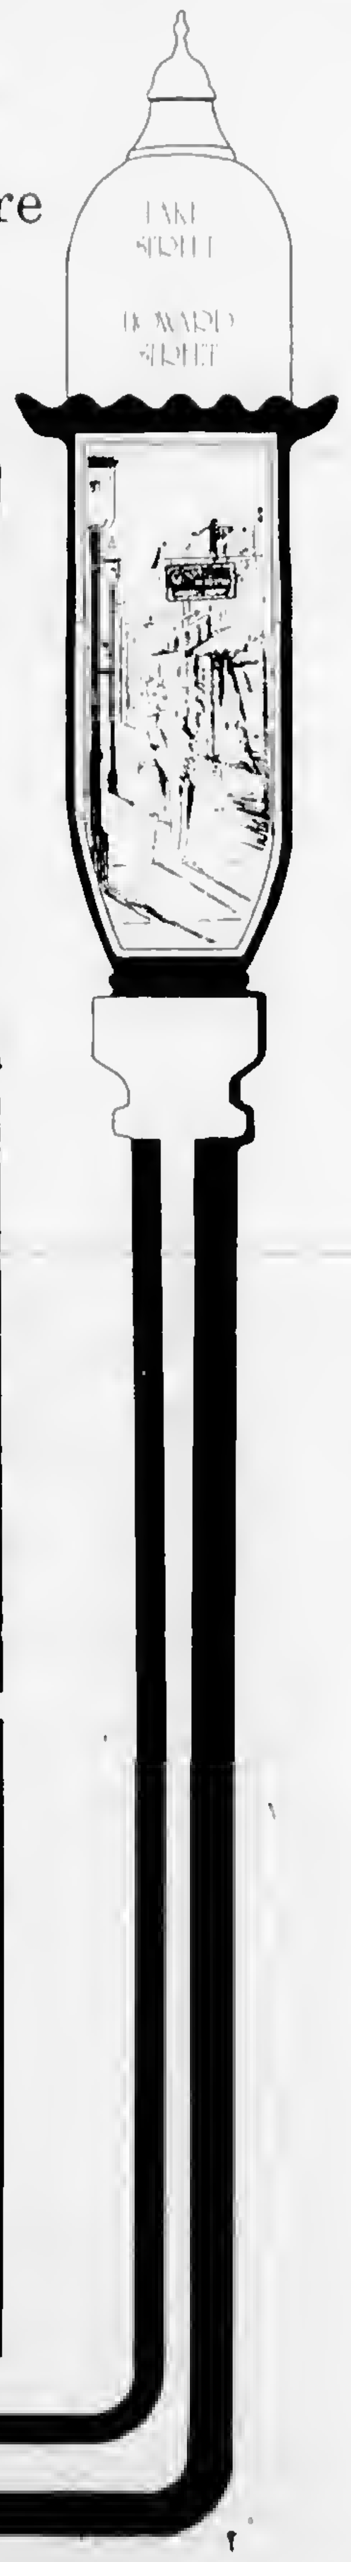
Petoskey,
Michigan



Little Traverse Bay has quiet beauty and unforgettable charm When the setting sun spreads its radiance over the waters, it is indeed lovely from the vantage point of the limestone cliff on which the city of Petoskey now stands, the setting sun provides a spectacular show The Indians created a legend about it Since the first settlers and sightseers arrived over one hundred years ago, the beauty of the sunset has been a thing of wonder and awe to all

Very few white people had seen a sunset over Little Traverse Bay on that late fall day in 1863, when the first train whistled to a stop at the end of its line--

On board was a reporter for a Grand Rapids newspaper, who in reporting on the wilderness scenery, dubbed it Petoskey's Million Dollar Sunset

The metamorphosis of Petoskey was rapid. It grew from a small Indian settlement at the mouth of Bear river, to a dynamic, busy village catering to the needs of sightseers and homesteaders To house the visitors, the Arlington and other luxury hotels were constructed overnight. Rooming houses for the less affluent were soon to follow

By 1890 a substantial number of shops had sprung up along the main street, creating a very unique pioneer shopping area Along the Bear River waterpower was harnessed to run sawmills flour mills, hardwood flooring industries, butter bowl factories, and furniture-making industries The limestone cliffs along Little Traverse Bay provided Petoskey with lime, a natural resource of great importance to the industrial development of the town

Little steamers plied the Bay, and the summer visitors who registered at Petoskey hotels and rooming houses took advantage of the many excursions offered The most popular trip was the Circular or Inland Route. This lengthy excursion took the traveler up the coastline of Little Traverse Bay into Lake Michigan, around to Mackinac Island, on to Cheboygan and then down the chain of rivers and lakes to what is now Conway Until the quaint little dummy trains were in operation, the excursionists were jolted back to Petoskey from Conway by wagon and team

In 1880 the system was in full operation and trips were being made every fifteen minutes. By 1905 two trains ran from Petoskey to Harbor Springs at half hour intervals Many of the people who had come to see the area on the train liked what they saw and became regular summer visitors By the 1900's the shift from tourism to settled summer communities was in motion Many resorts developed around the Bay and inland lakes of the area The new-fangled summer resorters spelled the doom of the delightful little streamers on the Bay, the little dummy trains, and the luxury hotels. Many of the hotels burned and were not rebuilt; the dummy engines were sold for scrap, and the steamers sailed off over the horizon

Although the modes of transportation have seen drastic change, Petoskey's magnetism remains. There is still an element of charm and friendliness in shopping adventure which belongs niquely to Petoskeys Gaslight District One may still marvel at the beauty of Little Traverse Bay and experience the wonder of the Million Dollar Sunset

Do Business Where Business Is Being Done

Richardson takes on ...

Working toward cost saving measures for the county will be the objective of Ralph Richardson if he is re-elected to his position on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

Richardson, who is completing his fifth term as a commissioner, is being opposed in the upcoming primary election by Chad McDonald. Both men are vying for the Republican nomination for the seat representing Wilson and Eveline townships.

"If I'm re-elected, I would like to work on introducing some cost saving measures like a central purchasing office in the county," Richardson, 48, explained.

"The way it is now, if a department needs a pencil, they each buy one. It's a heck of a lot cheaper for everyone to get together and buy a dozen."

Richardson said he would also encourage the county planning department to increase the services it gives to the township governments.

The candidate said there were many other things that needed to be done in the county and depending on which committee he was appointed to, he would work to get those projects accomplished.

A self-employed farmer, Richardson has also served as chairman of the Parks and Recreation Commission for seven years and as the county's representative on the Northwest Regional Planning and Development Commission for two years and the Region 10 Law Enforcement Commission for four years.

The Eveline Township resident has also been recommended for appointment to the governor's Clean Water Advisory Committee.

He got his start in area politics as a member of the Eveline Township Zoning Board.

...McDonald for county seat

Chad McDonold

Chad McDonald, 31, is venturing into elective politics for the first time although he has served on the Eveline Township Zoning Board of Appeals.

The candidate is Operations Manager for the Frost-Pack Distributing Company in Petoskey. He has lived in the area since 1955 and is a graduate of East Jordan High School. He is also a graduate of Central Michigan University, with a major in Business Administration.

McDonald and his wife, Peggy, live on Ferry Road near Ye Nyne Olde Holles Golf Course. They have one child, a daughter, Megan.

"I am running (for the office) because I want to gain experience and learn more about how government works," he says. "I would like to represent the people of Eveline and Wilson Townships better."

Asked what problems he sees facing Charlevoix County, McDonald says he sees a tax rebellion. "We will have to learn to operate the County more efficiently. It will be a real challenge."

Local attorney seeks Appeals Court position

A local attorney is seeking election to the Michigan Court of Appeals in the upcoming Aug. 8 election.

A partner is the Petoskey law firm of Clark, Stroup, Brown, MacKenzie and Pointeer, since 1967, Mrs. MacKenzie is engaged in the general practice of law.

She is interested in becoming an appeals court judge because she feel that court plays a vital part in the state judicial system.

"Though the court of appeals may not be as well known as the Supreme Court or local courts, its rulings affect every Michigan citizen," Mrs. MacKenzie said. "This intermediate court, a vital part of our judicial system, hears both civil and criminal appeals from the circuit courts."

Mrs. MacKenzie is a graduate of the University of Michigan Law School and was admitted to the Michigan Bar in 1953. She first opened practice in Saginaw.

Since then she has been active with local and state bar associations and was the first two-term president of the Emmet-Charlevoix Bar Association in 1973-75.

She is a former instructor of business law at Delta College in Bay City and is the mother of two sons.

Survey to be conducted in county

The Grand Traverse Area Data Center is conducting a Community Life Survey in Charlevoix County this week.

The object of the survey is to gather information about the 10-county region and the population changes that are occuring in the various counties. The information is being compiled to assist social agencies in better serving the needs of area communities.

People contacted by members of the data center staff will be asked to fill out a comprehensive questionnaire covering household characteristics, employment statistics and other personal details. The information will be used for statistical purposes only. Individuals will not be identified in anyway.

More than 5,000 households in the 10-counties were selected randomly to participate in the survey. The data center asks for the cooperation of all involved for the best results of the survey.

Besides Charlevoix County, families in Antrim, Emmet, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Missaukee and Wexford counties will be contacted.

Otterbachers on campaign trail

Being a political candidate's wife can be almost as exhausting as being the candidate.

A political wife's travels on the campaign trail are often as extensive as the candidate's and maybe even more so.

Chris Otterbacher, wife of one of the six Democratic candidates for U.S. Senate, John Otterbacher, was in the Charlevoix area stumping for votes last week, and took some time out to discuss her role in the campaign.

"I guess you could say I've been campaigning for the last seven years," Mrs. Otterbacher said smiling. "I've been traveling and attending meetings for John ever since he was first elected.

"But this summer we've been especially busy trying to hit as many communities as possible and to get John's name before the public as much as possible."

Mrs. Otterbacher travels in a pickup truck and house trailer when she hits the campaign trail. Accompanying her on the tours are her son, John Ryan, age 2, and her husband's parents. In the last month the politician's family has visited 30 communities and passed out literature and talked to hundreds of people.

"As a candidate's wife you have to learn to be a little assertive," the soft spoken woman explained. "You have to approach people and let them know who you are.

"But being a teacher, I've learned how to catch people's eyes so that's not so hard. And I've always enjoyed meeting people and that's what we do a lot of.

"We have the best time meeting people and I feel it provides a personalized contact with the voters that you can't get any other way."

Mrs. Otterbacher said she prefers to be on the go during the campaign even though it means living on the road.

"I'm just too antsy to sit at home," she laughed.

Mrs. Otterbacher believes there are several things that distinguish her husband from the other Democratic candidates seeking the U.S. Senate nomination.

The Grand Rapids resident said her husband's natural energy and his psychology background make him a different kind of a candidate.

"I think the voters are looking for some goodness in a candidate. They want to know the truth and they feel someone with these qualities can make a difference."

Mrs. Otterbacher also feels her husband is a fast learner and enjoys the studying that being a legislator involves.

The author of the state nursing home reform legislation and chairman of the Health, Social Services and Retirement Committee would center his energies on social legislation nationally, too, according to his wife.

She listed mental health and national health insurance as two areas of concern.

"He became a legislator because he felt that government often got involved in things after the fact. Government is always there late and out of breath, he says," Mrs. Otterbacher explained.

Otterbacher ran for senate three years ago but dropped out in the middle of the campaign because of lack of finances. Mrs. Otterbacher said this campaign differs in that they are in third place as far as securing campaign financing is concerned and their volunteer forces are growing.

Ottererbacher has served two years as a state representative and three years as a state senator.

Put caps back on bottles

The energy to make a returnable bottle is a good investment as long as the bottle can be used over and over. However, if the bottle is damaged on the way to the refill station, the energy is lost because another bottle must be made to replace the broken bottle.

According to Alcoa, one way to protect the bottle in transit is by simply replacing the cap before taking the bottle back to the store. The aluminum cap prevents the threads from being chipped or broken in shipment, and it is recyclable.

Of course, returning the bottle also helps to keep the lid on litter. Bottles that are properly capped and redeemed don't wind up contributing to litter.

Another advantage to replacing the cap is cleanliness – capped empty bottles help keep homes and stores clean.

So the easy task of replacing the cap on an empty returnable bottle can benefit everyone.

FAITH TEACHES KINDNESS TO ALL LIVING CREATURES

Many conscientious parents drill their children in the use of "please", "thank you" and the various forms of good conduct toward human beings, and yet are unaware that they may then go outside and mistreat the family pet or chase lizards around a nearby field to catch and harass them. Unchecked, this becomes an apparently acceptable outlet for rebellion and frustration. The proper early training, reinforced by your own example, should include kindness toward all of God's living creatures. The Church and Sunday school of your choice can do much to instill this benevolent feeling, which will be reflected also in their attitude toward their fellow human beings and will set the pattern for the conduct of their entire lives. They will realize the importance of all life in the wonder of God's creation.

Bay Shore was bustling community in early part of century

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth in a series of stories about the small communities in the Charlevoix area. East Jordan, Horton Bay, Norwood and Ironton were discussed in the first four articles.

By PEG OHLE

A traveler going along the sand road from Charlevoix to Petoskey during the early part of the century in his horse-drawn carriage might stop at about the half-way point for a bit of refreshment and to rest his horses.

If he did, he would be in Bay Shore, a bustling community of industry and commerce. There the kilns of the Bay Shore Lime Company baked the limestone that was quarried nearby; there the Bay Shore Lumber Company saw mills prepared huge timbers for shipment to the big cities; there a modern three-story hotel provided respite to the traveler.

The large general store in the center of town was loaded with dry goods and hardware on one side and provender on the other. The hall above the store offered a meeting place for the Maccabees and Oddfellows, a dance floor for the lively, and a cozy place for everyone to visit and gossip.

There was another grocery store, a blacksmith shop, a meat market, a barber shop, an ice cream parlor, and the ever-present saloon. Three fire houses stood guard over the town because the kilns that operated 24 hours a day created a constant fire hazard.

Most of the houses on the north side of town (sometimes called "Bay Side") were company-owned, but unlike many company houses, they were not built from identical plans.

At the end of the main cross street in town, overlooking Lake Michigan, the Sly house stood as a symbol of the fruits of enterprise.

The Catholic and Presbyterian churches provided spiritual guidance to all who sought it, and the two-room school house turned out graduates, many of whom later attended high school in Petoskey.

Bay Shore residents found it convenient to go to Petoskey by train. The most popular one left Bay Shore at 10:30 or 11 a.m. and returned at 2:30 in the afternoon, thus giving housewives plenty of time to shop for home and personal needs.

There have been no operating lime kilns in Bay Shore since 1930. No one remembers when the lumber mill stopped operating. The hotel (which had been built for an orphanage but was never used as such) burned down in 1914. The general store burned down in 1907. The blacksmith shop is gone, so are the meat market, the barber shop, the ice cream parlor, and the saloon.

The two churches burned down the same winter but were later rebuilt and stand today, serving the community. There are two small grocery stores, McArt's Mart, which also serves as the post office, and the Bay Shore Food Market. The two-room school house has been remodeled into a home.

There is now an Air Force Radar Station in Bay Shore, bringing young men from all over the country to the town that once knew few "outsiders".

One of these young men, John Kintz, liked the area so well that he stayed in Bay Shore when his "hitch" was up. He started a Cable TV station to serve the surrounding countryside, bringing a touch of the electronic present to blend with the past.

One person who has witnessed the past and present of Bay Shore is 83-year-old Bessie Zipp, who was born and married in Bay Shore. Her grandparents operated a boarding house for the laborers who worked on the railroad when it was being extended northward.

Mrs. Zipp well remembers the early days of the lime kiln

"It was started about 1888 or 1889, and the limestone was first hauled by the steamship "Friant", but the dock was destroyed by a storm in 1896, and it was shipped by rail after that."

Mrs. Zipp has lived in the same house for 60 years. Once a "company" house, it is 75 or 80 years old, but stands square and sturdy, a tribute to the workmanship of bygone days.

In 1912, Mrs. Zipp's grandfather, A.G. Tillotson, built a small grocery store which he operated for 40 years, and which was later operated by other members of the family, Harold Tillotson, and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Green. Today, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy McArt operate the store in a new building adjacent to the old store, using the latter as living quarters.

"Bay Shore had a band one time, and a ball team, too," Mrs. Zipp recalls.

"We made our own entertainment in those days. We played games on the bluff, had school entertainments, danced in the hall over the store, went to ice cream socials, and made maple sugar. It was fun.

"Loggers for miles around furnished the kilns with four-foot pieces of wood for fuel," Mrs. Zipp says. "They hauled all year long. It was good business for them."

Mrs. Zipp also remembers that a by-product of the lumber mill was broom handles, making Bay Shore a multi-product manufacturing community.

Mrs. Zipp's family not only came to Bay Shore a long time ago, but they have remained. She and her husband had seven children, six of whom are living, and four of whom are still in the Bay Shore area: Edith Copping, Richard Zipp, Eileen Green, and Lawrence Zipp. Daughter Arthella Duffus wandered off to Chicago and Dorothy Young to Petoskey.

There was once a large Indian population in Bay Shore, and many of their men also worked for the limestone company. Today there are only two families of Native Americans in Bay Shore, the Nathaniel Smiths and the Gordon Willises (Mrs. Smith and Willis are brother and sister). The Smiths live on "Smith Road", which was once the center of "Indiantown", and the Willises in the old school house.

Mr. Smith's family were early Bay Shore settlers, but Ann Smith's father, John Willis, came from the Susan Lake area and her mother from Pincherry Road, both of which were once large Indian settlements.

There is no history of an Indian church in Bay Shore, but the Greensky Hill Methodist Church, up old Highway U.S. 31 from Bay Shore, has served the Native American community in the area for many years. The Smith's are active in that church today, thus having a link with their native heritage.

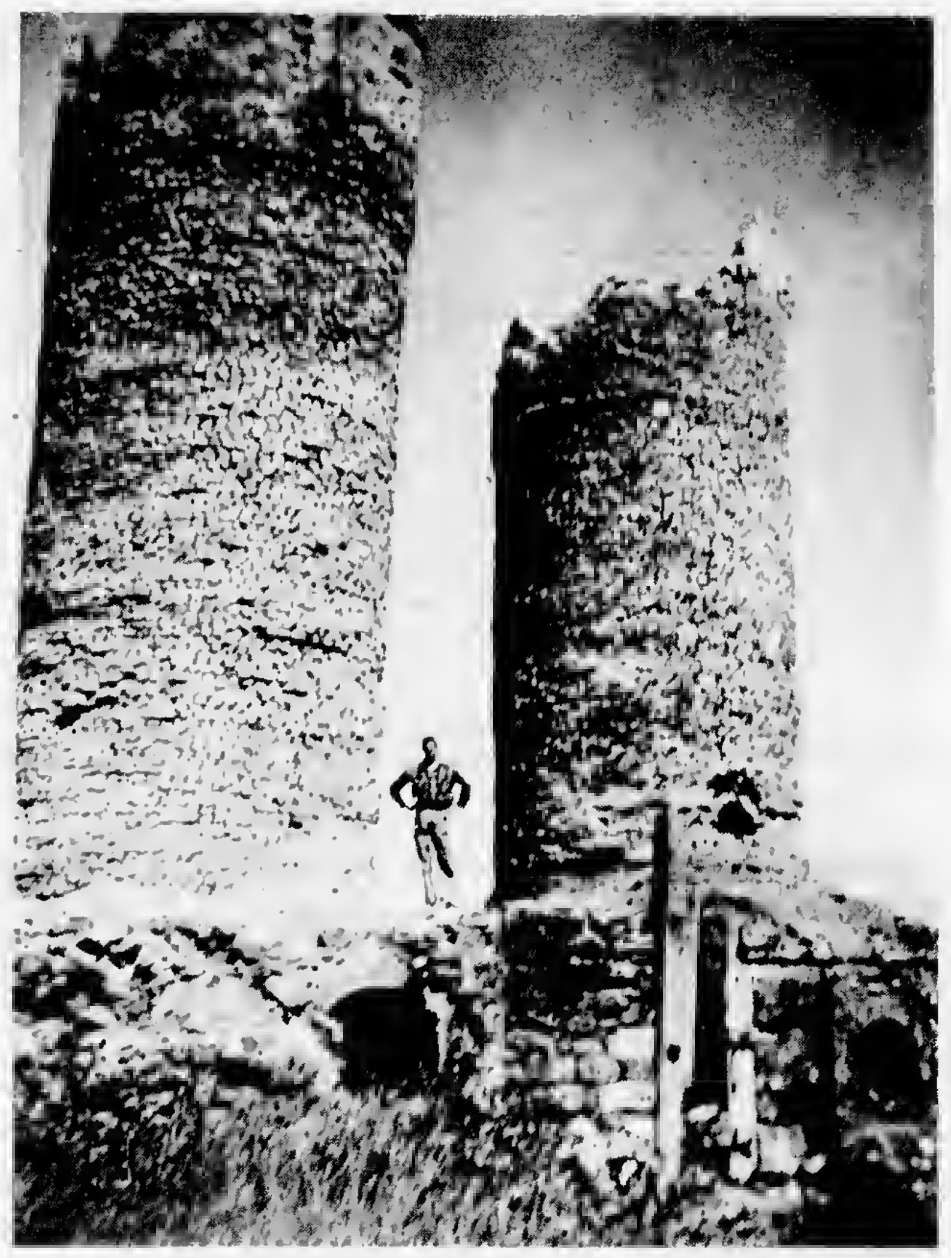
Like Mrs. Zipp, Mrs. Smith recalls that as children they made their own entertainment. She also recalls that a summer activity was picking berries for people.

"When we went to school here," about half of us were Native Americans," Mrs. Smith says of the once-large settlement. "There were about 40 students in the school, and two teachers."

Asked if she carried on any of the arts of her ancestors, Mrs. Smith said that she still makes a few baskets. "It's an art I don't want to die," she reflected.

Her other skill is sewing, which she learned from her mother, and now puts to use in her alteration business. "I also devote a lot of time to the church, cooking for the summer camps and things. Just recently we entertained the church cabinet and Bishop Emmons for a steak fry at our house."

Yesterday or today, Bay Shore was and is a community of families determined to do their part in an ever-changing world.



THIS PICTURE of the ruins of the Bay Shore Lime Company was taken several years ago. Note the size of the kilns compared with the man standing between them.

WASHINGTON

Dear Friends,
I have spent 12 years as a Michigan Legislator -- getting to know you and your problems, serving you, getting things done for you -- and during that time I have gained much knowledge and experience. I have also accomplished a great deal.
I started my public life on the local level, as a city councilman, and I know how important it is for local officials to be able to work closely with state and federal officials. I have helped solve many local problems during my legislative career, and I have helped your local officials to cut through red tape in order to receive funding for needed projects.
I want to take this background and experience to Washington to work for you there. I know what needs to be done, and I know how to do it. I have proven that I am a person who can get things done, and I want to continue getting things done for people...for you and your families.
I want to thank you for all of your support in the past. I have won nine straight elections -- every race I've taken part in. That proves I can also win in November. I need your support now in the Republican Primary for United States Congress on Tuesday, August 8.
Sincerely
Bob Davis

Mt. McSauba bristles with activity this summer

The woods and beach surrounding the Mt. McSauba Recreation area have been alive with children this summer.

More than 100 Charlevoix area youth have participated in Mt. McSauba Day Camp sessions sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department and taking advantage of the nature trails and beach property in the recreation area.

Under the direction of Jack Gebott, camp director, and his four assistants, Jan Egler, Sally Dishong, Geoff Nelson and Dave Taylor, the children have been studying basic camp skills, swimming, archery, BB gunnery and many other things.

Gebott said he has been able to expand the camp program this year due to additional funding.

"We've been able to work more on camp skills and nature studies this year because we've had more money to spend on the program," Gebott said. "All of the salaries for the counselors are coming from CETA and other programs, so we've been able to spend the camp fees on improving the program."

Gebott said the response to the day camp has been excellent this year.

"We've more than doubled the number of campers we had in the program last year," the camp director said.

Many of the campers are students who participated in the program last year and several campers have signed up for more than one session.

This is the third year Gebott has headed the program.

The camp director said there are still some openings available for the last three sessions of day camp. For more information about the camp, call the Charlevoix Recreation Department office at 547-5233.

Poky Wheeler reminisces about his sailing days.

'Poky' Wheeler says

Commercialism has taken fun out of sailboat racing

By TOM DAMMANN

The fun of sailboat racing is giving way to commercialism.

That is the firmly stated belief of Lester A. "Poky" Wheeler, a veteran of many Great Lakes and ocean races, who spends his summers here prowling around marinas, docks, adjusting compasses, officiating at local races and otherwise keeping abreast of the nautical times.

"It is so commercial now-a-days, we may as well get rid of amateurism," he said. "In Russia they sail the boat for their country. Here they sail so the designers, sailmakers and builders can make money – nothing else counts.

"There is no such thing as a gentleman yachtsman, anymore, but I think I'm more or less an amateur."

At 75, Poky still keeps his seabag ready to go at a moments notice, his love of sailing undiminished and his store of anecdotes as lusty as his comments on 1978 sailboat racing.

CARRIES CREDENTIALS

He also carries with him a sturdy list of credentials: a member of the exclusive Cruising Club of America since 1964; a member of the Old Goats, sailors who have sailed more than 25 Chicago to Mackinac races (Poky has sailed in 27 as well as six Port Huron to Mackinac Races); member of the Old Guard (the 25 oldest members of the Chicago Yacht Club – he is number 20 on the list); navigator and teacher of celestial navigation and control officer in the Navy during World War II (he saw action in ~~the west~~ Pacific); compass adjuster; and measurer for the Cruising Club, certified by the United States Yacht Racing Union (USYRU).

The name Poky has nothing to do with his movement or thinking process.

"A few days after I was born a three-year-old cousin saw me and said I was so red I must be a red Indian," he explained with a chuckle. "So my family began calling me Pocahantus, which was the only Indian name they knew. Poky came from that."

Chicago-born and raised, Poky received his undergraduate and law degrees from Northwestern University in Evanston.

He brought his first sail boat – a 1912 R boat – in 1937 and began racing almost immediately.

After the war Poky and his brother went into the commercial real estate business in Chicago, developing among other projects, one of Chicago's first shopping centers.

BOUND FOR SOUTH SEAS

In 1950, a friend called to offer him the position of navigator aboard a sailboat bound for the South Sea Islands.

"I had become almost a professional pallbearer in the previous 12 months in funerals for friends who seemed to be dying at the rate of about 2 a month," Poky said. "So I told myself, 'if you don't take this you're a goddamned fool.'

"I left the business in the hands of my brother and since my first wife and I were divorced I had no responsibilities. We set off down the Mississippi River and ended up in Tahiti.

"Then the group wanted to go to Hawaii but I joined another schooner headed for New Zealand."

"I rented a screened-in quonset hut for $1.65 a month and settled down as a gentleman beachcomber."

In about a year's time he received a frantic summons home to help salvage a cleaning and drying business that he and his brother were involved with.

"I came home and started paying for my fun, working fourteen hours day for the next 18 months," he grimaced. "We sold out two years ago."

Poky has sailed a Bermuda Race and two Southern Ocean Racing Circuit series in the Gulf and Bahamas.

He once owned a 48-foot schooner which he sailed from Salem, Mass., to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., through cold and storms with 80 knot winds.

"I'll never do that again," he said.

SINGS SEA CHANTIES

He loves to sing sea chanties he has written about that and other experiences.

He intended going back to the South Seas, but couldn't muster a crew among his friends.

"One guy had just got married," he said chuckling. "Taking a wife to Tahiti is like taking a ham sandwich to a banquet."

He sailed the schooner back to Annapolis, sold it and returned to Chicago. Ten days later he and his present wife, Lita, were married. They have been married for 20 years, despite the fact that she refuses to cruise.

But she has become accustomed to his farewells.

"When I leave the house for anything to do with boats, I'm gone forever," he said. "I tell my wife, don't expect me 'til you see me."

The boat he loves the best of the several he has owned or sailed is the 37-foot schooner he helped design and named "Ingenue" after his wife, who in her youth had been a violinist in an all woman orchestra which made world wide tours under the name "The Ingenues."

"She was built in 1964 and is the greatest boat I've sailed in," he says proudly. "She was finished in 1965 and I began racing."

After a year of poor showing he changed his approach and rigorously trained a group of cadets from a sailing club at Echart College in St. Petersburg, Fla., where he now spends his winters.

"I had them tacking and tacking until we could come about in nine seconds a tack," Poky laughed.

"I made them cut their hair and shave their beards, but I let them bring their girl friends along on Sundays.

"Our first race was from Pensacola to St. Petersburg – 300 nautical miles."

"We were the first to finish. We beat Ted Turner in Paper Tiger, by four hours and the Navy Yawl by 30 seconds. Then we sailed to Naples and took first overall and first in our class.

"Then we went to Chicago and took second in the Ma in our 93 boat division and second in our class.

"I sold her in 1974 to a young couple in Fisher's Island, Long Island, who renamed her Sapphire," he said wistfully. "They love her and keep writing me letters about her.

QUITS RACING

"Now I have a Gulf Star and I've quit racing.

"I'm retired now and doing the things you're supposed to do when you retire: measuring and inspecting and helping race committees, playing my guitar – which I picked up in Bora Bora.

"And you know, I've observed something: the top boats that keep coming in, one two and three, are always in top shape – in mint condition – while the boats that come in 17th or worse are pig stys."

The Wheelers are in the process of selling their home and land on Lake Michigan near Bells Bay to the Department of Natural Resources, but they are keeping their house for one more summer.

Though he is retiring and farming out his compass adjusting business to friends in the trade, he has his sea bag ready to go anywhere – "oilskins, boots, deck shoes, Navy sweater, toilet case, fever thermometer, plus a cool shirt, change of underwear, some wool socks, supplemented with my sextant, chronometer, a couple of nautical tables and my guitar – all I need."

Poky is looking forward to the Chicago Yacht Club's Old Guard Race in a few days.

"We sail Luder 16s," he explained. "Each boat has a crew of two. It's all you can do to sit in there and steer. Everybody who races wins a cup.

"But last year I won it," he laughed gleefully. "There were eight boats in the race. I made the most God-awful start and ended up 7th. Then the race committee ruled that six guys had crossed the starting line ahead of the gun. So I won."

Duke plans pier for lake

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has received a second permit request for the construction of a pier in Round Lake.

Thomas Duke of Charlevoix has requested a permit for the construction of an L-shaped steel pile and precast concrete pier on the lake. The pier will be 138 feet long and have 20 wooden mooring piles placed in the waterway.

Duke also plans to dredge 92 cubic yards of material from the waterway. The dredged material will be trucked out of the area.

The purpose of the construction is to provide dockage and adequate water depths for pleasure craft.

The construction is planned for property close to the former Charlevoix Lumber Company property on the north side of Round Lake.

People wishing to comment on the proposed construction have until Aug. 21 to respond. Comments may be sent to Department of the Army, Detroit District, Corps of Engineers, Box 1027, Detroit, Mich., 48231.

Kenifeck to head major gift division for hospital drive

A Charlevoix businessman, realtor and sailor, will direct the Charlevoix Area Hospital's Fund Raising Campaign's "Major Gift Division."

William Kenifeck, who moved to Charlevoix in 1972, said he had volunteered to lead this important committee because "I am greatly impressed with the medical staff Charlevoix Area Hospital has and this is a greatly needed project."

Charlevoix Area Hospital has launched a $750,000 Fund Raising Campaign to remodel and expand its out-patient departments.

"It's important for people to know that this is not an expansion project for beds," Kenifeck explained, "but a refurbishing and updating of hospital departments."

Charlevoix Area Hospital's Board of Directors announced the Expansion and Renovation Project in early July. The project involves the expansion of the hospital departments of X-ray, laboratory, emergency room, respiratory therapy and inhalation therapy – departments which have all experienced vast increases in patient use.

The hospital recently released data showing that in the past seven years out-patient admissions have increased 157 percent. Emergency room use has increased 212 percent. Laboratory has had an increase in use of 180 percent and X-ray has seen an increase of 203 percent, in the same seven years. Electrocardiograms (EKGs) have increased 215 percent.

These dramatic increases are attributable to changing trends in medicine where the government and insurance companies, as well as hospitals and physicians are trying to treat more patients as out-patients as opposed to admitting them to hospitals. These changes are aimed at minimizing costs to patients and hospitals, as well as, the government and insurance companies.

Hospital administrators also point out that in the same seven years the hospital staff has increased 280 percent at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Expansion and Renovation Project, the total cost of which is $2.1 million, is designed to relieve the strain on those out-patient departments.

Kenifeck, who lives on his 40 acres horse farm on Maple Grove Road, with his wife Terri and two children, says he looks forward to the challenge of helping the hospital raise the $750,000.

He and his committee will meet with prospective donors to the hospital project who are hoped with give from $2,500 to $10,000. His committee's team captains are: Harry Broder, Terry Edger, Thomas Erber, Richard Pajtas, Bill Price, and Vane Smith.

Charlevoix skiers go west for instruction

The mountains of Montana and Wyoming were home for Mike Bonello, Charlevoix High School ski coach, and two of the high school ski team members, Pat Stangis and Billy Mosher, recently.

Bonello was a guest coach and the two racers were participants in a 10-day ski instruction session at the Red Lodge International Summer Ski Racing Camp.

The camp, which is open to junior racers age 12-18 from throughout the United States and the world, emphasizes improving the fundamentals of skiing.

As a guest coach Bonello worked with several internationally known coaches helping the young racers improve their basic racing skills and he also studied the fundamentals of coaching skiing and racer preparation.

Some of the World Class skiers Bonello met at the camp were Erich Sailer, former Austrian ski team member and associate coach of the U.S. Ski team, Alan Kildow, three time junior national champion, Pepi Grammshamer, former Austrian ski team member and coach, Barbara Ann Cochran, U.S. gold medal winner and Jimmy Heuga, U.S. silver medal winner.

Bonello said he had been invited to the camp because of a trend in ski racing in this country which centers on the development of coaches for the young racers.

The ski coach said the American public has become more aware of downhill skiing in the last five years and has taken more of an interest in developing racers for the U.S. ski team.

"With the number of people we have in this country, there is no reason why we should take the backseat in racing," Bonello said. "And so efforts are being made to develop racers and there has been more monetary support, too."

Bonello said participants at the racing camp are selected on a first-come, first-serve basis. Students from the East and West coasts, Canada and Venezuela were at the camp Bonello and the two Charlevoix skiers attended.

But while, the camp is open to anyone applying, it is designed for racers, the ski coach said.

"The terrain is very steep and runs down the north face of a canyon," he said. "The area is closed most of the rest of the year because there is too much snow."

Bonello said the ski camp has an excellent track record producing 40 racers that reached the U.S. Olympic ski team.

"Our two skiers improved immensely while they were at the camp," the coach said. "It's a fantastic opportunity for young racers to have a camp such as this right in their own country."

Bonello also attended the camp as a participant two years ago following his first year as coach at the high school.

Soccer practice starts Monday at township field

Soccer practice will begin at 6 p.m. Monday for students interested in participating on the Charlevoix teams in the Northwest Michigan Youth Soccer League.

Boys and girls ages 10-16 years old should report to the Charlevoix Township field on Waller Road for practice, Gary Hice, youth activities co-ordinator, said. The Youth Activities Program, a part of the Department of Social Services is sponsoring the soccer program.

Hice said if enough interest is shown by students in the 13-16 year age group, a separate league will be formed.

Mike Custer medalist in Illinois golf tourney

Mike Custer, 16, a member of the Charlevoix High School golf team, was medalist in the qualifying round and semi-finalist in the Junior Golf Match Play Championship at Indian Lakes Country Club, Bloomingdale, Ill., last week.

Ross Coombs, captain of the Santa Maria.

Columbus' flagship, Santa Maria, graces Charlevoix harbor

A little bit of history sailed into Charlevoix last week.

A replica of the Santa Maria, the flagship of the three vessels that carried Columbus and his men to the new world, was docked in the Round Lake yacht basin for the Venetian Festival over the weekend.

Complete with square rigging, wooden masts and intricately-carved wooden decoration, the three-quarter replica boat is as true to detail as is possible.

Even the 10-member crew looks the part in uniforms modeled after 15th Century costume.

"The rigging is the closest thing of anything on the boat to being a perfect replica," Ross Coombs, captain of the ship, said. "The designer had to change a lot of things to meet the U.S. Coast Guard regulations and for tours.

"In fact, that's why the boat is only 65 feet long. If we had gone full size, we would have had to meet a lot more Coast Guard requirements."

A salt and pepper-colored beard frames Coombs' weather-beaten face making him appear even better fit for the part of captain he has been playing for the last three months.

He was recommended for the job as captain of Columbus' flagship by a former employer.

"I'm a sailor, that's what I've been doing for the last 15 years and I carry a captain's license," Coombs explained.

"When I saw this boat, I just thought to myself, 'Boy, I ought to try this just once'."

Coombs said he didn't have any special preparation before he took over as captain of the model of a 15th Century ship.

"I just got on board and began operating it," he said. "That's the best way to learn how to sail a square rig.

"When you look at it, it looks like Greek. Your first reaction is oh my God, where do all those lines go to?

"But now it seems very easy."

The captain said it is not a prerequisite that crew members be sailors.

"Ambition is the most important thing and since we live in close quarters it is important that the crew members be gentlemen," the captain said.

"But we don't require that they know how to sail. There's 40 new kinds of lines to learn even for the person that's been sailing all his life."

Coombs said sailing the Santa Maria has created a lot more respect in his mind for the men that came over on the original ship.

"It takes a lot of forethought to sail one of these," the veteran of 20 on every craft imaginable said. "This is not the type of boat that you can turn on a whim.

"You have to be thinking two steps ahead of time to avoid any trouble. And this ship is not as nimble as the craft most sailors are used to. It doesn't leave you any room for error."

While the ship is a close replica of the one Columbus sailed, that doesn't mean there aren't a few modern day conveniences, too.

It takes a lot of wind to sail the boat, so for those calm days it is outfitted with diesel engines. It also has radar and a ship's radio, unlike the original.

In the hold, which is filled with cargo barrels, are neatly disguised refrigerators, freezers, radar ranges and even a color TV. All are fitted inside the barrels on display to the public.

The ship, which was constructed by Young American Showcase, Inc., sails from port to port as an educational tool. Coombs said the schedule is fairly tight and that has led to the end of more than one captain's career.

"They just can't take it," he said. "For instance, we sailed all night to get here today. I've been up since 3 a.m. and it's now after 10."

It took two years to build the boat at a cost of $400,000. It was constructed for the Bicentennial celebration and sailed in "Operation Sail" with the Tall Ships in New York City on July 4, 1976.

Since then it has sailed all over the country to more than 100 ports from St. Johns, New Brunswick to Port Isabel, Tex.

The crew lives on the ship the entire tour. All of the crew members are male except for the captain's wife who doubles as the ship's cook.

It's a busy life with the ship booked a month in advance most of the time.

From here the Santa Maria sailed to Mackinaw City and then will return to Petoskey.

offer about the same protection. But whatever brand you choose, be sure it meets manufacturer specifications and warranty requirements. Today, you can find two stage filters on the market and filters with internal additive supplies that offer added protection over conventional filters. But, they are usually more expensive. Also, you may void your warranty if certain types of engine failure occur while you're using an additive.

If you use a high quality oil and change it frequently, you don't need additives. According to "Driver Magazine", studies run by the Army show that the additives they tested didn't add much to oil performance.

If you're interested in joining the growing number of consumers who are learning "how-to" do things at home, you'll want to read the Backyard Mechanic, Volume II. Besides giving you an illustrated step-by-step guide to changing the oil and filter; the booklet has instructions for the novice on tuning your car, replacing drum brakes, rebuilding carburetors, air conditioners, and ignition systems. You might also want to get a copy of the Backyard Mechanic, Volume I (001F, $1.25). It has 12 other chapters on car maintenance and repairs.

July 24, 1978
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding. Aldermen present: Wood, Whitley, Mumn, Porter, and Plumm. Absent: Alderman Swanson.

Council had previously been made aware of the project in a Public Notice from the Corps of Engineers. They advised Mr. Boone that the City Attorney had sent a letter to the Corps expressing Council's concern that the dock would extend into present mooring areas. Mr. Boone stated that the length of the dock is necessary to reach a depth suitable for docking large boats sue to a shoal in front of the Baer property. Council agreed to delay any action on the matter until their next regular meeting on August 7, 1978.

Frank Oleksy, a member of the General Public present, advised Council that there is a dead tree on his property on Newman Street with three power lines running through it. He expressed concern for the safety of children playing in the area and stated that large branches blow off the tree during severe weather conditions. The City Administrator stated that his office was aware of the problem and that the Ciry crew had looked into the matter and did not think there is an immediate danger but would remove the tree in the Fall.

Gil Clark, General Manager of Lake Charlevoix Cable TV, appeared before Council to request their approval of a .75 per month rate increase to Cable customers. He stated the increase would enable his company to provide three additional channels for their customers.

Moved by Alderman Porter and supported by Alderman Plumm that Council approve a .75 per month increase for Lake Charlevoix Cable TV provided three channels are added to the system and that a separate rate be established for senior citizens upon implementation of the new channels. Motion was made by Alderman Porter and seconded by Alderman Whitley to accept bid for repair of Chapel roof by Guy Smith in the amount of $1,696. Motion was passed by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Swanson.

Motion was made by Alderman Wood and seconded by Alderman Plumm to approve an invoice from MPPA in the amount of $1,399. Motion was passed by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitely, Muma, Porter, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Swanson.

Moved by Alderman Wood and supported by Alderman Plumm to refer all bids received for carpeting the Airport terminal to the Airport Committee, replacing Alderman Whitley with Alderman Muma on that committee, and giving said committee the power to select a carpet for the airport and to act on their decision. Motion was approved by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Swanson.

Alderman Whitley requested that the following letter be made a matter of record.

Mr. Frank Novotny, a member of the General Public present, expressed his objection to the City purchasing the property at the price of $180,000 as the City had sold the property to Mr. Schleman in 1953 for approximately $3,000 with certain provisions, which, Mr. Novotny contends, were not met. The matter was referred to the Committee of the Whole meeting scheduled for July 31, 1978 for further study.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $171,037.04 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed. Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Wood that the bills be approved and orders drawn for their amounts.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Swanson.

Two local men honored by sheriff for rescue attempt

Two Charlevoix County residents have received the Citizens Award for their attempts to save a drowning victim following an accident in Whiting Park.

Richard Brooks of East Jordan and Howard Doyal of Boyne City were both honored by Charlevoix County Sheriff Goerge Lasater for their rescue attempts.

Brooks dove into 20 feet of water and pulled the victim's body to shore where Doyal administered cardio-pulmonary resuscitation for 10 minutes until the victim was pronouced dead by an attending physician.

The victim was a visitor to the area and a nonswimmer.

"Even though their attempts to save the subject were not successful, this was a gallant effort on the part of these two citizens and was such that I am proud to present this Sheriff's Citizens Award on behalf of the citizens of the county and the sheriff's department," Sheriff Lasater said.

Both men said it was a natural reaction to run down to the water and see if they could help.

"'There were plenty of other people down there helping, too," Doyal said. "I wish I knew some of the names of them so I could give those to you, too."

Brooks said he had left the area briefly and when he came back he saw a gathering of people by the lake.

"I asked my wife what had happened. She told me and I ran down there and began diving," Brooks recalled.

Doyal, the administrator for the Petoskey Half-way House and a former deputy sheriff from Illinois, said he had also left the area and upon returning saw the group of people and ran down to help.

RICHARD BROOKS (left) and Howard Doyal (right) were honored recently by Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater for their effort in the attempted resuce of a drowning victim in Whiting Park.

At the camp he will attend three hours of intensive daily rehearsals and sectionals, technique classes and a master class.

TIRED OF ENVIRONMENTALISTS

I'm tired of the summer residents putting Medusa down in the Courier, saying that Medusa was nickel and dime stuff. Mr. Michael, why don't you look up these people? Maybe they would foot the whole bill for you, seeing that they have so much money. I hear you summer people talk, and that's what the environmental group consists of mostly. We people would starve to death without your handouts. Well, Mr. Michael, Medusa doesn't have all the money, the summer people do. At least, that's what they lead us to believe. I'm tired of environmentalists. Thank you.

MORE SOFTBALL COVERAGE

My main gripe is the Courier coverage on fast-pitch and no names under the picture of the team. Fast pitch is dying out all over the country. Charlevoix had some of the best teams in northern Michigan and Canada in that tournament. These young men need a little recognition. I guess I'm an old-timer in Charlevoix because I remember when the ballpark used to be behind the Legion and the place was packed. We could pack them in there. Those were the good old fast pitch days, I guess. We've got a good young team and a good bunch of fellows that got out there and beat good teams, and darn good teams they beat. All there is a picture and no names in the Courier. In my opinion, this Potter should be a "Meet Charlevoix" and have him tell about these kids. By the way, that ballpark had more cars around it in one night at that tournament than the whole slow pitch has in a week. Also, there should be a "thank you" for this Ike Boss for all the work and time he's put in out there. He should get a little recognition. Thank you.

WHERE ARE THE NAMES?

Everyone enjoyed the Fastpitch Tournament held over the Venetian weekend. Charlevoix County State Bank was the only home team to particpate in the tournament. These ball players spent their weekend providing entertainment for the Venetian Festival and the profits went to the girls and boys fastpitch programs in Charlevoix. County State Bank was undefeated winning 1st place over 11 out-of-town teams and their team picture was in last week's Charlevoix Courier with no names under the picture. Don't you think these fine ball players deserve some recognition?

Light turnout for primary

Although it did not rain until the polls closed, only 23 percent of Charlevoix County voters participated in Tuesday's primary election.

Most local candidates were uncontested, leaving no doubt as to whom would represent the party in the November general election.

For instance, there was only one contested race for the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners. In the fifth district Chad McDonald beat incumbent Ralph Richardson 102-35 on the Republican ticket. The fifth district includes Eveline and Wilson townships.

In contested races elsewhere:

Townships – H. Dale Gloss bested John Uhrick 59-48 for trustee on the Republican ticket in Charlevoix Township, Phyllis Penfold ousted Bernice Howard 27-11 for treasurer on the Democratic ticket in Chondler Township, Stephen Bonar took Frank Novotny 40-34 for trustee on the Republican ticket in Marion Township, Evelyn Farrell defeated John Sevestian 36-34 for supervisor on the Republican ticket in Norwood Township and Willis Planck edged Melvin Holden 50-23 for clerk on the Republican ticket in Melrose Township.

In Peaine Township, Joseph Martin, Edward Palmer and Donald Hogan won the Republican nomination for clerk, trustee and constable, respectively. Martin beat Betty Welke 68-21, Palmer took Mary Ellen Welke 64-25 and Hogan bested William Welke 64-25.

Also, JoAnn Baker bumped Linda Nelson 31-22 for the Democratic nomination for treasurer in Wilson Township and Hilbert Hardy bounced Fredrick Baker 36-18 for trustee on the Democratic ticket, Joel Evans defeated Don Stokes 99-36 for supervisor on the Republican ticket in South Arm Township, and in St. James Township Ernest Martin won the Democratic nomination for trustee by beating Richard Speck 35-21.

There were two proposals decided. Voters in Boyne Valley Township turned thumbs down on a request for school tax collection in the summer 39-19 and in Peaine Township voters approved road millage 62-25.

State and Federal – Charlevoix County voters overwhelmingly supported William Fitzgerald for the Democratic nomination for governor with 507 votes. Zolton Ferency was second with 179. William Milliken running unopposed on the Republican ticket garnered 1,356 votes.

Carl Levin was the top Democratic vote getter for U.S. Senate. Levin picked up 294 votes. He was followed by Richard VanderVeen with 187. Robert Griffin won the Republican nomination in the county with 1,113 votes to L. Brooks Patterson's 421.

Horton Bay's Jim Hartwell did well in all 30 precincts and ended with 377 votes, the most among seven Democrats vying for U.S. Congress in the 11th District. Herbert Stephens finished second with 195. Robert Davis claimed 1,059 votes on the Republican ledger compared to Edmund Vandette's 492.

For state Senate in the 37th District, Robert Wise of Charlevoix picked up 613 votes and Rod Brown 587 on the Republican slate. Mitch Irwin unopposed in the Democratic primary had 641 votes.

Ralph Ostling tallied 970 votes for the state House seat in the 103rd District on the Republican ticket while Barbara Anderson was the top Democratic vote getter with 316.

For a state House seat in the 106th District, Leona Stillwell was the top Democratic vote getter with 149 votes while Steve Andrews picked up 112 votes as the Republican kingpin.

And for the Michigan Court of Appeals, county voters clearly favored Barbara MacKenzie, 1,240 votes, over Joe Swallow, 402 votes, and Ken Block, 286 votes.

Medusa to revegetate slope

John Campbell

Despite the fact that Michigan law does not require reclamation until a mining area is abandoned, Medusa Cement officials Monday announced plans for the revegetation of overburden slopes along Medusa Quarry Road.

According to Elbert Kaiser, plant manager, Medusa plans on hydroseeding the slope and installing an irrigation system.

Medusa has already tried some experimental testing on ground cover and tree plantings at the Charlevoix plant. Oak, Cottonwood, Maple, Mountain Ash and Birch trees were planted in May and so far over 80 percent of the trees have survived despite poor soil conditions and minimal rainfall said architect John Campbell. More tree plantings are expected. Campbell said crownvetch and rye grass will be used as ground cover.

Kaiser said the revegetation program will not only make the slope more aesthetically pleasing but it will help control dust and, hence, air pollution.

Medusa has been experimenting with revegetation for six years - both at the Charlevoix plant and at the Ellsworth quarry. The revegetation along the slope off Medusa Quarry Road will total four and a half acres, bringing Medusa's total revegetation program to 37 acres. Another nine acres is expected to be revegetated this fall, Kaiser said.

It's also been learned that Medusa will be on the agenda of the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission in Traverse City Monday night. The meeting starts in the afternoon, but any citizen wanting to attend just the Medusa segment should be presented at the Park Place Motor Inn at 7:30 p.m., said Arden Toland, of the DNR.

Members of the Committee for the Preservation of the Environment, Inc. and Medusa are expected to be present.

"This is a real opportunity for residents of the town to make their voices be heard directly to the commission," said Dick Aull, spokesman for the committee. "The Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission has the power to take whatever steps are necessary."

The committee has filed a suit against Medusa asking for an environmental impact study before Medusa is allowed to expand.

School ends fiscal year in black

The Charlevoix School District completed the fiscal year in the black Vincent Olach, business manager, advised the Charlevoix Board of Education at its regular meeting Monday night.

At the same meeting, the board hired a middle school math teacher, special education teachers for the elementary and high schools and approved the hiring of coaches for winter and spring sports next season.

Also coming in for discussion was the problem regarding the unit ventilators for the renovation at the middle school.

Olach advised the board that the end-of-the-year audit showed the school district had finished the school year on June 30 with a balance of $7,949, a sharp contrast to the conclusion of the 1977 school year when the school district was in the red in the amount of $28,568.

Toni Alger, a recent graduate of Central Michigan University, was hired as middle school math teacher. A graduate of the Charlevoix High School as an honor student, Miss Alger did her practice teaching in Petoskey last year. She has a minor in physical education.

Mary Gengle, who was a special education teacher on a part-time basis under Plas Presnell last year, was named to take over in the high school in the absence of Presnell who is on a year's leave of absence to continue his studies at Central Michigan University Pamela Smith, who was formerly with the program and who has been on a leave of absence, will return this school year on a part time basis.

Irene Cohen of Petoskey was hired as special education teacher in the elementary school in the absence of Pat Carland who is on a leave of absence. Mrs. Cohen did her practice teaching here while a student at Central Michigan and since graduation has substituted in the local school. She has also done some work for the Char-Em Intermediate School District in the system.

Eleven head and assistant coaches were approved for the 1978-79 school year on the condition that the sport is offered. They are: volleyball, Mary Gengle; skiing, Mike Bonello; wrestling, Norman Probert; basketball (varsity), David Moyer; basketball (Junior Varsity), Don Carey; Basketball (9th grade) Roger Gowell; girls' track, Dennis VanGuilder; girls' track (assistant), Mary Gengle; Boys' track (assistant), Hal Evans; tennis, Charles Wright; baseball, Peter Spieles.

Two high school seniors, Beth Camilerri and Debbie Tollas, were granted permission for dual enrollment at North Central Michigan College and the high school during the 1978-79 school year.

A policy relating to two phases of the acceleration program were discussed at the meeting and action taken on the matter at the Aug. 21 meeting.

David Reibschleger, representing the firm of Manson-Jackson-Kane, architects for the renovation program at the middle school, attended the meeting to advise the board of the problem relating to unit ventilators. Haggard Plumbing, which has the contract for the work at the school, has been advised that the manufacturer of the units cannot meet its obligation, the delivery of 15 units, until mid-November after agreeing to have them here the end of August. Reibschleger advised the board of what options were available. The board agreed to discuss the matter with the school attorney before taking any action. Meanwhile, Manson-Jackson-Kane will keep after the manufacturer, the Nesbitt Co.

Olach advised the board that a lot in Hampton Village had become available at a price as a site for a Building Trades house. He was advised to make an offer and to offer to assume the debt of the sewer assessment.

The next meeting is scheduled for Aug. 21.

Main water leaks still not detected

Charlevoix City Manager Norman Gaffney said he is "disappointed" that large water leaks in the city water system have not yet been found.

Gaffney forwarded copies of a report from the Gronger Engineering, Inc., of Cadillac to the Charlevoix Common Council Monday night. Granger Engineering sounded the system for water leaks nearly three weeks ago after city officials learned that up to 50 percent of the city's water was being lost.

Although the engineering firm detected leaks in several water pipes, officials said they were not of the magnitude "that would account for the amount of water loss being experienced at this time."

"The two exceptions," said Thomas McPherson, of Granger Engineering, "are the sounding at the pump station and the water line extending down Dixon Avenue west of Bridge Street."

McPherson said the pump station "would be the first location to check." The fire hydrant at the pump station has the sound of running water under low pressure. McPherson said if the city has any plans or construction drawings of the area the pipe schematic could be inspected. He added after the piping had been located it would be necessary to "dig up the area."

According to McPherson, leaks were also detected at: the Chicago Resort area, Crouter Street at Burns Street, Meech Street at Petoskey Avenue, Park Street at Grant Street, Mason Street from Grant Street to State Street, Bridge Street at Robinson Street, the north two blocks of Wordsworth Street and Stover Street at May Street.

Gaffney said the city would "proceed" in its investigation because "it's costing us a lot of money." Gaffney said the city is losing about half the water it is pumping.

The city staff has inspected storm sewer outlets and has taken flouride tests on suspect areas that could be leaking. But the results have proven negative.

If you are planning to build your own home, one thing you might consider is the use of solar energy. Though there is still much to learn about the use of solar energy, home heating systems have been developed that can be fitted to almost any new house, as long as there is some exposure to the sun. Hot water heating systems are also available using solar energy. And while you are building it is the best time to consider such an energy system, as it is much less expensive and will be more efficient if the energy systems and the house are designed at the same time. Energy is the problem of the future and solar energy may be one of the solutions.

Charlevoix Yesterday

THIS PICTURE OF BRIDGE STREET, looking south from Park Avenue, was taken in 1906. It appears in "Bob Miles" Charlevoix - A century in Pictures", with the following description by Miles: The building on the far left was the Ciouter Drug Store. The upper floor housed Charlevoix's first telephone exchange. Next door was the Sugar Bowl, owned and operated by Geo. Glados for over fifty years. Shaded by the clump of trees was the home of Major Greene. The small building on the extreme right of the picture was Shepherd's Hardware, and south of it, across the alley, was Levinson's Dry Goods Store. It is now Lieberman's. The Chamberlain home stood on the corner where the Charlevoix County State Bank now stands. Shortly after the Charlevoix Fire Dept. was formed, their first call was at Chamberlain's. By pumping water from Round Lake, they put out the fire. The pillars in the street were part of an activity of the Masonic Lodge, but just what the occasion was is not definitely known. Old lighthouse on Island gets facelift

THE OLD lighthouse on Beaver Island is getting a facelift thanks to two grants.

On a clear day in Charlevoix you can look across the blue water of Lake Michigan and see the rocky shoreline of Beaver Island.

The Charlevoix School District owns a piece of that rock. Sixty-five acres altogether, including a half-mile of lake frontage.

Overlooking the lake front is an historic brick lighthouse, constructed in 1851. For over 100 years its beacon guided ships past the eastern shore of the island. That, too, is school district property.

The school district was deeded the property in October of 1975 after the federal government abandoned the lighthouse and declared the property "surplus."

Until this summer the school district had done little with the lighthouse and the property although a stipulation in the deed said the school district had to improve the site with the intention of using it for environmental education purposes.

Why?

According to Superintendent Gordon VanWieren, the school board did not want to use monies from its general fund to improve the site.

So, the lighthouse remained in desperate need of repair. The paint was peeling, the windows were broken or missing, the screens were ripped and there were even bullet holes in the wall boards. To many people it was an eyesore.

Then, early this year, the school district hit the jackpot. It received two grants – $30,000 from the Department of Natural Resources and $60,000 from Governor William G. Milliken's office. Cleanup efforts started almost immediately.

The $30,000 was used primarily in hiring skilled workers to remove the paint from the lighthouse and to tuck point the joints of the brick. Instead of repainting the brick on the lighthouse, officials decided to leave it in its natural state. That segment of the project has been completed.

The governor's grant has been used to hire unemployed youth from the Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet County areas. It also covers supervisory help, building materials, food, transportation and lodging (tents). Dan Kaczynski is the director of the summer work camp. Under his command, Kaczynski has 23 crew workers, eight crew leaders and four staff workers. Crew members are between the ages of 16 and 21.

Kaczynski started designing the improvement program for the lighthouse property just one week before it actually got underway – since it was not known the governor's grant was forthcoming. Kacyznski quickly got the program in gear and by the first week of July crew members were busy carrying out the details.

Renovating the lighthouse was the top priority. And workers are now repairing wall boards, ceilings, floors, plumbing and wiring, and running water to an accessory building that is being used as a workshop. It will later serve as a classroom for environmental studies. The lighthouse has been equipped with washers, dryers, dressers and refrigerators. All purchased at a government surplus sale with the grant money.

Besides work on the lighhouse, nature trails are also being develnped.

"No way will we get everything completed this summer," Kuczynski said, "but we'll get a lot accomplished.

"I see a need for this to come off (environmental study camp). When it's finished nothing in northern Michigan will equal this camp for field biology for high school students."

VanWieren said the camp will be open to all schools for a small fee.

It's been a real benefit for the crew members, too.

While earning money and learning vocational skills, workers can also receive high school biology credit from Charlevoix High School or independent field study credit from North Central Michigan College.

Most of the crew work Monday through Friday and then board the boat and return to the mainland for the weekends. After a day's work is over, they often partake in volleyball, baseball and touch football games. And there is a stretch of sandy beach on the Iron Ore Bay perfect for swimming. For sleeping accommodations, they have constructed a half dozen wooden framed tents. The frames will stay up year 'round.

The refurbishing of the lighthouse property has excited VanWieren, who admits he was skeptical about the school's ownership of the lighthouse when he assumed the superintendency last year.

"When I first took over I had some real doubts about the school owning the lighthouse," he said. "I couldn't really see what that had to do with education.

"But now I feel the board made a very good decision in securing this property. It's a very valuable piece of property. It's prime land."

VanWieren said he is hopeful another grant can be obtained so a full-time director can be hired for the enviornmental education camp. He is also hoping a full-time CETA worker can be stationed at the camp to keep the lighthouse cleaned. If not, VanWieren said, school officials will find out if they can get someone from the island to stay at the camp and take care of it in return for rent.

Crew members will finish up work Aug. 25.

Sidewalk Days are a lot of fun

For my money, Sidewalk Days are more fun than the Venetian Festival and apparently I'm not alone.

Bridge Street was jammed all day Friday and Saturday as shoppers of every size and shape pawed over tables heaped with clothing bargains, housewares bargains and gift bargains.

For two days Charlevoix's main street became another Ginza, Tokyo's chief shopping thoroughfare in the days before the sidewalk vendors were driven under cover.

Yet despite their apparent success, not all merchants were 100 percent satisfied with Sidewalk Days this year. Some claim all the pawers didn't do all that much buying. Another told us that special events like Sidewalk Days, the Venetian Festival, the Waterfront Art Fair and the Hobbycraft Fair actually drive his regular customers away.

Yet others managed to move an awful lot of merchandise that otherwise would have collected dust over the winter.

I guess what pleases me most about Sidewalk Days is that I have a chance to examine what our shops have to offer, shops that I don't have a chance to visit on a daily, weekly or monthly basis. Yet on Sidewalk Days you can hit them all with one grand sweep down Bridge Street.

Needless to say, I liked what I saw and I bought myself into a financial pinch for the rest of the week.

Of course it's up to the merchants, but I would like to see Sidewalk Days expanded into possibly three weekends in the spring, summer and fall – say, mid-May, August and the first weekend in October. And we should make sure our downstate visitors are aware of the dates.

The May sale could clear the shelves for summer merchandise; the August sale could light a fire under slow-moving items; and the October Sale could clear the way for Christmas displays by catering to the color tourists.

I am convinced that Charlevoix merchants are among the sharpest buyers in the country, with a fine sense of style and quality. It is only fair that we share our good fortune with our visitors.

ONCE AGAIN President Carter has been caught in the act of doing what is expedient rather than what is right by playing into the hands of the Southland's tobacco farmers.

On Saturday, Carter attended a tobacco country rally at Wilson, N.C., and reiterated his support of crop subsidies for tobacco farmers.

"As I am deeply interested in the small farmers of this nation, as I am deeply committed and permanently to a fine tobacco loan program, obviously I am also interested in the health of America," Carter told the crowd. "And I would say that the tobacco industry, the tobacco farmers, the federal government, all citizens ought to have an accurate and enlightened education program and research program to make the smoking of tobacco even more safe than it is today."

Which is hogwash.

The smoking of tobacco is a filthy, debilitating habit responsible for a growing list of deadly diseases, including lung cancer, emphysema, heart ailments, and strokes.

It is sheer insanity for the federal government to give one penny of your tax dollars to the tobacco farmers of America and President Carter knows it.

Ironically, Joseph A. Califano Jr., Carter's secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, recently launched a massive program to point out the dangers of tobacco smoking to young Americans. Yet Carter saw fit to belittle the secretary during his swing through the South.

"I have planned to bring Joe Califano," Carter quipped. "But he decided not to come when he discovered that not only is North Carolina the No. 1 tobacco producer but you also produce more bricks than any other state."

Such bad taste. If I were Joe Califano I'd abandon this turkey for another road show.

Concerts are good if people cooperate

A lot of noise is being made in Charlevoix over a little music.

Once again Castle Farms Music Theater has become embroiled in controversy. The country-western and rock concerts presented at the Castle on M-66 south of Charlevoix, provide entertainment for the youth and adults living and visiting in the area and turn slow days into money-makers for the local merchants.

But the concerts are also a pain in the neck as far as traffic is concerned and bothersome to Castle Farms neighbors.

The positive aspects of the concerts far outweigh the negative ones, however . After all, in the long run everyone benefits from having an influx of tourists in the area. That's what Charlevoix's economy is based on.

And it's good to provide an alternative form of entertainment in this area for our own youth as well as for visitors.

It's too bad that for the last three summers musical productions have been presented at the Castle, that an amicable solution hasn't been worked out between all of the parties involved in the concert controversy. But it's still not too late to try.

Part of the responsibility for smoothing out the rough edges of the disagreement fails on the shoulders of Castle Farms owner Art Reibel. Reibel has said he is working on lease agreements to secure more land around the Castle for parking. He and his crews are also trying to work out more efficient parking plans so that concert goers can enter and exit the parking areas more smoothly and quickly.

Reibel has also taken pains to make sure that not only the Castle Farms property is cleaned up following concerts, but that the road sides are also cleaned up. No taxpayer's dollars are being used to clean up the public land.

Some of the responsibility for making life easier for Charlevoix on concert days also falls on city officials. The last influx of 17,000 people for the Pyramid Productions Doobie Brothers concert simply exaggerated an existing problem. Something has got to be done about the Bridge Street bridge.

For several years, city officials have discussed getting a control for the Clinton and Bridge streets traffic light placed in the bridge tender's office. This way the light could be switched to green until the traffic clears instead of running on a regular schedule. Taking care of that would not only make concert days easier, it would make every day easier in Charlevoix.

Concert goers should also bear some of the responsibility for making things run more smoothly on concert days. Certainly people attending the concert should attempt to ride in carpools or to meet friends at various pick up points so that the number of cars going into the Castle is limited.

Perhaps some enterprising businessperson could start up a shuttle service which would take concert goers from a parking area to the concert and prevent some of the traffic jam.

Even starting a charter service to bus people attending the concerts from neighboring towns would help alleviate some of the problem.

People attending the concert should also try and maintain a healthy respect for other people's property.

The concerts are a good thing for Charlevoix. They can be an excellent thing if everyone cooperates.

A late night job

Dear Folks,

I think I should tell you before the drought comes: Don't expect too many letters in the future. No, I don't have writer's cramp. And, yes, I can afford 15 cent stamps. The problem is time, or the lack thereof.

This new job is keeping me busy. I hardly have time to write stories for the paper, let alone write letters..

I know you are going to say, "Well, you found time to write this letter, surely you can find time to write others."

Do you want to know how I found time to write this letter? I'll tell you anyway. I just finished writing a story on the Beaver Island lighthouse and it's 4 a.m. and I've got so much coffee in my system I can't sleep.

What can you do at 4 a.m. when you're wide awake? Don't answer that.

This is the second night this week I haven't had any sleep. It reminds me of the college days when I would stay up all night studying for a final exam, which was always the next morning. I guess I haven't changed in that respect. I am just beating the deadline on the lighthouse story.

At least it's peaceful at night. No phones ringing. No horns blaring. No doors slamming. I was going to say - No voices hollering - but I'm listening to the stereo. It's a good thing the guy who lives upstairs likes Emerson, Lake and Palmer.

Wait a minute! I thought I just heard the floor boards upstairs creek. Maybe he doesn't like Emerson, Lake and Palmer as much as I thought. Oh, well, I'll see if he likes Renaissance. Do you still listen to the Irish Rovers?

Because my new job is in Charlevoix, I'll most likely be moving there. I should be situated by fall. So, get ready to erase another address after my name in your address book.

Since I'll be working weekends this fall, I probably won't be able to make it downstate. The door is always open here if you want to come up and visit. It will do you good to breathe some clean air. Whoops! That's a touchy issue right now. I'll tell you about that someday over a cup of coffee.

Until then,
Dennis

A dinner with Tiger great George Kell

Dear Cousin Al:

Your letter accusing me of being a "reverse snob" arrived today, which was a good time for it. You claim that I'm some sort of a snob because I pass up chances to meet celebrities like Zsa Zsa Gabor.

But Saturday I had dinner with a celebrity you'd burn down your barn to meet, Al, because you're as big a baseball nut as I am. This celebrity used to play for the Detroit Tigers.

As you know, one of my neighbors is Jim Campbell, the Tigers' chief honcho. He's not the guy I'm talking about, although Campbell is quite a celebrity himself. At the ballpark, fans are always waving at him with clenched fists.

Anyway, Campbell said he and George Kell would like to have dinner with my wife and me. Kell was flying in from Arkansas to perform his usual weekend stint announcing Tiger games on TV.

George Kell! It's not cool for a big-city columnist to jump up and down and holler WOW! simply because he's going to meet the best-hitting third baseman the Tigers ever had.

It would have been childish of me to start prattling about how Kell was my favorite Tiger for years, even though Detroit had to give up Barney McCosky to get him from Philadelphia in 1964. Baseball is just a game, and the situation in the Middle East is what's important, right, Al?

So I accepted Campbell's invitation with great dignity and didn't begin making an ass of myself until I got home.

I not only ordered Pat to wash and iron my Tiger helmet, I also told her which dress to wear for the Kell dinner. She said it was the first time I'd cared what she wore since I made her wear my first basemen's mitt to the 1968 World Series. I kept tight score of the Series games, for posterity, recording every play in my scorebook, and there was no way I could do that and catch foul balls, too.

Pat also made the same type of Zsa Zsa celebrity criticism that you made in your letter, Al. She wanted to know how a grown man could hid to keep from meeting a movie star but he would jump out of the third deck in Tiger Stadium to meet a baseball player. I asked her how many years Zsa Zsa Gabor had batted over .300.

Al, you probably figure we had dinner in the Lindell AC or some other hamburger joint where athletes bit caps off beer bottles.

Forget it. Jim Campbell may chew cigars and walk like a catcher who caught too many double-headers, but the guy knows how to dine in style. We ate in the new Renaissance Club, the private club that Henry Ford II started so he'd have somewhere to eat lunch if he ever found himself in the Renaissance Center at noon without his lunch bucket.

To make sure the wine isn't bruised, they bring the bottle on a pillow. I'm not joshing, Al, they really do. There is no Blue Nun on the wine list and there are no prices on the guests' menus. Only the host sees what everything costs and there is probably a nurse hiding behind the pillow rock, ready to resuscitate him.

There was a club employee assigned to make sure our party found its way from the ground floor to the club 36 stories up. I carelessly referred to him as a security guard and he was visibly offended. "I'm a security OFFICER," he explained. I saluted.

But you're as big a fan as I am, Al. You want to know about Kell. He's a nice man who talks more about his 5 grandchildren than he does about baseball. This sold Pat on him, naturally. I was interested in Kell's reaction to the frequently heard criticism – usually from sports writers – that he roots too much for the Tigers while announcing their games on TV.

"I don't make any apology for that. I work for the Detroit Baseball Company, not the TV station, and besides, I live or die with the Tigers. I care whether they win or lose," Kell said. Back home in Arkansas, he admitted, he spends much time fiddling with the radio dial, trying to get the Tigers games on the Detroit station.

"That poor man is as big a Tiger nut as you are," Pat said later. "God help you both."

So anyway, Al, don't accuse me of snubbing celebrities to make myself look cool. It all depends on what game they play. The next meeting of the Tiger nuts will be at my place. I will serve Kell and Campbell Strohs's beer on a pillow.

A night on his own

"Well," I said to my husband as he crawled into bed, "I hope you're satisfied. Your son is gone."

"You act like it was my idea," he said.

"Don't tell me you didn't encourage him to leave."

"All I said was he is old enough to develop some kind of independence.."

"If anything happens to him, let it be on your conscience."

"What kind of crack is that? You went along with it."

"Only because I didn't want him to remember us screaming and shouting at one another. If he just had someone with him..."

"Stop worrying. If everything weren't going well, we'd hear."

"The dog misses his already," I said. "He's in the utility room whining."

"Oh for crying out loud."

"I went by his room tonight. It was so...so picked up. I never knew he had a double bed before."

"Go, to sleep and stop torturing yourself."

"Did you hear something?" I asked bolting upright.

"What did it sound like?" he asked.

"I don't know."

"What do you mean you 'don't know.' Everything has to sound like something for pete's sake."

"If I hear it again, I'll tell you."

"If you don't know what it is, then how will you know when you hear it again?"

"Are you trying to pick a fight with me, because if your conscience is bothering you, take it out on someone else. Admit it! You're worried, aren't you?"

"No."

"You're worried that you sent your son out into a world crawling with murderers, perverts, sex fiends and robbers who would tap you on the head with a tire iron for 35 cents."

"Will you go to sleep?"

"Did you leave the front door open?"

"No."

"I'm going down and open it. Just in case he should come home in the middle of the night. You know how he never carries his keys."

"That tears it," said my husband throwing back the covers and sticking his head out the bedroom window. "Hey Buddy!" he yelled in the darkness. "Everything okay out there?"

A sleepy head poked through the tent flap. "Aw c'mon Dad, you promised you'd let me camp all by myself."

Park land too costly

To the Editor:

Capitalistic morality and social status of free enterprise for individual independence by money power wins again.

Back in 1955 during a capitalistic recession there was a lot of promoting done to help industry get started. One of these was the sale of public land at a give-away price to anyone with a promise to develop and promote employment by free enterprise. There were several such projects. Most of these are of questionable value for the benefit of public welfare.

One such scheme is up at the present time as the proposal by the City of Charlevoix to buy a strip of land to extend the Ferry Avenue park. This is a part of the parcel of land that was traded at a give-away price of $3,000 to be purchased by the city at the highly inflated price of $180,000 with the aid of federal funds. The give-away promise of employment was never fulfilled nor any public benefit derived by this trade on this particular parcel of land. So the city would be buying back its right for public use at a 6,000 percent profit to the present assumed owners.

It may be the Sheik of Arabia is interested in that kind of legalistic robbery. Or is it the American way to allow freedom by unadulterated money power to lump dump all values together as earned income and tax working consumers to pay tribute to the rich and welfare charity to the dispossessed.

Under the name of human rights we have entitled ownership rights that makes it very handy for uncontrolled profiteering. This also makes a mockery of any form of wage scale or living standard.

The honorable Republican city administration willing to get welfare for the rich with federal tax money as long as they can blame the Democrats for spending too much money. The fact that the city should allow itself to be used by capitalistic speculators is questionable and misrepresents the will of the people, the general welfare and the value of public domain.

CARE needs funds

Editor:

On Wednesday, July 26, CARE headquarters in New York received an urgent request from the government of India for aid to the 2,866,000 people left homeless by floods in Uttar Pradesh.

CARE immediately released one and one half million popund of food stockpiled there for child feeding programs. Regional Field Offices were alerted to the emergency. They, in turn sent out a press release to newspapers and contacted local radio and TV stations.

Here the frustration set in. It seems it is non-news when tragedy strikes India. The national wire services gave the story virtually no coverage, thus local media were unaware of the tragedy and its dimensions. Had these floods occured in any other country it would have been headlined.

People get cold, hungry and hurt wherever they are. The people of Uttar Pradesh are cold, hungry and they hurt. They desperately need your help.

Over 7,382 villages have been affected. Damage to crops and property is estimated at $37.5 million. Some 2.3 million acres of cropland has been inundated.

CARE is the only private, volunteer agency on the scene. Blankets, tents, tarpaulins will be forthcoming as the need and funds are forthcoming.

And it is funds that are sorely needed. Please, send as much as you can to CARE 1951 Guardian Bldg. Detroit 48231. Every dollar is multiplied many times over, and our representatives on the scene see that the aid reaches those in need.

United Way says thanks

Editor:

Seasonal residents of the Boyne area are supporting this community year-round through their generous gifts to the Boyne Area United Way Campaign.

Their contributions, in the past, have been the largest of any group of individuals in the area.

Without them, activities of the Little League, Camp Daggett and the Boyne City Swim School would be curtailed.

The Board of Directors of the 1978 United Way Campaign would like to take this opportunity to thank those who spend their vacations in our area. They have helped to brighten the whole year for many of us.

Very truly yours,
Gary Schafer, President
Boyne Area United Way

View from the outside

Editor:

Outsiders view of Venetian Festival. We live outside of Detroit and were invited to see the joy and closeness of not so small of a city.

The parade with God loving singers being part of it, to show praises for the fair weather and all the partisans. The wonderful boats and ships, including "Old Stand By Coast Guards," with all who showed great interest in their display so attractive to all with such beautiful lighting.

Needless to say how much the young and old enjoyed the excellent fireworks display. Voices and horns should have been heard to Ironton and Bay Shore.

Credit to the concessions and business places for holding normal cost of their goods. Not robbing the tourist, so all could enjoy their stay.

Let's not forget those in charge and the workers who cleaned up the city of Charlevoix to retain its beauty. Tourist forget away from home the use of barrels for garbage as they probably do in their towns.

Canada's license plates display, "Keep Canada beautiful."

God willing, hope to see many more festivals.

Yours truly,
Mr. and Mrs. John Hhonnenberg

Transportation hearing set for proposed improvements

A public hearing on nine proposed transportation system improvement plans for the northwest region of Michigan will be held at 8 p.m. Aug. 17 in the Petoskey Middle School.

The hearing is being held to allow the public to discuss the findings of a five-year study of the various transportation needs in the 10-county region surrounding the Charlevoix area.

The study was conducted by the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation in cooperation with the Northwest Regional Planning and Development commission. Representatives of both the highway department and the regional planning commission will be on hand for the hearings.

In the study air, water, bicycle, rail and public transportation as well as the highway systems were evaluated and recommendations were made for major and minor improvements based on three different energy situations and three different projected growths for the 10-county region.

Basic plans for low, medium and high growth in a time of restricted, conserved or abundant energy were developed for the study.

Following the preparation of the nine different plans, the state and regional officials found there were some major and minor improvements that should be made in the area no matter what the growth or the energy situation is. A few of these improvements involve Charlevoix County.

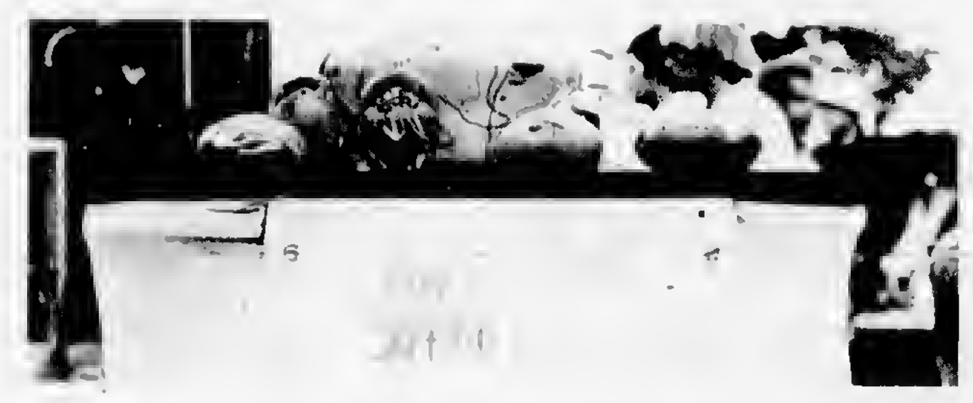
Under major improvements, it was suggested that a regional bus service to connect Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Petoskey be developed and that local bus service within the communities of Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Petoskey be developed.

The officials also recommended that rural bus service in Charlevoix and Emmet counties be set up.

Other recommendations included dredging the Pine River Channel to a depth of 25 feet and promoting integrated tug-barge operations in Charlevoix, Petoskey and Traverse City.

Minor improvements for the Charlevoix area included widening and improving U.S. 31, U.S. 131, M-66 and M-32, but not necessarily constructing a four-lane highway.

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission is studying the proposed plans and planning commission members are expected to attend the public hearing. Other county residents who may wish to review the proposed plans before the public hearing may get copies at the county planning department offices in the county building in Charlevoix.



Many pieces of original art will be on view in East Park.

Art Fair Saturday

The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair promises to be bigger and better than ever this year, according to members of the committee organizing the show.

The art fair will be held from 9 a.m. to dusk Saturday in East Park. This is the 20th year that the show has been held in Charlevoix.

"We have a magnificent mixture of exhibitors for this year's show," Suzi Reis, chariman of the show, said. "We're not overloaded in any one area. It's just going to be great."

One feature of the show this year will be a Frederick Remington painting. The painting, "The Charge of the Ninth Cavalry," depicts the black platoon of soldiers who fought in the Indian wars in the western United States after the Civil War.

The painting is owned by Mrs. C. S. Mott and is on permanent loan to the Flint Institute of Arts which is loaning it to the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair committee for special exhibit this summer. The painting will be displayed on the stage in East Park.

Also featured at the show will be the textile works of Lori Bolt. Ms. Bolt, a student at the Cleveland Art Institute, was named the winner of the annual Waterfront Art Fair Scholarship.

Ms. Bolt is beginning her fourth year of a five-year program in textiles at the art institute. This is the third year in a row that she has received the scholarship.

In addition, the regular exhibits will include: acrylics, water color and oil painting, graphics, drawings, woodworking, pottery, batiks and bronze.

Among the 155 exhibitors at the fair will also be candle makers, butterfly artists, jewelers and glass blowers and those working with leaded glass. A toymaker featuring pine toys will also be participating in the art fair again this year.

Meteors visible Friday

Close encounters of the meteoric kind can be seen by amateur skywatchers Friday night, says Michigan State University astronomer Robert Victor.

Victor says this will be one of the best nights of the year to see meteors.

He adds that up to 60 meteors per hour may be seen in a period two to four hours before sunrise (early Saturday morning).

Although the meteors may be seen anywhere in the sky, the particles will originate from the direction of the constellation, Perseus, in the northeast sky, explains Victor.

Meteors are small pieces of matter which become visible when they enter the earth's atmosphere.

Helpers sought

The Charlevoix County Department of Social Services is looking for people to provide "chore services" for elderly and disabled people so that they may remain in their homes and not be sent off to foster homes or institutions.

Mary Pieh, who is in charge of this Comprehensive Community Care Program, states that the chores might be anything from light cleaning to money management.

"The Department of Social Services is authorized ta pay up to $270 a month to individuals providing chore services," she adds. "Sometimes DSS will pay the entire cost; sometimes they'll pay a portion of it, depending on the income of the person requiring the help."

Social Services now pays approximately 30 people to provide chore services. "Not a week goes by without a new case. We need more people to do the work," Mrs. Pieh urges.

"We're looking for competent, reliable people willing to commit themselves to an individual. But they have to be reliable. We can't use someone who agrees to prepare meals for someone, then goes off for a week to Niagara Falls and leaves the guy hanging."

Anyone interested in providing chore services should call Mr. Pieh at 547-4471.

Bonnie is a well known artist. She has been involved in pottery for 30 years. She studied at the Cranbrook Academy of Art.

Son-Shine in concert

The Son-Shine Singers will present a concert of sacred music and drama at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix on Sunday, Aug. 13, in the 11 a.m. worship service, according to Rev. Walter G. Hastings, pastor.

The Son-Shine Singers are composed of young adults from a four state area and one foreign country. They are just completing an eleven concert tour to the west coast and back, where they attended the International Youth Convention of the Church of God in Seattle, Washington.

Their program consists of special music, handbells, drama, and personal testimony. The eighteen member group is under the direction of Mr. Richard Forsman of Kalamazoo.

The Community Church of God is located at 202 West Hurlbut St., and the public is invited to attend this special service.

Teacher spends summer building solar house

Ken Bartley believes in cement. In fact, he's banking the future of his new home on it.

Bartley, a Charlevoix High School mathematics and science teacher, is in the process of constructing a solar house.

His is not the typical solar house, however. Except for one solar panel, which will be connected to the 80-gallon hot water heater, there will be no solar panels or any of the other paraphernalia that is usually associated with solar energy in the building.

Bartley's house will be a "passive" solar house, which means the energy system is built into the house instead of on it.

The teacher said he settled on plans for a passive solar house because in all of the literature he had read on solar energy systems, the only articles that were consistent were the ones on the passive systems.

In addition to holding bachelors and masters degrees in math and physics and fast closing in on a Ph.D., Bartley is also a licensed builder. Besides his solar house, he has constructed three other homes on Sequanota Road where he lives.

"With an 'active' solar energy system, you have solar panels with air or water running through them to collect the heat which is stored in a system in the basement," Bartley explained. "Then when the sun is gone and you want to use the stored heat you run the water or air through the storage system and it spreads the heat through the house."

In a passive system, all of these components are built into the house, the teacher explained. There are no moving parts in the system.

And that's where the cement comes in. It plays an important part in the storing of heat in the passive solar house.

Bartley has lined the walls of his new home with concrete block and he has filled the cores of the blocks with cement in the belief that it will help the blocks hold even more heat.

The floor of the basement of his two-level home is 8 inches of solid cement, too – twice the thickness of the floor in the basement of a conventional home.

"What I've done is place all of the windows on the south side of the house where there is a clear view and plenty of sun will have a chance to get in," the teacher explained. "The north and west sides of the house have very few windows because that's where the storms come from.

"The windows will let the heat in during the day and the cement will absorb it. You know, like when you leave your car out in the sun with the windows rolled up and everything is hot inside when you get in."

Based on his calculations, Bartley figures that the floor alone should keep the house warm once it is heated up.

"According to my figures, over a 10-hoor period the temperature drop in the cement is only 5 degrees. The floor should be able to keep the house warm and with the block who knows how much heat we'll be able to collect."

Bartley said he has met a lot of Doubting Thomases since he started building his solar house.

"I've had a lot of contractors come out here and look at the house and nod their heads and say, 'But concrete isn't a very good insulator,' I try and explain that I'm not using it as an insulator but as a storage for heat.

"I'm putting insulation on the outside of the concrete block to keep the heat in."

The walls of his home are 14 inches thick including the dry wall, the cement block and 2 inches of solid styrofoam insulation.

But Bartley isn't just relying on the sun and the concrete block to heat his home. He is also planning on installing an oil furnace, a fireplace and a wood cook stove.

If the house gets too cold, the furnace will kick on, and conversely, if the house gets too hot, electric blowers will kick on and draw the excess heat down through pipes onder the basement cement floor where the heat can be absorbed.

Many other features have been designed into the house to compliment the passive solar design. For instance, airlocks have been constructed around the doors to prevent the cold air from coming into the house and the hot air from leaving.

Also a special overhang on the south side of the house of 3½ feet will protect the windows during the summer when the sun is high and will help to keep the house cool – thus no need for air conditioning.

Bartley's new house will have 1,180 squnre feet of living space including three bedrooms, living room, kitchen and bathroom.

Bartley estimates that it has cost him about $3,000 extra for the additional concrete and insulation he has put in his passive solar home.

"Bot when you talk about active systems, you're talking $10 grand," he pointed out.

Do Business Where Business Is Being Done

Meet Charlevoix ...Bill Price

By PEG OHLE

Weldon W. "Bill" Price is one of the many retirees who has recently moved to Charlevoix County and become interested in activities of the area. This week he tells the Courier about some of the things he does in "retirement".

COURIER: Where do you live?

PRICE: On the Lake Charlevoix Farm on the Boyne City Road. We moved here about two and a half years ago from Bloomfield Township. Before I retired I was president of the Wa-Kay Industries, steel processors.

COURIER: Where did you grow up?

Price: In the Birmingham area. I graduated from high school there, then went to the University of Illinois, where I started to study education but transferred to engineering. After graduation I married my high school sweetheart, Ruth Anderson, and joined the Air Corps. I spent four years in the Central Flying Training Command, which was an instruction unit.

COURIER: We know you're interested in the Civil War. How did that come about?

PRICE: Maybe because I was born on Abraham Lincoln's birhtday. Seriously, it was on a trip to Virginia. Ruth attended school at Mary Washington in Fredericksburg and we visited her room mate there. We traveled around the area studying the Civil War markers. I began reading and collecting articles on the subject. When we moved to a new neighborhood I met a friend who was also interested and we started to take vacations to the various battlefields. The wives antiqued and we fought the battles. Later on, my friend and I developed a slide program and presented it in Birmingham schools and to church and club groups. We probably put on 200 performances. The Civil War Centennial came along and I was appointed by the mayor of Birmingham chairman of the Birmingham Civil War Observance Committee. It was an interesting job and for four years we had meetings and encouraged people with artifacts, diaries, books, etc. to share them. We displayed them in store window. Now, I still occasionally make talks about the Civil War.

COURIER: You have several horses at the farm. How did you become interested in horses?

PRICE: It came about through my son's interest. He started working with horses when he was eight years old. When he graduated from high school, he decided he didn't want to go to college, so he went to ferrier school instead. He's been shoeing horses ever since. We have about eight horses altogether now. We recently hosted a Northwest Michigan Horseman's show.

COURIER: You're the new president of the Charlevoix Area Historical Society, too, aren't you?

PRICE: Yes, and being new in the area, I need the help of all the old timers in the area. A great deal of time and effort has been put into the Society and it should grow. We're working on getting a museum, and I think that right now we need a store front or room to start with, a place to put the artifacts we have. We need to get started. I've always enjoyed history and Charlevoix has a beautiful history. I can visualize a beautiful museum. All of the proceeds from the sale of "Bob Miles' Charlevoix – Century in Pictures" go into the museum fund. This book can be bought direct from the Historical Society, from the Literary News Center, and from us here at Lake Charlevoix Farm.

COURIER: What about your work on the Charlevoix Hospital fund drive?

PRICE: I'm working with Bill Kenifeck on the Major Gift Division. I hope people will support the drive. One of the reasons we moved to this area was the medical care available. We were pleased with the facilities at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Bill Price

COURIER: What are your hobbies?

PRICE: I like to sail, but I'm not a racer. However, we do belong to the Charlvoix Yacht Club. I also like woodworking and woring with antiques – refinishing and caning. I'm a hunter and fisherman, but not avid. I used to play golf, but don't have the time for that now.

COURIER: Had you spent time in Charlevoix before moving here?

PRICE: No, we were here only once before, just passing through. When we decided to move north, we started looking in the Leland and Old Mission areas, then came up here to visit friends. We spent a lot of time looking around before decidng on this place. Ruth wanted a barn for an antique shop and this one serves the purpose nicely. We love the swamp and the deer. We have enjoyed our neighbors and our church friends. Old friends who come up to visit love it, too.

COURIER: What members of your family are with you?

PRICE: At the present, all of them. Daughter Cindy, who has been living in Europe, recently returned from Greece where she worked on a ship tour translating the German language. Daughter Sara helps her mother with the antique shop. Son Weldon ("Corky") has his horseshoeing business.

History of Holy Island is closely guarded

One of the little known summer colonies in Charlevoix County is Holy Island, an 11-acre tract of land in the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix about a mile and a half south of Ironton.

There are 13 cottages on the Island, which is connected to the mainland by a short bridge on the west side. The limited development of the Island belies the ambitious plans of the early owners of the land.

As told in "Grand Traverse Region", published in 1884, "(Holy Island) is delightfully located, and in the summer season is a charming retreat for resorters...Its owners, Col. O.F. Wisner of Charlevoix, and Nelson Daniels, of Wacousta, Mich., have during the past year, made great improvements on the island, by way of trimming it up and clearing off the rubbish, so that now it presents a most attractive appearnace.

Wisner and Daniels laid the Island out in lots of sixty feet front "on a line drawn through the center of the Island north and south, a distance of eighty rods...These lots extend back to the water on either side of the island."

The book further states that "Msrs. Wisner and Daniels plan to build a club-house here, they have reserved several lots for that purposes...Several lots have already been purchased, and there is every reason to believe that this will become a popular resort."

Today, the little colony on Holy Island closely guards its privacy, perhaps because of the name of the Island brings many inquiries about its origin, and also because readers of local history know about the Mormon connection with the island.

Charles J. Strang, one-time editor of the Charlevoix Journal, and a son of James J. Strang, the Mormon leader, furnished an account of Holy Island some time before 1884:

"It was set apart by the 'Saints' as a place for holding the 'Feast of the Fruits' in the summer of 1855. At that time it was an isolated spot where the feastings and revelries could go on undisturbed by Gentile settlers. These feats commenced on the first Sabbath after the full moon in August each year and generally continued several days. One of the principal articles of food was a roast ox or other animal large enough to feed the multitude assembled.

"Strang had explored the Pine Lake (Lake Charlevoix) region, and his reports to the Northern Islander, the official Mormon newspaper on Beaver Island, gave the place great value in the eyes of the Saints, and Holy Island was to become sacred, and devoted only to the worship of God. There was and evident intention to make it the future headquarters of a colonty of Saints to be established on Pine Lake."

But it wasn't long after this that the entire kingdom of the Mormons in Northern Michigan collapsed.

Marriages

Marciniak-Peters

Arrangements of garden flowers graced the altar of St. Mary's church Saturday morning for the wedding of Sharon Marciniak and Andrew Peters.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Marciniak of Milford and the late Mr. Marciniak. Mr. and Mrs. Willis Peters are the parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. E. Francis Denay of St. Joseph's Church, Mapleton, former pastor here, officiated at the double ring service during the Nuptial Mass in the presence of more than 100 guests.

Given in marriage by Kenneth Roberts of Baldwin, the bride wore a gown of white sheer polyester for her wedding. Fashioned with a scoop neckline, long sleeves and fitted bodice, the gown featured on A-Line skirt. Made by the bridegrooms mother, it was trimmed with seedpearls and Alencon lace medallions. An alencon lace cape that ended in a chapel length train completed her ensemble. A band of white silk flowers secured her fingertip veil of bridal illusion. She carried an arrangement of garden flowers.

Georgia Nelson of Holly served as her maid of honor. She wore an apple green A-line gown of polyester and carried a bouquet of garden flowers.

Larry McKillip of Petoskey assisted his brother-in-law as best man. Timothy Day of Appleton, Wis., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Charles Marciniak of Hamtramck, brother of the bride, seated the guests.

An afternoon garden reception followed at the country home of the bride's parents.

After a wedding trip to Michigan's Upper Peninsula, the couple has returned to live at 407½ E. Dixon Ave.

The bride is the juvenile officer with the Charlevoix County Probate Court office. The bridegroom is a special education teacher in the East Jordan School System.

A rehearsal dinner on Friday evening was hosted by the bridegrooms' parents at their home.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by Jack & Leah Urban, Reg. Pharmacists

Every individual responds to his environment as a whole. Scientific evidence points to the fact that we live as a total being. We are made up of cells, organs, and systems, but they are so interrelated and integrated that we function as a complete unit. That which affects one part brings about changes in others. In fact, the concept of psychosomatic medicine is based on the belief that in this unity of the organism, man. According to one authority, "It is simply an approach to a sick patient as a whole person rather than one with a localized disease."

Batter Up!!!

The batter saunters up to homeplate. He tips back his hat and eyes the pitcher and the rest of his opponents while thoughtfully chewing his bubble gum.

Slowly he lifts his bat and takes a healthy swing at the ball He has a hit! And so does the next player and the next.

It's a common scene at the T-ball games in Charlevoix. Every six, seven or eight-year-old player gets a hit every time he or she is at bat.

The game is designed that way.

T-ball, which is played every Monday and Thursday at the city ballfields on Carpenter Avenue, is a type of softball modified for beginners. The teams are composed of 15 members, more or less, with a mixture of boys and girls.

No strike outs occur in the game. The ball is not pitched to the batters, but instead is placed at the top of a fluorescent orange highway marker cone. The batters swing at the ball until they have a fair hit.

After three outs, which are made by the players in the conventional way, or once a team gets five runs, then the teams switch field position.

Everyone bats and everyone gets out in the field. The minimum number of fielders are allowed in the infield with the pitcher playing in a designated area so that he or she can't monopolize all of the plays. The rest of the players cover the outfield.

After five innings the game is over.

The game is as much a learning tool as it is sport, according to Dwight "Ike" Boss, Charlevoix recreation director. The game is a way for youngsters to learn the fundamentals of softball without the pressures of competition.

And it works, too, Roy Fortin, five times a T-ball team coach, said.

"It's a great way for the kids to learn the fundamentals," Fortin states. "We've had kids start out the season by hitting the ball and then running to third base instead of first.

"They learn a lot about softball and a little about competition. They know they're playing against each other and it's just to get a hit and run.

"But they don't really keep track of it while they're playing, they just enjoy the game. After almost every game I have kids coming up to me wondering who won."

The children's enthusiasm for the game is unequaled. They're always showing off their team shirts and hats, Boss said.

Do they ever forget their uniforms?

"Are you kidding?" Boss asked incredulously. "I have parents calling me all the time asking me how to get the shirts off the kids. They wear them all the time.

"They can't get the hats off of them either."

Boss said the children's enthusiasm is passed on to the parents, too.

"The turnout for these games is unbelievable," he said. "Families, friends, parents all come out for the games. We have bigger collections at these games than we do at the slo-pitch or Peanut and Ponytail leagues."

Boss said 120 kids are playing on eight teams in the T-ball League this year.

"We would have had more than that, but the eight-year-old boys are allowed to play on teams in the other leagues this year," the recreation director said.

Boss said T-ball has its roots in the administration of rec director Dean Davenport who introduced the game to Charlevoix in 1965. Davenport had read about the game being played in California and thought it would be a good thing to try here. Since then it has been modified to fit Charlevoix and to meet the needs of the children.

"If it wasn't for the dedication of the parents and others who volunteer to help with the program, it wouldn't be the success it is," Boss said.

In addition to the parents and other volunteers who are the coaches for the teams, the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club and the United Way of Charlevoix also support the program with contributions.

And while T-ball is a nice community activity, it's even more than that to the players.

"It's fun," one team member declared.

Cinnamon listed as top candidate at Williams

Kip Cinnomon

A Charlevoix athlete has been listed as one of the prospects for the 1978 Williams College football team.

Williams head football coach Bob Odell listed Kip Cinnamon, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. L. Perry Manning of Charlevoix, as a top prospect for the team.

"We were very impressed with Cinnamon on film," Coach Odell said. "He's a very active football player who has a nose for the ball and is very aggressive in finding it. We understand he has played several offensive and defensive positions and we feel our pleasant problem will be to decide where to put him.

"We're very happy to have a boy of Kip's ealiber joining our program."

Cinnamon played either offensive tackle or guard or defensive tackle or end on Coach Don Carey's squad at Charlevoix High School. Cinnamon was co-captain of the football team last year and made the all-league team.

Williams finished the 1977 football season with 5-3 record. The team also won the Little Tree championship between Williams, Wesleyan and Amherst for the sixth time in the past seven years.

Ellsworth plans eight contest of skill and endurance Saturday

Teams from Charlevoix, Central Lake, and Ellsworth will meet on the playing field of the Wooden Shoe Park in Ellsworth on Saturday, August 12 at noon to engage in eight contests of skill and endurance.

The contests, sponsored by the Ellsworth Chamber of Commerce, will involve a boat race down the channel, a sack race, a slide down a slide and catch a water balloon race, a swing and hand a cup of water forward to fill a jug race, a chicken race with wiffle balls in place of eggs, a blindfolded golf cart race, a bicycle-basketball race, and an obstacle course race.

Tems will be made up of three women and three men over 25 years of age. As each game is played, the first second, and third place winners receive various point scores which are totaled up at the end of the day to determine the overall team winner.

The prize for all this athletic ability is a cup which will be kept by the winning team until next year. Last year, it was won by Ellsworth. Also, each member of the team receives a gold, silver, or bronze medal for first, second or third place, depending on the status of their team.

Throughout the afternoon, a chicken barbecue with homemade potato slalad, baked beans, and a beverage will be available. There will also be home made pie and cake to eat on the spot or take home.

Another feature of the afternoon will be the Ellsworth Dunking Machine, with which participants will have an opportunity to throw a ball, hit a target, and dump a friend into the water.

Ellsworth merchants have contributed prizes for a day-long raffle, for which tickets will be available at a nominal price.

Bugs thick this year

Most Charlevoix County residents have been bugged all summer – by a variety of insects.

Grasshoppers, army worms, and mosquitoes have been the biggest culprits in the county according to Ed Rebman, Charlevoix County extension agent.

Isolated outbreaks of grasshoppers have alfalfa fields literally jumping with bugs in the eastern end of the county. In fact, in one field, the grasshoppers were so thick, they even ate the binder twine off the baled hay, Rebman said.

Army worms have also been marching across some of the fields in the country. In the central parts of the county, 25 out of 25 acres of corn were completely lost to the bugs.

"But the infestation has been spotty," Rebman said. "Those fields that are trashy with grass and sod are having the worst problems.

"Those that have been sprayed clean of weeds and grass have reported very few bug problems."

The county extension agent said there have been no reports of cereal leaf beetles, which was the major bug problem for farmers in the area last year. In cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Rebman helped plant parasitized beetles in the fields where the normal beetles were.

In a type of biological warfare, the parasite would feed on the larva from the eggs of the normal beetles and end the life cycle of the pests.

"I was planning to collect samples of the bugs this year to see send down to Michigan State University for examination to see if the plan worked, but I couldn't find any," Rebman said. "We just didn't have any cereal leaf beetles this year."

As far as mosquitoes are concerned, this has just been a normal year for them. Spring was wet this year instead of dry like it has been for the last two years and that gave the insects a chance to breed at their normal rate.

And You'll Know You've Found The Petoskey Shopping Area More Reminiscent Of Earlier Days, More Creative And Nostalgic Than Any Place You've Ever Been.

Petoskey, Michigan

Little Traverse Bay has quiet beauty and unforgettable charm When the setting sun spreads its radiance over the waters, it is indeed lovely from the vantage point of the limestone cliff on which the city of Petoskey now stands, the setting sun provides a spectacular show The Indians created a legend about it Since the first settlers and sightseers arrived over one hundred years ago, the beauty of the sunset has been a thing of wonder and awe to all

Very few white people had seen a sunset over Little Traverse Bay on that late fall day in 1863, when the first train whistled to a stop at the end of its line

On board was a reporter for a Grand Rapids newspaper, who in reporting on the wilderness scenery, dubbed it Petoskey's Million Dollar Sunset

The metamorphosis of Petoskey was rapid It grew from a small Indian settlement at the mouth of Bear river, to a dynamic, busy village catering to the needs of sightseers and homesteaders To house the visitors, the Arlington and other luxury hotels were constructed overnight Rooming houses for the less affluent were soon to follow

By 1890 a substantial number of shops had sprung up along the main street, creating a very unique pioneer shopping area Along the Bear River waterpower was harnessed to run sawmills flour mills, hardwood flooring industries, butter bowl factories, and furniture-making industries. The limestone cliffs along Little Traverse Bay provided Petoskey with lime, a natural resource of great importance to the industrial development of the town.

Little steamers plied the Bay, and the summer visitors who registered at Petoskey hotels and rooming houses took advantage of the many excursions offered The most popular trip was the Circular or Inland Route This lengthy excursion took the traveler up the coastline of Little Traverse Bay into Lake Michigan, around to Mackinac Island, on to Cheboygan and then down the chain of rivers and lakes to what is now Conway Until the quaint little dummy trains were in operation, the excursionists were jolted back to Petoskey from Conway by wagon and team

In 1880 the system was in full operation and trips were being made every fifteen minutes By 1905 two trains ran from Petoskey to Harbor Springs at half hour intervals Many of the people who had come to see the area on the train liked what they saw and became regular summer visitors By the 1900's the shift from tourism to settled summer communities was in motion Many resorts developed around the Bay and inland lakes of the area The new-fangled summer resorters spelled the doom of the delightful little streamers on the Bay, the little dummy trains, and the luxury hotels Many of the hotels burned and were not rebuilt, the dummy engines were sold for scrap, and the steamers sailed off over the horizon

Although the modes of transportation have seen drastic change, Petoskey's magnetism remains There is still an element of charm and friendliness in shopping adventure which belongs uniquely to Petoskeys Gaslight District. One may still marvel at the beauty of Little Traverse Bay and experience the wonder of the Million Dollar Sunset

Atwood home of famous people and world renown landmarks

Frank Supernaw

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the sixth in a series of stories about small communities in the Charlevoix area. East Jordan, Horton Bay, Norwood, Ironton and Bay Shore were discussed in previous stories.

Just 12 miles down U.S. 31 lies the remarkable little town of Atwood.

Atwood is remarkable because for such a little community, with a rather nondescript beginning, it has become the home of famous people and world renown landmarks.

According to Charlevoix resident Frank Supernaw, who was born and raised in the tiny village, Atwood got its start as a bedroom community.

"There was no real reason to go to Atwood and there really wasn't any way to get there," Supernaw explained. "If you came by boat, you landed in Norwood. And most people stayed there because that was where the work was.

"There weren't any businesses to speak of in Atwood when I lived there," the soon to be 90-year-old said. "Most of the people in town either farmed or worked in Norwood where the mills were."

Supernaw said his parents came to Norwood from upstate New York in 1897. They arrived by boat and settled in the port. Shortly after that, Supernaw's father purchased 80 acres of land in Atwood from the railroad company.

"At that time there were a lot of Methodists and English people living in the area," Supernaw recalled "They were mostly farmers."

The Charlevoix resident said that everyone farmed– even Atwood's doctor.

"My dad used to tell a story about a time when he had to see the doctor," Supernaw said settling in his chair in preparation for the story "My dad had a toothache and he went to see the doctor His wife answered the door and said that my dad couldn't see the doctor because he was out in the field.

"Well, dad felt so sick that he told the wife to give him the doctor's instruments and then he took them out in the field and had the doctor pull his tooth right there."

Supernaw said his parents raised crops and had a few cows, too. His mother would make butter and then take it down to Norwood to trade for goods at the large company store.

"Oh, there was a small store in Atwood and we would go there for certain things," Supernaw recalled. "But there was a much better selection in Norwood."

After the lumbering era died out and Norwood died with it, Atwood's trade center became Ellsworth.

"I did most of my trading in Ellsworth when I was farming," the old timer explained.

Supernaw attended school in Atwood in a two-room school that has now been remodeled into a home. He also remembered voting in the old town hall and attending socials there.

In addition to the English who settled in the area, Atwood also has a Dutch influence. Supernaw guessed that the Dutch began settling in the area in 1895. They also were farmers and a few, like the Kloosters, opened up somme new businesses in the area.

It was the Dutch who helped to put Atwood on the map in recent years. The tiny town–population 65 at last count–is the home of the even tinier Wayside Chapel, which, by all accounts, is the second smallest church in the world.

The church was built in 1968 by the congregation of the Atwood Christian Church to provide travelers a place to pause, rest and meditate before continuing on their way

The building occupies a space on U.S. 31 and measures 12 feet long and 8 feet wide. It has a hand carved pulpit and four oaken pews.

The church occupies a space in the Guiness World Book of Records as well.

Atwood is also the birth place of author Rex Ellington Beach. The famous author was born in the small community 101 years ago, in a homestead on what is now known as Rex Beach Road.

Beach wrote some 30-odd novels, 25 of which were made into movies during the silent film era. His first big novel, 'The Spoilers,' was filmed four times.

You've come a long way Atwood since your first days.

Health Department gets specialist

The District Health Department now has a Substance Abuse Prevention Specialist.

Robert Sell II, who lives in Charlevoix with his family, is working in Substance Abuse education programs for teachers, clergy, and other interested individuals in Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. He is also working with parenting groups.

Sell may be reached for consultation by calling The Counseling Place, District Health Department, at 347-3928.

Dairy Goat Club to organize Thursday

A new 4-H Dairy Goat Club will be forming in Charlevoix County under the direction of Joan Sorenson of Boyne City.

An organizational meeting will be held 7:30 p.m. Aug. 10 at the old North Bay School on Church Road in Bay Township.

Mrs. Sorenson said the club was being started because dairy goats, once looked down upon, are now gaining favor as very desirable animals for small farms and homesteads. A goat's feed consumption is much less than that of a cow and yet goats can still provide enough milk for the average family.

The club will meet monthly to study goat selection, breeding, feeding and management and milking.

Students interested in joining the club should be 9-18 years old and don't have to have their own goat to be in the club.

Parents are asked to accompany children to the first meeting. Adults who wish to help or who are interested in starting other goat clubs are urged to attend.

Those wishing more information should contact Mrs. Sorenson at 582-6898 or Bob Bellairs, 4-H program assistant, 582-6232.

Area's swans cited

Rare mute swans, seen on the Jordan River near East Jordan and scattered lakes near the top of the Lower Peninsula, are pictured and described in the August Michigan Living-AAA Motor News magazine, reports Automobile Club of Michigan Traverse City-area manager Fred Doelker.

"In 1919, George Douglas imported a pair of mute swans for his estate in Iowa and later moved them to his vacation home on Lake Charlevoix," an article entitled, "Majesty of the Mute Swans of Michigan" points out.

After some 20 years, the flock grew to 50 birds and moved to the mouth of the Jordan River, the publication notes. By 1947, the swans appeared at Traverse City where the largest concentration still exists.

Roloff and Duerr direct divisions of campaign

Shirley Roloff and Charles Duerr

Shirley Roloff and Charles Duerr are directing the Charlevoix Area Hospital's Fund Raising Campaign's Special and Ge··ral Gifts Division, respectively.

Mrs. Roluff and Duerr have volunteered to direct these two divisions of the Charlevoix Area Hospital's campaign to raise $750,000 toward the hospital's $2.1 million Expansion and Renovation Project.

Mrs. Roloff, who will direct the Special Gifts Oivision, moved to Charlevoix four years ago. She has received several honors for her active participation in community affairs. The Charlevoix-Emmet Bar Association presented her with the Liberty Bell Award for 1978 for her work with senior citizen housing, and the Charlevoix County Oepartment of Social Services honored her for her volunteer work with the elderly. She is also active with the American Cancer Society, Vice President of the Charlevoix Parent-Teacher Council, and a volunteer with the Northern Michigan Legal Aid Society.

Duerr, who has lived in Charlevoix since 1940, will nversee the activities of some 187 volunteers in the General Gifts Divisions of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Raising Campaign. He is experienced in this type activity as until his retirement in 1977 he was a Field Representative for the United Way of Michigan. He also served the United Way of Michigan as a statistician. From 1975 to 1978 Duerr served on the Charlevoix Charter Commission.

The Special Gift Division, which Mrs. Roloff will direct, is a committee witb 75 volunteers from around Charlvoix. Four divison leaders will assist Mrs. Roloff, they are: Marilyn Izor, D.J. Sell, Chuck Center and Bill Carey.

The volunteers on the Special Gifts Committee will be discussing the Charlevoix Area Hospital's needs and plans with people who are hoped can donate from $500 to $2,500 to the campaign.

Duerr's committee of 187 volunteers has six division leaders: Mrs. Vincent Chew, Mrs. Oren Sehroeder, Mrs. Darrell Dinwiddie, Gordon VanWieren, James T. McKinney and Michael J. Bonello. Each of these division leaders will enlist five captains and each of the five captains will enlist five workers, who each in turn, will see from five to seven more people. The General Gifts Division workers will be called on citizens to donate up to $500 to the hospital's project.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Expansion and Renovntion Project is directed at such out-patient departments as Xray, laboratory, respiratory, respiratery therapy, physical therapy, and emergency room, where the hospital has experienced up to 200 percent increases in patient use. These departments, which were more than adequate 20 years ago, when the present facility was constructed, are now overcrowded.

Today's trends in medicine call for more treatment of patients as out-patients rather than admitting them to the hospital. Thus, while the hospital has an adequate number of beds, the vital ancillary services such as lab, Xray and emergency room must be expanded.

The hospital's plans, which will see the expansion of those departments, but no addition of beds, can be viewed at Charlevoix Area Hospital Campaign Office, at 101 West Hurlbut No. 4, (in the same building as the Secretary of State's Office).

MSU increases tuition

Charlevoix area students attending Michigan State University this fall had better fatten up their pocketbooks before going to East Lansing.

The Michigan State Board of Trustees has raised tuition "te meet rising costs and te develop a balanced, realistic budget."

The fee hike was necessary, said MSU President Edgar Harden, in spite of a legislative appropriation which he termed "one of the most generous in years."

Beginning fall term, freshmen and sophomore students who are Michigan residents will pay a tetal of $1,096.50 for the year, based on an average class load of 45 credits.

Upper division undergraduates will pay $1,188.50 for the year, if Michigan residents.

Resident graduate students will be paying $29.50 per credit hour.

For the first time, the fee structure includes a separate $18 per term fee for health services in keeping with a legislative recommendation that student health service be self-supporting.

"This separately identified fee," noted Presidet Harden, "does not represent an increase in total fees charged to students. Rather, it is a machanism to permit separate accounting of health center revenues and expenditures."

U.S. daily newspapers published an average 68 pages in each issue in 1978. Morning newspapers averaged 59 pages, afternoen newspapers averaged 52 pages and Sunday newspapers averaged 177 pages.

New application policy for GI loans

The salary of the husband or wife of a veteran may now be considered in making application for GI home loans.

The Veterans Administration considers the full combined income of both the veteran and spouse when the income of the veteran alone is not sufficient to qualify for the amount of the loan.

Ron Geer of the Charlevoix County Office of Veterans Affairs reports that the same standards applied to the income of the veteran are applied to that of the spouse.

Complete information on GI loans can be obtained from Geer at the Veterans Affairs office in the County Building on Tuesdays and Fridays.

Parent aides sought by Social Services

The Charlevoix County Department of Social Services is reeruiting ten people to act as Parent Aides in their Child Abuse program.

"With this program, we are looking for adults who want to become familiar, on a helping basis, with the overall problem of child abuse," says Suzanne Wickert, coordinator of the program.

"We want people who will be able to work on a one-to-one ratio with a parent on a fairly regular and continuing basis," Ms. Wickert goes on to explain.

"The aid will hopefully become a loving friend to the parent; a resource, always available when loneliness, the stress or the crisis is about to overwhelm the parent. The utilization of Parent Aides is an integral part of our treatment process."

Parent Aides will be trained for the job and will be reimbursed for all out-of-pocket expenses. The serious need for these volunteers is underlined by the fact that the Department averages eight child abuse referrals a month and has ongoing caseload of 20 families per month.

Anoyone who is interested in obtaining more information about the program is encouraged to call Ms. Wickert at 547-4471, or drop in at the Department of Social Services, across from Kit Carson Lumber Company on M-66 Highway in Charlevoix.

Hospital forms bureau to present future plans

Charlevoix Area Hospital has announced the formation of a Speakers' Bureau in connection with their fund raising campaign for the Expansion and Renovation Project.

The Speakers Bureau's membership consists of volunteers from the Charlevoix Area Hospital medical staff, hospital employees and citizens who are enthusiastic about the hospital's plans for the future. Individuals from the Speakers Bureau will meet with any interested civic organization or other groups to explain the hospital's plans.

Marcia Trimper, coordinator for the Speakers Bureau, explained, "We will talk to any group in the north Antrim County, Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan areas, who wish to know about the hospital's expansion and renovation plans.

"We will try to inform people just what is going on at the hospital – what the plans are, what the needs are and what the hospital hopes to achieve."

Mrs. Trimper said there is a 15 minute slide show which speakers use to illustrate their talk, showing the departments which will be expanded and the crowded conditions which presently exist making the hospital's expansion necessary.

Among the volunteer speakers are members of the hospital's medical staff, Administrator Richard Kuueger, Hospital Patient Representative Camille Greene, and several area citizens who support the project.

Groups, large or small, formal or informal, who would like to arrange for a speaker may call the Charlevoix Area Hospital Campaign Office - 547-6591.

The Michigan Income Tax Law allows certain homeowners to claim a deferment on their Summer Taxes.

A person who is a Paraplegic, Quadriplegic, Senior Citizen, Eligible Veteran, Eligible Widow, or Blind, and who for the prior taxable year had a total household income of $10,000 or less, may, between June 1 and the time the tax would otherwise become subject to a penalty for late payment, defer the Summer Taxes until the following February 15, by filing with the Treasurer an intent to defer the Homestead Property Taxes which are due and payable in July without penalty or interest.

Applications are now available at the City Treasurer's Office which must be filed before September 15, 1978 to allow deferment until February 15, 1979.

FAITH SHOWS THE FALSE PREMISE OF THE "NEW MORALITY"

The so-called "naw morality" we haar so much about these days is neither new nor moral, bacause its activities have been practicad and condemned since the dawn of history; and yat it appears to bo gaining an incroasing acceptance among the very people who would have been outragod at the idea only a faw years ago. Nevertheless, undoi the guisa of personal liberty these destructive habits bind us instead with the chains of a self-imposed slavery and demonstrate a total lack of respect for our minds and bodies by subjecting tham to proven hoalth hazards. It is not too lata to learn that those rules of conduct set forth in the Bibla were pretty good ones alter all, and that those who lollow them and go to Church regularly are always ahead in the long run.

—Ephesians 5:11

Vice is a monster of so frightful mien,
As to be hated needs but to be seen;
Yet seen to oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace.
—Alexander Pope

Ironton Ferry sets record on re-opening

The Ironton Ferry continued to set records last week.

After setting a record for the longest time out of operation, the ferry then captured the title for the most cars carried across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix in one eight-hour period.

The Ironton Ferry upened for business at 11:30 a.m. Saturday and from 2-10 p.m. carried 300 cars across the lake, according to Dick Stangis, road commission employee supervising the operation of the car ferry.

Until two weeks ago, the ferry had been in Traverse City. It was taken out of service last fall and towed down Lake Michigan for the U.S. Coast Guard five-year marine inspection and fur the installation of a new engine.

It was due back in Ironton in April in time to begin operation for the regular season. But due to nondelivery of parts, work on the ferry was delayed three months.

Once the repair work was completed, bad weather continued to hold up the ferry's return to Charlevoix County. After it got to Irunton July 27, the ferry was in operation for only three hours before it broke down again.

A busted outboard shaft put the ferry out of operation for another 10 days and left area residents and tourists, who normally depend on the ferry as a time-saver and shortcut when traveling across the county, fuming.

So, it didn't take long for the word to get around Saturday that the ferry was open for business.

"It was amazing," Stangis said. "We didn't want to put it on the radio that we were open like we did the last time, in case the ferry broke down again. So all we did was take the gates down.

"And we ended up carrying more people than ususal. We were busy all day long."

Things ran pretty smoothly until Sunday afternoon, when one of the motors for the ramps connecting the ferry with the shore burned out.

"We kept the ferry operating while we fixed the motor," Strangis said. "There wasn't any interruption in service. The ramps was just a little crooked.

"We've never had one of those motors burn out before. We had checked everything out while we were waiting for the ferry to return and it looked fine then."

Stangis said the ferry is running very well and he is pleased with the work that Wyskochil Marine Service did on the installation and adaptation of the motor.

"He (Ken Wyskochil) really did a good job on the wurk he did," Stangis said. "The ferry is running beautifully."

Ben Evans, one of the three ferry operators, said he had received a lot of positive comments from ferry riders.

"They're glad that it's finally going," Evans said. "A lot of them miss the chug-a-lug of the old engine, but then they complained about it when we had it, too."

Stangis said some people also commented that they thought the ferry was running slower than it used to.

"I don't think it does, but we aren't running it at full throttle right now because we want to break the engine in," he explained.

Another difference in the ferry operation is the lack of soot. The new engine doesn't spew the soot that old one did, Stangis said.

The ferry will also have a new price this year. It will cost users 75 cents a trip this year.

The Irontan Ferry is back at work.

Mardy Medders - a bundle of energy

"Let Me Entertain You," could be the theme song for Mardy Medders, the one-woman act currently appearing at the Grey Gables dinner theater.

Ms. Medders is bursting with energy and enthusiasm that she wants to turn into entertainments. And when she performs the audience is treated to a wide range of vocal talent, running from jazz to opera, as well as a little comedy, a little drama and a little dance.

Although her show varies from performance to performance, Ms. Medders started out with a collection of 45 songs of leading ladies in Broadway hits.

"I tried to provide something for everyone," Ms. Medders explained about the design of her show. "There's some light stuff and some heavier things and some songs for audience participation.

"I have a good time with the show altering my voice to fit the texture and mood of each song."

She also brings along a coat tree full of props to help set the mood for each set of songs.

Accompanying Ms. Medders is the very talented Jim Wilhelmsen, whose understanding of the value of a good accompaniest shows in the way he helps Ms. Medders move from song to song smoothly without taking over the act.

Wilhelmsen is a fellow at the University of Michigan where he is studying accompaniment. He is a joy to listen to by himself, but he never overpowers the act.

In addition to performing at the dinner theater, Ms. Medders has also been involved in arranging the dinner theater program throughout the summer season.

"Dave Phillips originally just wanted me to perform, but I was tied up with other things and couldn't get up here until later, so I said I would coordinate the program, too," Ms. Medders explained. "I started my own production company (MM Productions & Services, Inc.) in Ann Arbor and started dinner theater at the Campus Inn and since then I've sort of developed into a mini-talent agency.

"I had a week to get everything organized after David called me, but I know a lot of people in Ann Arbor and they were interested in coming up and helping out, so it turned out."

Ms. Medders said she is torn between performing and producing.

"There's great satisfaction in performing, but it's fun to organize too," the performer-producer explained. "It takes a lot of creativity to put a show together. There's a lot of spontenaity and a lot of decisions to be made in the production end of a show."

Besides producing the dinner theater program at the Grey Gables this summer, Ms. Medders has also been directing a children's performance of "Winnie the Pooh" in Ann Arbor.

"I got my start in "Winnie the Pooh," she recalled. "It's been fun to now direct it after acting in it as a child."

Ms. Medders, who holds a bachelors and masters degree in music from the University of Michigan, has been an instructor there for the last three years. She taught communications, directed the orchestra, and served as guest artist in residnece for the university's professional theater group.

She has performed in university productions and on the night club circuit, all of which she enjoys. After all she wants to entertain – either through coordinating the act or doing it herself.

"I have all this energy," she said laughing. "I just try to channel it into something constructive. And this is where I ended up."

Commission tacks special conditions onto Medusa's installation permit

The Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission Monday night added several amendments to the Medusa Cement Company's permit of installation.

The amendments were added to the special conditions segment of the permit. The additions include:

"Medusa shall not operate facility unless opacity monitoring instrument(s) are installed on the kiln and preheater exhaust stacks. A report on occurrences and conditions responsible for opacities in excess of the allowable limits of 20 percent shall be submitted, in writing, to the District Engineer on a monthly basis."

"Medusa shall not operate facility unless a Malfunction Abatement Plan to prevent, detect and correct malfunctions or equipment failures resulting in emissions exceeding any applicable emission limitation has been submitted to and approved, in writing, by the commissioner or its authorized representative."

"Medusa shall not operate facility unless a program for maintaining aggressive yard maintenance and roadway stabilization to minimize wind borne dust emissions has been submitted, in wiriting, and approved by the District Engineer."

"All boat material transfer operations are to be carried out in a manner to prevent re-entrained fugitive dust emissions by means of pressure alleviation system(s) controlled by dust collection equipment."

"Medusa shall not operate facility unless a Total Reduced Sulfur (TRS) analyzer is installed on the kiln exhaust stack. Data from this monitor shall be maintained at the plant and available for inspection by the staff upon request.

Medusa officials present at last night's hearing in Traverse City said they could abide by the additions.

Medusa announced its plans to expand and increase production and to convert its plant from a wet to dry process several months ago. The Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission approved the company's application for that project in February.

Since then, a local citizen's group – Committee for Preservation of the Environment, Inc. – has filed suit against Medusa for attempting to halt plant expansion because of air pollution and other environmental concerns. The group is requesting an environmental impact study be conducted before Medusa goes much farther in its $50 million expansion renovation project.

After reviewing the complaints from area residents, staff members of the Air Quality Division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources conducted an investigation and found some air pollution problems. They were:

"Excessive emissions from the kiln exhaust due to abnormal conditions or breakdowns in the ESP. The ESP is also de-energized for several hours during a start-up of the kiln, during which time the emissions are very excessive. In April 1978 the company engaged contractors to replace wires and plates in one section of the kiln's ESP. However, operational problems still persist and the kiln particulate control is judged in marginal compliance."

"Excessive fugitive dust from in-plant vehicular operations. This has been a particularly dry season and the company has only recently controlled the yard dust emissions through applications of chloride. Additional control through more frequent water spraying is necessary."

"Excessive fugitive dust emissions from the kiln feed end, finish grind building, and clinker transfer system. Observations indicate there is apparently a "systematic" dust problem at the feed end of the kiln. A program must be developed to control these emissions."

"Dust generated during the boat loading operation."

"A "combustion-like" odor, apparently from the kiln exhaust, detectable several miles downwind of the plant. While the exact quantity of the odor emissions is not known, it is believed that the new process will reduce the potential odor emission."

The staff reported that Medusa's proposed process change and "expansion "will not cause substantial impact on maintaining air quality standards nor cause substantial deterioration of air quality." But the staff said emissions must be controlled which is why the additions to the special conditions were recommended.

MEDUSA HAS STARTED a revegetation program on an abandoned quarry on its Charlevoix property. The planting of trees (plus hydroseeding) should help control dust, officials say.

FISH PROBLEM

Regarding the problem with the Indian netting fish in this area: While I find it incredible that we are all suffering with treaty provisions with a segment of our citizenry, namely the Indians, one factor of this problem goes unnoticed. (The Indians should have refused citizenship if they wanted treaty protection, it can't be both ways.) What I am concerned with is the fact that the equipment the Indians are using to fish has already been paid for by the DNR when it reimbursed the White Commercial Fisherman for their gear when gill-netting was outlawed. Instead of taking possession of the gear when they purchased it with our tax money, they just allowed the fishermen to keep it, and thereby it was available for the bad situation we are experiencing now. Some of the local Gill-netters, (ex-commercial) now have a ready supply of fish purchased from the Indians for somewhere around .50 cents per pound, and after dressing them out, are selling retail for upwards of $3.25 per lb. Without these outlets for the Indian caught fish, this problem would not amount to much. Incidentally, the original treaty without a doubt didn't anticipate a commercial operation, rather it was a device to allow the Indians to fish for their families food supply. Meanwhile, all of the public indignation seems to be directed to the Indians only, when I believe a fair share should be born by the Whites who are aggravating the situation, and at the same time are ripping off a better margin than when they were active legal gill netters.

THE BEAUTIFUL?

What a sight for sore eyes to see the beautiful flowers in front of business establishments. I think that we are finally beginning to realize how vital "the beautiful" part of Charlevoix's official title is to both our aesthetic and economic well being. Someday I hope that businesses will stop relying on psychedelic pennants and gaudy plastic signs in this charming town.

WHERE DO I GET PERMIT?

I am a Charlevoix business man. My place of business is not on Bridge Street. I would like very much to have a display in the park on sidewalk days. If Kit Carson Lumber can do it then it is only fair to other businesses off Bridge Street to be allowed the same advantage. Can you tell me where I go to get a permit to display my wares in the park? Let us, right now at the beginning, stop merchants from hawking their wares in the park on sidewalk days.

COURSE IN BAD SHAPE

I am a summer resident and I play golf and always have at the Charlevoix Municipal Course. In all the years I have played on the course I have never seen it in as bad shape as it is in right now. The bunkers are scalped. Whoever is running the mowers ought to be taught now.

DOGS ON NORTH SIDE

Beware, the brothers of the wild dog on the southeast side of town are on the north side.

We were out riding in our car when we saw this little dog being attacked by some big black shaggy dog. Dragging it around the little one yipping.

Where were the people that left the female dog tied out when in heat to defend itself? And these dogs that just run loose and wait for their turn. I called the Sheriff but the dog catcher wasn't working at the time. Charlevoix County is just too big for one animal control officer. We need one or two more to patrol week days-evenings and weekends.

But then again try catching a male dog when he's got that on his mind and afterwards why should he stick around when he got what he wanted.

If I was the Wells and that was my dog, the male dog would of had a baseball bat right between his ears.

DIAPER SERVICE NEEDED

In view of the recent baby boom, Charlevoix could use a pick-up and delivery diaper service. There is none in this area.

GARDEN DESTROYED

Do you remember the struggle we had in getting our gardens started? There was a lot of time and money invested. Fun, too. Not so much fun as going to my tiny plot and finding my tomatoes all stolen and the plants broken and practically useless to the remaining crop. The intruder was kind enough to leave a really big zucchini among the broken plants. Thanks for the exchange. This is a warning to those who have much more time, and money invested there than I. To the intruder, perhaps the next time you reach into the center of a nice, big tomato plant that doesn't belong to you, you may find your fingers caught in a trap. What kind? Rat, of course, what else? Betty Inman.

Local man drowns in Eveline

Denver Jackson, 45, local electrical contractor, was drowned in a swimming mishap near the Hidden Valley Resort on Nowland Lake in Eveline township at 4 p.m. Sunday according to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's deputies.

Officers said Jackson and a companion, Thayer A. Powell of Mackinaw City, were floating on a rubber raft approximately 400 feet from shore on the east side of the lake when he decided to return to the water. Witnesses said he jumped from the raft into 15 feet of water and never resurfaced. Spectators on the beach pulled him from the water and administered C.P.R. for 20 minutes until the East Jordan Ambulance arrived at the site. The ambulance attendants continued in their efforts. However, he was dead on arrival at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Dr. John Lagneil, Assistant Medical Examiner, said death was due to drowning.

Assisting for 20 minutes in the attempt to revive the victim were Mr. and Mrs. Brian Tiemeyer of Grand Haven and Mrs. Rayda Bouma of Hartford, Conn., who were at the resort and Deputies John Bascom and Dale Boehm.

This was the fourth drowning in Charlevoix county this year and the eighth fatality since June 27.

Funeral services for Jackson will be held at the Winchester Funeral Home at 10 a.m. Wednesday. The Rev. Dale Turner of the Missionary Church of East Jordan will officiate. Interment will be in Brookside Cemetery.

Born in French Lick, Ind. March 27, 1933, Jackson was a veteran of military service. He resided in Plainfield, Ill., prior to coming to Charlevoix in 1970. He was an electrical contractor and operated his own business under the name of B & D Electric.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Terri DeSimone of Glen's Falls, N.Y., Mrs. Timothy (Toni) Paschke of Plymouth and Karen of Charlevoix and a sister, Mrs. Joseph (Kathleen) Raney of Indianapolis, Ind.

Friends may call at the Winchester Funeral Home after 2 p.m. Tuesday.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor his memory contribute in his name to the Lions Club.

Four hurt in mishap

Four people were hospitalized, two others treated and released and one uninjured in a two-car accident 100 feet outside the city limits on US 31 at 8:40 p.m. Sunday.

Anthony Reinhardt, 25, Hillman, was taken to the Charlevoix Area Hospital via Charlevoix ambulance and later transferred to Munson Medical Center at Traverse Cit for treatment of a skull fracture and other injuries. He was a passenger in a car driven by Ronald Belfy, 23, Charlevoix, who was in good condition at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, Monday.

A third passenger in the Belfy car, Richard J. Sizeland, 29, Detroit, remained in the hospital overnight for observation and was released Monday.

In a second car, a Bronco, owned by Michael Pearsall, 27, Charlevoix, and driven by Thomas R. Wawrzyniak, 25, Long Beach, Calif., were Pearsall who was in stable condition at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, Mrs. Vicki (Thomure) VanLoo, 21, Charlevoix, who was treated here before being transferred to Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey for treatment of a fractured leg and Michael Martin Reinhardt, 20, Hillman, who was in overnight for observation and discharged on Monday.

Wawrzyniak was arrested for driving under the influence of alcoholic beverages and held at the Charlevoix County jail overnight. He was released on a $200 bond Monday.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's officials, the Belfy car had made a U-turn at the airport parking area across the highway from the Flight Deck and Paul Bunyan Lanes bowling alley and was traveling east on US 31 when it was struck by the second vehicle, driven by Wawrzyniak, as it came on to the highway off Stover road. At the time, the latter vehicle was traveling in a northwesterly direction.

Some of the victims had to be removed from the vehicles by use of the Jaws of Life equipment.

All those involved in the accident had returned a short time before from Beaver Island where they had attended the homecoming festivities.

Part of the American character is, they say, a desire for independence and self-sufficiency. There is little that can satisfy such a yearning as well as owning a home. It gives you privacy, warmth, self-sufficiency, an opportunity for creativity and a place to call your own in a sometimes overwhelming large and uncontrollable world. A home can provide a center to your life that few other things can. It is one place where you can still exert some control. And remember there is no place like home.

Whatever your reasons may be for purchasing a home of your own, THOMAS REAL ESTATE, 101 Bridge St., 547-4494 will be happy to help you find the piece of property that best suits your particular needs and budget. July babies

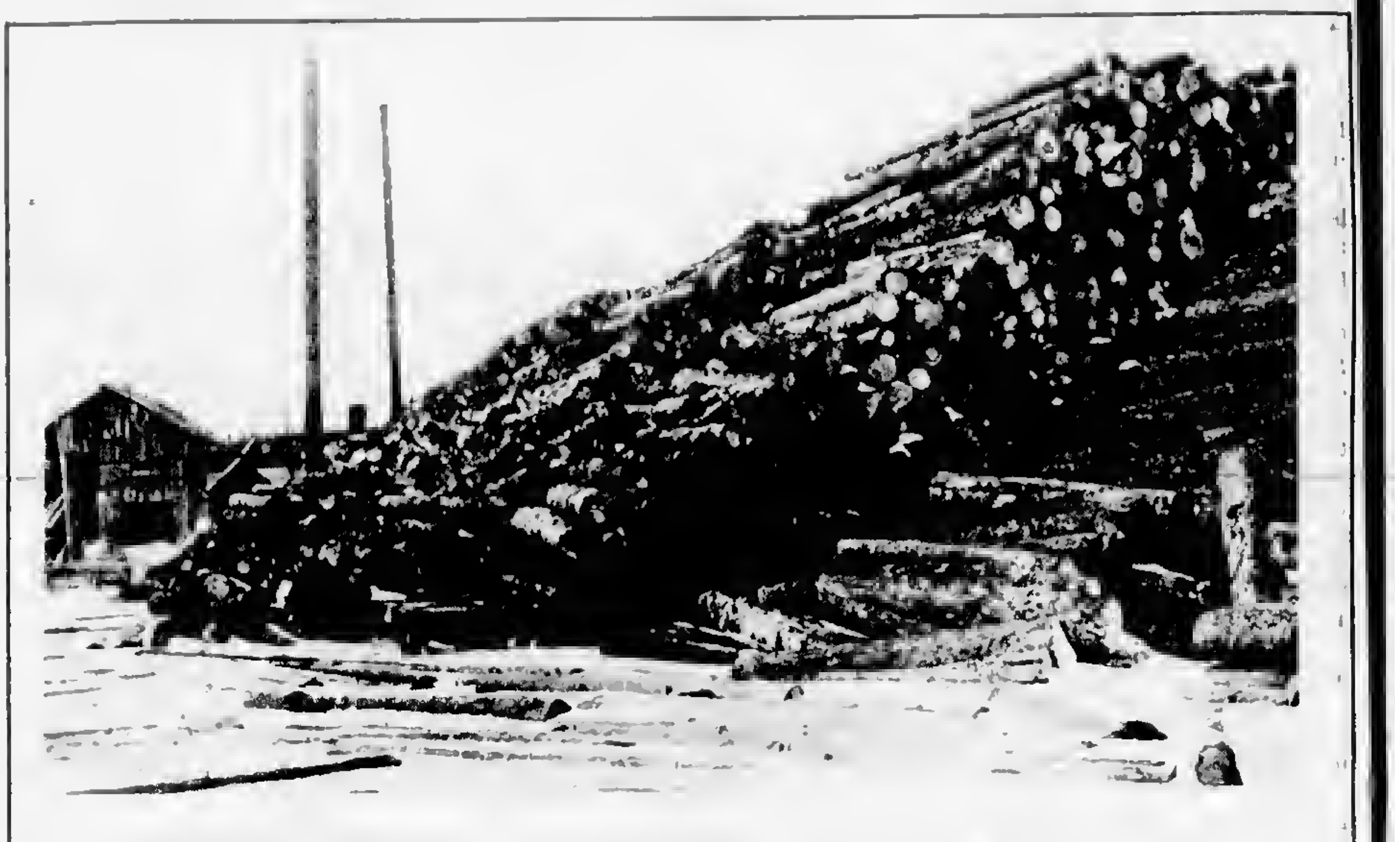
Charlevoix County's population became a little bit younger last month with the birth of 38 babies and the death of 14 older residents. The figures are kept by the office of the County Clerk.



Charlevoix Yesterday

THE FORESTS around Charlevoix once provided logs for local lumber mills. The above pile is stacked in the yards of the Charlevoix Lumber Company, just north of the bridge.

Fly-In scheduled Saturday

If you haven't made plans for Saturday then consider the Charlevoix Lions Fly-In at the Charlevoix Airport.

Activities get underway at 8 a.m. with a pancake breakfast. Afterwards, you might want to take an airplane ride, or observe a large U.S. Reserve airplane, or watch a radio controlled model airplane show, or view an airplane stunt show. The list is ongoing.

If you show up in the afternoon, the Lions Club will be serving its famous fried chicken. And as a special treat the fly-in will feature the 5th Michigan Regiment Band in the early afternoon.

This unique international touring organization recreates the musical heritage of Michigan through its special performances across the country and Canada, under the partial sponsorship of the Michiagan Council for the Arts.

Dressed in Civil War Infantry, Artillery and Naval uniforms, this famous unit will be bringing its full regimental band, regimental and historical color parties, landing party of regimental dancers, and the regimental fifes and drums.

The organization was formed in the fall of 1973 under the auspices of the Howell Bicentennial Committee, and has since been recognized and received major funding from both the Michigan Bicentennial Commission and the Michigan Council for the Arts. It is a national Bicentennial project as well, and has represented the nation repeatedly in Canada at the Canadian National Exhibition, Ontario Place in Toronto; Fort York, and Fort Henry at Kingston, Ontario; and at Chapleau, Ontario where the unit performed official ceremonies for the Canadian government.

Noted for its close attention to historic detail, both in uniforming and performance, the unit recreates the band of the 5th Michigan Volunteer Infantry Regiment which served with the Army of the Potomac from 1861 through 1865.

The unit is commanded by Col. Richard O. Johnson, assisted by Bandmaster Maj. Thomas G. Broka, Executive Officer Capt. William Dopkowski, Adjutant Capt. John E. Sullivan, Regimental Color Party Commander 1st Lt. Keith Risdon, Historical Color Party Commander 2nd Lt. Chere Caverly and Medical Officer 2nd Lt. Wanda Wilaniskis. Although Civil War music is a major part of the unit's repertoire, close attention is paid to the recreation of the works of John Philip Sousa. Many of Sousa's marches, for example, have been closely re-examined regarding his original musical and stage directions so that audiences can see and hear the works as Sousa had intended.

In addition, the band and regimental dancers recreate history as modern as the Charleston, and the regimental fifes and drums join the dancers to go back in history to the early 1700s.

A typical 2-and-½-hour program of the unit, for example, could well include the Star Spangled Banner as it was played in 1853, the Battle Hymn of the Republic, the American Marching Song, Dixie, When Johnny Comes Marching Home, the Girl I left Behind Me and Auld Lang Syne.

Rummage sale planned

A back to school rummage sale is planned for Friday and Saturday, Sept. 1 and 2, at the United Methodist Church on State Street across from First National Bank.

"We will need children's school clothes sizes 6 to 14 in good condition," said Jan McKay. "If this sale is to be a success we need each person who plans to make use of this sale to try to bring at least one grocery bag full of clothes."

Clothes needed, Mrs. McKay said, are coats, snowmobile suits, boots, sweaters, slacks, shirts, blouses and mittens or gloves.

All profits will to to the Charlevoix Ministerial Association, and clothes may be dropped off at your church or brought directly to the United Methodist Church any time after Aug. 27.

Mrs. McKay said volunteers from each church are needed to help sort out clothes between Aug. 27 and the time of the sale. If you can help call Mrs. McKay at 547-9277.

Campaign trail comes to an end for Jim Hartwell

HORTON BAY — On April 19, Jim Hartwell, a political unknown, entered the Democratic race in the 11th Congressional District. Although he had a well conceived campaign gimmick up his sleeve, Hartwell was still minus one key element: Money.

And money, Hartwell said later, was one of the two things which decided that particular race in last week's primary election, won by Keith McLeod, who emerged from a pack of seven hopefuls to garner 25 percent of the vote.

"A lot of elections are decided in the last couple days, particularly a race like this where there are so many unknowns," Hartwell said, relaxing on the porch of the Red Fox Inn the day after the election. "It's decided by who spends the most money — the best way — to get their name out right at the end.

"McLeod did this. He held off longer (on his advertising) than the others. In the end he opened the drawgates. When he started his blitz I could see he had a good chance because he was pouring more money into it than anybody else, including (Herbert) Stephens."

McLeod wasn't the only candidate loosening the purse strings as the campaign was climaxing. Other candidates did, too, except Hartwell. He didn't have a purse. All he had was pocket change.

"In the last week when the other candidates started spending so much money — even coming over the air — I began to feel my chances were slim. I had no money to counter with. All I could do was run small ads in the newspapers."

Still, Hartwell managed to get 10 percent of the vote for a fifth place finish. Not bad, he said, considering he expended only $2,750.

"I got a lot for my money as far as votes," said the 33-year-old businessman. "I got a better return on my money than the guys who finished ahead of me, perhaps with the exception of Albert. I don't know how much he spent.

"Reportedly, Stephens spent about $70,000 and he got 15 percent of the vote. I spent about $2,750 and I got 10 percent." Stephens finished third behind McLeod and John Watanen.

Because he did not have the financial resources to do much advertising, Hartwell had to find another way to get attention. He did, and quite successfully, too.

Hartwell borrowed a 10 speed bike from his nephew and pedaled around parts of the sprawling district. His first biking expedition totaled 500 miles and took him from the Keweenaw Peninsula to Alabaster, south of Tawas City. That received so much publicity he tried it again. This time he went 235 miles from Ironwood to Menominee.

"I realized a few months ago that there was going to be more money in the campaign behind the other people than behind me," he said. "I figured early that I wouldn't be operating with a lot of money and that I would have to do something else to draw attention to my campaign."

The bike gave Hartwell plenty of press. Most of the newspapers in the district played it up. And it even got him type in the Detroit Free Press, Detroit News and Milwaukee Journal.

"It seemed I always got more press coverage than the other candidates did because it was novelty and of human interest," he said.

"The media concentrated on the personalities of the candidates. It was not an issue oriented campaign because there was a lot of agreement, even between the Republicans and the Democrats, on the issues. All the candidates were opposed to the Oscoda dumping. All the candidates were opposed to Seafarer. All the candidates said it was most important to find jobs in this area and improve and expand our forest industry. The issues and views were the same."

Hartwell came from complete obscurity to win 10 percent of the vote. Even party officials were saying "Who's he" when he declared his candidacy back in April. Hartwell never held a public office before. Why, all of a sudden, run for the U.S. Congress?

"I thought I was qualified for it," he answered. "I consider myself honest and not susceptible to the temptations of being bought off."

"I had experience working for the McGovern campaign and I also worked in a gubernatorial race (in Hawaii). This was probably a big step, but it was as open as any other position and you didn't know in the early stages who would enter the race."

Will he try for office again?

"I would consider it," he said. "I liked the campaign, especially as it progressed because I felt more comfortable all the time." But will his nephew let him borrow the bike again?

Bridge walk Sept. 4

The 21st Annual Mackinac Bridge Walk is scheduled to begin at 7:30 a.m. on Labor Day morning, Sept. 4, 1978.

Last year some 27,500 individuals led by Governor William Milliken made the trek across the Bridge over the beautiful and historic Straits of Mackinac.

This year, weather permitting, the number of walkers should increase and nearly every candidate for important state and local office will participate in what has come to be known as "the world's greatest walking event".

An important change should be noted. Buses transporting bridge walkers to the starting point at St. Ignace, or the north side of the bridge, will be boarding in a new location. The boarding site and bus ticket sales location this year will be in an area north of the Traverse Bay Woolen Company on Huron Street in Mackinaw City.

The Bridge Authority strongly recommends that bridge walkers do not depend upon buses, but make arrangements to get at the starting line in private cars.

Last year more than 19,000 persons were transported by bus and many of them arrived after 10 a.m., the deadline for starting the walk. Every effort is made to clear the bridge by noon.

Once again, the same as last year, no dogs, except seeing eye, will be permitted to participate in the bridge walk. This rule will be strictly enforced for the convenience and safety of the vast majority of the bridge walkers.

Also, bridge walkers should bear in mind that there are no relief stations on the bridge. Porta-johns will be provided at the north and south ends of the bridge, but bridge walkers are advised to plan their food intake with the knowledge that there are no toilets on the bridge.

Once again the 144th Michigan National Guard of Owosso will be assisting with traffic and crowd control. This is a complicated command post exercise in that the north and southbound vehicular traffic is maintained during the bridge walk on the two west lanes of the bridge, while walkers utilize the two east lanes until approximately 10 a.m. At this time one of the east lanes is taken over by northbound traffic. Walkers are squeezed into one lane.

This procedure appears to be an imposition to some bridge walkers, but it is absolutely necessary to eliminate back ups of southbound Labor Day traffic in the Upper Peninsula as long as ten miles. It has been carried out safely and efficiently for the past four years. Persons who feel restricted by it should plan to start their bridge walk early so that they can complete it before walkers are required to use only one lane.

The Hiawathaland Council of the Boy Scouts of America, Troop Number 127, stationed at the south end of the bridge, will be passing out certificates to bridge walkers attesting to their having completed the 1978 walk. Each certificate is individually numbered and should the number coincide with a number posted in the windows of Mackinaw City merchants, a prize will be awarded. More than $1500 worth of these prizes are provided by the merchants and Chamber of Commerce in Mackinaw City.

Welcome to The Northern Michigan Growth Conference
I GUESS HE'S NEVER SEEN A CLONE BEFORE
WHAT KIND OF SERVICES DO WE HAVE AVAILABLE FOR HIM?

Plan future now instead of later

The upcoming Northern Michigan Growth Conference Aug. 17-18 in Big Rapids will give Charlevoix officials and citizens the perfect opportunity to learn more about the rapid shift in population and the effects it will have on this area during the next two decades.

Every elected official, every appointed official and every interested citizen should make it a point to attend the conference to learn and observe everything possible because it will be vital to the future of Charlevoix and surrounding communities.

The workshops on housing, education, law enforcement, transportation, economic development and employment, human services, environment and recreation and local government financing and services can only enlighten officials and perhaps provide insights and solutions to current problems as well as future ones.

Too often Northern Michigan has been caught short, or, as the old saying goes, "A day late and a dollar short." Some cynics have even said decades late and thousands short.

The time has come for this approach to change to end. The stakes are too high now for Charlevoix and Northern Michigan to play ostrich.

Already this area has felt the pressures of unprecedented growth and the pinch of progress on resources in the area. So far, officials have been able to keep the city and county's heads above water, but if plans for the project onslaught of increased population and business growth aren't made now, the city and county will find themselves drowning in demands for services.

Every facet of life and work in Charlevoix must be investigated. Plans for more housing, expanded utilities, expanded city services and a multitude of other things should be made.

Both the city and county planning commissions should begin working with the projected population figures and the projected growth figures for this area and start planning for what will be needed to support the people and business coming.

They should also begin applying for funding to construct the necessary housing or the necessary utilities or whatever the group determine is needed. It takes a long time to get funding approvals and to obtain the necessary right of ways and permits. Better to start now and be ready when the time comes.

And while city, county and township officials are planning for the projected growth, maybe they could also look into the possibility of sharing services and combining resources. Taxpayers are overburdened enough and the cost of growth will not be cheap. Anything officials can do to contain the costs will be to their credit and everyone will benefit.

Now is the time for action. Better to plan ahead than to be caught short and lost in the shuffle.

What it's like to be 50

Pull up a chair and let me tell you what it's like to grow old.

Before another week is out, Clockwise will have reached his 50th birthday and will be eligible for active membership in all of those clubs and organizations designed to brighten the twilight years of our senior citizens.

He also should be in line for cut-rate prices at topless bars, free passes to the medical care facility and considerably more respect from his progeny. But he won't receive any of them because age is relative.

When I was a kid a few weeks ago, I had an idea that with age came a certain amount of wisdom. After all, it stands to reason that a fellow would reach a few irrefutable conclusions about the meaning of life and be able to draw some kind of line – no matter how shakey – between right and wrong and good and bad.

Ideally, by age 50 one should have developed some kind of philosophy of life to give him aid and comfort during the slow slide into the grave.

But none of these things have happened to me yet, and it is unlikely they will before next Saturday.

In fact, the whites and blacks of my youth have faded gradually into the grays of middle age and I am less confident today in the areas of politics, government, religion, economics, and social relations than I was 30 years ago.

Most of what appeared to be absolute truth when I was young now appears to be merely conjecture or opinion.

There was a time when a person was supposed to become "set in his ways" after age 30. But this strange phenomenon doesn't seem to have materialized for me and I wonder if it ever did for anyone.

Can you imagine a person today attempting to maintain his sanity if he were still hamstrung by the prejudices and tunnel-vision of the 1940's and 1950's?

The only area of modern society that has left me baffled and a little bit sad is the deplorable state of popular music in America today. When I was young I lived with music and spent hours listening to the wind-up Victrola in the dining room or pumping the pedals of the player piano in the parlor.

And the music was good, even on those ancient instruments – lively, melodious, rhythmic tunes composed and executed by exacting, well disciplined musicians.

Then rock and roll struted in the front door and good music went out the window. I have tried desperately to find something – anything – praiseworthy in the rock movement, but its merits have escaped me. I would rather spend the rest of my life in a boiler factory than to listen to 10 minutes of the raucus nonsense that masquerades as music today.

But if that's all I have to complain about after 50 years in this mortal coil, the next half century should not go too badly.

A look at Detroit's dailies

Each morning I'll pour a cup of coffee and pick up the Detroit Free Press and browse through it, stopping at those articles which interest me. It's habit. Sometimes, I'll do the same with the Detroit News, too.

I have often wondered what it would be like to work at the Free Press or the News. I know behind that cold black type is a personality. But what kind of personality? The papers rarely write about themselves.

Well, I have finally found out. A Detroit magazine, Monthly Detroit, recently reported on Detroit's two dailies and their escalating war for circulation dominance.

And since there are several Free Press and News readers out there, I would like to share a few highlights of that report.

The executive director of the Free Press is Kurt Luedtke. He "pulls all the strings." Luedtke is considered a tough newspaperman who is obsessed with winning the circulation war with the Detroit News and making the Free Press a very profitable paper.

Despite the financial success the Free Press has enjoyed, Luedtke is said to be tight-fisted when it comes to giving raises or overtime pay to staffers. As a result, the Free Press has become a turnstile. They have lost "30 key people" in the last two years.

Several of the Free Press staffers have been hired by the News. For instance, Marji Kunz jumped from the Free Press to the News where she reportedly will make $38,000 a year to go with a $13,000 a year expense account. This is said to be twice what she made at the Free Press. While the News often hires Free Press staffers, the Free Press never hires a News staffer. And once a Free Press staffer defects to the News they can't come back.

The Free Press has lost many of their top reporters, the magazine says, and some newspapermen believe it is slipping; that it has become complacent and has lost the fighting tradition.

Years ago, Free Press staffers used to pride themselves on the fact that "one Free Press Sleuth could out-report five News reporters." And outwit them too.

In 1967 both papers sent reporters to the Philippines to cover a story about Dr. Tony Agpaoa, a miraculous healer. Al Stark was covering the story for the News. The Free Press managed to delay his story from being relayed for 36 hours. First, a Free Press editor called the airline and identified himself as an official from the U.S. Public Health Department. He ordered a health hold on Stark because "he was carrying some contagious disease." Then, the Free Press reporter bribed the RCA wire operator to send his story first. And he also was able to temporarily convince the operator that Stark worked on the same paper he did and there was no need to send Stark's story at all.

One year late, the News was about to print an editorial withdrawing its support for presidential candidate George Romney. The Free Press learned about it and sent a copy boy over to the News. Somehow, the copy boy got hold of the editorial and it appeared in full text the following morning in the Free Press "much to the chagrin of the News."

Luedtke is best remembered for taking charge during the 1967 ritots and helping the Free Press win a Pulitzer Prize for its coverage. The Free Press even talked the nearby armory into loaning them an armored car. One day – "when it came time to blow off steam" – Luedtke and two others drove the armored car down Lafayette Avenue to the News. Over the loudspeaker, all three announced, "Attention Detroit News. This is the Free Press. You are now under seige. Send out Martin S. Hayden (former editor) as a hostage." "No one came out," said a Free Press staffer. "As you know, the News has no sense of humor."

The Free Press has been criticized for "slanted racial coverage." Only two percent of the editorial staff is black. There are no black editors. The Newspaper Guild of Detroit has filed charges of racial discrimination against the paper that are still pending.

Guild spokesman Willard Hatch says, "In my opinion it is disgraceful that the number of black employees at both papers is so low. It's an embarrassment. This is crucial because the city is better than 50 percent black. I think the black viewpoint and experience is a big part of the Detroit story. I don't think white reporters can consistently and fairly report about the black experience, any more than men can write about how women feel. The fact of the matter is the black community has less confidence in the newspapers when the consistently send out a stream of white reporters."

The Free Press has also been criticized for shying away from the hard news story. Luedtke believes feature stories sell newspapers. "The reason newspapers are in trouble today," he says, "is because there are so many dull ones." Hence, the Free Press has a lot of feature stories.

Some of the best feature writers work in the Womens Department. Luedtke wields a lot of influence here, too, since he has "a good deal of interest in fashion, lifestyles and psychology."

Pat piles up a bundle of points

My wife just received an extra-large load of points. The load was so big, it wouldn't fit into the elevator leading to our high rise apartment. The points had to be brought up on the top of the elevator.

Part of the marriage game is collecting points. When a husband does something his wife doesn't like, he loses points to her. Or vice versa.

The number of points awarded depends upon how dumb a deed was committed by the offending spouse. It is common for the involved spouses to disagree on the depth of a particular dumbness and the number of points it is worth. Negotiations are often prolonged, and the aid of outside arbitrators is sometimes required.

Points are like cash. They can be spent as soon as they are received, or they can be banked until needed. However, points don't accrue interest while they are being saved by the owner. On the contrary, points lose value if they aren't spent within a reasonable time after they are awarded. This isn't because of inflation. It's because time dims dumbness, and most spouses balk at paying for points lost a long time ago.

"You told the Crandalls that we'd play bridge with them tonight. That was a really dumb thing to do," the husband says. "You know I hate to play bridge."

"I hate football but you took me to the football game," the wife says. "That was a really dumb football game."

"That football game was 5 years ago," the husband says.

And so on. The couple must decide if he should play bridge because she went to the football game. Are the 2 things worth an equal number of points? Did she save the football points too long? Should he get extra points because Mrs. Crandall has a nervous giggle?

My wife lost several points a few years ago when she went wicker wacky. She put wicker chairs in every room of our house, including the bathroom, and I was marked for life. This was a dumb thing for Pat to do, but I didn't spend my wicker points at that time. I figured I'd save them until some day when I wanted to do something dumb involving furniture.

That day has arrived, but Pat says I'm woefully short on points. I can't argue with her. I wish she'd bought a wicker bathtub.

My problem is that 10 years ago I made my wildest dream come true. I bought a full-size pool table and installed it in my basement. This was sort of a dumb thing to do, because the table cost more than I could afford, but Pat didn't charge me too many points. After all, we had a big basement and she couldn't deny that the pool table brought us closer together. Before I got it, she had to phone me at the neighborhood tavern. Now all she had to do was holler down the clothes chute.

The real trouble with the pool table didn't come until last month when we sold our big house and had to move all our furniture into a big-city apartment. There was no room for the pool table, of course.

But wait.

"We could move into a 4-bedroom apartment and knock out the wall between two of the bedrooms. We could have a double door cut. That would be my poolroom," I said. "When the grandchildren visit, they can sleep under the pool table."

Pat didn't say anything, but her lips were moving. She was counting points to herself.

The movers couldn't squeeze the table into the freight elevator. Mr. Westinghouse, who built the elevator had to be summoned to supervise on-top elevation. To get the table put back together on the level, with new felt, I had to find a poolroom proprietor who made house calls. So far, it's cost twice what it's worth to keep my precious table by my side, 26 stories above ground.

But, by God, I must own the highest full-size pool table in the city.

And my wife owns the highest pile of unspent points in the history of marriage. When will she spend them? I'm shooting pool on the lip of a volcano.

Mr. Parker may have crossed the thin line

I was watching an old movie the other afternoon in which Jean Simmons was trying to convince people she was sane.

This is not an easy thing to do as there is a very thin line between what is accepted as normal behavior and what is considered abnormal. Besides, once the seed of doubt is planted, everything you do becomes suspect.

For the last year and a half, I've been trying to convince my bread man that I am not a candidate for plastic scissors.

It all began one morning when I flung open the door singing, "Just like a good neighbor...State Farm is thereeee..." As my voice trailed off, I saw Mr. Parker freeze in his tracks.

"Catchy, isn't it?" I grinned. "Can't seem to get it off my mind." He left me one rye, two whites and a hurried exit.

More than a month passed before I saw Mr. Parker again. This time he went by the window, looked in and saw me perched atop aur washer which, when it goes into a spin cycle with a light load, has a tendency to "walk" across the kitchen floor. I was singing with Barbra that morning. "Don't tell me not to fly just sit and putter, life's candy and the sun's a ball of butter, don't bring around a cloud to rain on my parade..." I waved, and I'm not sure, but I think he drank something when he got back on his truck.

The next week, I was on the phone talking ta Mayva and doing my knee-bends which are wonderful for your thighs. As I came up from the floor in full view of the window, there was Mr. Parker. I smiled and as my knees bent, I disappeared beneath the window with the phone. When I came up again, there was another man with Mr. Parker who also watched wide-eyed as I disappeared again. When I came back up, they were both gone. I knew they would be back. They forgot their truck.

The bread and rolls appeared mysteriously on my doorstep, but I only saw Mr. Parker in passing. I saw him one day as I was retreving my son's favorite rubber duck from the Goodwill bag on the curb, another time when I was splashing around the kids' wading pool trying ta stir up the disinfectant, and another time when I was drying my hair with the sweeper on the back porch.

Yesterday, I had just returned from the vet with the dog. We were both sitting in the car in the driveway with the motor off and the radio on, listening to Mel Brooks doing his 2,000-year-old man routine.

Convulsed with laughter, I leaned aver, slapped the dog on the back and said, "Is he too much?"

I'm worried about Mr. Parker. He stared at us like he had just crossed over that thin line.

Standup, be counted

Editor:

The Medusa Problem described by your correspondent Bud Matthews, (Courier 7/26/78) is more aptly described as "The Rape of Charlevoix, the Beautiful." It was clear from the beginning that there could be no give and take between the positions of the people and of Medusa, nor was it likely that modern technology could cure the evil of pollution which strikes against the health and welfare of countless numbers of persons, now living and unborn and their enjoyment of pure air and a clean environment as provided by the Creator.

I agree whole heartedly with the writer who says "This expansion should be stopped in its tracks and the present facilities phased out". The weak response of residents and those who own summer homes to the initial challenge by Medusa by which it took over for its selfish ends the basic right of all to a healthy surrounding in which to live, means that now at whatever cost to the people of Charlevoix County, the state and the nation the thing that has been done must be undone.

How long shall it be until this universal concern is recognized and control by the short sighted terminated, who have made decisions in disregard of the interests of human kind everywhere through surrender of the public domain to private gain.

Four generations of my family, and I, have made our home in Charlevoix during four to six months of each year, owning property and paying taxes. We care enough to support local charitable causes with our contributions. We read the Courier.

I call upon those who share Mrs. Matthew's views to stand up and be counted. With his kind of leadership and enough public support, the Medusa wrong can be turned around for the good of all of us.

Sincerely yours,
Allyn J. Shepard

Beauty is gone

Editor:

Charlevoix the Beautiful, so named of yore,
Is not so beautiful anymore.
The harbor entrance sits between two Jaws,
And one Jaw now has started up a Cause.

Old South Point was harmless to the view,
With low pines on it and a cabin or two.
Now it has a monster cupcake bigger than the Ritz
That sits there, white, and spews out grits.

Medusa was a freak turning men into stone.
If she'd help with the dusting that might atone.
Why couldn't they build this a few miles on,
Save us from their "powdered sugar" marathon?

Then a few miles north, not hurting the view,
Is the Big Rock Plant, we have that, too.
Here the atoms do their ritual dance;
They do splits, too, so watch your chance.

We're told whenever we voice laments
These dear plants have no accidents.
Well, almost never, but if so, Buster,
You'll wish you were back with General Custer.
All hail to our Jaws; we have no shark
But our Jaws have teeth right up to the mark.

Church apologizes

Editor:

The First Congregational Church apologizes for the silence of its carillons. We were hoping that they would play twice a day during the tourist season this summer. However, the controls are defective and the system has had to be turned off. We hope that the tourists who have missed them this year will return to Charlevoix next year, at which time we trust the carillons will be playing.

Meet Charlevoix

Bill Klimas

By PEG OHLE

Bill Klimas is a young summer resident who keeps busy at two jobs, both of which he thoroughly enjoys. This week the Courier talks with him, mostly about music.

COURIER: Where do you go to school?

KLIMAS: I'm a senior at Grand Valley State College, majoring in organ and piano.

COURIER: What are you doing this summer?

KLIMAS: I'm organist at the Congregational Church and work at Ward's Boat Yards maintaining, renting and chartering boats. This is my third summer there.

COURIER: When did you start studying music?

KLIMAS: I started with the piano when I was four. I've been studying it for 16 years and the organ for six years.

COURIER: What kind of music do you like?

KLIMAS: Classical music in general, also jazz and most popular things.

COURIER: Have you ever done anything with popular music?

KLIMAS: Yes, I've done some recordings with Grand Valley pop groups.

COURIER: How often do you play at the Congregational Church?

KLIMAS: Just on Sunday mornings, but I am giving a recital on the 21st. It's at 8 o'clock in the evening and I'll play selections from Bach, Vierne, and Whitlock.

COURIER: How do you like the organ at the church?

KLIMAS: It's great. It has 11 ranks, or sets of pipes, ranging from eight feet long to the size of a small pencil. It was recently rebuilt and has beautiful stops.

COURIER: What other church music experience have you had?

KLIMAS: I was assistant organist and choir master at the First Congregational Church in Grand Rapids. This fall I'm going to the Holy Redeemer Catholic Church in Grand Rapids as organist and choir master.

COURIER: What does a choir master do?

KLIMAS: He conducts the choir, trains the singers, plans programs, and selects the music.

COURIER: Who else is on the music staff of the Charlevoix Congregational Church?

KLIMAS: Elizabeth Humphrey is the regular organist. This summer she is conducting the choir. Fran Tollas is the regular choir director. I practice with the choir every Wednesday evening. They're a fine, enthusiastic group. Right now they're preparing for a special program on August 27, which is "Music Sunday". They'll present several anthems for the service.

COURIER: How often do you practice individually?

KLIMAS: In the summer time, just off and on. It's a break in action for me. When I'm in school, I practice three to eight hours a day, depending on my school schedule.

COURIER: What does a music major study other than music?

KLIMAS: Liberal arts – languages, history, English, math, sciences, and so on.

COURIER: What are you going to do when you finish at Grand Valley?

KLIMAS: I'm going to Westminster Choir College in Princeton, New Jersey to study for a master's degree. Ultimately, I want to teach and perform piano and organ in a college or a large church, or both.

COURIER: Who are your favorite composers?

KLIMAS: For the organ, Bach, and for the piano, Brahams.

COURIER: What advice do you have for kids who don't want to practice the piano?

KLIMAS: My advice is for their parents. Make them practice. I used to sit at the piano and watch the kids play ball outdoors.

COURIER: Are your parents musical?

KLIMAS: Sort of. My mother studied music and everybody in the family plays the piano. My oldest sister, Pat, plays at Les Idees Restaurant in Grand Rapids. She studied music at Grand Rapids Junior College.

COURIER: How long have you been coming to Charlevoix in the summer?

KLIMAS: This is my tenth summer. I enjoy the change. I like all water sports – skiing, fishing, boating, in fact all sports. I like being outdoors, which is the best part of my job at Ward's. Naturally, I like my organ job, too.

COURIER: What teachers have you been studying under?

KLIMAS: George Shirley on the organ and Julliene Vanden Wyngaard on the piano. They're both at Grand Valley.

COURIER: Would you like to say anything else?

KLIMAS: Just to invite everyone to the recital on the 21st. There's no charge, but an offering will be collected. There'll also be refreshments.

FOLLOW THE GASLIGHTS

And You'll Know You've Found The Petoskey Shopping Area More Reminiscent Of Earlier Days, More Creative And Nostalgic Than Any Place You've Ever Been.

Petoskey, Michigan

Little Traverse Bay has quiet beauty and unforgettable charm When the setting sun spreads its radiance over the waters, it is indeed lovely from the vantage point of the limestone cliff on which the city of Petoskey now stands, the setting sun provides a spectacular show The Indians created a legend about it Since the first settlers and sightseers arrived over one hundred years ago, the beauty of the sunset has been a thing of wonder and awe to all

Very few white people had seen a sunset over Little Traverse Bay on that late fall day in 1863, when the first train whistled to a stop at the end of its line.

On board was a reporter for a Grand Rapids newspaper, who in reporting on the wilderness scenery, dubbed it Petoskey's Million Dollar Sunset

The metamorphosis of Petoskey was rapid It grew from a small Indian settlement at the mouth of Bear river, to a dynamic, busy village catering to the needs of sightseers and homesteaders To house the visitors, the Arlington and other luxury hotels were constructed overnight Rooming houses for the less affluent were soon to follow

By 1890 a substantial number of shops had sprung up along the main street, creating a very unique pioneer shopping area Along the Bear River waterpower was harnessed to run sawmills flour mills, hardwood flooring industries, butter bowl factories, and furniture-making industries The limestone cliffs along Little Traverse Bay provided Petoskey with lime, a natural resource of great importance to the industrial development of the town.

Little steamers plied the Bay, and the summer visitors who registered at Petoskey hotels and rooming houses took advantage of the many excursions offered. The most popular trip was the Circular or Inland Route. This lengthy excursion took the traveler up the coastline of Little Traverse Bay into Lake Michigan, around to Mackinac Island, on to Cheboygan and then down the chain of rivers and lakes to what is now Conway Until the quaint little dummy trains were in operation, the excursionists were jolted back to Petoskey from Conway by wagon and team.

In 1880 the system was in full operation and trips were being made every fifteen minutes. By 1905 two trains ran from Petoskey to Harbor Springs at half hour intervals. Many of the people who had come to see the area on the train liked what they saw and become regular summer visitors. By the 1900's the shift from tourism to settled summer communities was in motion. Many resorts developed around the Bay and inland lakes of the area. The new-fangled summer resorters spelled the doom of the delightful little streamers on the Bay, the little dummy trains, and the luxury hotels. Many of the hotels burned and were not rebuilt, the dummy engines were sold for scrap, and the steamers sailed off over the horizon.

Although the modes of transportation have seen drastic change, Petoskey's magnetism remains. There is still an element of charm and friendliness in shopping adventure which belongs niquely to Petoskeys Gaslight District. One may still marvel at the beauty of Little Traverse Bay and experience the wonder of the Million Dollar Sunset.

CETA help available

All public agencies in Charlevoix County are being asked to submit their requests for Comprehensive Education and Training Act (CETA) funds for fiscal year 1978-1979 immediately.

It is anticipated that CETA funds will again be available in two categories: for salaries of people employed by public agencies under the CETA program, and for short term projects undertaken by public agencies under the CETA program.

Helen Phillips, assistant director of the Public Program Administration in Charlevoix County, is reminding agencies that most present positions are funded through September 30, so new budgets will start with October.

"We have no idea at this time what our allocations will be, nor any of the regulations that will be applicable," Mrs. Phillips says, "but we want our plan ready when appropriations are made."

She also states the "We want to spend any money that will be allocated for Charlevoix County in Charlevoix County, and if we don't come up with projects, that money will go in the general pot and be allocated elsewhere."

Among the agencies eligible for CETA funds are counties, townships, cities, schools, and hospitals. Further information my be obtained from Mrs. Phillips at 547-6661.

Ruppe aide here

WASHINGTON – Northern Michigan Congressman Philip E. Ruppe, R-11th District, has announced that his lower peninsula district representative will hold office hours in Charlevoix County on August 23.

Jerry Newhouse has scheduled office hours from 12:00 to 1:00 at the County Building in Charlevoix. Any area citizen wishing to discuss a matter involving the Federal government is invited to visit at that time. No prior appointment is necessary.

Booklet helpful

Tourists traveling around the state will find the 1978-1979 edition of "Historical Museums in Michigan" helpful.

The publication lists 144 museums, including 22 in the Upper Peninsula. It is pocket-size and gives complete information, including mailing address and telephone number of each museum, a description of the exhibits, the year-round schedule (including months and holidays closed), and all admission charges.

Michigan's historical museums cover a wide range of topics, from pioneers and Indian cultures to industry, period furnishings, ethnic groups, skiiing, musical instruments and magic. The Beaver Island Museum in St. James offers insights into the Mormon community in Michigan.

Copies of the publication may be ordered for 50 cents each (40 cents in quantities of 10 or more) from the Historical Society of Michigan, 2117 Washtenaw Avenue, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104.

Energy $ available

The Michigan Department of Social Services reports that there is still money available under the Energy Assistance program for low-income households.

Through July 31, almost 162,000 Michigan households had taken advantage of the one-time grant. Another 7,449 applicants had been approved for payment, and an estimated 10,000 applications were being reviewed by the staff as "possible eligibles".

The program was designed to ease the burden of rising fuel costs to low-income and elderly Michigan households. Qualification is determined first on 1977 household income which cannot have exceeded $7,300 for a family of four or $7,000 for an elderly household in which at least one member is 65 years old or older.

Applications are available at the local Department of Social Services offices on M-66, the commission on Aging office, and fuel and utility company offices. Counseling center plans needs study

The CHIP Counseling Center in Charlevoix and Northern Mental Health Centers in East Jordan are beginning a study of the human services needs in Charlevoix County.

According to officials, there are many human service agencies in the county who are willing and able to help residents in a variety of ways. Some of these services are: planning parenthood, giving financial help, personal counseling, assisting the aged, and many more.

Quite frequently, however, the people who need help the most are the last to know that there is assistance available, or where to go for specific help, officials say. The agencies involved also have a problem trying to find out exactly what people need in order not to duplicate services and, thus waste time and money.

The study will attempt to answer the following questions: 1) What do the county residents feel are their needs (for example, are there concerns about sex education, mental health, substance abuse, local government services, recreational services, etc.?)?; 2) What various public, private, and individual agencies now exist and what assistance are they able to provide to the community?; 3) How can the needs of the people and the services available come together in the most effective and efficient way?; and 4) Is there a potential in the community for groups or individuals to "voluntarily" assume a greater role in helping during human crises?

The study has been divided into two phases. The first is a telephone survey of county residents to find out what they feel is needed. A group of specially trained volunteers will assist in this task. The sampling of residents will be done according to a scientific design that will be made during the week of Aug. 14.

The second phase of the study is a workshop scheduled for Oct. 6.

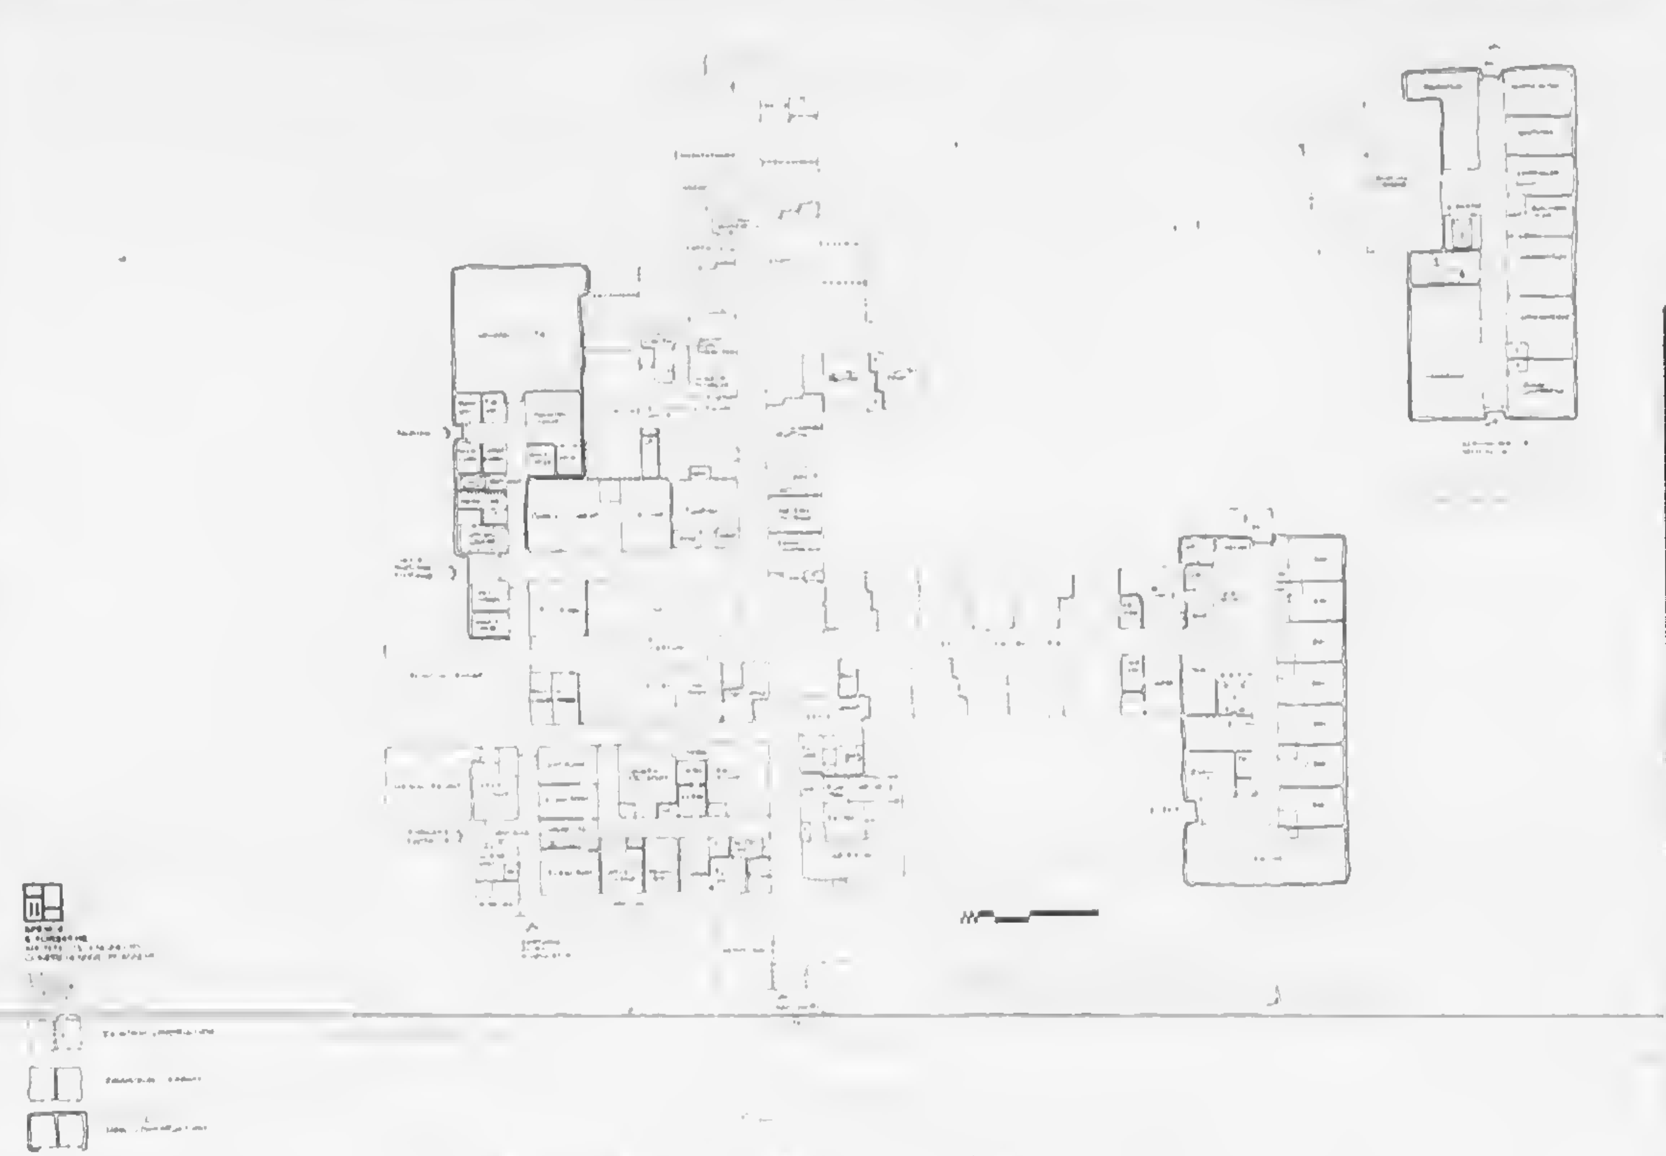
Do Business Where Business Is Being Done



Charlevoix Area Hospital expansion and renovation plan.

Hospital campaign in full swing

If Charlevoix Area Hospital does not expand its facilities to keep pace with present day demands, area residents will be forced to go elsewhere for many medical services.

This is the message inherent in the current fund raising campaign for the Charlevoix Area Hospital Expansion and Renovation Project.

Foremost on minds of the volunteers soliciting for the campaign is the question: "How do I communicate my enthusiasm for the hospital's Expansion and Renovation Project, so that others will want to give generously too?"

Glenn L. Kenney, Chairman of the Fund Raising Campaign, and other committee chairpersons, advise that the most dramatic proof of the urgency of the campaign is the fact that the hospital employees, medical staff, Board of Directors and Womens Guild raised amongst themselves more than $150,000 – 20 percent of the $750,000 goal. The hospital family did this before turning to the community.

"I know of more than a dozen hospital employees, whose wages are less than $12,000 a year, who have pledged $1,000," Glenn L. Kenney emphasizes.

Kenney and his committee heads feel that this should communicate the urgency of the project to the people of Charlevoix and Antrim Counties. The hospital employees, the people who work in the areas slated for modernization and expansion, believe so deeply that the project is vital that they gave at what has been described as "sacrificial levels," Kenney said.

Dr. Gilbert Saltonstall, who along with Julius Gilbert and E.D. "Pat" Hawley, are the honorary co-chairmen of the campaign, suggest the volunteer soliciters also point out that "We have some remarkably fine physicians on our hospital staff today. We have specialists in several fields including family practice. And we still provide care on a personal basis."

"The modernization of our out-patient departments -- Emergency Room, X-Ray Lab and so on – is in fact a modernization of in-patient facilities as well," Saltonstall continues.

"It comes down to the fact that if we don't have a hospital here with the proper facilities, we'll have to go out of town." the physician concludes.

Julius Gilbert, who like Dr. Saltonstall is a veteran of other Charlevoix Area Hospital campaigns, continues the same theme, when advising fund raisers:

"We must grow with our community. We have a modern hospital and a marvelous staff. The development of better out-patient facilities will give us more opportunity to attract new doctors."

Honorary Co-Chairman Hawley, agrees, "We want to keep our fine medical staff and encourage more to come."

"We can show the people there is a definite need for the project."

"And," he adds, "it is important that anyone in the area have a part in our expansion and give to make it a reality."

Gilbert, too, emphasizes the importance of approaching large and small donors.

"We need the help of everyone who uses the Charlevoix Area Hospital."

Gilbert continues, "There are a lot of ways people can give to the hospital."

"People should consult a banker or tax accountant to see if they can receive any tax advantages by giving."

He suggested some alternative methods of supporting the hospital's campaign.

"A person can donate land, stocks, bonds, jewelry, Antique furniture, fine art, almost anything of value," he explained.

Using a donation of a stock as an example, Gilbert explained: "Let's say you bought 100 shares of a stock for $1 10 years ago. Today that same stock is selling for $50 a share. When you give the stock to the hospital you are giving the hospital $5,000 for which you only spent $100.00. Your gift actually costs you $100 but you may count it as a $5,000 charitable gift on your income taxes.

"The exact same thing applies to anything of real value," Gilbert explained.

"If a gift is land, art or the like, the donor should have it appraised first so he knows exactly how much it is worth today," he concluded.

Jim McGarry, Charlevoix C.P.A. and volunteer Chairman of the Audit Committee for the campaign agreed that donors who want to know what tax advantages they may gain by their donations should check with their tax consultant.

McGarry said, "Basically your deduction to the hospital can be analyzed by knowing your personal federal income tax rate. For example, "If your tax rate is 12 percent and you give $100 to the hospital your gift really only costs you $88 because you may deduct $12 on your taxes."

"The higher your tax rate the higher the break you receive on a gift." the C.P.A. explained.

"Timing is very important as well," he said. "For some donors this year may not be the best year to give, for others it may be a good year. Others can plan so that next year, or over several years, giving will provide a tax break."

Solicitors have been explained to donors that while this summer is the time for the campaign's foot work, donations in the form of pledges may be spread over three to five years.

Concluding his advice to solicitors Kenney reiterated his personal convention that the hospital's project is vital.

"This is a project that the whole community must get behind."

"We all must help to maintain this independent small Hospital with its fine medical staff and reputation for warm and personal medical care."

First Baptist celebrates 100th anniversary

By PEG OHLE

The First Baptist Church of Charlevoix is celebrating the 100th anniversary of the origin of its congregation.

Church records indicate that in October of 1878, the congregation was organized in Rarnard with five members and was reorganized in Charlevoix, being recognized by a Council of Recognition in August of that year.

The present pastor, the Reverend Daniel C Abner, explains that Baptists get their congregation first and build their church later, so it was not until 1888 that the corner stone was laid for a church building, located on State Street on land now used for the City Hall Parking lot. This building was torn down ten years ago after completion of the new church building on M-66.

As was the custom in the early days, the first pastors of the Baptist Church of Charlevoix also served two or three "preaching stations" in outlying areas. Two of those served by the Charlevoix pastors were at Burgess and Marion.

Coincidental with the building of theBaptist Church in Charlevoix was the founding of the Charlevoix Summer mer Resort Association (now theBelvedere Club), most members of which were Baptist ministers, teachers, and businessmen. Early records indicate that they had much to do with organizing and building the church.

The church has been the house of worship for many summer resorters throughout the years. One church historian recalls especially the R.E. Olds family of automobile fame, and the Teasdale family, including daughter Sara, the noted American poet. A special gift of $10,000 by Mrs. Gladys Olds Anderson in 1965 gave the building fund for the new church a "tremendous boost".

Many activities of the Baptist Church of Charlevoix through the years that have been recalled by members. One of them was the Daily Vacation Bible School that was started in 1929. It was the first Daily Vacation Bible School in Charlevoix. Another was the Sunday evening programs presented by the Negro summer people. They were started in 1939 at the visitors' request and continued for many years.

Twenty-nine pastors have served the church since its founding, and two of them will return this month to help the congregation celebrate the centennial.

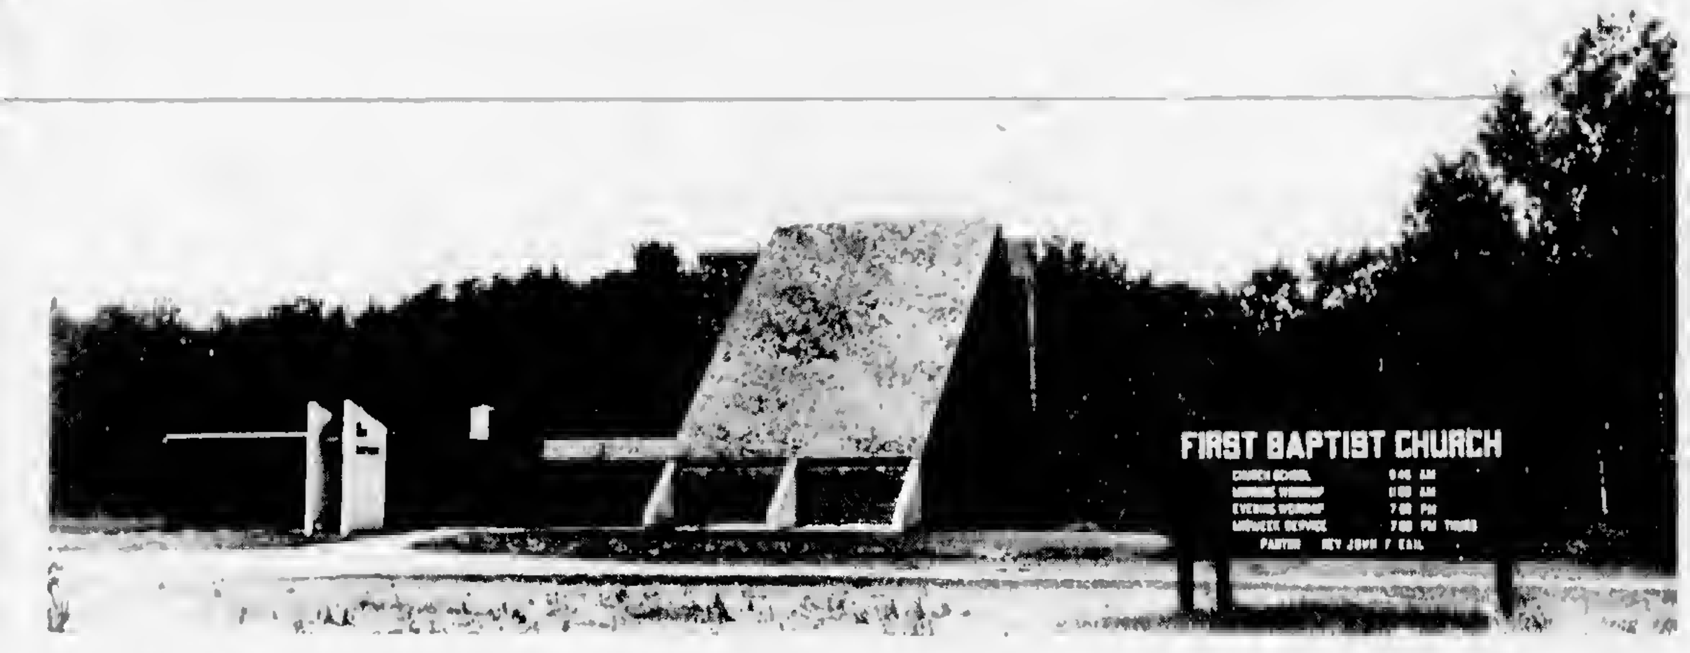
Reverend Jack Harris, now pastor of the church in Holly, Michigan, will speak in the morning worship service on Aug. 20, and Reverend and Mrs. John Cail, now at the First Baptist Church in Teconsha, Michigan will have the morning worship service on Aug. 27. A potluck dinner will be served after the service on Aug. 20.

The celebration will continue into September, when two more centennial events will take place. Dr William Bowman, Executive Secretary of American Baptist Churches of Michigan, will bring the message at the evening service on Sept. 10. Mrs. Bowman, a soprano, will also participate. A potluck supper will be served at 5 p.m. on that evening.

Reverend Robert McQuaid, Northern Area Minister of American Baptist Churches of Michigan, will bring the final message of the centennial celebration in the morning service of September 17.

Pastor Abner, officers, and members of the church are busy planning these important events and extend an invitation to all area people to share in them.

Present-day officers are Dwight Detraz, chairman of the Board of Deacons; Bernie Ward, Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees; Jerry Wheat, superintendent of the Sunday School; Elaine Dvoracek, president of the Ladies Missionary Society; Phyllis Gill, church treasurer; and Barbara Wheat, church clerk.



THE FIRST Baptist Church of Charlevoix is located on M-66 just outside the city limits. This building was started in 1968 and the first service was held in it February 2, 1969

Supernaw's 90th birthday rates special ceremony

An open house honoring Frank Supernaw, pioneer resident of the area, on the occasion of his 90th birthday will be held at the Fellowship Hall of the Community Church of God on Sunday, Aug. 20.

Friends in the area are invited to greet Supernaw from 2 until 5 p.m. on this memorable occasion.

Supernaw was born near Atwood in Antrim County on Aug. 20, 1888, a few years after his parents, the Calvin Supernaws, had migrated to the area from upper New York state with a group of other farmers of French descent. In 1920 he moved to a farm in Charlevoix Township which, five years later, was sold to the Belvedere club, long with adjacent farm land, as the site of the present Belvedere Golf Course. He remained as greenskeeper in charge of maintenance of the course until he retired in 1965. He then resided on the former Stover farm until moving to his present home on Wood St. in 1975. Always interested in horses, he raised, bought, sold and trained horses for many years until he was 82 years of age. At that time he sold the last of his beloved horses, a paolominoo, named Caruso.

He is a member of St. Mary's church.

He is married to the former Mrs. Alice Iliar.

Among those joining him for the observance of the anniversary will be his sons, Rex F. of Charlevoix and R. Charles of Rochester, his daughters, Mrs. Ruby Tillotson of Petoskey and Mrs. Ralph (Renabel) Shapton of Charlevoix; his 14 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

telephone tip

Teach your children how to use the phone in an emergency!

Anyone can have an emergency at home that calls for fast, intelligent use of the phone — a sudden illness, accident, fire. Hopefully you already have a list in your phone book or elsewhere near the phone, giving the numbers of your doctor, hospital, poison control, police, fire department and your home address. But if you have children at home, would they know how to use the phone in an emergency? Make sure they do.

Show them where you keep the emergency numbers and how to call the operator if necessary. Your babysitter should be told who to call, too. Know if 911 can be dialed for fire, medical and police help in your area. Nobody likes to think about emergencies at home. But, it's better to give it a little thought now than be sorry you didn't later. Why not check out the family on your emergency phone call procedure right now?

Chester's win tourney

Chester's Boat Livery beat the Air Force 13-11 Monday night to win the Charlevoix Township Slow-Pitch Tournament.

Chester's came from a 8-2 deficit to win the contest. The winners tallied six times in the fifth to tie the score.

Earlier in tourney play, Chester's had beaten Kuontz 21-10 (John Hutchinson homered), McArts 15-9 (Hutchinson and Dick Burdette homered), Wujans 21-10 (Terry Drew homered), the Air Force 12-3 (Burdette homered), VFW 9-6 and Tri-County 7-5 (Hutchinson homering for Chester's and Jerry Keil homering for Tri-County). Chester's only loss came to the Air Force 12-9 (Noa homering for the Air Force and Hutchinson homering for Chester's).

Air Force in reaching the finals had beaten McArts 23-6 (Larry Emerick, Jim Hill, Bill Hargrove, and Ted Summerfield homered), Koontz 13-10 Dotson homering for the Air Force and Dave Boss homering for Koontz) and, of course, Chester's.

Hutchinson received the tournament's Most Valuable Player Award. He was also the home run champ. Noa of the Air Force was named best infielder, Rolland Walls of the Air Force was selected best outfielder, Dotson of the Air Force won the Sportsmanship Award and Larry Durrah of Chester was batting champ.

1978 Charlevoix Township Slowpitch Play-off Tournament champions, Chester's Boat Livery, are pictured following the last game in which they defeated Air Force 13-11. They are back row (l to r): Larry Durrah, Joe Baillargeon, Greg Revoir, pitcher, Pat Donnelly, Robert Hilton, Jeff Baillargeon, Tim DeYoung, Tom Pence, Tom Arnold, Dick Burdette. Front row: Denny LaCroix, Terry Drew, John Hutchinson, Dave Charbeneau.

Come to our Open House and find out.

In 32 years Capp has made quality custom-built housing affordable for over 50,000 families.

We don't build pre-fab or modular houses. We erect the home of your choice, stick by stick, on your lot and the foundation you provide using only top-quality materials.

By the time our carpenters leave your house is fully enclosed and ready for you to finish.

We provide all the necessary materials you need to finish it yourself. Following our concise step-by-step instructions, you can complete your dream home at an undreamed of price.

By finishing it themselves, many Capp customers save thousands of dollars compared to what they'd pay a general contractor to build the same home on the same lot.

You don't have to be a craftsman, either. Just crafty. You can act as your own general contractor, hiring local help, and still come out money ahead.

Either way, you'll get a home that's uniquely yours. A custom-built home designed to your personal specifications.

One that will be worth far more than you paid for it the day you move in.

Capp Homes are such a good value they qualify for FHA, VA, Farm Home and conventional mortgages. If you can't get financing from another lender, Capp has millions in mortgage money available at conventional terms to qualified buyers.

You may even be able to use the equity built up in your present home or building site to get started on a new Capp Home.

Come see for yourself at a Capp Open House. You'll have a chance to inspect a Capp Home that's partially completed, and decide whether you're cut out to finish a Capp Home.

State apple season nears

The early summer Michigan apple season nears completion with the harvesting of Paulared apples, a new late summer variety.

Consumers can expect to find Paulareds on the market between the middle of August through the middle of September. Ideal growing conditions have contributed to high quality.

Generally, this apple has excellent color, slightly tart flavor and light to creamy flesh. Paulareds are known as an all-purpose apple. They are good for eating out-of-hand, pies, sauces and salads. This new apple variety is a good keeper for several weeks under refrigeration.

Paulareds may be identified by checking the consumer pack for the name of the variety.

This new summer variety was discovered several years on the Lewis Arends Orchard near Sparta. The apple was named "Paulared" after Arends' wife, Pauline.

Environmentalists, Medusa reach settlement on suit

A suit filed over two months ago by the Committee for the Preservation of the Environment against the Medusa Cement Co. was settled out-of-court Friday.

The committee had filed the suit in an effort to halt construction at the cement plant until an environmental impact study could be completed. Medusa is in the process of expanding its plant operations and converting to a dry process.

According to Richard Aull, chairman of the committee, there were three key factors in the settlement: 1) most of the goals of the committee had been achieved 2) the committee had been assured by several state agencies - including the governor's office - that Medusa would be monitored closely and 3) the suit was splitting the community.

Aull said the chances of getting an environmental impact study are "very, very slim." The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has said that an impact study is not necessary.

Last week in Traverse City, the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission placed six more restrictions on the plant, most dealing with emission controls. Medusa officials said they would comply with the additional amendments on their installation permit and, in fact, had already started to meet the requirements.

"We're just going to sit back and see if they do what they say they are going to do," Aull said, indicating the committee had not disbanded. "We'll still be here as a watchdog."

The suit was dismissed "without prejudice" by Charlevoix County Circuit Judge Martin Breighner, which means the committee cannot sue Medusa again on the same issue.

Aull said allegations that the committee was attempting to shut Medusa down were false.

"Nothing could be farther from the truth," he said. "We were not out to get Medusa, all we wanted was for Medusa to clean up their act and be a good neighbor."

Aull said there will be no more problems if Medusa lives up to their promises.

Meanwhile, Medusa officials said they will continue to inform the public about their ongoing programs to control air and noise pollution.

Elbert Kaiser, plant manager, said the company will ask for space from the Charlevoix Library and the Charlevoix Township Board for displays and informational material relating to the plant conversion and pollution control efforts.

Examples of material to be placed on display for public inspection include the following:

- Report from Kaiser Engineers detailing their experience in cement plant design, engineering and construction, with particular reference to their knowledge of and experience with the flash calcine process of cement manufacturing.
- Report from the Alabama Air Pollution Control Commission confirming compliance of the Ragland, Ala cement manufacturing plant with the EPA New Source Performance Standards.
- Report from Austin Powder Company concerning blasting procedures and techniques employed at our Charlevoix plant and their recommendations for modifications to such procedures and techniques.
- Report focusing upon sources of noise from plant operations which will be modified during the conversion and expansion program, thereby resulting in some noise abatement.
- Report on a generalized quarry development plan indicating the anticipated direction and rate of quarrying activities.

Council still likes Hiller property

The Charlevoix Common Council Monday once again expressed interest in purchasing the Charlevoix Lumber Company owned by James Hiller. But council also learned that Hiller has been made an offer for the property by another party.

If that offer should fall through, however, there is a possibility that council will try and secure a one year option on the 2.12 acre lot that fronts Round Lake. Council did authorize Mayor Sam Supernaw to meet with Hiller and inform him of council's interest.

George Richardson, head of the commercial development department for Ski and Shore Realty, told council that three other developers have looked at the property in the last two weeks despite the cost, reported to be $500,000.

"The price hasn't bothered any of them," Richardson said.

According to Supernaw, the state equalized valuation of the property is $122,700.

The city planning commission has recommended the city buy the property and establish two parking lots (one behind the existing warehouse building next to the Lodge and another on the east side of the building), docking facilities and a park.

Council should know in four to five weeks if the offer on the property has been accepted.

In other action, council:

- Approved the Rules of Order.
- Offered no objections to a request by Tom Duke for a 82 foot pier off the north bank of Round Lake.
- Authorized Daverman Associates, Inc., to begin an engineering study on the city's electric system.
- Authorized Keystone Construction to build an addition on to the city garage.
- Accepted a report from Granger Engineering on a proposal to improve the city water utility system and authorized the company to make pre-applications for grant consideration to Farmers Home Administration.
- Appointed Judy Przybylski as a delegate to the Michigan Public Employees Pension Fund Conference. Jack Moll was picked as the alternate.
- Discussed the uniform traffic code and the administrative services code.
- Tabled a proposal on Boss Engineering Company for engineering and supervision of Mt. McSauba project.

Council also acted as the board of appeals last night and approved a lot split for D. Dawson Way and tabled a request for a variance from Tim and Tricia Doan to allow for a garage storage building.

Fleenor, Parton highlight fair

Auto daredevil Dan Fleenor and country singer Stella Parton will be the featured attractions this week at the Emmet County Fair in Petoskey.

Fleenor, a veteran on the fair circuit, has captivated audiences with his stunt driving maneuvers. Recognized as the "Dean of Daredevils," Fleenor guarantees "action" in his auto stunt shows, scheduled for Friday night.

Dan Fleenor

"People like action," he said. "Go to an automobile race and you may see two dozen high powered cars chasing each other in circles for two hours. Sometimes they don't even change position, much less crash. But go to an auto daredevil show and you'll see crashes. The Hurricane Helldrivers stage two or more every show. You'll see men and women risking their lives - and a heck of a lot of action."

The Hurricane Helldrivers Fleenor refers to, are his cohorts in the auto stunt show. Their repetoire includes hair-raising high speed chases and bone-jarring crashes, "just like you see in the movies." Specialty acts include the motorcycle "Leap of Death" over a row of parked cars, the "Slide for Life" where a daredevil drops from the rear of a speeding car, and, of course, the most famous stunt of all, the ramp-to-ramp leap 60 feet through space with a new car.

"People think we have special cars, but we don't do anything to them," Fleenor said. "They are late model stock Plymouths.

"They don't have roll cages or special equipment. You can do the same thing we do with your own car, but we don't recommend it."

Fleenor does not waste time getting to the "meat and potatoes" of his act. He starts his show with crashes.

"They are the simplest things to do, and they illustrate to the crowd how much nerve you've got," he explained.

"We don't use roll cages because people like to see metal fly. We always do the crashes, whether it's rain or shine, and that probably draws the loudest applause because that's what the fans expect from the advertising."

On the opposite end of the noise spectrum is Thursday night's star attraction, Stella Parton.

Ms. Parton was one of five nominees for "Female Country Vocalist." She competed with Debby Boone, Crystal Gayle, Helen Cornelius and Janie Fricke for the title, which is a good indication of how talented she is.

The Tennessee native received a lot of attention in 1975 when she released a song titled "Ode to Olivia." The song was in defense of Olivia Newton-John, who had won numerous country music awards amid protests that she wasn't really "Country."

"I felt we had no right to say who was country and who wasn't," she said. "I figured, let her sing her songs and do her thing."

Ms. Parton is touring with her own band, The Playboys, Freddy Fender's old backup band.

Crowd protests fishing

NORWOOD – A large throng of citizens, mostly sports fishermen, gathered at the township park again last night protesting the Indians use of gill nets in fishing Lake Michigan waters.

About 150 people showed up at the park, which is on the lake, while several others attended a township board meeting asking the board to enforce a township ordinance which governs the operation of the park and beaches.

A large crowd also gathered on Sunday evening, and police said a near confrontation almost erupted between the Indians and the sports fishermen. Reportedly, 12 truckloads of fish were taken Monday morning by the Indians, according to one witness.

School board ratifies contract

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday night, ratified the teachers contract as presented.

No details of the contract will be available until the contract is ratified by the Northern Michigan Education Association at a meeting scheduled to be held in Gaylord Aug. 24.

Neither the board nor Thomas Sothard, speaking for the Charlevoix Education Association, offered any clue as to the length or terms of the contract.

The problem of obtaining unit ventilators so the heating system at the Charlevoix Middle School can be completed before cold weather comes to the area was again discussed. John Haggard, whose company, Haggard Plumbing, is the prime contractor on the project, said that he had received a commitment from the Train Company that the 16 units needed for the project could be delivered the week of Sept. 25. He said that would mean anytime within the week and added that the unit ventilators could be installed by mid-October. He said the units would cost an additional $3,767 which his company was prepared to pay.

Originally, Haggard Plumbing had contracted with the Nesbitt Company for the units with delivery scheduled by mid-August. A company move from Philadelphia to a plant in Tennessee plus labor troubles set the delivery date back two months. Haggard's then received a commitment for delivery in late August but that was changed to Nov, 17. With the cold weather well upon northern Michigan by that date, both board and Haggard's have been seeking alternatives.

The mid-October delivery date was the most recent solution.

In other scheduled action, the board approved the Acceleration Policy. Under this policy, a student, if he or she meets certain criteria, may enroll at North Central Michigan College. The stipulations he must meet are spelled out in the new policy. They relate to the number of high school classes the student must take, the credit to be given toward high school graduation, grade averages and how they would be computed and the financing of college tuition, textbooks, fees and transportation which will be the obligation of the student or his or her parents.

Approval was given on a tuition request for Sean VanAndel, a junior from Ellsworth. He will attend Charlevoix High School when school opens. The tuition rates for the coming year will be $1,630.64 for elementary (K-8) students and $1,687.71 for secondary or high school students.

Approval was given for the cost of sports tickets for the 1978-79 school year. In approving the new ticket fees, Vane H. Smith, high school principal, said the new rates are comparable with those charged in other Michigan Huron Shores League schools. The rates will be as follows: single adult season ticket $25; football, $10; basketball, $15; student tickets (K-12), $10 and full family, $45. The full family ticket or the adult season ticket are good for all high school home sports events.

Bids for bread buns, milk and garbage service were opened and accepted for the upcoming school year. Grocer's Baking Co. was awarded the bid for breads and buns. The prices were 20 oz. white bread, .32; 24 oz., .385; wheat, .435; hamburg buns oz., .40 and hot dog buns doz., .40. The bids were also received from Schafer's bread.

Ideal Dairy was given the milk bid for the second year. The rates are .1113, homogenized; .1193, chocolate and .1093, two percent. The Northern Michigan Dairy Co. was the second bidder. Sealtest did not submit a bid.

The bid for garbage service, being the only one submitted, went to the Charlevoix Garbage Co. whose rates are $145 per month during the school year and $29 per month during the summer. This was the only bid received though a bid from a second company was requested.

The sale of the trampoline was tabled for the present. It will be stored until it can be sold.

The date of 8 p.m. Sept. 12 was set as the meeting for the board to set the goals for the year. The meeting will be held at the high school study hall.

A delegation headed by Mrs. Donald DeMoor attended the meeting to ask that tennis be added as a girls' sport. It was explained that the high school team is open to both boys and girls but because girls are not the strong players boys are they seldom make the team. The group asked that girls tennis be initiated as a fall sport for girls. Various aspects of the proposed sport were discussed. The board gave its moral but not its financial sport to the program at this time. A committee composed of interested parents, Smith and Dale Burge, athletic director, was scheduled so that details of the proposed program could be worked out.

The board, which has been seeking a lot on which to construct a building trades house, announced that James Elliott had agreed to sell a lot in Hampton Village as a site for the next building trades house. The details of the transaction are to be settled prior to the purchase.

Sept. 12 and 18 were set as the dates for the next two meetings.

Swanson resigns due to illness

The Charlevoix Common Council regretfully accepted the resignation of Second Ward Alderman Lawrence "Stub" Swanson Monday night.

Swanson said in a letter to council that he was resigning due to illness. He was elected to council in April.

Under the City Charter, council has 30 days to find a successor.

When you buy that first house you will probably have mixed feelings. On the one hand you will feel a little frightened by the idea that if anything breaks there is no landlord to call and if you decide you don't like the neighborhood you can't just pick up and move. On the other hand you know that every mortgage payment is not just thrown away, as rent payments often seem to be. And you know that you have this whole house to put your own special mark on, something of your very own to make a home out of. Buying a house can be one of the most exciting things you ever do.

The house you decide to buy will now involve your whole life and at THOMAS REAL ESTATE, 101 Bridge St., 547-4494 we feel it involves our future equally. Who Goes To A Chiropractor?

Chiropractic patients represent every walk of life, social strata and economic level. This year over 30,000,000 Americans will receive Chiropractic adjustments for hundreds of ailments. All age groups receive Chiropractic adjustments, from infants to senior citizens.

· Children are especially responsive to Chiropractic adjustments and a spinal analysis is recommended for all children to determine the existence of developmental defects and postural trends which can lead to chronic conditions later in life.

As we become more aware of our environment with all the stress on water and air pollution it is only natural for us to think of ourselves and how we pollute our bodies. Perhaps, this is one of the reasons Chiropractic is growing and becoming ever so popular in the health field. Chiropractors maintain that you were born with health and have all the natural ability inside you to stay healthy without the influence of drugs and surgery. Many people are looking for a better answer and can find it in the office of a competent Chiropractor.

Just about everyone, it seems, goes to a Chiropractor and the number is increasing annually. Are you looking for 100% health and can't find it? Look to Chiropractic. Enjoy good and abundant health...try Chiropractic...it's a natural.

What? Hand, foot and mouth disease!

"You've got hand, foot and mouth disease," the woman gasped as she took a step backward from the fence surrounding the T-ball field.

An off-duty reporter was watching a ballgame, madly cheering for her child's team, when another parent noticed her hands. The reporter's hand were covered with tiny blister-like sores, which were assumed to be nettles from over zealous gardening.

Others stared and took large steps back from the victim.

"Hand, foot and mouth disease," everyone choked. Most began laughing.

The reporter studied her hands.

"You know, I was beginning to wonder if there wasn't something more to this. My feet sting, too, and I do have some canker sores."

A Charlevoix Area Hospital staff physician interviewed later, admitted there seemed to be a mini-epidemic of "hand, foot and mouth disease".

Actually he explained, this is nothing to become unduly alarmed over. "It is not a dangerous disease," he assured the inquirer, one of many callers during the last week.

"Hand, foot and mouth disease is a syndrome of the Coxsackie Virus," he continued.

The affliction is recognized by its annoying symptoms–small redish blister-like sores on hands and feet and inside the mouth, all of which sting. Some people experience fevers. It runs its course in a week.

"There is no treatment for the disease," the physician continued, "Except you may treat the symptoms. You can take aspirin for pain and fever. You can gargle if you have a sore throat, which sometimes occurs with the disease."

Secondary problems are possible after hand, foot and mouth disease, as with any disease, so one ought to consult a physician if one has more than a mild case and if a fever lasts more than a few days, physicians advise.

The doctor read from a medical text to the reporter, citing dates of studies and information on the Coxsackie Virus, of which there seems to be many sub-groups. Most of the text was in another language – medical – but the intelligible sections indicated that Coxsackie Virus is a summer disease but not tremendously common.

The extent of the local occurrence – mini-epidemic – is hard to chart. Not everyone recognizes what they have and is not always willing to expose themselves.

Pat Sherman, whose two children had it, reports a neighbor made the observation, "Only local people are getting this, not summer visitors."

The Charlevoix Area Hospital physician's reaction to this was a quiet chuckle and "Oh, no. I've seen all types with it."

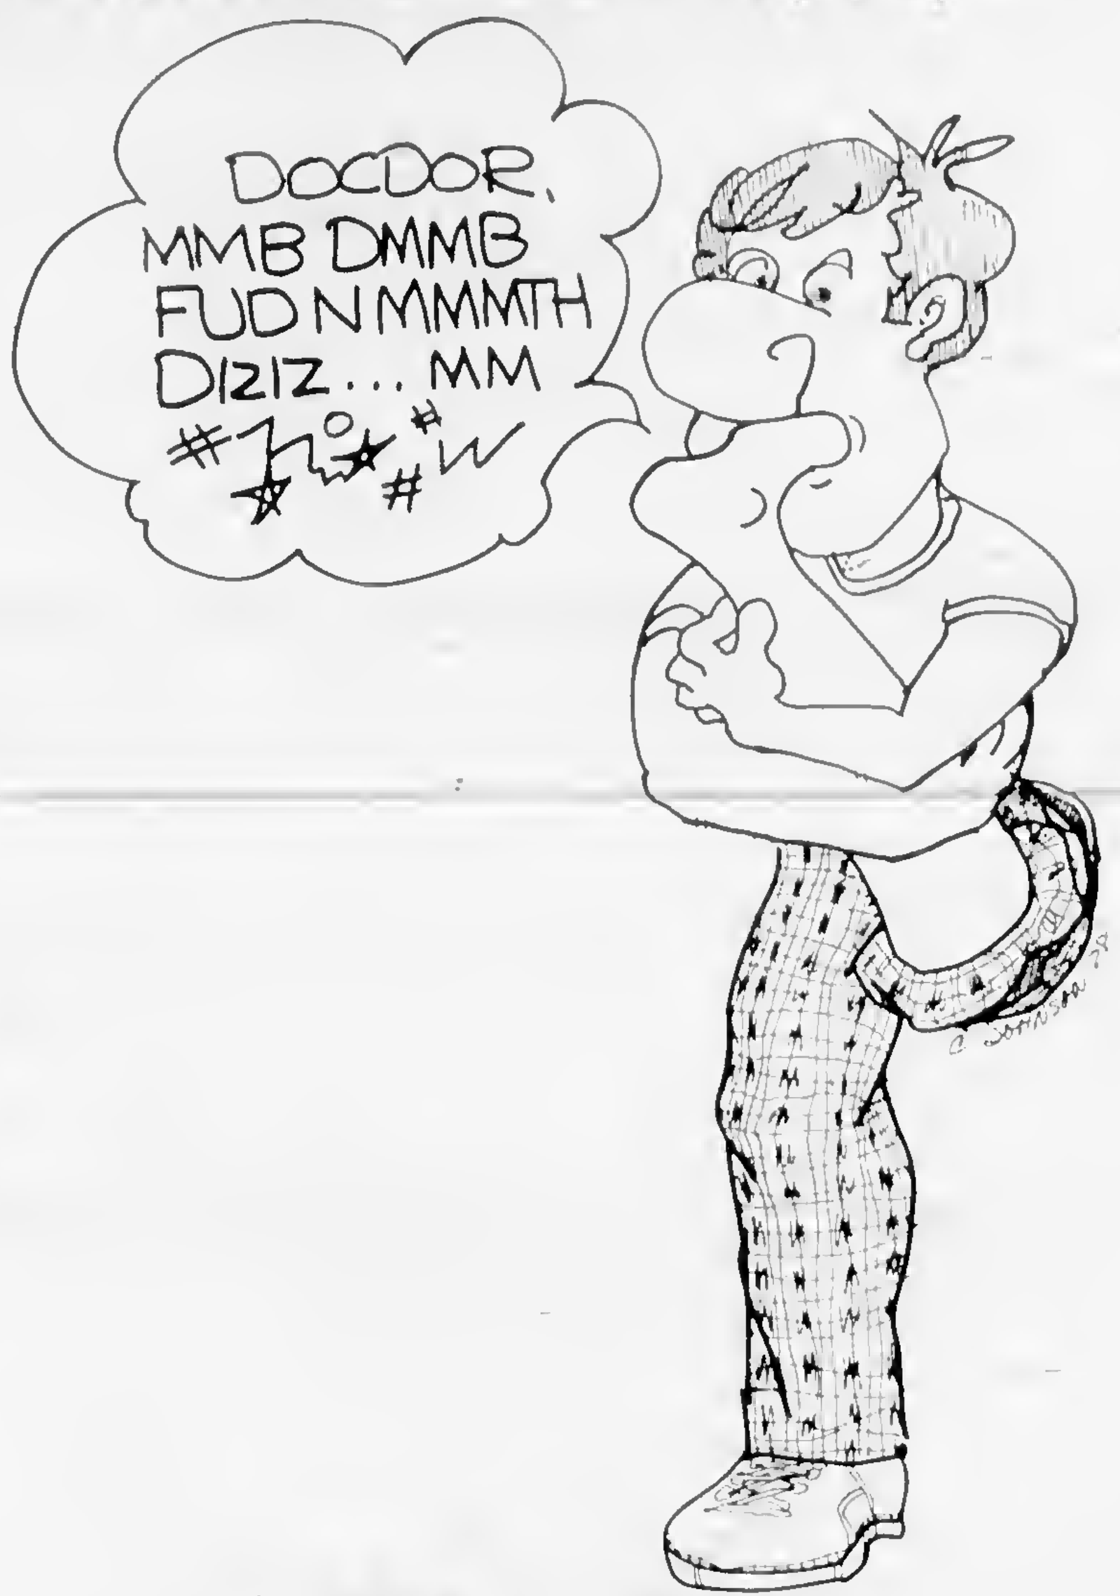
Where it started has been the grist for speculation: T-ball, day camp, at the beach. Probably all those places are likely candidates.

Text books say hand, foot and mouth disease is most common in children between one and seven years old.

"Don't bank on that," is this reporter's observation.

There is no accurate count of the number of victims this summer. The Health Department has not reported or received reports on it. Guesses from area physicians and nurses would put the number over 20 as of this week.

But those are only guesses. It could well be that people with this disease, that causes friends to laugh, point and take steps backwards, are simply walking around with hands in our pockets, shoes on feet and mouths temporarily shut.



Don Voisin glides across the water.

Voisin takes top honors in speed boat race

When Don Voisin started racing power boats, it took him five years before he could win his first race. Now the wins are coming with regularity.

Voisin's latest win came just over a week ago when he captured the American Power Boat Association short course stock outboard (D stock division) national championship at Sarnac Lake, N.Y.

Voisin also qualified for the finals in two other divisions, and may have won another title had he not flipped his boat during the C stock runabout race.

"I couldn't believe it," Voisin said, recalling the flip. "It happened so fast.

"I haven't flipped a boat since 1973. I did a complete 360 degree flip and landed right side up."

Voisin took a lot of good natured ribbing from his friends after his boat flipped, but when the championships ended it was Voisin who had the last laugh.

This was the third year Voisin had tried his skill in the short course national championships. "Marathon racing is my bag," Voisin said. And to prove it he has seven first place trophies at home, some on the fireplace mantle and others stashed away in a bedroom. Voisin defended his marathon championship in June at Rumson, N.J.

"The odds of winning both (the marathon championship and a short course championship) are slim," he said. "I don't mind tooting my horns about that."

By winning the short course D stock division, Voisin has guaranteed himself a position in nest year's final, which will be held in either Wisconsin or New Jersey. At least for this race, he will not have to worry about qualifying.

Born and raised near Mullett Lake, Voisin first started racing in 1963.

"I competed in six marathons before I finally finished one," he said. "And I did not win a race until 1958 when I won the national marathon championship at Trenton, N.J.

"So my first win was a biggie. I shocked myself."

Since, Voisin has been almost unbeatable in marathon competition. He has won the national marathon title seven of the last 11 years.

According to Voisin, there is a lot of psychology involved in racing. Particularly if you get the lead in a race.

Three years ago in a national championship race at Hinton, W. Va., Voisin zoomed out to a big lead. But in his eagerness to get out in front Voisin lost track of the buoys and eventually missed one of the five on the course, for which he was disqualfied.

"I couldn't believe it. I was shocked. You get out in front and all you think about is winning."

Besides racing boats, Voisin also builds them. During the racing season (February through October) his basement serves as a workshop. If he's not cutting the wood frame or sanding down the wood finish, quite likely he's working on the engine.

"You have to do your own motor work, every ounce of it," he said. "It's the only way you are going to win.

"You have to know your engine because if it's not running good you have to know why it's not running good."

Voisin, co-partner of the Charlevoix Insurance Agency, was not the only local racer to compete in the national short course championship this month. Don Hagerl, an instructor at North Central Michigan College, also raced, but he did not bring home any hardware.

Clocks return home and find visitor

The Clocks were welcomed by a very outdoorsy aroma when they arrived home late Friday after a week-long journey through the vast reaches of Quebec Province.

"There's a skunk under the porch," Judy informed me, after sniffing the air.

"He's just passing through the neighborhood," I countered sleepily. "You won't notice a thing in the morning."

However I was wrong. The skunky aroma was stronger than ever when I ventured forth Saturday to survey the premises. I had visions of having to tear down the porch to rout the little critter.

By noon, fortunately, the kids discovered the source of our discomfort. A rather large skunk lay dead under our forsythia bush.

Of course, we don't know how he got there. He could have been hit by a car and crawled up on the lawn to die or he could have chanced upon some rat poison. A dog might have dispatched him to animal heaven.

But there was no doubt about one thing: He was very, very dead and had been for some time.

I considered digging a hole in the backyard and disposing of the carcass, but I'm not all that excited about messing around with dead creatures, particularly skunks. Instead I trotted out to the compost pile with my wheelbarrel, filled it with rich topsoil and created a nice grave on top of the deceased intruder.

Now the kids are wondering if the forsythia will smell different come spring.

SKUNKS aside, it is nice to be back in Charlevoix. We spent most of Tuesday in one of the world's most beautiful cities – Montreal – and all I could think about was the cool, clear water of Lake Michigan, just a hop, skip and a jump from our front door in Charlevoix.

The temperatre was in the mid-90's and Montreal, located on the flood plains of the lower St. Lawrence River, was seething in a thick belt of auto exhaust and industrial pollution.

We "did" Montreal's old town and then hurried out to get a glimpse of Olympic Stadium and the Olympic housing complex. We had planned to take a subway out to Ile Ste. Helene to see the "Man and His World" exhibit. But instead we voted to return to our cabin on the banks of the Ottawa River estuary west of Montreal and wile away the rest of the afternoon at a nearby campground swimming pool.

It was refreshing – but it couldn't hold a candle to Lake Michigan.

THE WEATHER in Montreal was a radical departure from the climate we had left only a few hours before on Boyer Lake near Louvicourt in northern Quebec. When we awoke Monday morning, the temperature was in the 30's. And although there wasn't any frost, there could well have been.

A bush pilot who keeps his pontoon plane on Boyer Lake told us that it had snowed nearby the week before and that the weather in that part of the world appears to be cooling off. He said the moose are moving south and a large herd of 1,000 caribou has moved into the area and is increasing at the rate of 10 a year.

He thinks another ice age may be in the making. But I can tell you it will be quite some time before the next glacier pushes Montreal into the St. Lawrence River.

Leaky pipes costs money

The City of Charlevoix has leaky water pipes. Although that may seem insignificant, those leaky water pipes are costing us money.

According to City Manager Norman Gaffney, the city is losing up to 50 percent of the water it's pumping. Water loss is determined by comparing the amount of water pumped into the city system with the amount of water billed for.

"We're losing several thousand dollars just in the cost of the electrical pumping fees because we aren't charging for the use of that water," Gaffney said recently. "And we know that no one is stealing the water or using it without paying for it because it is not going through the waste water treatment plant."

So where is it going?

Hoping to find out, city officials recently hired Granger Engineering of Cadillac to sound test the water pipes. After completing the testing, Granger submitted a report to the city officials listing several areas where leaky water pipes were detected. And, according to one city official, those leaks will be fixed. But, the report said, those pipes detected leaking would not cause a 50 percent loss in water.

Gaffney believes a major leak has gone undetected, quite possibly in the park area near the band shell where it would be harder to detect.

It's our hope that city officials can solve the problem and soon because it's money down the drain.

The test sounding report will help city officials in this quest since it specifically points out the areas where pipes are leaking. Now if city officials can only find the main culprit.

Canadian park excellent for color

Potpourri:

Travel – If you still have vacation time left this year, I suggest you consider a trip to the Agawa Canyon during the color season. It's spectacular.

The canyon is in Lake Superior Provincial Park about 100 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, Canada. From Charlevoix, it would take you between 3 to 4 hours to get there by car.

There are several sites of interest in the park. Foremost, of course, is the canyon. A good way to see the canyon is to board a train at Frater and get off at Canyon Station. From here, you can hike until your heart's content. If you are really into hiking, take the trail up the canyon wall that leads to Black Beaver Lake.

Another good hiking trail is at the Rabbit Blanket Campground, which is northwest of the canyon. This trail leads from the campground to Peat Mountain, one of the highest points in the park. Atop the mountain, you can see Peat and Foam lokes, the latter of which has a couple of nice campsites along the beach.

Besides hiking, canoeing is also a good way to see the fall color. The Agawa and Sand rivers are excellent waters for canoeing.

Chess – Whatever happened to Bobby Fisher?

I raise this question because Anatoly Karpuv and Viktor Korchnoi are now locking horns to determine the next world chess champion. Karpov leads 3-1. The first player to win six games wins the title and $350,000.

For the most part, though, the championship series has been dull. It only goes to show how much the game needs Fisher, the defending champ, who mysteriously went into seclusion and forfeited his title.

Fisher, like Muhammad Ali, was a reporter's delight. He always made good press. And chess, like boxing, thrived because of it.

If you are a chess player and would like a chance to compete against some of the best players in the state, sign up for the Michigan Open Chess Championship to be held Sept. 1-4 at Michigan State University. The winner will be recognized as the 1976 Michigan Chess Champion.

There is an entry fee and, in addition, each player must have membership in the U.S. Chess Federation and the Michigan Chess Association. Dues for both organizations can be paid at the tournament site.

Hockey – The Detroit Red Wings got "raped." That much is obvious, after the Wings lost Dale McCourt to Los Angeles as compensation for Rogie Vachon.

But Red Wing fans should not sulk. How would you like to be a fan of the Minnesota Twins? They lost Larry Hisle and Lyman Bostock without getting anybody in return.

Birthday gift: Foreclosure of home

It was on my birthday that my wife and I discussed the fact that the government is foreclosing on our home.

We were eating out because there were no eggs in the house. My wife said she couldn't make a birthday cake without eggs. She refused to frost a pot roast.

So we were dining at Wellington's, in Grosse Pointe, a restaurant so properly English that it refuses to make a vulgar display of its name. There is no sign outside identifying it. The right people know how to find the right restaurants without following trails.

"How come you brought me here?" Pat asked, noting that the waiters were wearing tuxedos and the piano player was playing songs that couldn't be hummed.

"I was attracted by the way the building is decorated on the outside," I explained. "I thought it was an International Pancake House."

The Wellington food was great and Pat was impressed. Her cup overflowed when the woman at the next table, a stranger, leaned over and said she simply loved Pat's dress.

"It looks like it came from Margaret Rice," the woman said, and Pat gushed her gratitude for the compliment.

"My wife made that dress herself," I told the leaning woman.

Pat picked up her saucer and poured the overflow back into her cup. Later, when the kind woman had leaned back into her own plate, Pat explained that she should have hit me with the saucer.

"It's not classy to make your own dresses," she explained. "Margaret Rice is one of the most exclusive shops in Grosse Pointe. Why did you have to tell that woman that I'm a sewing lady who usually has her mouth full of pins?"

"People who live in HUD houses shouldn't put on fancy airs," I exploined. "It makes the other taxpayers mad."

It's true. A federal judge recently ruled that the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development should foreclose on the mortgoge it holds on 1300 Lafayette East, the apartment building where we live.

"When you convinced me to sell our home in the country and move into the big city, you said we'd live in a fancy high-rise apartment," Pat said. "Now we live in HUD housing. It will be hard to enjoy the view from the 26th floor through boarded-up windows."

"You're not looking at this situation the right way," I said. "It's true that HUD guaranteed the building mortgage, and the owner fell behind in the payments, so HUD now owns the building. But don't forget that HUD is the United States government which is owned by the taxpayers and we are taxpayers so we now own our own apartment building.

"Wouldn't you rather own a 28-floor high rise than a little home in the country?" I asked.

"It was 3 months ago that I was promised a new sink for the kitchen. It hasn't been installed yet, and I've been getting madder and madder at the landlord," Pat said. "Are you now telling me that I should be mad at myself?"

"If you have been paying your taxes right along, you are now part owner of that huge building. That's the way the great American system works," I said. "You are also part owner of the Washington Monument."

"HUD housing usually stands vacant and ruins neighborhoods. Derelicts break in and sleep on the floor and burn the homes down," Pat said. "Is that what's going to happen to our building?"

"Don't worry," I said. "A local HUD director said HUD properties no lunger ruin neighborhoods. He said our building will be put in top-notch repair and then sold to the highest bidder. We're all going to be rich."

"Did he say anything about my sink?" she asked.

"It's been ordered and, judging from my previous experience with the government, it will be installed very soon. It will be installed in the Washington Monument."

How well do you know your children?

Parents have been under fire a lot lately for not knowing their children. They've been accused of selfishly pursuing their own goals and not giving a tinker's toot who their children are, where they are, or where they've been.

This is quite an indictment, and to make a distinction between who take their job seriously and those who don't I offer today a quiz on "HOW WELL DO YOU KNOW YOUR CHILDREN"

1. Can you name three of their best friends by their first and last names?
2. Do you know when they last changed their underwear?
3. Do you know for a fact that the voice from under the bathroom door belongs to your nine-year-old?
4. Do you know what books are being hidden that they think you don't know that you know they're reading?
5. Do you communicate? Or was the last they spoke to you when the smoke alarm went off in their room?
6. Do you know where their school is located?
7. Would you recognize your child if the braces were removed?
8. When it's 11 o'clock do they know where their parents are?
9. Can you read their report card without an interpreter?
10. Did they have to flunk biology before you realized they were taking it?
11. How long has it been since they brought their gym shorts home to be laundered?
12. Do you know what they want to be this week when they grow up?
13. What are their allergies besides, soap, homework and closing doors?
14. Who are their heroes? Heroines?
15. What do they do with their allowance?
16. What's under their beds?
17. What makes them laugh? Cry?
18. What size are their shoes?
19. Have you ever watched them play anything competitively?
20. Do you understand what was written under their pictures in the yearbook?
21. Who are their favorite relatives? Why?

If you bombed out on the above 21, you can redeem yourself by answering, "How do they feel about themselves?" and still get a pretty good score.

Show deserved coverage

Editor:

Where was your coverage on the 16th annual Portside Art Fair in East Jordan? Since several of your residents had entered the art show it seems like it would have been of interest to the readers of the Charlevoix Courier to have covered this event! Think about five people from Charlevoix plus residents of Boyne City also. I do not feel the Courier is giving complete coverage for a newspaper. It used to in years gone by. But lately it has not been on the ball. What is happening to the Charlevoix Courier? One of your Charlevoix residents won a blue ribbon for first place in people's choice. I do believe this art show warranted coverage in your newspaper! Let's get busy and show some appreciation for the people of Charlevoix who are artists.

Sincerely Yours,
Mrs. Chas. Krulik

Keep city clean

Editor:

I take a walk each morning
Before most people wake,
And see the sunrise magically,
As it kisses woods and lake.

I have to step most carefully.
And wear my oldest shoes.
Because the walks are dirty.
And covered with "doggy-dos"

So lets all get together.
And have no more such shame.
So Charlevoix the Beautiful
Will justify its name.

Pharmacy Footnotes

Infectious mononucleosis, formerly called glandular fever is most prevalent in the age group seventeen to twenty five. It is an acute communicable disease characterized by fever, sore throat, swollen glands, fatigue, and loss of vitality. The symptoms are frequently vague and may resemble those of other communicable diseases, including the common cold. If one suspects mononucleosis he should see his doctor for correct diagnosis and directions for medication and care.

Meet Charlevoix

Eldon Potter

Eldon Potter

Eldon Potter is coach of Charlevoix's only Fast-Pitch team, which won the Venetian Tournament. This week Potter tells the Courier about the team and Fast-Pitch in general.

COURIER: Who sponsors your team?

POTTER: The Charlevoix County State Bank.

COURIER: Where do you play?

POTTER: We played in the Petoskey Fast-Pitch League. There were eight teams in the League and we played 14 games. We would up in the middle.

COURIER: What about the Venetian Tournament?

POTTER: There were 12 teams in the tournament, and we won it. The tournament was played on the Charlevoix city ball field. We also played in the Traverse City tournament but didn't do too well in it.

COURIER: Is your season over?

POTTER: No, right now (last week) we're playing in Cheboygan in the District Tournament. We're on top and have a game Friday night. If we win than we go to the Regional in Ludington. If we lose, we have to play again. There are 17 teams in the tournament.

COURIER: What's the difference between Fast-Pitch and Slo-Pitch?

POTTER: About 75 or 80 miles an hour. They throw as hard and as fast as they can in Fast-Pitch. One well-known pitcher was clocked at 120 miles an hour.

COURIER: What's the difference in rules?

POTTER: You can steal bases in Fast-Pitch, and you can bunt. Also, there are nine players on Fast-Pitch teams instead of the 10 on Slo-Pitch. And if you're 10 runs ahead after five innings in Fast-Pitch, the game is called. Fast-Pitch is a much more interesting game – it takes more concentration to hit the ball.

COURIER: How far is it from the pitcher's mound to home plate?

POTTER: Forty-seven feet.

COURIER: Do you use the same balls and bats that are used in Slo-Pitch?

POTTER: Yes, and the bats are usually aluminum.

COURIER: Do your players change from year to year?

POTTER: Some do and some have played with us for at least three years. We go out and find players. We picked up four players from Buss' team, which was disbanded.

COURIER: How did you become involved in Fast-Pitch?

POTTER: I started playing about 35 years ago. When the kids got older, they started in the Peanut League. Now Jim and Larry both play on our team. Jim pitches and Larry plays left field and sometimes pitches.

COURIER: Why do you think Fast-Pitch is dying out?

POTTER: Kids don't seem to want to work as hard as they have to in Fast-Pitch. Also, there's no junior League but they're trying to start one. Kids have to start young. Jim and Larry started pitching when they were eight or nine years old. There used to be a lot of Fast-Pitch. There wasn't any Slo-Pitch until the last few years. We really need Junior Fast-Pitch to bring the game back, and we need somebody to coach the kids, especially in pitching. Kids from 13 to 17, and even some younger ones, are capable of playing Fast-Pitch.

COURIER: What do you do as coach?

POTTER: I try to put the players in the position where they play best and in the batting order where they will help the most. When they're on base, I call for what I think we should do – hit and run, bunt, or swing away. I try to keep everbody happy. In tournaments we can only play the best players, but in league games, everybody gets a chance.

COURIER: Does the team ever just practice!

POTTER: We practice five or six times in the spring and play some exhibition games. The season starts Memorial Day.

COURIER: Who furnishes your equipment?

POTTER: The bank furnishes the uniforms and I furnish most of the equipment – balls and bats, etc. We don't play in many tournaments because they're rather expensive. Entry fees can run up to $100 a team. We have a wonderful bunch of boys and we have a good time. It also keeps the kids from doing things they shouldn't -- another reason for a Junior League. We thank the bank for their sponsorship.

COURIER: Tell us who your team members are.

COURIER: What do your sons Jim and Larry do when not playing ball?

Nellie Hiehle manager of Silent Sports North

New sports store opens

Nellie Hiehle likes peace and quiet. That's one reason she left behind a teaching job in Flint to venture north to Charlevoix. The second reason is that Nellie is the manager of Silent Sports North, a specialty store for cross country skiers and sailors.

Silent Sports North opened recently. It's located on US-31, south of the airport.

Although Silent Sports North will carry all the essential gear needed for cross country skiing and sailing, it is more than just a store.

For instance, if you don't know the proper techniques of cross country skiing and would like to ask one of the store's certified instructors. "That's what we're here for," Nellie said.

Instructors will give lessons at Windmill Farm, which is off the Boyne City Road. There will be 15 miles of groomed trails at Windmill Farm and the skier will have a choice of flat, gently rolling or hilly terrain from which to choose from. Instructors will teach you the basics – how to put skis on, how to hold the poles, how to climb hills, how to slow down on hills, how to get up if you fall, how to untangle your skis, etc – or if you're past that stage they'll teach you the telemark turn, which is for the more advanced skier.

They'll also help you decide what kind of clothing is best.

"Go through your closet and put together an outfit that fits comfortably, does not bind or pull anywhere, will breathe when you perspire, yet will give you protection against wind and chill," Nellie said.

She adds that later you might want to invest in a pair of over the knee wool socks, a pair of knickers and a wool sweater.

Silent Sports North will carry the Norwegian skis – Haugen and Asnes – as its main line. There will be package deals available, which will include skis, poles, shoes and bindings. All work on the skis will be done at the store.

Nellie is hoping a local cross country ski club will be formed. While in Flint, she helped get one started and the club met every Sunday afternoon.

Devices to be installed

City Manager Norman M. Gaffney says the installation of outdoor meter reading devises will get into high gear this month.

The city council approved a resolution in 1977 which requires all citizens to have the outdoor meter reader installed. The cost is $18 or billed for twelve months at $1.50 per month.

Many housewives object to having men going through their homes who read or service meters of public utilities.

In many cases, the meter reader must go through the living room and, in slushy weather, there is danger of leaving tracks on the rug.

In many cases, the meters are placed in spots that are difficult for the meter reader to reach.

Also there are times when people are not at home and the meter cannot be read. This occurs quite frequently with so many housewives having employment.

This device has been perfected and can be fitted onto any of the water meters. The actual meter is placed on the outside of the house so it is not necessary for the meter reader to enter the home.

To expediate the installation so it is convenient please call and advise what time is most convenient. Gaffney further stated – the city would like to make all possible installations before inclement weather sets in.

Staublin a finalist

Arla Staublin of Charlevoix is one of five finalists in the 4th Annual Michigan Beef Cook-Off Contest, sponsored by the Michigan Beef Industry Commission. Over 100 recipes were submitterd from consumers throughout Michigan.

Mrs. Staublin's entry is called "Beef Flambe", which she describes as proof that an elegant meal can be prepared with less expensive cuts of meat.

Mrs. Staublin and the four other finalists will go to the Michigan State Fair on August 29 to prepare their culinary creations for a panel of judges. Entries will be judged on taste, appearance, originality, and practicality.

The state winner will represent Michigan at the National Cook-Off Sept. 14 and 15 in Oklahoma City and compete with other state winners for a top prize of $1,500.

Davis to send aide

Senate Minority Leader Robert W. Davis will be sending his administrative assistant, Bill Huber, to Charlevoix County Thursday.

Huber is Davis' district representative and spends most of his time in northern Michigan holding office hours. Anyone wishing to discuss opinions on state government, or having a problem which Davis could assist with is welcome to visit with Huber during the scheduled hours. An appointment is not necessary.

Huber relays his findings directly to Davis.

Huber's schedule for Thursday is as follows: 11:30 a.m.-1p.m. – Senior Citizen Nutrition Program, Senior Citizen Center, East Jordan.

Center gets free help

It's not often in this day and age when you can get something for nothing. But officials at the Bergmann Center did recently and they are most thankful.

Officials were in the process of asking for bids on facility repairs when local contractors Stan and Gary Smith volunteered to supply the labor free of charge.

The Smiths installed a redwood railing around the front ramp and stairway, changed the position of the front door and installed a cover over an electric wheel chair lift. The repairs were necessary to bring the Bergmann Center into compliance with CARF (Commission for Accreditation of Rehabiliation Facilities) regulations, administrator Garry Miller said. The center is to be evaluated this fall.

The Bergmann Center paid for the materials.

Lawmen attend meet

Twenty thousand new maps of Charlevoix County and 35,000 copies of a county brochure including the map will soon be distributed throughout the state and to Michigan tourist headquarters in other states.

They will go to tourist information headquarters on the major highways, to Chamber of Commerce, and to people querying tourist centers about the area. They will also be available locally at county and city offices and at places of business.

Unlike previous maps, this one outlines each township in color and indicates the surface of every road from state trunklines to county local roads.

The brochure contains pertinent information about each city and village in the county, making it possible for visitors to find places of interest.

The map and brochure were prepared under the direction of the County Planning Department. Most of the cost of printing was absorbed by business people who placed advertisements in the brochure. County Planner John Hess estimates that the county's share of the cost will amount to approximately $2,000.

The Charlevoix Police and Charlevoix County Sheriff's departments will be among law enforcement agencies participating in a school crossing guard workshop Tuesday (Aug. 22) sponsored by Automobile Club of Michigan and the Michigan Department of Education.

The half-day seminar, one of eight held throughout lower Michigan this month, will take place at the Holiday Inn in Grayling at 9 a.m.

The program was developed to comply with a new state requirement that all adult school crossing guards receive four hours of training and two hours of annual review from local police in traffic control, first aid and other areas.

THE BOYNE Valley Railroad was ambushed Thursday evening during its family night excursion between Boyne City and Boyne Falls. Despite repeated threats, all persons aboard the train survived the mock raid.

Switch to leaded gas posing no problems

Substitution of leaded for unleaded gasoline in new vehicles is not a serious problem in Michigan, according to a survey by Automobile Club of Michigan.

The Federal Environmental Protection Agency recently estimated that 10 percent of the nation's drivers are switching fuels. But an Auto Club survey of 400 Michigan service station operators showed fewer than one in 20 felt gas switching is a significant problem.

Those who did said just six percent or more of their customers are asking to switch gasolines.

Nearly 60 percent of the full- and self-service station operators polled said their customers never had asked to substitute leaded for unleaded gasoline.

Although 40 states prohibit private vehicle owners from altering their gas tank openings to allow entry of larger nozzles used in pumping leaded gasolines, Michigan does not.

There are federal laws prohibiting gasoline switching but they apply only to service station operators, repair shops and fleet operators. Most drivers do not substitute fuels because of the cost of replacing expensive catalytic converters and exhaust systems, which are destroyed by lead gasoline additives, and the prospect of added air pollution.

THIS IS HOW Bridge Street looked back in the days when "Dr." Crouter was dispensing drugs and sundries from his store and operating as a one-man Chamber of Commerce.

Crouter was a promoter of 'romantic' Charlevoix

With the founding of the summer resort now called the "Belvedere Club" 100 years ago, Charlevoix became known as an ideal vacation spot.

It was not unusual in the latter part of the last century for local merchants to sing the praises of the community even more so than they do today.

One of the more vocal promoters was G.W. Crouter, a Bridge Street store owner. In 1889 he distributed a 16-page brochure complete with several pictures of the city, a glowing description of its attributes, and a fine advertisement for his place of business.

Billed as "The Oldest Drug House in the County, Dr. Crouter's Drug and Stationery Store at Charlevoix", he listed his specialties for the summer trade as "Souvenirs of Charlevoix, Fine Fishing Tackle, Fresh Candies, Artists' Materials, The Very Best Perfumes and a Full Line of Toilet Goods, The Best Soda and Mineral Waters Dispensed from a Matthew Fountain, Fine Stationery, Reading Matter, and the Central Telephone Office."

Dr. Crouter's Central Resort Boat Landing was called "the best in our village, built expressly for resorters and will be kept eternally for them free from expense. All are invited to make our store, boat landing, and premises headquarters while in Charlevoix, and we will try and make you feel at home."

Citing the advantages of Charlevoix as a summer resort, Crouter quotes "an estimable lady from Keene, N.H., a great sufferer from hay fever, who has made the White Mountains her asylum for many seasons, but who was at Charlevoix last year", as saying, "Certainly it has had a good effect on me and I have enjoyed living, as I have not after August 1st any year since Rome was founded."

Crouter also quotes "Hon. Henry Bishop, one of the pioneers of the west," as saying, "After a number of seasons spent on the resort, we have found so much benefit from the beautiful, invigorating atmosphere, and the enjoyment we derive boating on the beautiful waters of Round and Pine (now Charlevoix) Lakes, that we look forward from year to year to the time when we can again become domociled in our own quiet cottage, so far from the dust, smoke and the insect tribe so prevalent at other resorts."

The climate of Charlevoix is described graphically by Crouter: "The cool, refreshing breezes from the lakes are most invigorating. Little or nothing is known of summer's sultry heat, or of the close, muggy air of dog days, so debilitating in most places. The nights are cool and so conducive to 'balmy sleep, tired nature's sweet restorer.'"

The scenery surrounding Charlevoix, according to Crouter, "is so varied and romantic that the eye never tires of gazing upon its beauty. The crystal water, the hills melting in the misty atmosphere, the forest fading away in the dim distance, form a grand and ever-to-be-remembered scene."

Crouter describes fishing in the area as "most excellent", and facilities "fine". "Mill Creek, one mile from the village, is a good trout stream, while in Pine Lake are any quantity of excellent fish. The Jordan, Dear, and Boyne Rivers and Intermediate Lake may be reached from this point by highway or boat, which plies between Charlevoix and the head of Pine Lake."

Another attribute of the area described by Crouter is "the good farming and fruit country", stating that "Charlevoix is already noted for her apples, pears, cherries, grapes, and 'Irish potatoes'. Our wheat is as good as raised in any country in the world. Our oats, hay, and general farm products cannot be surpassed. Our hardwood forests are nearly inexhaustible."

In conclusion, Crouter says, "The most prominent characteristics of Charlevoix are the picturesque beauty of its location, its water communications, its excellent farming lands, and the moral and intellectual attainments of its citizens."

Holy Childhood featured on card

The Emmet County Unit of the American Cancer Society has prepared a Christmas card depicting the Holy Childhood Church in Harbor Springs.

The church is a landmark in Harbor Springs, built between 1886 and 1906 on the site of an Indian Mission school that was established in 1829. It is listed in the State Registry of Historic Sites.

Robin Segar, Harbor Springs artist, drew the sketch for the card.

The card is available in Petoskey at the Basket Shop and Artisans' Gallery, and in Harbor Springs at Christmas in July. All proceeds go to the Cancer Society.

Hospital fund drive reaches $300,000

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Drive has crossed the $300,000 mark, Glen Kenney Chairman of the campaign, announced today. "Our total pledges to date are $307,465.82," Kenney said.

"We have now exceeded 40 percent of our $750,000 goal," Kenney said.

"A major boost to the campaign was provided by the generous pledge by Charlevoix County State Bank of $25,000 over five years," Kenney continued.

Gordon Wellman, President of the Charlevoix County State Bank, made public the gift, speaking on behalf of the Board of Directors of Charlevoix County State Bank.

When announcing the bank's donation Wellman stated:

"Charlevoix County State Bank is dedicated to the Charlevoix area. Our Board of Directors is fully aware of the importance of having a first class, modern hospital nearby, to assist our employees in the event of an accident or serious illness," Wellman stated

"Quick treatment can reduce work days lost and perhaps even save a life," he continued.

"Just two months ago we had an emergency at the bank and in a matter of minutes our employee was being treated at Charlevoix Area Hospital. Had it not been for having an adequate facility close by, it may have been hours before commencing treatment and no one can guess what the final outcome would have been."

Wellman stated, "Our committment to the Charlevoix Area Hospital is based on approximately $600 per employee.

"Our Board of Directors feels this is a cheap price to pay for assurance that excellent facilities are available when needed

"For the most part," Wellman pointed out," Our business and our growth comes from the Charlevoix community. It seems only fitting to return something to the community, if we are able to do so."

Kenney, responding for the hospital and fund drive committee said, "We are extremely grateful to the Charlevoix County State Bank, whose generous gift is significant in helping us attain our goal of improving our hospital's ability to serve the area."

Kenney and others of the fund drive leadership added that the first major gift to the campaign – $150,000 – came from the hospital employees and staff, a testimony to their belief in the urgency of the project. The balance of the $300,000 raised to date has come from the fourth major divisions of the campaign and is a result of the dedicated work of volunteers from around the community.

Unlicensed electricians cited

Harry Leiber, Electrical Code Inspector for Charlevoix County, reports that the County has received from the State a compiled list of all licensed Journeymen, Masters, and Contractors.

By checking the list, he has found a number of individuals who are operating electrical businesses in the County without licenses. They have been ordered to cease and desist operations in the County until they are licensed.

Leiber explains that an individual who wants to become an electrician must start as an apprentice, work four years under a licensed electrician, then pass the Journeyman's test for a license.

After a 12-month waiting period, the individual may take the Master's test, and after passing it, is eligible to become a Contractor.

ELLSWORTH – The Ellsworth Chamber of Commerce held its annual chicken barbecue recently at Wooden Shoe Park.

And to go along with the barbecue, the chamber also sponsored a Challenge Cup, featuring teams from Ellsworth, Charlevoix, Atwood and East Jordan. The teams competed in a chicken egg race, a sack race, an obstacle course, a golf car, a bike race, a slide game and a swing game.

Ellsworth won the Challenge Cup, which will be displayed in town. Team members Larry Essenberg, Doug McGuire, Judy VanderArk, Helen Essenberg, Joyce Chellis and Ron Kooyer each received a gold medal engraved with the date and their name.

Each team had six members with two alternatives. All team members were over 25 years of age.

Charlevoix took second place in the competition, and members – Don Kelley, Doug Reynolds, Bonnie Voorheis (injured her leg and was replaced by Lorraine Kelly), Pam Stangis, Verna Helms and Duane Taylor were given silver medals.

Medals were presented in Olympic fashion by President Bob Schemke. Officials of the games were Bob and Veronica Lemond, Fritz Allard, Harold Hottle and Schemke.

According to officials, all teams "had a great time and were real crowd pleasers."

During the day, merchants donated prizes (90) which were given away.

Track and field records broken by Charlevoix area youngsters

Records are made to be broken and six of them, one of which had stood since 1972, were shattered at the annual track and field meet sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department at Kipke Field Wednesday and Thursday.

Sharon Martin, who took four ribbons in the junior girls' division, broke the standing long jump record by jumping 5'8½", breaking the old record of 5'1" set in 1975 by DeeAnna Will; In the senior girls' division Laura Kemp jumped 6'8" in the same event to better the 1976 record of 6'5½" set by Melinda Klooster and the 440 yd. relay team of Bridget Noirot, Mary Lenhart, Krista Horak and Laura Kemp, with a time of 1.00 flat broke the 1972 record set by Denise Boss, Sally Westenbroek, Carla Left and Jodi Alger.

In the junior boys' division, Dan Staublin, with a standing long jump of 6'4" clipped eight inches off Stan Sutherland's 1976 record of 5'8"; Jody Putman ran the 25 yard dash in 4.18 to better the 4.3 record set by Todd Daylong in 1976; Craig Klooster, in the standing long jump in the senior boys' division, jumped 7'8" to top the 6'10" record set by Stan Schnackenberg in 1976.

Dwight Boss, city recreation director, reported a good turnout for the annual games. The boys set a record for recent years with more than 60 entries in the junior (8-10 years) and senior (11-13) divisions. There were fewer girls, 25, but among them some prospective candidates for Rayder teams, he said.

And You'll Know You've Found The Petoskey Shopping Area More Reminiscent Of Earlier Days, More Creative And Nostalgic Than Any Place You've Ever Been.

Petoskey,
Michigan

Little Traverse Bay has quiet beauty and unforgettable charm When the setting sun spreads its radiance over the waters, it is indeed lovely from the vantage point of the limestone cliff on which the city of Petoskey now stands, the setting sun provides a spectacular show The Indians created a legend about it Since the first settlers and sightseers arrived over one hundred years ago, the beauty of the sunset has been a thing of wonder and awe to all

Very few white people had seen a sunset over Little Traverse Bay on that late fall day in 1863, when the first train whistled to a stop at the end of its line.

On board was a reporter for a Grand Rapids newspaper, who in reporting on the wilderness scenery, dubbed it Petoskey's Million Dollar Sunset

The metamorphosis of Petoskey was rapid It grew from a small Indian settlement at the mouth of Bear river, to a dynamic, busy village catering to the needs of sightseers and homesteaders To house the visitors, the Arlington and other luxury hotels were constructed overnight Rooming houses for the less affluent were soon to follow

By 1890 a substantial number of shops had sprung up along the main street, creating a very unique pioneer shopping area Along the Bear River waterpower was harnessed to run sawmills flour mills, hardwood flooring industries, butter bowl factories, and furniture-making industries. The limestone cliffs along Little Traverse Bay provided Petoskey with lime, a natural resource of great importance to the industrial development of the town.

Little steamers plied the Bay, and the summer visitors who registered at Petoskey hotels and rooming houses took advantage of the many excursions offered The most popular trip was the Circular or Inland Route This lengthy excursion took the traveler up the coastline of Little Traverse Bay into Lake Michigan, around to Mackinac Island, on to Cheboygan and then down the chain of rivers and lakes to what is now Conway. Until the quaint little dummy trains were in operation, the excursionists were jolted back to Petoskey from Conway by wagon and team

In 1880 the system was in full operation and trips were being made every fifteen minutes By 1905 two trains ran from Petoskey to Harbor Springs at half hour intervals. Many of the people who had come to see the area on the train liked what they saw and became regular summer visitors. By the 1900's the shift from tourism to settled summer communities was in motion. Many resorts developed around the Bay and inland lakes of the area The new-fangled summer resorters spelled the doom of the delightful little steamers on the Bay, the little dummy trains, and the luxury hotels. Many of the hotels burned and were not rebuilt; the dummy engines were sold for scrap, and the steamers sailed off over the horizon.

Although the modes of transportation have seen drastic change, Petoskey's magnetism remains. There is still an element of charm and friendliness in shopping adventure which belongs uniquely to Petoskeys Gaslight District. One may still marvel at the beauty of Little Traverse Bay and experience the wonder of the Million Dollar Sunset.
